Some Super 8mm home movie footage of the band, filmed between 1965-1968, backed by an acetate of the band's unreleased album is also known to be circulating amongst collectors. The album, like the single, is standard frat-rock fare, bringing to mind the Justice albums and it features performances of, among others, Little Latin Lupe Lu, Money, Turn On Your Lovelight, Little Red Riding Hood, and Double Shot Of My Baby's Love.

Compilation appearances have included: Get It On on Midwest Garage Band Series - Kansas (CD), The Garage Zone, Vol. 1 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP); and Norsemen's Theme (from their unreleased album) on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 2 (LP). (MDo/MW/MM)

Some describe Erik's album as 'psych'. Sure, the sleeve is contemporarily floral and colourful but, it's actually just another one of those soft folkie mid-sixties albums - strummed acoustic guitar with orchestra, vibes, or flute. Gentle and pleasantly soothing it is; mind-expanding or tripped-out it isn't. It is not even electric, except for one track at the end of side one; You Said/But I've Got My Way that features hypnotic riffing and crackling, fuzzed guitar but that one blip does NOT make this a "psych" album. Elsewhere, the album's 11 tracks span a wide range of folk, from the strong opening track, with its multi-instrumental backdrop of flute, vibes, horns and bells, to the voice-and-guitar of Why Come Another Day. There's also a soulful and somewhat muted trumpet passage on Lights Across The Field. File it alongside the more melodic, introspective Dylan acolytes - Click (Horning), Bob Lind, and P.F. Sloan.

Erik appears to have been based in New England before New York and had released several records, some under his full name, prior to the Vanguard album. The first single listed above covers a pair of Dylan songs and was produced by Alan Lorber, which points to Boston. (MW/SR/VJ)

NB: α shown as by Smoke Ponies.

Erik and The Smoke Ponies came from Hempstead on Long Island, New York. I'll Give You More is driving, fuzzy punk-pop. Both sides of their first single were written by Richard Klasko, helped by Giaconi for the unfortunately very forgettable From Where I'm Standing and produced by Klasko, Hy Mizrahi and John Linde. Linde also produced Group Image and the New York Rock & Roll Ensemble.

A number was allocated for an album that was never released. It was more than a year before a second Smoke Ponies single appeared, both sides of which were composed by Gary Schultz; a bouncey pop number ending with some raw guitar is backed by a funereal dirge with a couple of double-time sections and sound effects.

I'll Give You More has been compiled on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD) and Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/SR/MW)

The quintet listed above is credited on both sides of this single, so it seems fair to assume they comprised the band. Mushroom People is weird and strangely fragmented and has surfaced on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD) and High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP). Let Me Touch You is a stately Eastern-infused psychedelic ballad. In Arts was a California label

Burke, Lagana and Fortunato went on to form Fields, a late sixties power-trio with slightly less chemical influences. Fields were Los Angeles based.

Richard Fortunato had earlier made some recordings with post-Vejtables personnel in 1966 and was also with The Preachers of Who Do You Love fame.

It appears that ESB was formerly W.C. Fields Electric String Band which latterly included George Caldwell of The Bees. (MW)

A quintet from Memphis, Tennessee The Escapades was formed by Tommy Minga, who was previously with The Jesters. Their debut proved popular enough for them to embark on a tour of the South and they attracted the attention of Verve. Unfortunately the follow-up failed to build on the initial success and they returned to Memphis, breaking up the following year due to the draft. Gorden would join the reformed Bar-Kays, and then went on to work for Stax for whom he designed album sleeves. He was nominated for a Grammy for Isaac Hayes' Black Moses.

One of the best garage punk outfits out of Memphis, compilation appearances have included: - I Try So Hard on Killer Cuts! (LP); I Tell No Lies on Pebbles, Vol. 5 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 5 (LP) and A History Of Garage And Frat Bands In Memphis (CD); She's The Kind on Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP); Mad Mad Mad on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD), Boulders, Vol. 7 (LP) and Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD); and I Tell No Lies, She's The Kind, Mad Mad Mad and the previously unreleased What You Know About Love all appear on Jesters: Cadillac Men (CD). This Richmond, Virginia band was formed in 1961 by students attending Douglas Southall Freeman High School and over the years went through personnel changes due to graduations etc.. A most enterprising bunch; they organised a concert at Richmond Mosque Ballroom on 24 June 1966, recorded it themselves, and put out the resultant album on their own label. It's an enthusiastic frat-garage styled selection of the usual favourites to keep the crowd happy (Louie Louie, Gloria, The Last Time, Mr. Tambourine Man, Lovelight, Shout, Out Of Sight) with a couple of lesser-known tracks thrown in.

Several singles were released on their label in a variety of styles - frat, novelty, beat-ballad, and soul. Somehow wider recognition and success eluded them, despite CBS/Date taking up the option on their last single.

Founder/guitarist Nick Colleran stayed in the music biz as a producer, and did duties for the likes of Short Cross.

They have turned up on a couple of compilations: The Last Time on Oil Stains (LP); and My Only Love on Aliens, Psychos & Wild Things Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/SR/VJ)

From Philadelphia this band was formed by two brothers surnamed Esko, who'd previously been in the Liberation News Service. Touted as 'psych', which it is not, the second singles covers Broadway in a heavy Fudge-like style with some good acidic guitar, but is orchestrated and a little brassy - on the whole above-par. On A Summer's Day With You is a tender pop ballad with orchestra again and woodwind more to the fore.

Come On, Come On (Glenvalley 105) 1966

From Irving, Texas in the mid-sixties, came The Esquires, although they played mainly around Dallas and Fort Worth. Come On, Come On, a rock'n'roller, was their best known song. All of the Glenvalley releases appeared in the same picture sleeve.

A whole side of Texas Punk: 1966, Vol. 2 (LP) and a chunk of Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD) is given over to unreleased tracks, mixes and outtakes by the band.

Compilation appearances have included: Time Don't Mean So Much on Punk Classics, Vol. 4 (7"); Come On, Come On, Come On, Come On (Reprise), Judgement Day, Loneliness Is Mine, These Are Tender Years and Time Don't Mean So Much on Texas Punk: 1966, Vol. 2 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD); Come On, Come On on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 1: Jump Jive & Harmonise (LP & CD); Judgment Day and These Are The Tender Years on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 2 (CD); Judgement Day on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 11 (LP), I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP) and Garage Beat '66 7 (CD); Come On, Come On, Come On, Come On (Reprise), and Judgement Day on Acid Visions Vol. 6 (CD) (Spalax); and Time Don't Mean So Much and Summertime on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). Unconnected to the better known Texan band, this mob was from Springfield, Missouri. She's My Woman can also be found on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. II (LP) and on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD). It has some effective organ which blends nicely with the vocals but is hampered by lame guitar work. The Scratch single kicks off with a light summery popster with brass but Settle Down is SO much better. Understated garage-pop oozing with charm and a keening guitar break that ends way too soon - check it out on Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP). (VJ/MW)

45: Heartaches Stay The Night/Heat (CFP CPR2) 1966

Bartow in Florida was home to this quartet. Recorded in 1965, their sole single was released in 1966 on the Fuller subsidiary CFP. Heartaches Stay is a despairing garage ballad, telling the tale of a boy who's been dumped by his girl; his pain is echoed by keening vocals accompanied by whimpers wrung out on guitar. The flip is an instrumental.

45s: Sunshine Baby/Freedom (Kandy 82042) 1968
Baby You Get To Me/Oklahoma Blues (Kandy 101) 1968

This upstate New York quartet, hailed from Schaghticoke (15 miles north of Albany), and included three brothers.

Their debut Sunshine Baby is pleasant, if undistinguished, pop; Freedom is more noteworthy - strident pop-rock with lashings of wah-wah; check it out on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). On the follow-up, Baby You Get To Me is jaunty pop with brass but Oklahoma Blues comes up trumps again - this time it's a screaming adolescent take on the blues format with a decent guitar solo.

Jeff Wheeler recalls: "Our ages were 13, 15, 17 and 17 at the time. We played Friday and Saturday nights and threw in a wedding now and then with the old standards on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon. Even went to Atlantic City and Raleigh, North Carolina cuz we won a few 'Battle Of The Bands' - the Tea Berry song contest too (we didn't win that though). We made two singles in 1968. Never made a million but we sold 1,000 records for $1 apiece after spending $500 to do it! It was fun."

In 2002 Jeff resided in Poestenskill, New York. Steve was in New Jersey, Jason was reported to be in Texas, and Squeeky Stay had stayed in Schaghticoke. (MW)

45: Tomorrow's Sunlight/Yesterday's Blues (Estbro # unkn) 1971

Thought to be from Amherst or Lorain, Ohio this outfit's over-hyped album ranges from ballads to harder rock. It does feature some good guitar jams on tracks like Gary's Thought. Gene Estribou famously recorded the Grateful Dead's second studio sessions and released their first single in 1965. Intensifications was originally released on Harry Jacobs' MEA label in the mid-sixties and is an interesting Marin County acoustic raga folk item that has now been reissued on CD. Eternal Savings and Trust Company (MA)

ALBUM: 1 WIND AND SPIRIT (Amphion Modern SP-7115) 197? R2

Be wary if you see this listed as psychedelic, this septet from Acton, Massachusetts's album is more in a gospel folk direction. It may therefore appeal more to fans of Christian folk. The album features male and female vocalists of variable quality and there's some effective use of flute. The album contains nine original tunes with good garagy electric guitar jangle on tracks like Living Water, Set Me Free and the stop-and-start opener Don't Fool Yourself. Elegant acoustic guitar, exotic cymbal percussion and a spacey female vocal create a mysterious aura on Karin, which seems an impassioned plea to an unsaved loved one. Highlights include the title track and Ocean, which are both rich in dreamy flute and recorder accompaniment. (VJ)

NB: δ promo-only. α shown as by Charles Ross III. β shown as by Charles Ross E. III, although the 'B' side is just a different mix of an Eternity's Children album cut. χ shown as by Charles Ross III.

Originally The Phantoms (minus Lawley) they'd formed in Cleveland, Mississippi. After relocating to Biloxi, they recruited Linda Lawley and changed their name to Eternity's Children. With aspirations to become an L.A. pop-psych band, they honed their skills on the New Orleans circuit (playing as Charlie Rich's backing band), before venturing to L.A. to record. Their main claim to fame was Mrs. Bluebird, a minor hit, which was produced by Millennium's Curt Boettcher and Keith Olsen. Despite performing the song on 'American Bandstand' national fame eluded them. By the time their first album was released however, Bounds, Walker and Blackman had left, with the latter replaced by Texan McClain (ex-Neurotic Sheep).

Overall their eponymous debut album of orchestrated pop is a top album for Boettcher fans, and features songs by Boettcher plus other Millennium members - including Flowers, a Michael Fennelly composition dropped from Millennium's Begin album. Curiously, the "cover" of Sagittarius' You Know I've Found A Way is the exact same track as the demo logged at the publishers and may not even feature Eternity's Children at all!

Their second album was produced by Gary Paxton in Bakersfield, with compositions by Clarence White, Gene Parsons, Ben Benay and Gary & Jan Paxton. Sounding like a tougher Fifth Dimension, with a European tinge, it's akin perhaps to Glitterhouse's performance on the "Barbarella" soundtrack. A couple of the tracks, Blue Horizon and Sidewalks Of The Ghetto were cut with Spooner Oldham and Chips Moman - presumably in Memphis. Lack of interest caused Tower to scrub the US release of their second album, which only appeared in Canada. They moved to Memphis and adopted an earthier blue-eyed soul sound recording several further singles.

In 1969, the single releases get a little confusing, with consecutive Tower catalogue numbers mixing tracks credited to Charles Ross III, with Eternity's Children cuts. This begs the question, whether this parallel release was a marketing ploy, to push Charles Ross III on the back of the more familiar group name. In addition, their final single includes an unreleased Curt Boettcher tune on the 'B' side, which may even date back to their first album sessions. They carried on with different line-ups finally disbanding in 1975.

Blackman went on to form Starbuck, who achieved national success with the hit Moonlight Feels Right, and later Korona.

The band also recorded a further album which wasn't released at the time. This was discovered by Gear Fab and reissued together with other bonus material from '65 - '67. The Lost Sessions is an entire album of previously unreleased material from 1966 to 1970. The set features top class harmony pop-sike similar to The Millennium and Sagittarius with male and female vocal harmonies and bright breezy songs. The set is accompanied by a detailed booklet and all tracks are previously unreleased.

Alternatively, there is a Rev-ola CD which comprises 25 tracks, covering both albums and assorted singles from 1967-1970. This comes with a detailed history by Dawn Eden. Compilation appearances have included Flowers and You Know I'll Find A Way on Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP). (VJ/MW/JFr/MM/JG)

Cork Marcheschi, later the creative force behind Fifty Foot Hose, grew up in the Bay Area and developed a taste for both R&B and avant-garde music - Edgar Varese was an early influence. After finishing high-school in 1963, he formed a garage band called the Hide-A-Ways with guitarist Jim Flannery (Marcheschi played bass). The band soon changed name to The Ethix and played constantly around the Bay Area between 1964-66. They recorded the notoriously atonal Bad Trip single in the bathroom of Cork's mother's house but the band ended in early 1967 when they played Las Vegas where two of the members were found to be under-age.

The band was based in San Mateo, California.

From Salinas, a farming community 50 miles south of San Jose, this garage band was formed in 1966 and were regulars at local 'Battle Of The Bands' competitions. Spurred on by Don Shepard, who conducted band rehearsals in his garage and helped provide the band with instruments and song arrangements, they soon developed a good reputation on the San Jose scene.

When their first single was picked up by Dot for national distribution they attracted the attention of Ed Cobb, a L.A. producer who was already handling The Chocolate Watch Band and The Standells. Consequently he produced the Sunburst single - the flip was an unreleased Beatles composition. Their magnum opus, however, was Put The Clock Back On The Wall (a Bonner-Gordon composition). Despite the LSD inspired lyrics it was the product of an all-night amphetamine session.

The Sundazed CD retrospective is a 22-track compilation which contains all of their singles plus previously unreleased tracks. These are mostly previously unissued demos but there are also live versions of three Yardbirds songs (Evil-Hearted You, Mr. You're A Batter Man Than I and Shapes Of Things). Most of their singles also appeared on Eva's 1984 compilation The E-Types Versus The Mystic Tide. Fans will also want to check out the Live! retrospective album, recorded at Fresno's Rainbow Ballroom in 1966, which includes their I Can't Do It alongside covers of Yardbirds/Who/Beatles and Dylan standards.

When the group folded in 1967, their manager re-credited their last recording Friendly Indians to fictional outfit Charolette Wood, which was released the following year on the San Francisco International Pop Festival (LP) compilation.

In 1998, three of the original members, Bob Wence, Danny Monigold and Reggie Shaffer regrouped, releasing an independent CD of new and Beatles-cover songs! You can contact them at P.O. Box 808, Moss Landing, CA 95039, to see if they still have copies. It's reputedly well worth tracking down.

Retrospective compilation appearances included: Put The Clock Back On The Wall on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Even More Nuggets (CD) and Nuggets Vol. 4 (LP); and She Moves Me on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW/DK/MM)

This Maine-based group contained the Leavitt brothers who had previously led the Cobras, Maris from The Ones, and Ralph Mazzota from Lazy Smoke. Pedigree aside, this is a powerful and inventive psychedelic heavy rock album(!) that stands on its own as a great work. With its backwards bits and oddly-effected vocals, the album has one foot in the sixties and one in the seventies - leaning into the tracks with a heavy-handed metallic attitude.

Gary Leavitt was killed in 1975, which effectively ended the band - a popular live attraction in the Northeast through 1974. Jay Leavitt still performs with his group Bluesberry Jam in the Maine area.

Lazy Livin' has been compiled on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 7 (CD) and you'll also find Gimme Some Lovin' on Up All Night (CD). (CF)

This lightweight flower-power vocal group was led by Pacheco and Alexander, who later recorded as... Pacheco And Alexander. Pacheco was originally from Massachusetts and was previously in The Ragamuffins. The Euphoria album is sunshine pop in the style of The Mamas & The Papas.

Roger and Wendy Penney later recorded a solo album as Roger and Wendy and were also the couple behind Bermuda Triangle, who released an excellent folk-psych album. (VJ/CF)

45: Hungry Women/No Me Tomorrow (Mainstream 655) 1967

Originally from California, where they had earlier recorded with Word, they travelled to Houston around 1967 and settled there recording their superb single (the flip in particular is an unnerving haunting number). Both tracks later appeared on the compilation A Pot Of Flowers (LP). During their stay in Houston they also recorded four unreleased songs:- Pick It Up, In Time, Walking The Dog and Oh Dear, You Look Like A Dog. These are as psychedelic and good as their recorded output.

Apparently this demo impressed executives at Capitol Records, who subsequently invested a fortune recording an album in Hollywood, Nashville and London. Produced by the band and Nick Venet, A Gift From Euphoria is a magnificent record. The precise direction of the band is difficult to categorise, but country-rock merging with LSD will give you some idea. It has a creepy thread running through it, a foreboding darkness that is embodied most explicitly in the final track World:

"World, you've let me down again
I'll tell them just how bad you've been
I'll run away 'cause you don't care
And find another world somewhere
Now as I leave, I'd like to say
World, I hope we meet again someday"

Watt's guitar is noteworthy throughout the record and he explores different tones from song to song, from gentle acoustic (Sunshine Woman) to massive walls of distortion (Did You Get The Letter, Suicide On The Hillside, Sunday Morning After Tea). Sadly, Capitol seemed to be at a loss as to how to market the finished album and it barely made it past the promo stage. Indeed, it's nearly impossible to locate without the large round hole in the corner of the cover that Capitol used to designate promotional copies during the period.

Watt played guitar on a number of albums as a hired gun, most notably Lee Michaels' Carnival Of Life, where he is front and centre in the mix, blasting away. Most collectors agree this is Michaels' best album and Watt's fiery guitar is the primary reason. He also wrote some material for the L.A.-based East Side Kids and he and Lincoln wrote for, co-produced and played on Bernie Schwartz' solo album circa 1969/70.

A self-titled Finnish album by Finjarn and Jensen (Columbia 7E 062-37059) from 1970 includes two Euphoria songs, Lady Bedford and Did You Get The Letter retitled as Windsor Bedford and Sorry Girl, But Now I Know Things Will Be Much Better Now You've Gone (the latter being part of Did You Get The Letter's lyric). The songwriting credits too have been changed to Finjarn and Jensen!

Doug Delain who played on the early Euphoria recordings, was involved with Love and The Doors.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Hungry Women and No Me Tomorrow on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP); the previously unreleased Oh Dear You Look Like A Dog, Pick It Up, In Time and Walking The Dog on Houston Hallucinations (LP) and on Acid Visions Vol. 10 (CD) (Spalax); Oh Dear, You Look Like A Dog on Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD) and the unreleased version of In Time was also on Acid Visions Vol. 6 (Spalax). Here's another Euphoria, this time from Milwaukee, Wisconsin. This is a heavy rock album with lots of fine guitar work, particularly on the title track, Lost In Trance, the most psychedelic cut, and Enchanted. All the songs on the album were written by lead guitarist D. Walloch.

45:	Somebody Listen/ Dedication Of Sally And Cher	(Band Box BB 393) 1969?

Yet another Euphoria, from a Denver label this time. Later sixties hippie-protest-rock that doesn't really pick up until the instrumental break - a keyboard solo followed by some fine distorted guitar. The vocalist keeps saying 'Somebody Listen' but he does go on a bit - the track clocks in at 4:00. The flip is good, but a rambling affair too. (MW)

NB: α shown as by The Id.

This obscure Saco, Maine band recorded a unique version of Hey Joe which is truly notable for a superb raga-rock guitar break. The flip side, Deception's Ice, features more snappy guitar work.

The band story started back in 1963 with the Electrons, onto the Nomads, then the Id. The Euphoria's Id moniker was used just to avoid confusion with other Id's around at the time. After the band split some members went on to other outfits - the Fate and the Blend.

One spin-off is a solo single by Jimmy Drown as Jonathan Cloud - Jonathan Cloud/Stop And Think (Vigor VI 701) 1971- both sides of which are pleasant upbeat pop. Some ex-members of the Telstars may have been helping out on this too.

The ex-Euphoria's Id band Fate (featuring Skip Smith and Jay Snyder) recorded a demo album in the late sixties that was reissued (in part) by Rockadelic and Shadoks Music as Sgt. Death. See the Fate entry for further details.

Compilation appearances have included: Deception's Ice, Hey Joe, I Just Don't Understand You, Baby and Morning Dew on New England Teen Scene (CD); Deception's Ice on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP); and Hey Joe on Pebbles, Vol. 22 (LP). (MW)

Marcus Uzilevsky a.k.a Rusty Evans, grew up in Brooklyn. In the late fifties he released two rockabilly singles and appeared on American Bandstand. Rusty: - "I was shaped quite a bit by my Tin Pan Alley experiences with Phil Spector writing some songs for me. By 1962 I'd drifted to the folk music cafes of the Village, where I jammed with Fred Neil and Dino Valenti."

Over the next three years he recorded three country albums on Treasure Productions. Rusty:- "In 1962 when I sang at the Cafe Rafio on Bleecker Street, Bob Dylan would often come in and sit in with me playing piano and harmonica. Because of the hullabaloo I created with up-tempo 'rock your socks off' songs, David Crosby (who performed quiet acoustic traditional folk ballads) preferred not to go after me..." In 1965 Rusty was in L.A. for a while, where he made one more single. Back in New York, he formed The Deep and recorded the Psychedelic Moods album in August 1966 in just two days. It came out three months later.

At the same time, Rusty met Teddy Randazzo and together they started Eastern Productions. The first bands they signed were Facts Of Life and Third Bardo for whom Rusty co-wrote the classic I'm Five Years Ahead Of My Time. His next project was Freak Scene (who consisted of three members of The Deep plus David Bromberg). Their album Psychedelic Psoul sold more than 50,000 copies. Rusty: - "The ideas for the psychedelic recordings that I wrote, produced and performed on were the product of a non-drug related, indescribable shift in my consciousness. Definitely transformative. By the time I came to California I had experimented with psychedelic drugs, LSD, etc. but my non-drug related epiphany experience, still remains a mystery to this day."

After its release, Rusty moved to L.A and worked for the 'Take Six' label, producing several recordings including The Nervous Breakdown's I Dig Your Mind. Rusty: "The song which brought me to the attention of the record company was Here We Are. Definitely a 'summer of love' lyric, it didn't see the light of day, other than the demo on Psychedelic Moods, Part 5: The Marcus Demos."

"In L.A. I reconnected with many of the folkies from Greenwich Village, who'd moved to L.A. and become rock stars - Stephen Stills, Peter Tork, David Crosby and some of the lesser known musicians such as Tim Hardin and Richie Havens."

"When I arrived in San Francisco in 1967 the Haight was buzzing. It seemed like the word had been turned inside out. Love was the theme and creativity with no commercial intent was happening." Rusty became involved with the production of Matthew Katz' Fifth Pipe Dream Volume I compilation, working with It's A Beautiful Day, West Coast Natural Gas, Tripsichord Music Box and Black Swan. Rusty: "Working with Matthew Katz of San Francisco Sound was like a Fellini movie..."

In 1970 he released the Marcus album on Kinetic, and in 1979 a folk album, Life's Railway To Heaven (Folkways FTS 32440). More recently he has also released two unique CD's of world music/ambient recordings under the pseudonym "Uzca". Slice Of Light and Gypsy Dreams, featuring Rusty singing in his scat/spirit language.

The renewed interest in his Five Years Ahead Of My Time, has also spurred Rusty to re-record it along with a new composition called Chaos. Both feature great guitar by his son Danny, but haven't been released.

You'll also find Grains Of Sand on Filling The Gap (4-LP box). (NK/RE)

A seminal jug band from Cambridge, Massachusetts although success totally eluded them. John Sebastian would later form the Lovin' Spoonful, Steve Katz the Blues Project and Maria d'Amato played with the Jim Kweskin Jug Band and became better known as Maria Muldaur. These singles are almost certainly the work of Keith Gravenhorst, who produced the first single and gets writer credits for both tracks on the first and third releases.

Don't You Know, a mid-tempo teen-angst ballad, was quite a big hit in Chicago. It's Conscientious Objector which may grab your attention however, with its outrageous right-wing, pro-war stance, it is amusingly silly.

The Mercury single is a Dunwich production and the label bears its logo, regarded by many as a hallmark of quality.

The first single appeared with a picture sleeve and both tracks are included on their first album, as is their second single. A pop-rock group, their name may be somewhat misleading. Remarkably, their version of Midnight Confessions pre-dated The Grass Roots hit, but sadly it went by un-noticed. On the sleeve-notes of their debut album they are referred to as an L.A. group and they recorded there, although their fan club was based in Surfside, Florida. After their second album they morphed into a horn-rock band called Elijah, issuing two albums on United Artists Records. Steve Lawrence went on to play with Buddy Miles in the mid-seventies and Tom Bray was with Crazy Horse in the late seventies.

Produced and arranged by Mike Post, most songs were written by the group members. The Everblue Express was composed by Battyn and the ubiquitous Kim Fowley and The Raven is an adaptation of Edgar Allan Poe.

The album contains lots of organ, good guitars and a strong rhythm section. Battyn was previously in Skip and Flip and would later join The Byrds and the Flying Burrito Bros He also played on Armaggedon's album and several Kim Fowley productions. Chester "Chet" McCracken would become the drummer of Help and the Doobie Brothers.

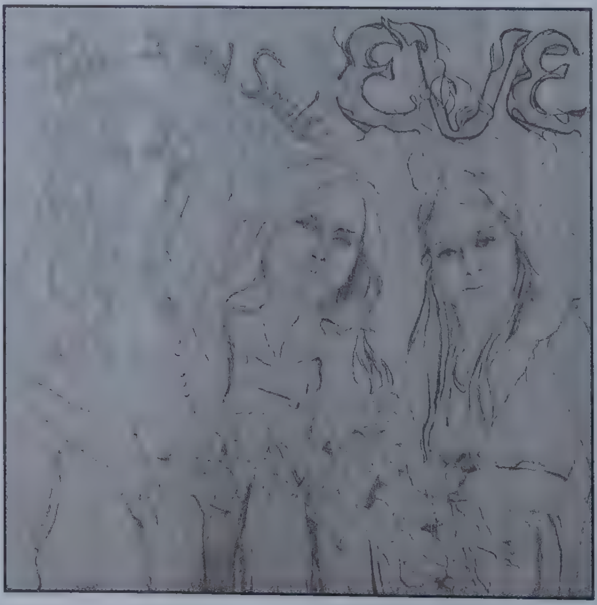
A Los Angeles-based act that was together between 1965 and 1966. They shared the stage at various concerts with, amongst others, Jefferson Airplane, The Turtles, Buffalo Springfield, Sir Douglas Quintet and Love.

One of many bands who had trouble with the record company executives of the time, their best material is said to have remained unrecorded. Their album was recorded in 1966, but White Whale cut off funding before it was completed and only released it four years later to fulfil their contractual obligation to the band. A disappointing mix of pop and country-rock with some ragtime influences, it is now rare but not particularly recommended.



EVE - Take It And Smile LP.

The best moments are probably the Lovin' Spoonful cover, Wild About My Lovin' and The Way She Is, written by Warren Zevon, who was then their stablemate on White Whale, as part of the duo Lyme and Cybelle. Some of their singles are not on the album.

Terry Hand was also in the L.A. band Thorinshield.

Doin' A Number is a fast moving R&B/rock instrumental, which can also be heard on Mindrocker, Vol. 3 (LP). Wild About My Lovin' can also be found on Happy Together - The Very Best Of White Whale Records (CD); and you can check out Darlin' You Can Count On Me on *Where The Action Is! 10" EP:	1	EVERYDAY THINGS	(Sundazed SEP 10-161) 2000

The EP presents six unreleased tracks recorded in 1966 by this Fresno, California quartet with recollections from Philip Hollingsworth. Forceful covers of I Ain't No Miracle Worker, Mister You're A Better Man Than I, The House Of The Rising Sun, Pushin' Too Hard and Outcast are joined by one original - Song On A May Morning.

In 1965, the Hollingsworth brothers formed a high school band The Coachmen with Holley. The following year they got together again, adding guitarist Bryant from nearby Merced. Everyday Things became their handle and in late 1966 they laid down these tracks, but split after just a few months.

In 1967, the brothers joined Fresno fellows Kings Verses in Los Angeles. On their return home they called upon Holley again and, as Canterbury Fair, released a single featuring a reworked Song On A May Morning. (MW)

45:	It's A Pushbutton World/ Eternal Youth	(Main Line ML-1362) 1966

A novelty-psych 'A' side - acoustic folk-pop with choruses made up of sound effect collages. The flip is an anti-protest protest song. An oddly charming single from Cleveland, Ohio. Paul may have been one of the cast of the 'Banana Splits' kiddies' TV show in the U.S. (this may have been shown in the U.K. too). So, hands up anyone brave enough to confirm this! If this were the case it would explain the novelty aspect and vocal style of Pushbutton World, but the war noises probably precluded it being broadcast to a young audience.

Chuck Mangione and Roger Karshner wrote and produced - their names appear behind many other Cleveland acts/projects, e.g. Bhagavad Gita, National Gallery. Roger was a regional rep for Capitol during the mid-sixties, covering Ohio, Virginia and Pennsylvania, and was manager of Cleveland's Outsiders. (GGI/MW)

This band was MGM's answer to The Monkees. Produced and managed by Wes Farrell (who also produced Beacon Street Union and Elephant's Memory), they released two albums of lightweight pop-rock with vocal harmonies and occasional efficient organ. The first one spent 11 weeks in the Charts, climbing to No. 117.

Come On Down To My Boat was a re-working of The Rare Breed's second single. Utah's Gents covered the song in their winning performance at the 1967 'Braintree National Battle Of The Bands' and another live version can be heard by The Flowerz on their retrospective Flyte CD. Of the single cuts, only No One Knows is non-album and is probably the most interesting - heavily phased sunshine-pop with layered harmonies, it could pass for a Curt Boettcher concoction.

Dennis Larden would later work with Rick Nelson and the Stone Canyon Band. (SR/SNs/VJ)

This was a New York City-based group of jazz musicians, who dabbled in rock. Baker, Hills and Pepper had formed the Free Spirits back in 1966 with Larry Coryell and Bobby Moses. They released three singles and one ground-breaking album, Out Of Sight And Sound, which failed to make any commercial impact. Coryell and Moses departed but the band carried on and in 1968 changed their name to Everything Is Everything.

Their debut release Witchi Tai To, written by Pepper and produced by Danny Weiss, made it to No. 69 in the U.S. Billboard Top 100. It was covered by several other acts including Harpers Bizarre (in 1969 on their '4' LP), in 1970 by Wisconsin's Ladds (as Today's Tomorrow), by an obscure UK outfit Taiconderoga, and by hippy duo Brewer & Shipley.

Danny Weiss went on to become a producer on the East Coast, working with Clean Living and Jim Pepper, to name a few. He shouldn't however be confused with Danny Weis, the former Iron Butterfly/Rhinoceros member.

After their first album, the group split and Chris Hill kept on recording with a new line-up. The second album was much more jazz-orientated. (VJ/SR/VZ/MW)

This talented Miami, Florida punk band is worthy of investigation. Drummer Jeff Allen had earlier played with The Montells/H.M. Subjects and made frequent trips to England, where he picked up the latest releases. Subsequently Evil used to cover tunes by The Pretty Things, Fairies, Move, Downliner's Sect, etc. before most of their counterparts had heard of them.

The MONTELLS

EVIL/THE MONTELLS - Split LP.

The two versions of the single have different edits of the 'B' side with a wild guitar solo edited-out from the later Capitol release.

After Evil split, Jeff Alan and John Doyle carried on for a while under the bizarre moniker Fruit Eating Chicken and Drek with Montells members' George Walden and Danny Murphy. John Doyle quit shortly afterwards, being replaced by Frank Milone (who had played in a later line-up of Evil), and they changed name again to Smack.

Jeff Allen led an Evil reformation in 1994-95 and also played with U.K. combo Flea.

Evil and The Montells have recently been the subject of a vinyl retrospective album entitled You Can't Make Me. The Evil tracks include: I'm Movin' On, I Know I'll Die, Always Runnin' Around and two versions of Whatcha Gonna Do About It.

The band came from Lingleston, Pennsylvania and their forte was moody garage-psych with a Doors flavour vocally, especially on Love Conquers All which is memorable more for the fluid meanderings of its keening lead. The flip is a more shambolic affair with growling fuzz and a not-quite-great solo.

Compilation appearances have included: Love Conquers All on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 1 (7"); and Can't Live Without You has got a further airing on The Cicadelic 60's Vol. 5 (LP), The Cicadelic Sixties Vol. 4 (CD) and Sigh Cry Die (CD). Formed in McKinney, Texas in 1963 The Excels took Chuck Berry as their inspiration. 1,000 copies of their first single were pressed and sold exclusively at Gibson Discount Centers. Let's Dance is a fast rock 'n' roller that gets underway with a drum roll. Merchant Of Love was a ballad and the flip a raucous instrumental.

Bennett was eventually drafted, so Vermillion, a trained jazz musician came in to replace him on lead guitar during 1967. This new line-up soon fell apart and not even a change of name to The Shags in their final days could prevent this.

The 10-track retrospective CD collects together both singles and six unreleased demos circa 1966.

Let's Dance has been compiled on Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW)

Musically The Exceptions material is outside the style confines of this book, being in a soulful or slick lounge-band mould.

They were latterly known as The Exception on the Capitol singles, before the main body of the band decided on a change of style and identity to become Aorta. As Far As I Can See and Business As Usual are featured on the CD compilation The Quill Records Story. (MW/MM)

NB: α later issued on Itzy (4).

Here's a Youngstown, Ohio-based outfit which started off as a frat-house sax instrumental band and later turned "punk". Their first single is pretty cool, with each verse punctuated by the sound of a blade slamming down, and their second, Don't Put Me On was a typical punk song with a good beat.

The Action label was run by the band's drummer, but later in 1965 they signed to the nationally distributed Swan label. The result, I Want The Rain, was another punk effort with no mean commercial appeal. Sadly, it made little impression at the time. Roger Lewis was briefly a guitarist in this group and would team up with Dick Stroney again in the Poppy.

Compilation coverage has included: Don't Put Me On on The Midwest Vs. The Rest (LP); the instrumental I Want The Rain on Sixties Choice, Vol. 1 (LP), 60's Choice Collection, Vol's 1 And 2 (CD), Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD) and Garage Beat '66 1 (CD); and I Was Wrong on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD). THE EXKURSIONS - Self Titled CD.

This Christian rock band formed in Chicago in 1968. The album is predominantly in a heavy bluesy style with many Hendrix-inspired moments and some fleeting jazz influences, occasionally enhanced by good use of fuzz.

For all its overtly religious themes and lyrics however, it doesn't come across as spiritually uplifting or inspiring and could have done with some lighter 'n' brighter shades. If interested check out the Holy Fuzz compilation first. It contains two of the better album tracks - Dry Ground and the heavily-fuzzed It's Been Set Down. (MW)

NB: α shown as by Robert Price & The Exotics.

Hailing from Dallas in the second half of the sixties, this band have been well covered in subsequent compilations (see below). Musically The Exotics played strong melodies in a folk-rock vein with occasional psychedelic touches - well worth a listen.

Guitarist Blair Smith was also responsible for the lead guitar work on Scotty McKay's version of Train Kept A Rollin' - which is often mis-credited to one Jimmy Page!

Come With Me was later covered by The Chesterfield Kings on their Here Are The Chesterfield Kings album.

Compilation appearances have included: Come With Me, I Was Alone, Morning Sun and Queen Of Shadows on The Psychedelic Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP); Alone Again, Come With Me (different version), Come With Me To Chevrolet, Fire Engine Red, Hymn To Her, I Was Alone (different version), Morning Sun (different version) and Queen Of Shadows (different version) on Texas Punk, Vol. 4 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD); I Was Alone and Queen Of Shadows on Flashback, Vol. 4 (LP), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) and Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 4 (CD); Come With Me on Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP) and Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP); Come With Me, Fire Engine Red, Hymn To Her, I Was Alone (three versions), Morning Sun (two versions), Queen Of Shadows, Radio Ad for Mitchell's Department Store and Radio Ad for Bill McKay Chevrolet on The Thingies Have Arrived!! (CD); Come With Me, I Was Alone and Going Up Going Down on Acid Visions Vol. 6 (CD) (Spalax) and Come With Me on Garage Beat '66 7 (CD). Originally from Oklahoma City in 1962, where they were known as The Juveniles, they relocated to Portland, Oregon in 1964. Operating now as The Express they played there until 1969 and recorded this one mini classic. You Gotta Understand is a kind of grungy R&B effort, whilst the flip, is a pretty credible version of one of The Kingsmens' classic songs.

Compilation appearances have included: Wastin' My Time (a previously unissued fuzz pounder) on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD); You Gotta Understand on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD) and The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP); and Long Green on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 7 (LP), The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP); and there's a previously unreleased alternate version of the song on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 4 (CD). This Eyes also hailed from Ohio and their spacey sci-fi concept album has fuzzy guitar and Vox organ (which will appeal to garage psych fans) and lots of moogs and oscillators (which will appeal to those into proggy space-rock). This is an unique listening experience!

After relocating to nearby Pennsylvania, Todd Clark put together a new band and recorded a second and better known album, We're Not Safe! (World Theatre TC-102) in 1979 with the Todd Clark Group. This includes a good cover of the Raider's Hungry and their interpretation of The Electric Prunes' I Had Too Much To Dream. Overall the album has more of a garagy and less of a progressive feel. Another sci-fi Todd Clarke album, Into The Vision followed in 1984. The above CD (which is credited to Todd Tamanend Clark) contains both of the Clark solo albums, a 1976 album by the pre-Eyes band Stars that was only issued on eight-track tape back in the day, as well as the Eyes 1977 album. A durable Texas musician who fronted a number of punk outfits in the late sixties. He'd earlier made three solo singles. The garage combos who supported him included at various times Mike Nesmith (later of The Monkees), M. Forney, Augie Meyer and Harvey Kagen (who achieved some success with the Sir Douglas Quintet), Keith Allison (who went on to Paul Revere And The Raiders) and Mike O'Dowd (later of Augie Meyer's Western Head Band).

The Green Grass Of Home album comprised material from the late sixties and early seventies. He recorded other albums but this is the one that will find favour with readers of this book.

Sadly, he passed away early in March 2000.

NB: α shown as by The Next Exit; β shown as by Kansas City.

The above line-up came together in Kansas City, Missouri circa 1963 and would remain constant until the mid-seventies. Previously known as the Fabulous Four Jacks, they were originally The Midnighters, formed by Theen and Love back in the late fifties.

A pop rather than a garage band, they merit a mention due to their classy mid-sixties singles which glitter with the optimism and creativity of the time.

With a blend of Beatles, Byrds, and Hollies influences, they have seen some cuts appear on specialist compilations: Doing Something Wrong on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 9: Teen Jangler (LP & CD); and both Happy and I'm Always Doing Something Wrong on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. I (cassette).

In 1968 they made some recordings in New York, produced by the Tokens, and the result was a soft-pop single on Warner Brothers credited to The Next Exit. A final 1970 single on Capitol's Trump subsidiary was credited to Kansas City, presumably "Fab Four" sounded decidedly dated by then.

The band soldiered on until the mid-seventies although there were no further releases. Reunited in the late nineties, they were still performing regularly in 2007. (MW/VJ)

Formed in 1966, the liner notes to Back From The Grave state that they originated from Fullerton, California and that they wound up on the Texas Cotton Ball label via a business associate of their drummer's mom. Whatever the story, their sole stab for stardom was a pretty good single. Wabash Spencer (line-up 'B') recorded a demo in 1967 that remains unreleased.

Ellis, Clark and Sheppard went on to Stack.

45:	I Can't Tell You/One By One	(Mead 123167) 1967

Formed in 1964, these wonderful chaps were from New Ulm, Minnesota. They'd earlier used various names like Wholly Moses, Brain Police, Manic Depression and Great Depression. Their first drummer was an 11-year old. John Tretault came in on drums, although in 1966 he left and was replaced by Greg DeBerry from Iowa. Around the same time they recruited Tim Lindsay, a talented singer, who got them lots of work around Minnesota and northern Iowa.

After a short while Greg DeBerry was forced to leave the band when his father's business required him to be transferred out of town and John Ginkel who'd previously played with another local band, The Shags, was welcomed into the fold (he was Peter Kitzberger's next door neighbour). Shortly after Tom Lindsay departed to join The Royal Emperors (an Owatonna, Minnesota band) and a new vocalist Randy Evans, from the Lake Crystal area, was recruited in his place. His vocal range was well suited to the 'harder' rock and roll and blues the band was now playing. This line-up (D) recorded the band's sole single.

I Can't Tell You, which later resurfaced on Root '66 (LP), was a song of teenage love with a scorching fuzz guitar break by Phil Groebner. The flip was a good cover of a Blues Magoos' tune. (VJ)

	Talkin' Bout You/Sometimes	(Reprize 38-22-38) c1967

This outfit was part of Wilmington, Delaware's contribution to the garage-rock scene. Their first single, Church Key, a grungy rocker about the evils of alcohol, is a blues tune with a fifties rock 'n' roll influence.

Both their Reprize singles are in high demand amongst collectors on the rare occasions that copies surface.

The cornerstone members of the band, Fred Dawson and Eddie Stevenson, later recorded an album as Mouzakis and gigged as Capone. Fred recalls: "Aubrey quit the band early on, got married and has been a postman ever since. Bill moved to Florida to play in some club bands and I understand he is now in Atlanta doing sound for the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra."

Compilation appearances have included: Hold Me Tight on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD); and Church Key on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP). Hold Me Tight, Sometimes I Think About, Route 66, Church Key, Run And Hide, Fire Street, Don't Need Your Money and Gonna Give You Rock & Roll can all be heard on Mouzakis 'Magic Tube + 14' (CD). Line-up 'B' of this Los Angeles band recorded a three-track demo on the 18th August 1966, two tracks from which appeared on the first UNI single, with the third, Candy Cane Madness finally appearing on Demon's Microdelia CD compilation. Their second single is a rework of a Gene Vincent composition which they turned into a late sixties punker by adding a screaming fuzztone guitar. Both of their singles were produced by ex-Teddy Bear Marshall Lieb and he also cut four or five additional tracks at the time.

FAINE JADE - It Ain't True LP.

The band's main significance was that Kibbee, Klein, Hayward and Taylor later played with Fraternity Of Man, while the late Lowell George played with The Mothers of Invention and achieved greater fame as an original member of Little Feat with Hayward. Dallas Taylor was also one of the two original drummers with the revered Clear Light and would later occupy a very successful seat behind Crosby, Stills, Nash (& Young).

Frank Zappa also cut some tracks with The Factory at Original Sound studios in 1966, and financed / produced / played on several more between 1967 - 1969. None were released at the time, but two have recently been released on the Lightning Rod Man CD by Rhino (Lightning Rod Man and The Loved One). The retrospective also contains another 13 tracks including a live version of Candy Cane Madness, two post-Factory cuts: Framed and Juliet; and studio versions of Lost (great garage pop), Slow Down, Smile, Let Your Life Begin, Sleep Tonight, No Place I'd Rather Be, Hey Girl, Changes, Crack In Your Door, Teenage Nervous Breakdown and Candy Cane Madness. There's also a previously unreleased version of Candy Cane Madness from January 1967 on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book).

An interesting aside on The Factory is that they appeared in two sixties sitcoms: "F-Troop" (as The Bedbugs in a starring role) and "Gomer Pyle" (performing as a bar band... where both Lost and Candy Cane Madness can be clearly heard in the background).

Other compilation coverage has also included: No Place I'd Rather Be and Smile, Let Your Life Begin on California Acid Folk (LP); The Loved One on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); No Place I'd Rather Be on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 4 (CD); and When I Was An Apple on Voyages Into The Bottomless Pit Vol. 2 (CD). From Bala-Cynwyd, which is a suburb of Philadelphia in Pennsylvania, Facts of Life formed in 1966 when a group of kids came together at Bala-Cynwyd Junior High School. I've Seen Darker Nights is a pretty typical sixties garage record with up-front organ, lots of fuzz and some adventurous drumming for the times. The flip, however, is bereft of fuzz and is a very doleful garage-ballad (sniff). Both sides of the single were written by Yampolsky - another member of the band, perhaps?

Bruce Klauber went on to become one of Philadelphia's top jazz drummers.

Compilation appearances include: All In Good Time on Class Of '66! (LP); and I've Seen Darker Nights on Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP) and Gravel Volume 1 (CD). (MW/VJ)

NB: α shown as by The Rustics, limited to 100 copies, this now fetches in excess of $100. Also of interest is Doctor Paul/Don't Hassle Me Part 2 (PS) (Distortions DB-1013) 1993, which contains two previously unreleased demos from 1967.

Faine Jade was an East Coast solo artist based around Boston. The album contains two outstanding tracks People Games Play - complete with sounds of tortured human screams - and the subtle Cold Winter Sun Symphony In D Major. The remainder of the album is experimental, but not outstanding (though some regard it as an absolute classic). It is, however, quite a significant collectable.

It Ain't True is a limited edition release of previously unreleased demos and acetates. Side one consisting of Faine Jade's earlier outfit The Rustics, which led to him and Nick Manzi being signed up as staff writers for Laurie Records in 1966. The Rustics did issue one single on their own label, which also appears on the Distortions album, but towards the end of the year Nick Manzi left to join Bohemian Vendetta. Faine then signed a solo deal with Laurie subsidiary, Providence, which resulted in the Love On A Candy Apple Day single with Jeff Jade on drums and founding Illusion member Bruce Bradt on organ. The 'B' side, It Ain't True, is an excellent psychedelic number.

In late 1967, Faine recorded demo versions of Cold Winter Sun and I Lived Tomorrow Yesterday, backed by the Bohemian Vendetta, which led to the deal with New York independent label for the Introspection album. The band also backed him on the album, along with Bruce Brandt and Randy Skrha (who filled in for Jeff Jade - who was in Vietnam at the time). Bruce also co-wrote two of the songs on the album. The recent CD reissue, includes a linking piano section Piano Interlude omitted by the record company at the time because of its uncommercial nature, as well as three album demos and a nineties tribute to John Lennon.

Where Introspection captures the arguably naive atmosphere of 1967, and naked openness that the use of psychedelics represented, Vietnam polarised political opinion, which Faine articulated on a 1969 recording USA Now before moving to Florida and working with the pre-Allmans outfit Second Coming. Later he rejoined Nick Manzi and Bruce Brandt as Dust Bowl Clementine who released one album, Patchin' Up (Roulette 1970), and opened a studio in Long Island.

Faine recently had a local hit with Mario Taxes, a song about the state of affairs in New York.

Compilation appearances have included: It Ain't True on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD), A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP), Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP) and Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP); The Ballad Of The Bad Guys on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD); and both Cold Winter Sun and People Games Play on Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). Their fall '64 debut features hand-clappin rock'n'roll pop. By the second they'd caught the Merseybeat bug - pealing guitars and harmonies like 1963-64 vintage Searchers. With Windy City they moved into sultry Byrds territory, although Big Joke stuck with Invasion beat sounds.

From Malone, New York I Gotta See Her gained belated appreciation and reputation via its inclusion on the five-star compilation Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP). It's a great Kinks-type riffin' punker with fuzz and atmospheric harmonica, totally at odds with the insipid Merseybeat flavoured lounge-ballad There's A Tear. Now both can be experienced on You Ain't Gonna Bring Me Down To My Knees (CD). According to the CD leaflet, the band actually hailed from Upstate New York and would be known later as the Franklin Brothers, after they'd recorded two further unreleased tracks in 1969, also featured on the CD - Rape The Wind and When Mother Nature Was A Girl.

NB: α is a 'Hip Pocket' 45 - a 4" flexi in a pic envelope, a series issued by Philco. β was recorded in 1969 but released posthumously on manager Tom Traynor's local label.

Operating out of Annapolis, Maryland this band was formed in 1965 when Wally Cook and Ned Davis of the Young Rabbits teamed up with Jack Bryant and Charlie Jones. Initially called the Disciples, then the Uncalled Four, they eventually settled on the Fallen Angels. Drummer Rocky Isaac was also a member at one point (he was formerly with the Tejuns, the

FALLEN ANGELS

THE FALLEN ANGELS - Self Titled LP.

Creatures, and later Cherry People) but his place was eventually taken by Richard Kumer from the The Mad Hatters by the advent of the first album. Lauritsen had also replaced Charlie Jones by then and Danchik had been added to make it a quintet.... Their first album has a nice paisley cover and consists of competent rock with some pleasant psychedelic interludes. The second album carried on from where the first had ended. Three tracks in particular - One Of The Few Ones Left, Something New You Can Hide In and I'll Drive You From My Mind - stand out, being full of melodic guitar work, climbing keyboards and sensitive vocals.

The band split in 1969 but in 1974 a retrospective single was released on their manager's own-label. This has an acoustic mellow rock sound until some mean guitar kicks in, and is notable for affected 'vibrato' vocals. The flip is dull by comparison and full of la-la-la-la-la's.

Both original albums are worth searching for and have been repressed. You can also find 12 album tracks on each of the Collectables CDs Roulette Masters, Part 1 and Part 2.

In 1998, The Fallen Angels returned with a new CD Rain Of Fire. Every Time I Fall In Love and Everything Would Be Fine are updated and accompanied by 11 new tunes (all bar one by Jack Bryant). Purists who expect a time-warp back to their garage and psych sounds of 1967/8 will be disappointed; but for those without such unrealistic preconceptions, this is accomplished and mature rock with blues, folk and country influences (just the odd spot of rust in the vocals department).

Compilation coverage has included: Have You Ever Lost A Love? on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP) whilst their decent cover of Arthur Lee's Signed D.C. resurfaced on Psychedelic Moods - Part Two (LP & CD). In their earlier incarnation as The Mad Hatters they contributed a previously unreleased Hello Girl on Washington D.C. Garage Band Greats (LP). There's also Room At The Top on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD); Your Mother's Homesick Too on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD) and I'll Drive You From My Mind on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers (CD).

The Famen from Atlanta, Georgia was not a usual teen garage combo; it was actually a wild rock'n'roller from Mississippi called Wayne White, based in Atlanta in the mid-sixties. In his search for fame'n'fortune (hence the moniker) he was adept at absorbing the latest sounds and using local talent, releasing four singles in a productive 12-month blitz in 1966-7.

Not all were in the garage genre; those that were have been compiled. His crackin' version of Bo Diddley's Crackin' Up (also tackled by The Gants) appears on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). Hurry can be heard on Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 4 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD) whose liners recount his exploits after Mike Markesich tracked him down in the nineties.

White wrote much of his material and even lent one of his compositions, Laugh In My Face, to The (Swingin') Apolloes for their debut single, joining them on keyboards - that track is featured on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 3 (CD). He then switched to a new identity, Shack Jones. By the early seventies he was doing studio work and was at the controls for Lynyrd Skynyrd's 1973 debut album. Come the eighties he was back on stage again. (MW/MM)

A New York band, sometimes acoustic, at others they sounded rather like The Fugs. Two of the weirder album cuts, Saigon Girls and Water Music were also released on a single.

Apart from Saigon Girls (a Bonner/Gordon song), all their material was original and penned by the Townleys, Jay Ungar or Bob Berkowitz. Some were in fact rearranged traditional folk songs (notably Fiddler A Dram, also recorded by The Youngbloods).

John Townley founded the Apostolic studios in New York and had earlier played guitar with Gordon and Bonner in The Magicians. He was managing his Apostolic studio when he signed a distribution deal with Vanguard for the productions of his label, Apostolic (artists included Far Cry, Boa Constrictor and Everything Is Everything). He was later involved in Gospel and, in 1979, released a solo album in England John Townley (Harvest ST 12007).

Jay Ungar later joined Cat Mother and was active on the folk scene. (VJ/MW/SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) FAMILY TIMES BAND (Casey RSR 602) 1976 R2

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Erebus) 2010.

Family Times Band consisted of two brothers and two sisters from Newport News, Virginia and their sole album was released as a privately pressed edition of 500. The album is quite diverse and ranges from the hypnotic acid-folk of Sitting By The Ocean to West Coast folk-rock offering She's Gone as well as fuzzed out rockers like Cause You Know. Despite coming from the mid-seventies, the sound is much more akin to 1969-70 sensibilities and is in the style of bands like Seventh Dawn, Art of Lovin' and Growing Concern. (VJ)

Slippin' Thru My Fingers/Miss Butters (RCA 9565) 1968
He Spins Around/She Had To Fly (RCA 9671) 1968

Segarini and Whittington formed this band when The Brogues dissolved in late 1965. They based themselves in San Francisco, but originated from Stockton, California. In the summer of 1966 they signed for Mira issuing the above single. Prince Of Dreams was a folk-rocker notable for strong vocals and a prominent harp. The flip side merged folk-rock and Merseyrock. A further seven tracks were also recorded for Mira to put out on an album which never materialised. (The tracks were Good Day, May I Ride With You, He Doesn't Come Around, Up In The Air, Beggar, She Reads Magazines and Observations.) After this Mira release, which was a minor hit in northern California, the group were offered a recording contract by RCA and made the above concept album which was rather ahead of its time and Beatlesque in influence. The Miss Butters single was taken from the album, the others were non-album. As neither the album nor the singles sold, RCA dropped the band in 1969. Segarini and DeCocq later formed Roxy. Olsen pursued a solo career as Lee Michaels and Segarini and Kootch were later in The Wackers. Segarini also recorded a series of solo albums in the late seventies.

Compilation appearances have included: Prince Of Dreams and Live Your Own Life on Mindrocker, Vol. 8 (LP); Prince Of Dreams on Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD); and Live Your Own Life on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book). (VJ)

From Connecticut, produced by Thomas "Doc" Cavalier, Fancy was formed by Chris Bernardoni and her brother (both ex-Wrongh Black Bag) and Paul Ossola from The New Fugitives. Their rare hard-rock album offers several good tracks (like Black Snake) with screaming female vocals and blistering fuzz lead guitar.

Vic Bernardoni, Ossola and Levin also played with the Incredible Broadside Brass Bed Band whose album was also issued on Poison Ring.

Chris Bernardoni would later perform as Christine Ohlman and kept on recording with Orsi, Ossola and Cavalier in the Scratch Band (one album for Big Sound in 1977, also released in Germany and England) and the Yankees (the High 'N' Inside album released in 1978 by Big Sound in the US and by London in England). 45s:	I'm Flying Home/Girl	(Shamley 44008) 1968
	Tampa Run/Everybody's Talking	(Shamley 44019) 1969

Fankhauser recorded this folk/soft-rock album after the break-up of his early seventies band Mu. It has become rare in recent years.

Fankhauser was with several bands in the sixites, including The Impacts, The Exiles, Fapardokly and H.M.S. Bounty. The two singles on Shamley are pop-rock.

Fankhauser suffered a heart attack following a concert appearance in Pismo Beach, California in 1987 and for a while it was touch and go, but he did fully recover. He continues to record in the new millenium and has issued at least two albums in Europe, The Fankhauser/Cassidy Band (with Ed Cassidy of Spirit): Further On Up The Road (2-LP) 2000 and Man From Mu (2-LP) in 2001.

A Kama Sutra production by Richard Perry, this band's origins are unknown but it sounds like something out of a Los Angeles studio and has been described as "Boettcher-like pop-psych".

Gotta Get Away is summery Californian harmony-pop with bells, chimes, and a soupcon of fuzz - like The Turtles having a singalong with the Beach Boys. It's very good but not really psychedelic. The flip is a harmony ballad with a whistled solo. (MW)

Originally known as The Larks, this McKeesport, Pennsylvania garage band's high point was opening for a Rolling Stones concert in 1965. They recorded a few mostly self-penned singles on local labels in 1965 and 1966 that are well-regarded by sixties collectors. The band operated as a trio with two guitarists and a drummer - a bass-less line-up, which is a rarity in rock music. Some of their singles were recorded at a local radio station, and indeed the crudeness of the production is fascinating, with lots of reverb. They really began to smoulder with some sparse beat offerings culminating in the gloriously noisy Fight Fire. Both sides of this fine single can also be heard on Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP) and Love Is Tuff resurfaced on Burghers, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). Fight Fire pointed the way to the next step - the legendary Swamp Rats, the epitome of great garage music.

An unreleased 1966 track Shy Girl has also turned up on the Pittsburgh radio-show compilation Terry Lee Show WMCK (LP). This is one of many unreleased recordings which are known to include alternate and acoustic versions of above singles and album cuts, plus many early WMCK recordings. In all, there are 17 unreleased tracks. (MW/BSy/VJ)

45s:	Midnight Snack/ This Calls For A Celebration	(Double Shot 105) 1966
	Light Show/Silent Movies	(Double Shot 109) 1967

Don Cameron and Erik Karl were the creative force behind this band which originated from Colorado and was originally known as The Fogcutters. They became known as Fantastic Zoo when the original band broke up and Cameron and Karl moved to Los Angeles in 1966, where they cut a debut single Midnight Snack in October of that year. Their lead singer's distinctive voice and bizarre lyrics stand them aside from typical psychedelic bands of the era.

Their best song was the excellent Light Show (the only psychedelic record I know of dealing with one of psychedelia's best known attributes), released in January 1967. This can be heard on Psychedelic Experience (CD), Mindrocker, Vol. 6 (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 and Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). It is an excellent example of well-crafted, laid-back, subtle psychedelia.

Mindrocker, Vol. 8 (LP) features This Calls For A Celebration, which was in a similar mode to, though not as good as, Light Show. (VJ)

From Miami, Florida this band's album is well worth a listen if you're into the 'West Coast sound' format, though they're closer sound-wise to Big Brother than Jefferson Airplane.

A strident female lead vocalist called Lydia belting it out and sounding not unlike her namesake - Lydia Pense - of Cold Blood. There's some searing guitar and quite a hard-rockin' style with more blues rather than folk influences. Their album sold quite well, spending three weeks in the Top 200 with a best position of No. 194.

Stoned Cowboy, an instrumental, received considerable airplay in Miami/Detroit at the time and was on heavy rotation on KIMN-AM in Denver. Understand has resurfaced on White Lace & Strange Volume 2 (CD).

They were later known as Year One.

There was another band called Fantasy, a local rock group from Tulsa, Oklahoma. Their album Smoke 'Em If You Got 'Em (Fantasy 79-478) is thought to date form 1979, just outside this book's time-frame. (MW/SR/RBc/CBt/VJ)

FAPARDOKLY - Self Titled CD.

The above album was issued in February 1968, but consists of recordings made during 1964-67, when the band played in Lancaster, California. It includes material released on singles with Fankhauser's previous band, The Exiles, which by the time of the album's release was patchy and rather dated. The remainder of the album consists of folk-rock and soft psychedelia. Examples of the latter are the mysterious Gone To Pot and No Retreat. The Fapardokly album remains extremely sought-after despite a large quantity find in the eighties.

Dick Lee's previous band was The Brymers.

The recent Sundazed CD includes three previously unreleased tracks The War, Yes I Love You and Run Baby Run.

Compilation appearances include: Supermarket on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD); Gone To Pot and No Retreat on Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); Gone To Pot on We Have Come For Your Children (LP & cassette) and Reverberation 1V (CD); Supermarket on Unknown Legends of Rock'n'Roll (book) and Tomorrow's Girl on *Where The Action Is! From Boston, this was a heavy psychedelic outfit with free jazz influences. Something of an acquired taste its appeal is likely to be quite narrow! Except for the classic blues track Sweet Little Angel, all the songs on their album were penned by the group and sung in a very rasping voice by Jere Whiting.

The album was produced by Danny Weiss (Everything Is Everything) and recorded in New York. It's one of the few records issued on Vanguard Apostolic, the label managed by John Townley (from Family Of Apostolic).

45: Robins, Robins/Sunny Day Blue (Capitol 2149) 1968

This romantic-sounding late sixties pop offering with the occasional nod and a wink towards more vaguely psychedelic tendencies is worth a passing mention. They hailed from Salt Lake City, Utah. Their clever pop-psych style is best represented by tracks like The Sound Of It, Talks We Used To Have, Promises Of Love and When The Dew Drops Change To Teardrops. According to the liners on the album back cover, the duo was in their early twenties and probably religious.

Sunny Day Blue has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 6 (CD) and Ah Feel Like Acid (CD); you'll also find Cross With No Name on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD); and you can also chek out Talks We Used To Have on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD). (VJ/NK)

Pack Up Your Sorrows/ Joy 'Round My Brain (Vanguard 35032) 1965

NB: Both shown as by Mimi & Richard Farina.

Of Irish and Cuban heritage, Richard "Dick" Farina was caught up in the I.R.A. movement and arrested at the age of 16. At 18 he was finally deported from Ireland to the U.S.A. for his activities, attended Cornell and was dismissed after leading a demonstration. He began singing in the Greenwich Village folk circuit and briefly married Carolyn Hester. He returned to Europe as an actor, street singer and play writer and finally met and married Mimi, Joan Baez's sister, in 1963 in Paris.

Both returned to the U.S.A. and Richard became a published writer for various magazines and newspapers, a poet and a songwriter. His song Birmingham Sunday was sung by Joan Baez at the 1964 Newport festival and he got offered a contract with Elektra to appear on their 1965 Singer Songwriter Project along with David "Blue" Cohen, Patrick Sky and Bruce Murdoch. The resulting record contains three Farina songs: House Un-American Blues Activity Dream (later covered by Ian Matthews), Birmingham Sunday and Bold Marauder (covered by John Kay of Steppenwolf).

He then formed a duo with his wife and they recorded two excellent albums, predominantly folk with nice poetic lyrics, and some oriental influences (especially on Reflections). The use of a rock rhythm section is very effective on several tracks. Miles is dedicated to Miles Davis and the superb Reno, Nevada was later covered by Turnquist Remedy and Ian Matthews. Pack Up Your Sorrows became a folk classic and some dozens of versions exist. Both albums are recommended.

The long liner notes of these well-received albums thank "Assorted Algerian herbs for the head", Leary for his Quick-Trip manual, Paul Butterfield and Bob Dylan.

Farina also wrote a novel, "Been Down So Long It Looks Like Up To Me", which is now considered a classic of the transitional period between beatniks and hippies.

After this very promising start, Richard Farina died in a motorcycle accident in 1966. You'll also find Reno Nevada on Urban Strangers and Wayfaring Strangers Book (CD).

Mimi Farina kept on singing in the folk and folk/rock circuit, recording some albums with Tom Jans in the seventies. Sadly, she died in 2001. (SR/EH/MW)

3(A) FARM - SERIES TWO (No label F-2001) 197? R2

NB: (1) and (2) feature the same material. (1) is an Australian release, and may be the first of the two original editions. On the Rebel pressing, the song The Eater is shown as V 12 Cadillac, but the actual audio program is the same on both. The US pressing has a B&W printed front cover with a photo of the band and text, the back is blank. The label has a crude swirl design. Of the three issues of this material, this photo cover US version has the best sound quality. (3) appears to be a low-budget reissue of (1). The cover has only "Farm" rubberstamped in the centre. The label lists the same 13 tracks that appear on the US edition (2), but the record plays only 12, deleting Crumple Car. There is no mention of The Innermost Limits Of Pure Fun on this edition at all, but the assumption that it is a later release is based on the "Series Two" title on the label.

The Innermost Limits Of Pure Fun was a landmark in cinematography when it was released in 1970. Filmed mostly on a kneeboard in the water by George Greenough, it provided audiences intimate, in-the-curl views previously only seen by surfers, as well as glimpses of the nomadic lifestyle. It was filmed in Australia and the USA in the late sixties. Greenough commissioned Dennis Dragon to score the movie and he gathered an impressive collection of players, not the least of which were his brothers The Dragons. There are a number of albums with the Dragon brothers involvement (including the compilations A Sea For Yourself and Corky Carroll And Friends), but it is this movie soundtrack that collectors consider their artistic pinnacle.

FARM - The Innermost Limits Of Pure Fun LP.

Albums (1) and (2) listed above contain 50 minutes of original music by Farm that encompasses rock, blues, R&B, and even Eastern music that is all quite unique and will appeal to readers of this book. The movie itself, which is recommended, features roughly 30 minutes of additional music not included on the album. It can be located through any of several video distribution companies on the web.

As most readers will already be aware, Daryl Dragon later was The Captain alongside his wife Toni Tennille. Dennis Dragon's career extended through the seventies as a session player, through the eighties with The Surf Punks, and he is still active today in the California music scene, producing television programs that focus on local bands. He also played in another rural-rock outfit, the Joyous Noise (Musical Ensemble). (CF/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) FARM (Crusade Enterprises LPS-465) 1970 R3

NB: (1) was originally issued in a pressing of 500 copies. (1) was later counterfeited on vinyl (Crusade Enterprises LPS-465) 1995 in a gatefold cover in a limited edition of 300 copies. (1) reissued as a 10" brown vinyl album (Akarma AK 2012) 2000.

Recorded at Golden Voice Recording Studios in South Pekin, Illinois and released on a small record label from Flora, Illinois this Farm released a very obscure and rare album of heavy garage-psych with fuzz guitars, congas, mouth harp, organ, bottleneck and timbales. The album contains five tracks. The opening instrumental Jungle Song and Sunshine In My Window are both guitar-driven numbers. Cottonfield Woman is a pleasant blues-rock number and Let The Boy Boogie and Statesboro' Blues are sort of Allman Brothers-influenced boogie. They thank a certain George Leeman as their friend and spiritual guide. (SR)

These records are the work of a Summertown, Tennessee rural and vegetarian community directed by Stephen, their guru. The first album contains two albums presented in a gatefold with inner sleeves and a giant poster. Their music was somewhat inspired by the Grateful Dead: long bluesy jams with good guitar solos, flute and violin (several tracks last more than eight minutes). The lyrics are very religious and quite naff (Loving You, Being Here With You, I Believe It). The second album came with another poster explaining how their community in Summertown worked (no smoking, no alcohol, free concerts and pastoral activities). It's musically very similar to their first album. With their third, their music became more influenced by the Southern Rock like the Allman Brothers. On The Rim Of The Nashville Basin was recorded in the famous Muscle Shoals studios by Steve Melton and the country soul singer George Soule. Its psychedelic sleeve mentions its "Southern Country Boogie" style. Their fourth album was more of the same, always with the excellent guitar of Walter Rabideau.

ALBUM: 1 TO A WESTERN SKY (Soliloquy) 1977 R1-2

This private-pressing benefits from good sound quality and interesting material. The title track and It's A Dream both have some Pink Floyd influence and many other tracks have that downer folk feel that will appeal to some readers. There are a couple of pretty naff country tracks though, Kingston Spring Hills and I Miss That Girl. (VJ)

45: I'm Cryin'/I'm Calling You Back (Target T45-103/104) 1966

From Neenah, Wisconsin their finest moment is I'm Cryin' a half decent berserk cover of the Animals' hit. It also figures on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP) and I'm Calling You Back is on Badger Beat Chronicles (LP).

Members were involved in other Target/Tee Pee groups and productions. Daily was a studio musician for the single by Lord Beverly Moss and The Mossmen.

"Wilbur" Vandenburgt was in a studio-only aggregation The 13th Hour who had a single the previous month - All Right And About Time/Badger Beat (Target 10/11). He would produce the Love Society's Do You Wanna Dance on Tee Pee but when it took off and gained a national release on Scepter, the 'produced by Wilbur' credit magically became 'produced by Al Posniak' (the label owner). "That's always been a bit of a sore spot with me" he told Gary Myers in the Badger State bible, 'Did You Hear That Beat'. (BM/MW/GM)

From Boston, after their debut album, the four Farquahr "brothers": Barnswallow, Hummingbird, Condor and Flamingo, moved to Elektra in 1970. Produced by Jerry Ragovoy and recorded in New York, Farquahr is a deceptive and overproduced album, the only decent tracks being the Lovin' Spoonful-like Dear John Deere and Babe In The Woods on side two.

The backing group was made of local session men: Eric Weissberg, Gary Chester, Joe Mack and Lou Mauro. They had a cut called Nite People on Artificial Faces (LP). (SR/NK)

ALBUM: 1 THE FORMAL FEMALE (Brainblobru Records FAR-100) 1973 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Shadoks Music 099) 2009.

This is a rare one-man-band folk/rock effort by a Philadelphia artist. It's quite primitive musically and his vocals won't win any awards. There's some drum machine, electric guitars and bass, and a bit of harmonica. It's comparable to the equally-obscure Madrigal album in sound. The best thing about it may be the cover art, which Freud would have a field day with. (CF/VJ)

Around 1965 Hamburg, Pennslyvania's Triumphs were looking for a new bassist and Pat got the job - it helped that he could sing too. They were already well established with two singles released on Barclay in 1964 and had several other recordings that stayed in the can but are now available - see their entry. They kept this name for a couple of years until it came to the release of War Boy, whereupon they became the Razor's Edge, to avoid confusion with other Triumphs. After the release of a single on Kingston, it turned out that another group was using that moniker so a further name change was in order.

PAT FARRELL AND THE BELIEVERS - Self Titled CD.

Bad Woman, featured on Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP) and Destination Frantic! (CD), is a superb tough pop-punker with a wicked bass line and scorching guitar. Unfortunately the 'A' side All My Love is a cover of a sloppy ballad and Pat's macho-man vocals tended toward Tom Jones here! Gotta Find Her on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) is a bouncy pop number with some fine drifting organ and dreamy vocals, whilst the unreleased demo Brand New Baby on Crude PA. (LP) is again more pop than garage - being dominated by warbling keyboards.

The band eventually called it a day in 1969, Hix and Van Etten going on to Pepper Mill, a cover band. Fister had already left to join the Air Force and his replacement Joey Goheen joined the Police force (obvious choices for rock drummers?!). Pat moved into the country music field.

The CD retrospective contains 17 tracks (10 unreleased plus two unreleased Pat Farrell solo efforts) from 1966 through 1968. I've taken the liberty of using Erik Lindgren's liner notes to confirm and extract the skeletal facts and do this band's entry justice. This CD is one of a 'set' of four 1998 releases that explore the sixties music of eastern Pennsylvania - the other being a Flowerz CD (Fltye) and two volumes of Eastern Pa. Rock which cover other acts on Barclay and its associated labels.

Compilation appearances include: Gotta Find Her on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2: The Barn (LP); Bad Woman on Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD), Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP), and Destination Frantic! (LP & CD); and both Gotta Find Her and Bad Woman on Eastern Pa Rock Part Two (1966-'69) (CD). There's also an alternate previously unreleased version of Mojo Workout on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD) and another hitherto unreleased demo Brand New Baby has surfaced on Crude PA (LP). (ELn/MW/VJ)

The former Modern Folk Quintet member and voice of Zodiac Cosmic Sounds recorded these solo albums in 1971 and 1973. Cyrus was recorded in Los Angeles with the help of the members of the jazz group Oregon, David Crosby, Cass Elliot and various sessionmen. It's mainly comprised of introspective folk-rock with some oriental influences and very religious lyrics (Softly Through The Darkness, New Beginnings, Kingdom). Springtime Bouquet is an electronic score composed by Alex Hassilev.

Recorded in 1973, Islands begins with a medley of songs about, well, islands in the sea. Bill Martin's Bright Island, Faryar's own So We Sailed and Richard Rosmini's On The Sea are united by theme and by moody, introspective melodies. The middle section (So We Sailed) is essentially a chorus singing harmonic "oohs" over John Simon's piano chords, a strummed guitar and some strings. After nearly 10 minutes it metamorphosises into Fred Neil's Dolphins, which blends in seamlessly to become the fourth part of the medley. Side two is similar with Simon's piano leading while Cyrus whistles and plays guitar and sings in one of his voices. He sounds almost Nilsson-esque on Livin' In A Land Of Sunshine and plays ukulele on Paradise.

Faryar can also be found on recordings by Fred Neil, Mama Cass and the Stone Poneys and he sings one track on the soundtrack of "Last Summer" produced by John Simon. He even produced some albums by the Firesign Theater. In the early seventies, Faryar moved to Hawaii where he produced some local groups like Country Comfort. (SR/VJ)

The Fastells (MI)

45:	So Much/Take You Away	(Night Owl J-6781) 1967

So Much is a smoochy teener-ballad with atmospheric keyboards and the flip is primitive garage-pop with pumping 96 Tears keyboards. Both have a certain charm but were a tad outdated when the single appeared on a turntable in August '67, in the midst of the 'Summer Of Love'.

The Fastells were from Negaunee, Michigan and, like some other Upper Peninsula bands (Henchmen VI, Rob Kirk & The Word), made the trip to Cuca in Sauk City, Wisconsin to record. (MW)

This western Massachusetts band was formed in the late-sixties from a close-knit circle of friends: Peter and Christopher Newland are brothers, and Jim Kaminski and Guy De Vito are cousins. The RCA album is quite accomplished for a first effort; Peter Newland's intelligent lyrics and gravelly voice are complemented perfectly by the lead guitars of Jim Kaminski and Michael Benson. After the first album was released the band toured briefly as the opening act for the Allman Brothers Band. A second album was planned but the band was dropped by RCA after a drug-bust. The second RCA single features two songs that were slated for the second RCA album.

More recording sessions were done, but the band was unable to secure another record deal. Jim Kaminski quit the band in 1974; he would later lead his own bands in Massachusetts, Texas and France. Kaminski also recorded an unreleased album with Steppenwolf; and current Steppenwolf drummer Ron Hurst also played with Fat in their later days. Drummer William Benjamin would also drop out, but would later surface with The Elevators (Arista/1980) and would continue to play in bands with Jim Kaminski.

FAT - Self Titled LP.

Christopher Newland and William Perry joined the band and are featured on the 1976 Footloose album that the band issued themselves. This second album shows the band in a slightly less introspective, harder-rocking mode, but the end result is an album that is superior to many major label efforts. This line-up without Eduardo Vates, recorded another unreleased album for Atlantic Records in 1978. That album was produced by Felix Pappalardi who also played organ and contributed backing vocals to it.

Over the years Fat toured with and shared the stage with the likes of Grand Funk Railroad, Little Richard, Delaney and Bonnie, Johnny Winter, Robin Trower and many others. But eventually, most of the band had had enough and went their separate ways. Peter Newland and Michael Benson carried on with other rhythm sections, and they issued one final single in 1982. The "A" side, Livin' Like An Outlaw is a great rock 'n' roll screamer recorded in 1981; the "B" side When Will I Meet You? was recorded in 1976 by the Footloose line-up and showcases Peter Newland's introspective songwriting talents.

Shortly thereafter Fat folded. Peter became a solo act, and then moved to Nashville where he is a songwriter; he released a solo CD in 1999. Christopher Newland later recorded with Yuseef Lateef and is now a jazz musician living in England. Jim Kaminski currently leads his own band in the Pioneer Valley area of Massachusetts, he released a solo CD in 1998. Mark Kislus continues to perform and record with local bands, most recently with Linee Perroncel.

Fat were too intelligent for their own good; the depth of Peter's lyrics, the musical abilities of the band and the economy of the arrangements were beyond the mental grasp of the average pot-head and too subtle for the masses. Fat is the quintessential band that "should have made it, but didn't".

The unreleased Atlantic album, Past Due, was finally released on CD in an edition of 1,000 in 1995. In this 1978 recording it seems like the band is trying too hard (maybe they figured it was their last chance?) resulting in more of a bar band sound. But it is still Fat and it is a worthy effort. (HS/CF/MW/SR)

The first album contains cuts like Prince Of Peace, Easter Island, Holly Would and the title track. With a renewed line-up, still reinforced by several session men (including Eric Weissberg and Richard Greene), the second album is reputedly in the same style. ALBUM: 1(A) SAMALENA CORPORATION PRESENTS FATE (Samalena) 1969 R6

NB: (1) demo album issued in plain jacket. Song titles are typed on stickers that were affixed to the record labels by hand. (1) reissued as Sgt. Death on vinyl (Rockadelic RRLP-37) 1999 and on CD (Shadoks Music 017) 2000. Both reissues have a different running order to the original and one track has been omitted.

Jay Sneider's first band The Electrons came together in Saco, Maine in 1963. They soon changed their name to The Id and would release two singles that have become highly prized by collectors, the second as Euphoria's Id to differentiate them from several other Ids around at that time. Around 1967 Sneider (now Snyder) and drummer Skip Smith formed Fate.

The album was recorded in 1968 under the guidance of Thomas Jefferson Kaye at Studio 3 in New York, where Billy Joel's Hassles would record their debut album. Demos were sent out and the popular DJ Roscoe (also the voice on an album by John Berberian) started playing it. It would be picked up by a couple more New York City stations, yet the only record label to show any interest was Musicor. Still the band's production company (Elephant 5) chose to pass on the offer, nothing further happened and a disillusioned band went their separate ways.

Such a shame; this is an accomplished opus and so evocative of its time. The mood is reflective, often sombre, but also confrontational (as in the overtly anti-Vietnam title track). Stylistically it varies from baroque-rock with psychedelic flashes to hard melodic rock, and a strong hint of The Doors on the more introspective cuts. The latter comparison used to irritate Jay Snyder but the setting, key and timbre of Frank Youngblood's vocals makes this unavoidable. Sexual Fantasy #8 is an immediate stand-out; it has a pealing George Harrison-like guitar motif that'll haunt you for months. Elsewhere they take on the blues and Bo Diddley in a hard-rock setting with searing guitar.

FATE - Sgt. Death CD.

Jay Snyder recounts his musical odyssey and the stories behind his songs in revealing detail on both CD and album. It is a very welcome and recommended release. Incidentally, the opening track on the original demo album, Prelude, was omitted from the reissues as it was not recorded by Fate, instead being put together by their producer.

An article in Billboard magazine in October 1968 reported that "Fate's demonstration discs are being played on three radio stations in New York", but the only original copy so far to turn up has a mastering date of February 1969 etched in the vinyl trail-off. It could be that there were different demo discs in circulation at different times. (MW/CF)

This San Francisco band is strangely enough not mentioned in Gleason's excellent book on 'The Jefferson Airplane and the San Francisco Sound'. Strange, because the band members were certainly Bay Area locals. Valory and Tickner had both previously played with Frumious Bandersnatch and Valory later went on to play with The Steve Miller Band and Journey. Trumbo had previously been a solo artist and returned to this pursuit after Faun's demise. The case for Faun's inclusion here is marginal, as the album largely consists of odd parlour music! It is now a minor collectable. (VJ/SR)

NB: α shown as by 'Alex Campbell With The "Fax" '. β B-side by another band, The Lost And Founds, some copies came in a picture sleeve.

This teen quartet from La Crosse, Wisconsin had been known as The Gentrys until the Memphis bunch rose up the charts with Keep On Dancing, so producer Lindy Shannon chose another name for them. On their second single they backed Shannon protege Alex Campbell, who then formed his own band, label-mates The Ladds.

Their raunchy, primitive version of I Can Only Give You Everything has appeared on Brain Shadows Vol. 11 (LP & CD). It was backed by a cover of Her Love, a regional favourite by Green Bay's Centurys, whose 1963 original resurfaced in 1969 on the Badger A Go Go album. Covers make up the other two singles, hence the "Popular Request Series" tag on the third single. The Alex Campbell single has an unlikely pairing of the Johnny Ray hit with The Uniques' debut Not Too Long Ago. The final split-single takes on James Brown (I'll Go Crazy has resurfaced on the Storm In The Garage (3-CD box) and the Beatles - they certainly covered all bases. (MW/JB/CM)

A late sixties outfit, whose album is full of fuzz-blues material sounding rather like a psychedelic Groundhogs. The group started back in Atlanta, Georgia in 1967 as a quartet with two guitars, recorded at the Record Plant in New York City, and moved to Woodstock, New York. The album's more psychedelic tracks included Underground River and For Suki. Only two covers are present, a bluesy version of The Letter and Born Under A Bad Sign, both were chosen for their single. The album is now a very minor collectors' item and was produced by Tom Wilson.

McIlwaine produced many solo albums in the seventies when she spent much of her time in Canada. Paul Album was also in Chrysalis. (VJ/SR)

A privately pressed record from Louisiana with reverb-drenched sixties style pop tracks as well as the early seventies mellow rock type stuff one would expect. Albertson's Sunway and The Constant And Steady Lampman are particularly intriguing and have a sound similar to the better tracks on the Rubber Memory album (minus the fuzz guitar) which, probably not coincidentally, is from the same swamp. Surprise concerns the joys of being a parent:

"Look at the little dear, sleeping away
He has had such a busy day
Ripping and tearing and biting away..."

...a lyric which is punctuated by a loud solo - but not a guitar; a baby screaming! (CF/SR)

The band was named after the Federal Duck Stamp Program which was enacted by conservationist Jay 'Ding' Darling and US President Franklin D Roosevelt in 1934. Their album, which was recorded in New York City, contains a few good tracks including the mellow psychedelia of Tomorrow Waits For Today and Peace In My Mind. The outstanding track, however, is Bird with strong out-there vocals and a jazzy piano solo.

In 1969, George Stavis and Timmy Ackerman recorded an album for Vanguard. In 1970 Stavis, Ackerman, Stern and Bowers formed a new band Oganookie in Santa Cruz, California with Bruce Frye. Oganookie released a great country psych album in 1973, and about half the members backed up Bruce Frye in 1974 on a local Santa Cruz compilation album. Wow, what a name! This Albuquerque band was perhaps the best acid-punk outfit to record out of New Mexico. Danny Houlihan wrote I Wanna Come Back. The band have been well represented on retrospective compilations and more recently, I Wanna Come Back... has been covered by the likes of the Undertakers (1985 album The Greatest Stories Ever Told), Nik Turner's Inner City Unit and the Mad Violets (1986 album World Of...).

Dick Stewart, who ran Lance Records as well as being the main-man behind King Richard and The Knights has recently confirmed that Tom Bee was not a member of this band.

From Nashville, Tennesee The Feminine Complex was an all girl rock quartet. They formed in 1966 when bassist Jean Williams and Lana Napier were at Nashville's Maplewood High School. They were originally known as The Pivots, a name suggested by their basketball coach Pam Hickman. They decided as just about the only girl band in the area that they needed something 'feminine' and then one of the girls thought of adding 'complex' to it. They gigged a lot locally and as a girl band they attracted a lot of attention, including that of Dee Kilpatrick who had just formed Athena Records with Rick Powell. The group became the label's first signing. They stepped up the gigging, including an appearance with 1910 Fruitgum Co. in New York, but it became very difficult for the girls to combine gigging with school and by the time the album was recorded Lana, Pam and Jean had all left.

FELT - Self Titled CD.

It's worth noting that the liner notes on their album were penned by John Buck Wilkin, the leader of Ronny and The Daytonas. With Mindy Dalton and Judi Griffith the only band members to appear on the album it seems likely that the backing tracks were laid down by experienced studio musicians. This could explain the ambitious arrangements on cuts like It's Magic, Are You Lonesome Like Me? and Hide & Seek. Indeed, there has been speculation that the album was not recorded by the girls at all, but by studio musicians. The album has diversity. Hide & Seek and Time Slips By both have discordant psychy intros which give way to pleasant uplifting pop. In the case of the latter, sound effects return at the end. I Don't Want Another Man and I've Been Working On You are both soulful; Run That By Your Mind is an up-tempo brassy number and there is a batch of pleasant pop ballads (Now I Need You, Are You Lonesome Tonight?, I Won't Run and Six O'Clock In The Morning).

Mindy Dalton later had a single as Mindy and The Complex.

The album is beginning to attract collectors, but is quite easy to find. The recent CD reissues add several bonus tracks and some are quite good. For example, the Rev-Ola reissue adds seven non-album tracks and four demos to the original 11-track album.

One of the album tracks, Hide and Seek, has also resurfaced on Project Blue, Vol. 2 - Psychedelights 1966-70 (LP). (SR/MW/CF/VJ)

This was a folk trio from Hamilton, New York sometimes compared to D.R. Hooker or Arthur Lee Harper. The first album has a strong 10-minute fuzzy folk-rock opening cut, whilst most of the remaining material is in the hippie-folk genre.

From the opening fuzzy folk-rocker Uncle America the second album trips gently into the realms of acoustic folk and dreamy folk-psych with swirling keyboards. The end result is very mellow and melodious. (SR/MW/CF)

The Fentons (MI)

Thee Unheard Of was a compilation put together by someone who either had a spectacularly warped sense of humour or, more likely, was just ripping off collectors. Either way, the album purported to contain a whole raft of unreleased acetates by Michigan bands. That's a load of crock; it contained obscure single sides whose song title and/or band name had been changed. To paraphrase another compilation title, the compiler was a turd on a bum ride. In the case of Need Me Like I Need You by "The Fentons", just listen to the song of that name by Tucson's Five Of Us. (MW)

	Mindrocker/ State Of Mind (coloured vinyl exists)	(DeVille 207) 196?
	I Wanna Die/Iye	(DeVille 208) 1967

A whole compilation series was named after this band's fine pop-rock single Mindrocker which typified the times of 1967. Formed in 1963 by Pat Robinson in Arcadia, California the band existed for four years before Bristol, Rhode Islander Jerry Raye came on board and they certainly possessed some talent. Pat Robinson was quite a talented songwriter and Raye possessed an appealing vocal style. However, their album suffers from variable material with Mindrocker, State Of Mind and I'm Spinning (the last two both penned by Robinson) among its better moments. Much of side two is very lightweight pop and overall it can't be recommended.

The original album is rare and pricey and was booted some years back on black vinyl in a black-and-white sleeve (original sleeves are black-white-purple). The album should be considered as by two different outfits: Fenwyck's psychy folk-rock side vs. Jerry's Raye's teen crooning side (sounding like a second division Conway Twitty). Certainly Jerry Raye's sound was out-of-date by 1967.

Pat Robinson tells us:- "I wrote the songs I Wanna Die, Iye, State Of Mind, Away, I'm Spinning etc. and originally Fenwyck was produced by Jerry Fuller (Travelin' Man Rick Nelson) and legendary producer Bob Keane (Sam Cooke, Richie Valens, Bobby Fuller Four etc)."

"We were signed to 4-Star Productions/Challenge Records by president Joe Johnson and Dave Burgess (and Elery Hern) who thought we were a vocal group... like The Vogues, because we had previously sung our songs to Joe Johnson with just 12-string guitar. The first session was booked at American Recording (with Richie Podolor and Bill Cooper) and side men were there because the label didn't know that we played instruments... When the session started, Glen stayed on, but the rest of the session players were sent home. Jimmy Haskell did all of the string arrangements."

"The songs recorded here including Mindrocker were recorded at American Recording and Gold Star Recording Studio with legendary Stan Ross and Dave Gold engineering... in the late sixties. I sang lead and played lead guitar, but then Jerry Raye put his vocal over my vocal track and it was released as Jerry Raye featuring Fenwyck.... but we were actually a self-contained band for years before meeting up with Jerry Raye."

Fenwyck then evolved into Back Pocket, who issued an album and a single on Allied Records in 1971. They also recorded at the legendary Gold Star Recording Studio with Stan Ross and Dave Gold. Back Pocket's line-up was fairly fluid, with frequent changes in bass and rhythm guitar players... the only constants being Robinson and Maroshek. Live, they toured as a three-four piece band with full three-part harmonies and a power pop edge to their sound. Back Pocket issued a second album, Buzzard Bait in 1976. Pat Robinson wrote all 12 songs on this album and their first single from it, Come On In. Robinson and Maroshek were joined by Gib Guilbeau, John Beland and Thad Maxwell for the album sessions at Amigo Recording Studio in North Hollywood.

Robinson went on to produce and co-write with Gene Clark (The Byrds founding member) for over 15 years and formed the group CRY (Clark, Robinson, York) in 1984 with Nicky Hopkins on keyboards and John York (Sir Douglas Quintet, The Byrds etc.). Robinson also penned Civilized Man and Don't Drink The Water for Joe Cocker, You Got Away With Love for Percy Sledge, No Promise No Guarantee for Laura Branigan and Ain't It Just Like Love for Glen Campbell and Billy Burnette... along with many covers by Moon Martin, Dwight Twilley, Rocky Burnette, Frankie Miller and Bette Midler.

Fenwyck compilation appearances have included: Mindrocker on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), The Garage Zone, Vol. 4 (LP), The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP); Mindrocker (remix, unreleased version) on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 1 (CD); Iye on Pebbles Vol. 9: Southern California 2 (CD); Away (alternate version) on Brain Shadows, Vol. 11 (LP & CD); I'm Spinning (stereo), Mindrocker (stereo), State Of Mind (stereo), Away, I Wanna Die and Iye on I Turned Into A Helium Balloon (CD); and I Wanna Die has also resurfaced on Sigh Cry Die (CD). 45: Can't Explain/I'm Not Talkin' (Welhaven 1001) 1966

The Ferraris hailed from Winona in south-east Minnesota. This single was their sole vinyl offering and is becoming sought-after. Can't Explain is a straight copy of The Who's classic hit. I'm Not Talkin' was a Yardbirds' song also copied by The Electras.

They underwent several line-up changes over the years. Originally formed in 1963 as The Westcotts, they were also known at various times as The Farrarez, The Ferraries, The Fabulous Ferraris and finally The North Country Band. In 1968 they opened for The Yardbirds on their tour throughout the Midwest, and also played with The Flying Burrito Brothers, among others.

Jim Grant later went on to a solo career, becoming one of Southern Minnesota/Wisconsin border's foremost acoustic rock artists. His debut CD Not The Only World, from 1995, was nominated for a Minnesota Music Award.

I'm Not Talkin' has been compiled on Psychedelic Patchwork (LP & CD) and When The Time Run Out, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). (VJ)

Good fuzz-pop novelty with deep echoey Zombified vocals. The flip is an awful orchestrated Gene Pitney type ballad. There's also a single, which maybe has no connection at all, by a similarly-named 'Mad John Fever' Breath & Thunder/One World Lost To Another (Century 44090) 197? whose topside is prog-rock with jazzy guitar interludes between the heavier riffin' moments. The flip is jazzy rock with pizzicato guitar and brass soloing to the fore. 'Mad John Fever' went on to become 'Starcastle'. (MW/SA)

Originally known as Bostwick Vine, they formed in Houston in 1966 and quickly became known as Fever Tree. They took their name from a type of tree in Africa whose bark is meant to be a cure for fever. Michael Knust had earlier been a solo artist. Like many other Texas bands of this era they spent time in San Francisco and many actually believed them to be Californians. This was partly due to their Top 100 U.S. hit San Francisco Girls, which reached No. 91. In fact the song was not written during the flower-power era. It was originally written by Vivian Holtzman about her time there in 1939 as a performer fronting her own group.

Their first album was excellent, and reached No. 156 in the charts. Whilst the title track stands out, there's an interesting part re-interpretation of J.S. Bach's 'Tocatta Fugue' on Imitation Situation (Tocatta Fugue) as well as decent covers of Neil Young's Nowadays, Clancy Can't Even Sing and a medley of Lennon/McCartney's Day Tripper/We Can Work It Out. The remaining three albums each had moments of merit, particularly the second and third which got to No.'s 83 and 97 respectively in the charts. However the last album was released during a period when the group was breaking up and appears to have been completed using session musicians. The liner notes to the ERA CD suggest that many of the tracks were outtakes from earlier albums.

Michael Knust reformed the band in 1978, recording a four-track EP Fever Tree Return and the Live At Lake Charles 1978 CD, which was released in 1998. The group style is best described as "Fever Tree gets funky" and neither release is recommended.

Kevin Kelly joined the band from The Byrds and went on to play in Jesse, Wolf and Whings, Clarry and Blanchette were both earlier in The Sherwoods.

The Gear Fab CD is a reissue of their debut album plus the 1970 single track Grand Candy Young Sweet, the Now Sounds Groov-In radio commercial, and five unreleased cuts including a live San Francisco Girls. It remains the best guide to their material.

Compilation appearances have included: Hey Mister and I Can Beat Your Drum on Mindrocker, Vol. 12 (LP); San Francisco Girls (Return Of The Native) on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP) and 21 KILT Goldens, Vol. 2 (LP); Love Makes The Sun Rise on Psychedelic Perceptions (CD); Man Who Paints The Pictures on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP) and Baubles (LP); I Can Beat Your Drum on Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD), Garage Beat '66 1 (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Hey Joe on Boulders, Vol. 8 (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); the full length version of Imitation

Skokie is just down the road from Wilmette but it has yet to be confirmed that the unheard single on Skokie emanated from there or was by the same band.

45s: Farewell To Today And Tomorrow/I Know (Tiara MP-900) 1968

Previously assumed to have been from Florida, due to their sole single being on the Tiara label, The Fewdle Lords were actually from Fort Wayne, Indiana. They never even performed in Florida but played extensively in Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, and New York. In August of 1968 they opened for Herman's Hermits in the Allen County War Memorial Colisuem to a crowd of 7,000.

Farewell To Today And Tomorrow is stately, baroque harmony-pop and has reappeared on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol.1 (CD). I Know is a strong number and is on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol.3 (CD). Oops, twice.

George Christie died on 12th February 1970 following an auto accident; his place was filled by John Escosa, who was replaced by Dan Karns. The group disbanded in 1971 after going through several other musicians.

Denny Geiger became lead singer of another group, Mark Urgent, which appeared in Bill Board magazine in the early eighties and featured on American Bandstand's "Rate-A-Record" up against The Fixx. (MW/RG/JGB)

45: Bide My Time/Take You Home (UNI 55106) 1969

This Millbrae, California power-trio evolved out of ESB, originally known as W.C. Fields Memorial Electric String Band. Earlier, Fortunato had been in The Vejtables and, before that, both Fortunato and Lagana were in The Preachers. The album, which is heavy rock with some psychedelic influence and some blues-rock too, was produced by ex-Merry-Go-Rounder Bill Rinehart, The six tracks are split between hard-rock (tracks like Elysian Fields, Take You Home and Jump On It) and the "Love Is The Word" section, which occupies the whole of the second side. This lasts for almost 20 minutes and is a strange blend of rock, psych and soul. Bide My Time has resurfaced on White Lace & Strange (CD). (VJ/MW)

Produced by the two Lovin' Spoonful members Jerry Yester and Zal Yanovsky, this urban folk-rock group should appeal to fans of Lovin' Spoonful. The material is strong and the musicianship and singing is excellent.

The cover of their album featured a black and white photo of the group in front of Delmonicos Restaurant in New York. The band were regulars in Greenwich Village during the late sixties.

Peter Gallway later formed the short-lived Ohio Knox and Kenny Altman became the bass player of another 'Spoonful member's band, John Sebastian. Gallway has recently released a solo album, Redemption (Gadfly 255). (VJ/SR/FH)

Love Is All A Game, their debut single, came out on the imminently defunct Red Bird Records and despite being an infectious and tuneful Searchers-style number, failed to chart. Meanwhile, the songwriting team of Wadhams/Askew were also pitching songs at a number of British artists including Peter and Gordon, Cilla Black, and Freddie and The Dreamers. All of them passed but some lesser-known American acts like The Highwaymen, the Brothers Four, and Reparata and the Delrons did record their songs. They also wrote and recorded a number of advertising jingles and continually played New York's nightclub scene.

In late 1966, Chuck Legros left after walking off stage in a pique just before the band managed to interest Jubilee Records in a demo of a tune taken from "The Wizard Of Oz". The song, done in response to a dare, was arranged around a Bouree by the 17th century composer, Michael Praetorius, and made No. 11 on the US charts on June 15th 1967. It was also the title track of their album. The "B" side written by W. Wadhams and Don Askew, is decent bubblegum pop. The remainder of their Jubilee album contains tracks like No. 1 Hippie On The Village Scene and covers of I'm A Believer and Midnight Hour.

The follow-up single was in the good-time vein of The Lovin' Spoonful, but failed to repeat the success of its predecessor. In August and September 1967, the band toured as part of a package with Gene Pitney, The Happenings, The Music Explosion, The Buckinghams, and The Easybeats. After the tour, most of the band members decided to return to college, mainly to avoid the draft, but still found time to record occasionally. Heigh Ho was an attempt to cash in on Ding Dong's success and was arranged around a Bach tune. Their label pressed them to record bubblegum material in keeping with the spring 1968 trend. The group was unenthusiastic and Jubilee hired studio musicians to record an ersatz Fifth Estate single Parade Of The Wooden Soldiers. When the label went bankrupt shortly after, the group broke up also. Wadhams now teaches record production at Berklee College of Music in Boston.

FIFTH FLIGHT - Into Smoke Tree Village LP.

Ding Dong: The Witch Is Back! is a superb CD package documenting the life and evolution of the above group, from their 1964 formation in Stamford, Connecticut as the Demen (line-up 'A'), their Invasion garage-beat stance as the D-Men, to the addition of solo vocalist Chuck Legros and a change of name and direction to The Fifth Estate. Comprising 28 tracks, including many demos and unreleased versions, plus a hefty 30+ page booklet - it is good value for money, especially if you don't have the D-Men singles. Much of their later material is pretty weak pop, though. (MW/SR/LP)

Today (I Got A Letter) (Laurie 3404) 1967
I Was A Fool/The Moment I Saw You (Counterpart 2617/8) 1968

This Columbus, Ohio band of school friends came together in 1964, initially as The Electras (line-up ‘A’). As their local popularity grew, it was decided that drummer and main vocalist Billy Carroll should come out from behind the kit to be their front-man; it was at this point that they updated their name to the more hip Fifth Order.

In 1966 they made their first foray into the studios. By this time they had the services of local songwriter Jack Sender, who would pen all their original material. Their style was a blend of Merseybeat and jangley folk-rock although their debut, Goin’ Too Far, has a tougher edge. It went straight to the top of the local charts in the fall of ‘66, became a regional smash, and was picked up by Diamond for national distribution.

In 1967, Jeff Fenholt replaced Gary Steger on rhythm guitar, just before another recording session which yielded the follow-up single. Another regional success, it was picked up by Laurie. Still national chart success eluded them.

Eventually, with college and careers beckoning, the band parted ways. In 1968, after the split, Counterpart sneaked out another single featuring two more songs from the 1967 session; of course, with no-one to promote it, it sank without a trace.

All three singles plus four unreleased recordings from 1967 are gathered on the retrospective album, where the band’s story is retold by Bill Carroll and Jim Hilditch.

45: Red The Sign Post (alt take)/
If Not This Time (alt take) (PS) (Get Hip GH-50) 1990

Cork Marcheschi, the creative force behind Fifty Foot Hose, grew up in the Bay Area and developed a taste for both R&B and avant-garde music - Edgar Varese was an early influence. After finishing high-school in 1963, he formed a garage band called the Hide-A-Ways with guitarist Jim Flannery (Marcheschi played bass). The band soon changed name to The Ethix and played constantly around the Bay Area between 1964-66. They recorded the notoriously atonal Bad Trip single in the bathroom of Cork’s mother’s house, but the band ended in early 1967 when they played Las Vegas where two of the members were found to be under-age.

Cork’s interest in avant-garde music prompted him to build his very own musical “instrument” with two audio generators, two theremins, and various other sonic-distortion devices - a bit like the one Simeon used in the Silver Apples. He teamed with guitarist and fellow experimental music-enthusiast David Blossom who brought in his wife, Nancy, as vocalist. A second guitarist, Larry Evans, was added and former Ethix-member, Gary Doos, played drums to complete the original line-up of Fifty Foot Hose. Doos soon left and a couple of other drummers were tried before settling on Kim Kimsey for good. Meanwhile Cork gave up bass to devote himself to the electronics and Terry Hansley was brought in to take up bass duties.

Early on, the band played a lot of gigs, but mostly perplexed audiences with their uncompromisingly experimental approach. They recorded a demo, four tracks of which are included on the Big Beat CD and hawked it around the record companies. Limelight Records, an experimental subsidiary label of Mercury, signed the band and they recorded their album in early 1968 with Dan Healy, who also worked with Human Expression and later extensively with the Grateful Dead, as producer.

Although Cauldron went unnoticed at the time, partly because it didn't fit into any neat "psychedelic" mould, it has certainly stood the test of time and utilises just about every music-making electronic device then available. Audio generators, echodette, squeaky box, siren, ringing oscillator circuits, theremin - the list is almost endless. Nancy Blossom also has a beautifully clear voice which begs comparison with Dorothy Moskowitz, the vocalist with another pioneering electronic band, The United States of America.

Sadly, after the album disappeared without trace, several members left to join the production of the musical "Hair" (just to get a regular pay check) and the band effectively folded. David was a musical director and performer, Nancy was a performer and the rest were in the orchestra. Nancy later moved to New York and performed in 'Godspell' and 'Jesus Christ Superstar' and David opened Blossom Studios in San Francisco.

No original singles were issued under the Fifty Foot Hose moniker, but the recent release of original alternate takes of the strongest album tracks is a welcome addition and worth seeking out. The recent Big Beat CD reissue of the Cauldron album also features two takes of Bad Trip - the 33rpm and the 45rpm versions. Both are still way out there somewhere. Finally, subscribers to Ptolemaic Terrascope #23 also got to hear an 'unreleased acetate version' of Bad Trip on the accompanying free EP.

Kimsey later played with the Hoodoo Rhythm Devils, whilst Cork became a teacher and later a well-known sculptor. David Blossom was a studio engineer in San Francisco in the seventies and his name is found on many records from the era.

In the late seventies and eighties Cauldron influenced a number of experimental outfits - including Pere Ubu, Throbbing Gristle, and Chrome. Continuing interest in the band led to a "re-union" live album, from 1995, which appeared on the Japanese, Captain Trip label. Although Cork Marcheschi is the only original member on this release, Live... and Unreleased is rather successful, with spirited performances of If Not This Time, Red The Signpost plus six other tracks. A studio album Sing Like Scaffold followed in 1999 and there was also a rarities compilation Ingredients on vinyl in 1997.

Ingredients contains previously unreleased material from 1966 and 1967 most of which does not appear on CD as well as tracks by the pre-Fifty Foot Hose band The Ethix. On offer here are long tracks of San Francisco acid-rock with weird electronic effects and great guitar work.

You can also find Red The Sign Post on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); both Bad Trip and Skins (as The Ethix) on California Halloween (LP); and a previously unreleased acetate of Bad Trip (as The Ethix) came on Ptolemaic Terrascope 23 (EP). NB: 100 copies pressed. Reissued (Norton 45-130) in 2006 with a picture sleeve and biography.

This outfit was formed in 1970 by Dixon and Downey in New Brunswick, New Jersey. According to the reissue single liners, once they'd expanded to a quartet and began gigging, they acquired a habit of trashing TV sets, record players, and ultimately everything. Back down to a duo in 1972 they made their sole recording and folded. When "punk rock" came along a few years later, they must have thought "been there, done that". (MW)

As Filet Of Sound:
45: Oh Loretta/Now And Forever (Filet Of Sound 4503) 1977

Initially based in Thorp, Wisconsin this soulful combo started in 1964 as Attila and The Huns. In 1967, they were signed to Lenny LaCour's Magic label and released a few singles, before LaCour suggested a name change to The Filet Of Soul.

After some touring, they resettled in Chicago, where they recorded their album. By then they were heavily into Hendrix-style guitar work and reportedly it contains a few flashes of brilliance (the fuzzy Standin' At The Wrong Machine and the garage-influenced Steppin' Into Your Fire, although the remainder is poppy or gospel influenced). Most of the material on the album was self-penned by Mike Peace. It also contains a nice cover of The Zombies' Tell Her No.

Another Filet Of Soul was on Mercury in the early seventies which presumably forced them to alter their name to The Filet Of Sound, which saw them through to the eighties. (VJ/GM/MW)

This San Francisco-based band was founded by Ernie Fosselius (who came from Berkeley) and Bob Knickerbocker (from Sunnyvale) who met in 1963, although the band proper started when the other two members joined in the summer of 1965. They coined their name late that year, not realising what it could mean to a Jew. Although the band was a part of the early

San Francisco music revolution, partly through their own volition they weren't in the big league. They tried to look different (dressing from top to bottom in black) and sound different. They auditioned for Mainstream but never made it onto vinyl because Bob Shad never liked them or their sound. Late in 1966 Bob Chance lost interest in the band and Jerry Slick (Grace's husband) came in as a replacement in November following the break-up of The Great Society. This, briefly, gave the band new impetus, but they never really capitalised on it and fell apart in 1967. Ernie Fosselius went on to enjoy a career in film-making and Bob Knickerbocker is now dead.

Pebbles, Vol. 22 (LP), Pebbles Box (5-LP) and Trash Box (5-CD) all include So Long Goodbye, a hitherto unreleased song by the band. It's a raw-sounding rather trippy jam that typified the San Francisco sound between 1966-67. Those who subscribed to the first issue of Jud Cost & Alec Palao's quality zine "Cream Puff War" also received a one-sided red flexi single which featured an unreleased track, Bleeding Roses, from 1966. This is a heavy acid-psych single from a late sixties Milwaukee, Wisconsin outfit led by Scott Finch, formerly of The Palmettos. Finch would form eighties/nineties acid-rockers Gypsy and played with many other bands, before and since, including White Lie, Waltzing Tunas, Bluehand, and Bones Of Contention.

FINCHLEY BOYS - Everlasting Tributes LP.

Hailing from Champaign, Illinois where they formed in January 1963, Finchley Boys recorded the material for their album in Chicago during 1968 and 1969, although it was not released until 1972. They do not appear to have released any singles at all. Practice Sessions is a reissue of their album but with five additional tracks. The best cuts on the album are their reinterpretation of Ray Davies' I'm Not Like Everybody Else and the superb It All Ends. Most of their material is very bluesy, as one might expect for a Chicago band of this era and to appreciate their music you'll need to be a fan of the blues.

Compilation appearances have included: Outcast on Reverberation IV (CD) and Up All Night (CD); I'm Not Like Everybody Else on Endless Journey - Phase One (LP); It All Ends on Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP); and both I'm Not Like Everybody Else and It All Ends on Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). ALBUM: 1(A) ON A DAY OF CRYSTALINE THOUGHT
(No label 4374) 1974 R4/R5

NB: (1) issued in plain cover with front and rear paste-on slicks, with insert and in a reported pressing of 100. Info on LP labels is rubberstamped, and here the title is On A Day Of Crystalline Thought. (1) reissued on vinyl (Shadoks Music 003) 1999 with an insert and in a limited edition pressing of 450. (1) also issued on CD (Shadoks Music 003) 1999.

Totally different from his earlier band The Flow, Pete Fine changed direction completely after relocating to Arizona and the results were no less stunning. Classical and rock themes merge, as do electric and acoustic guitars, and male and female vocals. All the material was written by Fine. It's a difficult record to describe as nothing really sounds like it! The recordings were made in New York where the core band was joined by area musicians, including The Flow bassist Monte Farber. Some material written by Fine for The Flow reappears here in a different light and is no less effective. Obviously, this album is recommended but as only 100 copies were pressed, obtaining an original is a difficult and expensive proposition at this point. The original pressing was not audiophile quality, either - the Shadoks reissue has better sound than any original I've heard. Certainly not an item for garage fans, however.

Fine's next project was Northstar, a progressive hard-rock outfit (1975-76) that left behind an album's worth of studio recordings. Shadoks issued this material on album in 2004. (CF)

ALBUM: 1(A) FINE WINE (Polydor 2310 438) 1976 SC

NB: (1) German pressing.

Bob Mosley and Jerry Miller were two founding members of Moby Grape. After the group disbanded for the second time, they kept on working together in the California bar circuit and were joined by John Craviotto, a session drummer, and Michael Been. They managed to get a recording contract with Polydor but, for some reason, their sole album was released only in Germany. It's actually quite good, with the excellent guitar of Miller supported by a strong rhythm section. Produced by Michael O'Connor, the music is a mix of mid-seventies West Coast rock with electric blues. All the tracks were written by the group members and the album included a new version of Moby Grape's 8.05. Michael Been later became the leader of The Call and had a solo career.

Mosley and Miller would keep on working on various line-ups of Moby Grape. (SR)

ALBUMS: 1 FINGLETOAD & STRANGE (IRC no #) 1969
2 MAZZOLA (2-LP) (Zut 1147) 1970

NB: (1) acetate-only. This was packaged in a plain white jacket with inserts. Band is shown as Fingletoad & Strange. (2) demo LP in plain cover with a photo pasted on the front. Band is shown as Fingletoad, Strange & Siho. (1) and (2) reissued as a 2-LP set (Shadoks Music 055) 2004 in a heavy gatefold sleeve with thick vinyl pressing in a limited edition of 350 copies with a lyric insert.

Fingletoad & Strange was one of many Beatles-influenced combos in the States in the late sixties. The highlight of the debut album is the extended finale, but most tracks are in a rural folk-rock style and quite a good listen. Whilst the debut album never got beyond the demo stage, the second album (as Fingletoad, Strange & Siho) did get a proper issue. It builds on the rural-rock style of the debut and adds a fuller rock sound. One of the highlights is the beautiful, dreamy opening track Marshland and Screaming Spiders has some good acid guitar-work. The musical menu on this album runs from beautiful ballads to all-out fuzz mayhem, but there are some dullish country-rockers too. The Shadoks reissue is recommended. (VJ)

Fink Muncx IX (OH)

45: What's Right/Coffee, Tea Or Me (Prism 1907) 1964

A Cincinnati, Ohio outfit made up of four instrumentalists and five singers - the single was released purely as a fund-raiser. Basically a joke band, they did actually play live a couple of times. Lap Coffee, Tea, Or Me up on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 1 (LP) (where the band is miscredited as Fink Muncx 4).

The title Coffee, Tea, Or Me originates from a sexually explicit autobiography by a couple of airline stewardesses - whence the question "Coffee, Tea, or Me?" (GGI/MW/VJ)

ALBUM: 1 THE HAPPENING (mono/stereo)
(Capitol T/ST-2577) 1966 SC

Chaotic off-the-wall instrumentals accompanied by shouted exhortations, or rambling spoken nonsense, characterize this strange trip. An early attempt at a free-form freak-out - whether it works depends primarily on one's state of mind at the time. Definitely do not listen to it sober, however, as it just sounds vacuous. John Greek was also involved in Beautiful Daze's City Jungle, and did session work for Lollipop Shoppe.

There was a Fire and Ice who provided backing music to Capitol's notorious LSD documentary album (the one which tells the tale of Brian's 34th LSD trip amongst other things)..and this is thought to have involved Greek too. (MW/JFr)

ALBUM: 1 ...REFLECTIONS OF A NEW WORLD ORDER (w/insert)
(Baha'i Publishing Trust CBF 2009) 1970

As this contains 16 tracks performed by eight artists it is really a compilation. Most artists have two tracks each but a guy called Phil Lucas gets four. The performers are reported to have been members of the Baha'i faith which explains the religious themes to most of the material. Musically we're largely talking acoustic-folk and a few tracks like The Nightingale and Baha'u'llah have a welcome Eastern influence. The album was issued with an insert. (VJ) best place to start is Erik Lindgren's superb 1997 CD compilation, An Overdose Of Heavy Psych which contains six primordial chunks: Reflections, No Tomorrows, Gypsy Fire, Free Bass, Free Fuzz and Free Drum. In addition, Distortions Of Darkness (Reflections) has been compiled on The Arf! Arf! (EL Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD).

Light My Fire starts with a great instrumental version of the title track and then has a loose, re-occurring fire-related theme running through the remaining hard-rock tracks bearing titles like Warm Up and Gypsy Fire. The Hair album is very similar in style, opening with a cover of the title track and then going totally off the rails with crude, Blue Cheer-influenced hard-rock. (1) has also been reissued on CD as Psychotic Reaction Plus Ten (King KICP 2167) 1991. (1) reissued on vinyl (Fallout FOLP2020) 2006 and on CD (Fallout FOCD2020) 2006 with full liner notes.

45: Love Special Delivery/Blood Beat (GNP Crescendo 384) 1967

NB: There's also a rare French EP with PS: Love Special Delivery/Talk Talk/96 Tears/Trip Maker (Vogue INT 18117) 1967.

The Fire Escape was actually a group of studio musicians assembled in L.A., one of many put together by Kim Fowley. Their sole album, produced by Hank Levine, included competent versions of such punk classics as 96 Tears, Talk, Talk, The Trip and, of course, the title track Psychotic Reaction which the record company misspelt on the album's back cover! Both single cuts were on their album. The mono version of the album has vocals on their cover of Thee Midnighters' Love Special Delivery whilst the stereo version is an instrumental only interpretation of the song.

All the songs on the album were written by Hank Levine and Larry Goldberg, making it almost certainly some relation to the other phantom group The Mesmerizing Eye. The remaining members are unknown, but the band was from Hollywood. It is rumoured, but not proved that Sky Saxon and Kim Fowley played on the album. Like so many bands of this ilk, their demise was as fast as their rise.

Fire Escape has one song, Love Special Delivery, on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP). Their version of Fowley's The Trip (also covered by Godfrey) appears on the Microdelia (CD) compilation. (VJ/MW/SR)

Although their records are worth investigating, their best work in this period is considered to have been for TV and for their free-form radio show, "Dear Friends". Primarily a comedy act, Firesign Theatre owed much of their early success to the 'acid-rock' period with their lyrics exploiting the way many American kids were spending their time getting stoned to well-crafted rock albums. Their repertoire extended well beyond 'acid' humour, mixing in both poignant political comment and slapstick comedy - for example their debut album dedicated one side to a series of sketches dealing with the fate of the American Indian.

Firesign Theatre also had a side-line as session men, with Gary Usher using them as 'Atmosphere' on many of his productions. Dear Friends is a collection of the best of their radio series and improvisations.

Throughout the seventies and eighties Firesign Theatre continued to issue a plethora of albums, whilst both Austin and Ossman recorded solo comedy albums. They've also recorded a video; whilst Phil Proctor and David Ossman have also worked on a film with Canadian documentarian Ron Mann called "GRASS - the social and legislative history of Marijuana...." Here's a rare Illinois local blues-rock, folk-rock item. Much of it sounds amateurish and the recording quality is poor. Most of the material was recorded between 1970-72 at either Crown Studios or Clay Pigeon Sound Unlimited and it's produced by Vyto Beleska. There is one rather interesting instrumental track with sound effects dating from December 1964. Otherwise on offer is experimental but disjointed blues-rock, best exemplified on the opening cut Stoneball and the 8'31" Mind and Soul, recorded live at Tinley Park High School. Other material is more acoustic-based. (VJ)

45: Spend Your Life With Me/
The Sun Lights Up The Shadows (Roulette 4774) 1967

This group hailed from Brooklyn, New York. They were originally known as Back Door Men when they cut one single backing Alaina Shore, Wrong Number/Shades Of Yesterday on Satellite (not the Stax-related label). As First Crow To The Moon, they were signed to Roulette on the recommendation of Doc Pomus. They were also sometimes known as The Bootleggers. The sleevenotes to Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 3 (CD), which includes both sides of the Roulette single and the previously unreleased We Walk The Rain (all three songs were written by Jerry Millstein), suggest that their name was the product of a typographical error at Roulette - their correct name was actually First Crew To The Moon, which would make more sense. All three songs are an exciting blend of punk and psychedelia.

The single was not really promoted at all by Roulette, who were busy pushing the latest Tommy James record (I Think We're Alone Now). Jeff Jarema interviewed the band's drummer, Allen Miller, who sang vocals on The Sun Lights Up The Shadows Of Your Mind. According to Miller, the band opened for The Vagrants and The Lovin' Spoonful but never The Velvet Underground (as previously reported). Also, Chris Stein (later of The Stilletos, Magic Tramps and Blondie) was never in this band, he was just a friend who hung around with them and was at many rehearsals. It had previously been thought that Stein was in the band, which broke up in January 1968 when Alàn Avick died of leukaemia.

ALBUM: 1(A) FIRST FRIDAY
(Webster's Last Word WLW-S-2895) 1970 R3

First Friday comprised of students from the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana. Their album is outstanding, with inspired playing and very tight ensemble performances throughout. The lead guitar solos are particularly stunning; they could be described as ferocious in their delivery even though the songs themselves are not particularly hard-edged.

The album was recorded "live" at Golden Voice Sound Studios in Pekin, Illinois in late September 1969 and appeared in local shops in January 1970. Only 500 copies were pressed. (CF/TTn)

1st National Band (?TN)

45: The Trip Down/
When Once It Was Good (Monument 45-1031) 1967

The top side has the encouraging title but is pretty tame harmony-pop and, though it has some psychedelic effects, it disappoints. However, turn it over and mellow-psych lovers are in for a treat - an entrancing mid-slow psych ballad infused with backward guitars, effects and smell of incense. The band is thought to have come from Nashville, Tennessee

When Once It Was Good also appears on the Acid and Flowers (CD) and on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 4 (CD). (MW)

2(A/B) THIS SIDE OF ETERNITY (Revelation D-5051) 1973 R1
3(B) ..UPON THIS ROCK (Revelation D-6736) 1976 SC

NB: (1) shown as by Danny And Lynda. There's also a vinyl compilation First Revelation Of Danny And Lynda (World In Sound RFR-001) 1999, limited to 500 copies. Alive In New York (CD) (Hidden Vision) 2005 compiles live recordings from 1975.

From Long Island, New York First Revelation was a Christian rock group with heavy guitar and moog. They were previously known as Danny and Lynda.

The Gospel album was actually credited to Danny and Lynda. Part of it comprises soft-rock material, but some tracks like Keeper Of My Soul, Sing It Out and Show Me One Place are much heavier with wah-wah guitar and lots of distortion.

There are two versions of This Side Of Eternity. The first features original drummer John Hauser, but the new line-up with Bob Argirio re-recorded the entire album and this second version is better. The album covers a wide diversity of styles but Danny's flashy guitar-work is a constant feature. One of the more bizarre offerings is a banjo/moog duet on an instrumental version of Swing Low, Sweet Chariot and As Long As You Listen showcases Danny's guitar playing near its best.

Upon This Rock is a more mainstream effort, but the title cut again highlights his guitar-work. The World In Sound CD concentrates more on the heavier guitar numbers. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) A CID SYMPHONY (No label) 1967 R3

NB: (1) Originally issued as a three album set on coloured vinyl. The three discs had individual catalogue numbers: yellow vinyl #7-121/7-123, purple vinyl #7-122/7-124, and green vinyl #7-125/7-126. These were in separate printed inner sleeves on which photos of the group appear and were shrink-wrapped together. The front cover was a cardboard slick that was mostly pink; some of these were mounted to heavy posterboard, had their corners rounded and had a gold cord attached through a hole at the top for hanging. The back cover was a paper slick that featured a photo of an Afghan turban cap, often described as "the mandala cover". Some copies also included concert flyers. All of these items were contained in an open-top polyethylene bag. (1) reissued as a 2-CD set (Gear Fab GF-135) 1999 with three bonus tracks and as a 3-LP box set (Akarma AK 090/3) 2000 with a poster, inserts and bonus tracks.

ERNIE FISCHBACK and CHARLES EWING - A Cid Symphony LP.

This unusual and decidedly uncommercial private press triple album was produced at the University Of California by Berkeley graduate Miller, who had earlier produced other records in support of the Free Speech Movement on campus. Fischbach and Ewing had been playing together while students at California State University - Long Beach, but came up to Berkeley to play and study music at the Ali Akbar College Of Music. The album was recorded at Fantasy Studios in Berkeley in 1967 and 1,000 copies were pressed that year. The band played frequently, usually at colleges, but also appeared at the Monterey Pop Festival, and The Human Be-In in Golden Gate Park. Their repertoire of acoustic material covered blues, flamenco guitar improvisations, Hindustani ragas, even American Indian chants. Miller added some spoken word segments to the record, and Goines is heard singing over the sound of a printing press on one track. While A Cid Symphony is not a widely appreciated record, it is acknowledged as a significant Bay Area collectable from the heyday of California's political and psychedelic era. (CF)

45: Circles/ Merry Go Round (Bizarre 0781) 1969

Larry "Wild Man" Fischer was a Los Angeles street singer when Frank Zappa discovered him and decided to release and produce a double album of his "songs" on his Bizarre label.

The usual Zappa graphic designer, Cal Schenkel conceived the strange gatefold sleeve and the liner notes explain that "His mother had him committed to a mental institution twice".

Most of the material was recorded "live in the street in front of the Whisky A Go Go and The Hamburger Hamlet on Sunset Strip", with occasional percussion added by Art Tripp. The album was divided on four parts: "The Basic Fischer" with Merry Go Round and The Madness And Ecstasy (a recitative by Kim Fowley, Rodney Bingenheimer and the GTO's), "Larry's Songs": 15 vocal tracks with unusual titles and really tormented vocals (Which Way Did The Freak Go, Think Of Me When Your Clothes Are Off, I'm Working For The Federal Bureau Of Narcotics), "Some Historical Notes

" with The Taster (later covered by Kane's Cousins and the Rocket Rock, and "In Conclusion" with Circles (subtitled "Larry's first psychedelic hit").

Taster and Circles were complemented by overdubs provided by Zappa and some of the Mothers (Jimmy Carl Black and Roy Estrada). A real curiosity!

Wild Man Fischer recorded some other albums for Rhino between 1978 and 1984. (SR)

Fisk was a folk singer/guitarist from Michigan. His vocal style is gruff and the lyrics on tracks like Travellin' Pancakes, Peanutbutter Buddy and Lawnmower Boy suggest that he was quite eccentric. These albums are likely too quirky for mass appeal but are sought-after by collectors of the strange. (VJ)

This pleasant pop-rock outfit formed in Oklahoma but soon relocated to Dallas, Texas in 1964 and proceeded to enjoy a prolific recording output until they disbanded in 1970. Mike Rabon, Norman Ezell and John Durrill formed a successful song-writing trio and most of the band's songs were self-penned. Western Union, produced by Dale Hawkins, captures them at their best and includes their three main hits: - I See The Light, Western Union and Sound Of Love, along with covers of Steve Winwood's Gimme Some Lovin, Screaming Jay Hawkins, I Put A Spell On You and Roger Miller's Husbands And Wives. Western Union and Sound Of Love both received a fair degree of airplay in the U.K. where the former was covered by The Searchers, but neither charted.

Group members Jim Grant, John Durnill and Jimmy Wright, along with Bobby Rambo and Jim Glaves (from a group called The Crowd) were the backing musicians on the album Elastic Event (Abnak ABST-2070) 1967 by the Dallas pop-rock duo Jon and Robin. The Five Americans drummer went on to marry Javonne Braga aka "Robin" in the seventies after Jon and Robin and The Five Americans had broken up.

Early Americans (Beat Rocket BR 143) 2006 is a retrospective covering their 1964-66 recordings and gathers together their first two single A-sides, The Train, and nine previously unreleased cuts. The latter include Little Richard's Slippin' & Slidin' and Chuck Berry's Roll Over Beethoven where they show off their R'n'R roots; the remainder are beat-punk originals with an obvious Merseybeat influence, to the point of lifting the Searchers' classic introductory jangle to When You Walk In The Room.

This garage band used lots of fuzz in many of their songs. The album is now a minor collectors' item and they also enjoyed a U.S. hit when Fire (which was written by Jimi Hendrix) climbed to No 52 in 1968. Produced by Gene Kent, Next Exit features various covers: Hush (Joe South), She Digs My Move (Doug Sahm), Soul Man (the Sam and Dave song), Shake A Tail Feather, Share Your Love... Two songs were written by Eddie Hinton and Jimmy Johnson, who are both credited as arranger or engineer and would later take an active part in the famous Muscle Shoals Studios.

Nine of their singles tracks are non-album (Tell Me What To Do, Harlem Shuffle, You Really Got A Hold On Me, Hang Up, Apple Cider, 15 Going On 20, Penthouse Pauper, Good Connection and Never).

The inclusion of Apple Cider on Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP), suggests that they hailed from Texas, but Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 5 (CD) also features the track, and claims they came from Louisiana... whilst the more reliable Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8 (LP & CD) includes their fine version of Love's 7 And 7 Is (from their album) and locates the band as Oklahoma... Mike Markesich has however since established that they were from Magnolia, Arkansas. Apple Cider by the way is a catchy punker with some great wavering male vocals, and neat keyboard motif. You'll also find it on Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD).

Other compilation appearances have included: Hang Up on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 3 (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 3 (CD), Shadows Falling (CD), Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); You Really Got A Hold On Me and Soul Man on Born On The Bayou (LP); 7 And 7 Is on Sixties Rebellion 8: Love Covers (LP); Too Much Tomorrow on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD); and Good Connection on White Lace & Strange Volume 2 (CD). Andrew Brown's 'Brown Paper Sack #1' 'zine is to be commended for finally unravelling the myths and presenting the full and fascinating story of this group (amongst many others, so go grab a copy).

In brief, The Hangmen were a quintet from around San Antonio, Texas. Following their self-promoted debut on their own label (which misprinted their name as 'The Hangman'), they came to the attention of a local self-styled promoter 'Colonel' Paul Beckingham (as in Colonel Tom Parker or Major Bill Smith). He imposed a new name on them based on the logic that non-local groups were more exotic and got more air-play - along the same lines I guess as US bands adopting British names, even accents, in the wake of the British Invasion. So, the Five Canadians were born and the band were publicised as invaders from north of the border (Toronto). No wonder there has been so much confusion and debate ever since. At the time the hype only achieved limited success and despite out-of-state forays the band would remain a local phenomenon. Bobby Flores moved on to The Infinite Staircase and later solo singles. Bruce Svoboda released a psychedelic single as Grapple - Ethereal Genesis/Snail (Rush 1394) - in 1969.

Despite the confusion and doubts perpetuated as to their origins, what is not in doubt is the testosterone drive of their music whose climax is Writing On The Wall. It is rightfully regarded as a classic of the garage genre and no collection is complete without it. The article mentions that it impressed others at the time - it was covered by the XL's (from St. Louis). But it is with the Pebbles generation that appreciation has matured and this song has now been covered by the likes of Germany's Broken Jug on their Grand Junction EP, girl-garage queens the Brood, and the Nines.

Compilation appearances include: Writing On The Wall on Pebbles, Vol. 5 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 5 (LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Great Pebbles (CD) and I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP); Never Alone on 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 1 (7"), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP), and Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP); Don't Tell Me on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP) and Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and Goodnight on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2:The Barn and Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). From Benton Harbor, Michigan this act was picked up by Freeport records in Northern Illinois and had a minor hit with Little Miss Sad. More commonly known as The Five Emprees, they had quite a prolific output and both their albums are now minor collectables.

Founder member Ron Pelkey recalls: "We had been known as the Impressions for a few years, not knowing there was another group by that name. When we released our first record as The Five Empressions, The Impressions filed an injunction against us and our record company changed our name to The Five Emprees without consulting us. We did not like the sound of Little Miss Sad, but it turned out to be #2 on WLS in Chicago behind Yesterday by the Beatles. Making Hey Lover the flip side was a mistake, however, as it was probably the best recording we ever made and would have been a good follow-up."

The band recorded Little Miss Sad, which was given to them by their DJ-Manager Bob Richards, plus several other songs at Universal Studios in Chicago. It was written by Dick and Don Addrisi, who also wrote several songs for The Association and the track looked like it might break nationally, Bob:- "But there were promotional blunders as well. Irv Garmissa (our Agent and Freeport label owner) did not spend $2,000 to have the song promoted nationally as he thought that it was going to be #1 in Chicago and then would take off on its own. If he had spent the money it would have gotten the song played in all markets, but as it was, #76 on Billboard was as far up the charts as I ever saw it."

"We all had a great time playing tho'. We performed with some big names including The Animals, The Outsiders, Neil Diamond, The Vogues, Bobby Vee, The Lovin' Spoonful, Paul Revere and the Raiders and most of the other big names of the day. If fame had come later we would have known better what to do with it. As it was, we were not ready to climb the ladder."

Don Cook and Bill Schueneman later married Ron Pelkey's sisters, making three-fifths of the band brother-in-law's! It is consequently easy for the group to stay in touch and with the exception of Mike De Rose, they still perform today at the occasional benefit gig and all are accomplished musicians. Don Cook and Tony Catania still live in Benton Harbor, Michigan, Bill Schueneman in Woodstock, Georgia, Mike DeRose in Santa Barbara, California and Ron Pelkey in Alpharetta, Georgia.

Little Miss Sad can also be found on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 4 (LP). (MW)

Mid-sixties garage punk outfit Five More operated out of California, possibly Los Angeles.

You'll also find Avalanche on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 2 (LP) and I'm No Good on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP). (VJ)

Five of a Kind (TX)

45:	Never Again/ I Don't Want To Find Another Girl	(Vandan no #) 1965

The single was this Fort Worth outfit's sole stab for stardom. Never Again is a folk-punk anthem.

Compilation appearances include: I Don't Want To Find Another Girl on Love Is A Sad Song, Vol. 1 (LP); and Never Again on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 11 (LP). Both sides of the single have also resurfaced on Fort Worth Teen Scene! Volume One (CD). (VJ)

Previously known as The Impressions and The Temptations, they were one of Maryville's Tucson sixties outfits. Hey You was a cover of The Guilloteens track. Prior to this band Maryville was with The Showmen and when they spit he joined The Poppies, but they did not record. His final outfit was Whatever's Left. The band also recorded a 1966 acetate: Let Me Explain/I Lied.

Canella and Valdez would later work with The Yellow Balloon.

Compilation appearances have included: Hey You on Boulders, Vol. 8 (LP), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Garage Beat '66 1 (CD); and Need Me Like I Need You and the previously unreleased Let Me Explain can be found on The Tucson Sound 1960-1968 (LP). Need Me Like I Need You also reappeared on Thee Unheard Of (LP), miscredited to "Fentons" by the rogue compiler. Pronounced "The Five Pound Grin", this short-lived San Diego band also went by the name The Survivors, and recorded a demo at White Whale Studios in Santa Ana in 1968. One of the tracks they laid down, Never Hurt Again resurfaced on Brain Shadows, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). At least five songs were recorded at this session, which were cut to acetate and shopped to local Los Angeles record labels.

While Never Hurt Again may be the best of the surviving cuts, it is only marginally so. The Five # Grin boasted finely-crafted layered vocals that bear more than a passing resemblance to Moby Grape, as well as Doran's jaw-dropping guitar leads. In retrospect, it seems quite astonishing that they weren't picked up by a major label on the strength of this recording, despite its lack of polish.

Four tracks from this demo were re-worked a few weeks later by the same line-up, and this time they were issued as two singles credited to Pale Fire. By 1970, the band included Kathy "K.T." Taylor on vocals and were known as Pride and Joy.

Dave Doran had previously led several line-ups of the popular San Diego band The Voxmen. Willie Kellogg was a member of Joel Scott Hill's bands, as well as The Time Machine. Lawson was later a member of The Docker Hill Boys, who recorded an album for Columbia Records in 1973 which remains unissued. (CF)

THE FLAMIN' GROOVIES - Sneakers 10" LP.

From Dayton, Ohio in the late sixties and early seventies Sonny Flaharty released several singles on local labels in the era. He started out playing rockabilly and continued rockin' for several years. His groups included The Sonny Flaharty Application, the Young Americans, the Mark V and later the Grey Imprint.

The Mark V was originally a Dayton, Ohio act known as The Rich Kids, fronted by a beautiful vocalist Susan Darby. They'd already changed their name to The Mark V when Darby got a solo contract with ABC and departed. They teamed with the city's respected rocker Sonny Flaharty but initially did not want to be associated with "old time rock and roll" so they adopted Anglo/Canadian sounding pseudonyms: - Flaharty became Paul Wesley Wellington, Mike Losencamp became Mike Lovelace, John Hollinger - Jason Starbuck III whilst Smart and Wyatt just changed their christian names to Sebastian and Farnsworth respectively.

N.D. Smart (whose father managed the band) was an in-demand drummer and was making frequent trips to New York; Doug Porter who'd played with Flaharty in the Young Americans would sit in for him. N.D. Smart eventually left the group (we encounter him next in The Remains) and Porter joined permanently. Around this time Losecamp departed for The Cyrkle and was replaced by Skip Shaman.

Hey Conductor, which was written by Sonny Flaharty, showcases his vocal talents and features some good organ work. The track was recorded in 1966 at Sambo Studios in Louisville, Kentucky but shelved for nine months by Counterpart. Douglas Porter: "We were approached by Carl Maduri of Warner Brothers to record, but since we had signed a 'deal' with Shad O'Shay of Counterpart, we had to use the name 'Marque V' on our Warner Bros. release: Can't Buy My Soul/When I Close My Eyes"

Sonny Flaharty: "Nothing happened with those and Counterpart Records of Cincinnati, Ohio released Hey Conductor. We had picks in every major trade mag and were picked up by Philips. In the first week we had a regional breakout, but then the record was banned for 'the most flagrant psychedelic lyric ever written...', and we lost it all in the U.S., England and most of Europe."

"I left the group and, with the Application (real band name Sonny Flaharty and Outrage) worked the circuit New York, Chicago, Dallas, L.A., San Francisco and all points in between. After a few months home I picked up an 11-piece horn band in the early seventies that was Sonny Flaharty and the Grey Imprint. We re-recorded Hey Conductor for Counterpart/Fraternity but the label lost its nerve before the release (while we were on the road) and added a train horn to the start, hoping to make someone think the song was about trains I guess. Anyhow it crashed and burned abruptly."

In 2001, Dionysus/Bacchus Archives released a retrospective of the band from 1963 to 1967 - a lively selection that encompasses rock'n'roll, frat, beat and fuzzed-out garage-rock. It includes a few Young Americans songs including the Coconut Stomp I/II single, the Marque V single, Mark V's Hey Conductor, and several unreleased originals recorded around that time.

You can also find Hey Conductor on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 14 (LP).

Some of his other singles are listed below:-

This Memphis group played wild rock with loud guitars and lots of crash cymbal. Mike Stoker had been in (Tommy Burk and) The Counts and Mark Tidwell was from Joe Frank and The Knights. Uptight Tonight was written by Jim Dickinson (Jesters, Avengers) and has been compiled on It Came From Memphis (LP) 1995, A History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis (CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD).

As Flash and The Board Of Directors, David Fleishman would later record some regional white soul/pop hits under the guidance of Chips Moman.

You can read their full story in Ron Hall's book on the Memphis scene (1960-1975) - 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door' (Shangri-La Projects, ISBN 0-9668575-1-8) 2001. (SR/BM/MW)

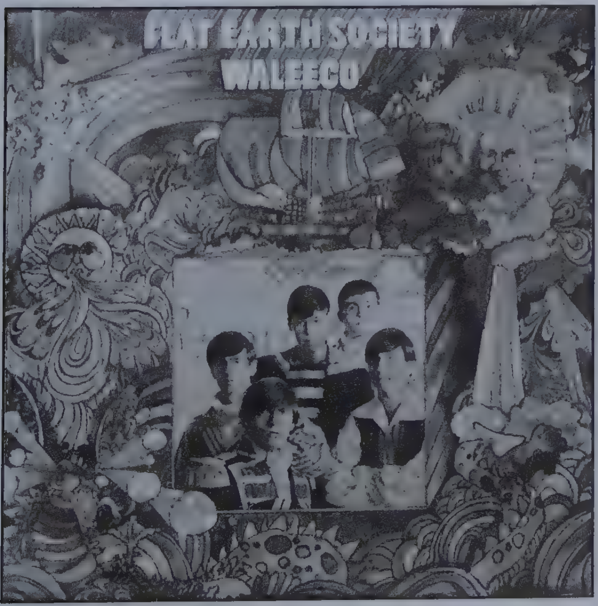
ALBUM: 1(A) WALEECO (Fleetwood FCLP-3027) 1968 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Psycho 17) 1983. (1) counterfeited on vinyl (Fleetwood) 2001 and reissued officially on vinyl (Lightning Tree LIGHTFLASH LFLP 018) 2007. (1) reissued on CD together with The Lost Kids Space Kids on Arf! Arf! (AA 042-2) 1993. The latter being a sci-fi audio fairy tale with incidental music. (1) also earlier reissued as a separate CD and on vinyl.

From Lynn, just north of Boston, Flat Earth Society was notable for their crispy, clear vocal sound. In early 1968 they were approached by the Boston advertising firm Quinn and Johnson to make an album and a jingle for the manufacturer of the 'Waleeco' candy bar - the F. B. Washburn Candy Company. That year every 'Waleeco' bar carried a coupon advertising the Flat Earth's Society's album Waleeco for $1.50 and six 'Waleeco' bar wrappers. The beautiful psychedelic rock/pop masterpiece was only available to candy lovers who sent in $1.50 and six 'Waleeco' bar wrappers!

Recorded at Fleetwood Recording Studio in Revere, most of the material was written by Kerivan, the only non-original being a slow melodic version of Midnight Hour. The album covers quite a wide rock spectrum with goodtime (I'm So Happy), folk (When You're There and The Prelude For Town Monk), hard-rock (Four & Twenty Miles and Shadows), as well as psychedelia, but each track has the band's own style about it. Aside from Feelin' Much Better, the best tracks are arguably on the second side of the album. Dark Street Downtown has some haunting vocals superimposed upon swirling piano. Portrait In Grey is a haunting piano-oriented instrumental and Satori, a very strange psychedelic instrumental. The reissue is worth purchasing, although it's probably imprudent to fork out for the original should you come across a copy.



FLAT EARTH SOCIETY - Waleeco LP.

The band made a few appearances after making the album but broke up soon after.

In 1974, Fleetwood disposed of the remaining boxes of the album into the dumpster but luckily the master tapes survived to be revived by Arf! Arf! who reissued the album in 1993 on CD in the original stereo mix (the vinyl originals had been mixed down to mono).

Paul Carter was active in the Boston music scene until the late eighties, Phil Dubuque later moved to England for a while but is now back in Boston, and Jack Kerivan became senior director of professional services at NEC. One member was also later in Copperfield.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Feelin' Much Better on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD), Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD); Four and Twenty Miles on The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD); and a previously unreleased backwards version of Satori can be found on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD). (VJ/MW/LP)

From around the Fredericksborough, Maryland and Washington DC area, this trio originally came together behind Billy Joe Ash, and were known collectively as Billy Joe & The Continentals. When they parted company with their front-man in mid-65 they carried on as a trio under the name The Bad Boys, releasing one classy garage-punk single on Paula. Their named was changed again to Flavor after gaining a contract with Columbia, but an expected album never materialized due to the lack of chart success with their three singles. Tim O'Brien was their producer at Columbia, not a group member, as previously suggested. Gary St. Clair released an eponymous solo album on Paramount in 1972, with O'Brien as producer again. Recently the pair have also been producing and directing the group "All For One".

There was also an album by Flavor called In Good Taste (Ju-Par 6-1002) 1977, but this is probably a different outfit.

Surprisingly, Heart Teaser appears on Incredible Sound Show Stories Vol. 12 (LP), supposedly a collection of rare and unreleased UK singles. The compiler says it was lifted from an 8" white label acetate with I'm Hip on the flip, credited to "Flower" instead of Flavor; there's no trace of a UK release of these tracks under either band name.

Heart Teaser was covered in 1970 by the Skunks. It's also on Electric Sound Show Volume One (CD) where it is credited to Flower. (MW)

This Seattle outfit included Dangel from The Wailers, who'd also played in The Time Machine and The Rooks with Joe Johnson. Their album is guitar oriented and largely blues-based. It lacks consistency, but their medley of Eight Miles High/Paint It Black shows them at their most inventive. One of their best tracks, Don't Mean A Thing, only appears on the UK pressing, plus Liberty's compilation album Son Of Gutbucket. More recently the track has appeared on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP).

The album features elongated versions of both tracks from the first single.

Johansen later went on to play with Little Bill and the Blue Notes. (VJ/TWg/SR/TJH/MW/CF)

Released on John Fahey's label, this California group was formed by Bobby Kimmel (ex-Stone Poneys) and Shep Cooke (Dearly Beloved). Their very quiet and relaxed album, mostly acoustic, illustrates the "back to the country" movement. One track is aptly titled Shep's Goin To The Country and the lyrics contain references to Mark LeVine, one of the first musicians to be concerned with this topic. Kimmel and Cooke wrote all the material, except covers of Paul Siebel's Any Day Woman and Wendy Waldman's Livin' Like There's No Tomorrow. Housed in a fine black and white sleeve conceived by Cooke, the record was recorded in Hollywood, produced by the band and Chuck Plotkin. A hit and miss progressive album surprisingly produced by soulster Herbie Mann. The best track is the opener, Song Of The Suicides, which features some great guitar work sadly lacking elsewhere on the album and The Vision is a decent rocker with relentless organ, but otherwise the album is pretty ordinary. Magical Wings/ What Would You Do If The Sun Died?	(USA 910) 1968

Chicago's Flock played an ambitious mix of jazz, blues, prog and rock, with horns and the electric violin of Jerry Goodman, who would later join Mahavishnu Orchestra. They benefited from an intense promotion from CBS who tried to launch them with Blood, Sweat & Tears, Aorta and Chicago. Their records may sound dated now, but they sold quite well at the time and both albums made the Top 100. The Flock commences with an instrumental opening track Introduction, which fuses classical and rock. The album also features an interesting version of Ray Davies' Tired Of Waiting, that adds jazz to the mix and features an unconventional horn section of two tenor saxes and a trumpet. The final track, Truth is an excessively long jam.

Big Bird was compiled on the CBS sampler Different Strokes (LP) in 1971 and you can also find Magical Wings on Early Chicago (LP). Are You The Kind and What Would You Do If The Sun Died? can both be heard on 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD).

Flock reformed with a new line-up in 1975 and finally disappeared after an awful album (Inside Out, Mercury). (SR/MW)

FLOOD - The Rise Of... LP.

NB: (1) one-sided album limited to 100 copies. (2) two-sided version, although this was issued in the sleeve for the one-sided album and therefore only lists the songs for side one, again only 100 copies were pressed. The 13-track version was later counterfeited in Europe on vinyl in 199? and CD as The Flow. (1) later reissued officially as The Flow's Greatest Hits (Shadoks LP 005) 2001, in a numbered limited edition (450) of the full 13-track LP with a bonus 45 - Things We Said Today/Bagdad Express and poster. (1) also reissued on CD (Shadoks Music 050) 2001 with three bonus tracks and a fold-out information booklet with information about the band.

From New York, this trio was responsible for one (and a half) of the most sought-after private pressings of the early seventies. The music of The Flow is intensely heavy but still indebted to melody. The songs are full of ideas and largely avoid the pitfalls of the usual blues-based/trio format. It Swallowed The Sun is about the heaviest blast of rock ever to open a record, but 10 minutes later the band is gently breathing through Meditations and then into Bach's Toccata In D Minor. The Flow was only three, but there are no weak points to be found in their musical integrity. The original album cover is pretty mind-blowing as well. About the only fault to be mentioned is the recording quality - it sounds like the music was recorded live in a big room and the vocals overdubbed later. It's not a disaster by any means, though - and the Shadoks reissue (which has considerably better sound than the bootlegs) is recommended.

Pete Fine obviously used Flow as a catalyst for ideas, and themes from this period turned up in all the recordings he made throughout the seventies. The Flow disbanded when he relocated to Arizona. He put together a new and entirely different kind of band there, and in 1974 made a solo album that holds a similarly mind-blowing status among record collectors.

Monte Farber went on to become an author. (VJ/CF/MW)

The Flower Children (CA)

	Mini-Skirt Blues/Marching Lovers	(Allied 101) 1968

Los Angeles band The Flower Children came up with the raunchy garage R&B style offering Mini-Skirt Blues in early 1968, which has an effective drum and organ intro.

Compilation appearances include: I Can Feel It on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD); and Mini-Skirt Blues on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ)

THE FLOW - The Flow's Greatest Hits LP.

A snaking lead underpins this mid-tempo West Coast rocker with male-female vocals by an obscure Sacramento, California outfit. Their producer was Rich Clark of RC & The Tambourines, Henzog, and Makiah - in fact the Henzog single label is almost exactly the same design as that of Flower Of Purple, apart from the company name. This was Deasy operating under a pseudonym in L.A. Freaky harmony flower-pop is the groove here - with the sitar-infused Black Mojo being the choice cut on the first single. Wantin' Ain't Gettin' is catchy stoned sitar-pop that the Association covered on their Insight Out album. Mike's other projects included Ceyleib People, Your Gang, Friar Tuck. (VJ/MW)

		Don't Burn My Wings/ Sailing Around The Sun	(Tune-Kel 613) 1969
		Stop! Check It/Orange Skies	(Tune-Kel 614) 1969

NB: α shown as by Sandi Craig & the Flower Power.

This lot sound every bit like a San Francisco outfit but were actually from Gulfport, Mississippi. After a mellow debut single, their second single, released as Sandi Craig & The Flower Power features a decent bluesy cover of Bobby Gentry's Mississippi Delta with strong vocals and some searing guitar bursts. Craig Ferguson's previous band was The Soule Survivors.

The flip to their third single, Mt. Olympus, is a smouldering slice of psych that erupts at the end with unrestrained manic feedback. In contrast, their final single features a laid-back, almost lounge-styled, rendition of Love's Orange Skies.

Sandi later had some success as a country singer, appearing on a Tennessee Ernie Ford TV special filmed in the USSR, of all places. By then, she was performing under a different last name.

Compilation appearances have included: You Make Me Fly on Psychedelic Experience (CD), The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garagelands, Vol. 2 (LP); You Make Me Fly and Sunshine Day on Acid Dreams, Vol. 3 (LP); Sunshine Day on Psychedelic Archives, Vol. 6 (double cassette box); Orange Skies on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8: Love Covers (LP & CD); Trivialities on Brain Shadows, Vol. 11 (LP & CD); and *Mt. 45:	I Can Feel It/Stop	(Tener T1010) 1967

Formed in early 1967 in Brevard County, Florida this quartet blossomed briefly with one superb fuzz-punkadelic single, and an otherwise unavailable cover of the Hollies' Hard Year on the rare double-album Bee Jay Demo Vol. II (2-LP). Cox replaced Sherman in late 1967. The band went into limbo shortly after, when Larry Pearl moved to Houston to take up a post with NASA. He quickly discovered a vibrant scene there and encouraged the other three to join him... and so they did, on January 2nd 1968, for a gig at the University Of Houston. This secondary flowering lasted only until July, when the gigs started to dry up.

I Can Feel It is one of the highlights on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1, whose liners tell the group's full story. (MW/RM)

Flowerz came from Reading, Pennsylvania. Previously known as the Marauders, they became the Flowerz when Stout was added and Tucci replaced Danny Bausher. Now you can read their whole story and enjoy their sounds on Erik Lindgren's CD - issued as part of a quartet on the region, with Pat Farrell & The Believers and two volumes of Eastern Pa. Rock making up the set. This CD features 22 tracks recorded especially by the band as a 'backing soundtrack' over which they would play or sync at a live performance in Reading on February 16th 1968. There are cover versions of Light My Fire and Hey Joe as well as some promising original compositions. The set comes with detailed liner notes and lots of colour pictures of the band.

Compilation appearances have included: I Need Love Now on Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP); Flyte and Talkin' About Love on Return Of The Young Pennsylvanians (LP) and Gathering Of The Tribe (CD); Flyte, I Need Love Now, My Sad Story and Talkin' About Love on Eastern PA Rock Part Two (1966-'69) (CD); and there's a previously unreleased instrumental version of I Need Love Now on *The Arf! Brothers Floyd and Jerry (Westfall), formerly of The Door Nobs, were huge stars in their hometown of Phoenix, Arizona. With their family harmonies, the act was essentially a mid-sixties mod update of the Everly Brothers. Their jangly garage-pop classic Believe In Things on the Phoenix-based Presta imprint soared to No. 1 on local Top 40 radio giant KRIZ's "Boss 50" chart in April 1966 but failed to click nationally. The flipside, Girl, was a holdover from the Door Nobs' repertoire that would be of equal interest to connoisseurs of Beatleseque garage. The cheery Summer Kisses was another regional smash in summer '66 and Dusty, which was given the full-blown brass pop treatment, nearly broke big at the end of the year. Floyd and Jerry were signed to Double Shot and recorded The Airplane Song as their expected debut for the Los Angeles label. Their version was canned after The Royal Guardsmen released their take of the same song first. The Beatle-influenced Love Me Girl was released instead, followed by the minimalist proto-bubblegum of Chik-A, Chik-A (I Think You're Lost) at the end of the year. Floyd and Jerry wrote most of their own material, and also provided Make Up Your Mind for The Choice, another local Phoenix garage band. Their first two singles were with The Counterpoints, and they were later backed at live shows by The Smyle. The duo even appeared in a zero-budget youth exploitation film titled 'Without Getting', which referred to the way that kids graduated from college "without getting" an education. An album was recorded but shelved after Jerry was drafted and the act went bust. Floyd Westfall released one solo single with little success. By the early 1980s, Floyd and Jerry were working the Phoenix-Scottsdale lounge circuit and released a "comeback" single on their own label. The group may be too pop for fuzz-punk extremists, but any of their finely crafted sixties singles would appeal to those listeners who appreciate the catchier, harmonic side of the garage experience. Think Beatles, Everlys and Monkees, not Association. (DN)

1967-1968 GARAGE ROCK FROM READING PA

THE FLOWERZ - Flyte CD.

45: Come On Up/Found Love (Tiffany 564) 1967

Greg Presmanes formed his first high school band The Echoes in Atlanta, Georgia. Drummer Doug Freedman was the other stable member; others came and went until Presmanes secured the services of his cousin Bob Levinson, who renamed the group the Fly-Bi-Nites.

They recorded their sole single in the summer of 1967. Just 300 copies were pressed with the band's name spelt "Fly-Bi-Nites". The top side is a fine cover of The Young Rascals' Come On Up, with a danceable beat and great guitar break. The nugget here, however, is the fabulous original Found Love, a dramatic pop-punker with hypnotic keyboards, dynamic bursts of guitar and dreamy vocals.

Presmanes recounts the band's story in Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 liner notes. He left them in the spring of 1969; the band continued, changed their name to The Solid Soul and shifted into funky R&B territory. They released a single on the local Lovett label which was picked up by the Capitol subsidiary 123.

Compilation appearances have included: Come On Up on Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 2: The Barn (LP); and Found Love on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 8 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW/RM)

Green Eyes Green World/Got To Learn To Love (MTA 130) 1967
Pony Rider/Bety June (PS) (Rock Bottom WRS 670) 1970

Decent West Coast sounds from this San Anselmo, California outfit, who recorded at San Francisco's Golden State Recorders. The first single is in a garage vein. Both sides of the second single feature good guitar work and Got To Learn To Love is good garage-beat. Their MTA singles were produced by the ubiquitous Hank Levine and Larry Goldberg (Afterglow, Neighb'rood Childr'n, Other Half).

The third single came in a beautiful picture sleeve. By this time, like so many West Coast bands, they had adopted a country-rock sound.

Another single, Hayride/Early Morning (GNP Crescendo 426) 1969, was by an Australian band of the same name, with a cover of a Barclay James Harvest tune.

Compilation appearances have included: Green Eyes Green World on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD); I'm Going on Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP) and Brain Shadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); Green Eyes Green World, I'm Going and Midnight Highway on Crystalize Your Mind (CD); and Bety June on *Yee-Haw! Housed in a great psychedelic cover, this album consists largely of weakish cover songs including standards such as White Rabbit, San Francisco Nights and My Back Pages, although there's one original sung in Spanish La Felicidad. A few songs, particularly Mercy, Mercy, Mercy lean towards pop-soul. The album was recorded by a group of mainly American draft-dodgers in Mexico, and is on a par with a "psychedelic" PJ Orion & The Magnates.

The Flys hailed from McLean, Virginia. The quartet's finest moment sounds like Reality Composition No 1, a real Stones-influenced garage classic with superb vocals and typical girl-put-down lyrics. By comparison Be What You Is sounds rather mundane.

Compilation appearances include: Be What You Is on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Signed, D.C. (LP); Reality Composition #1 on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 22 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD); and The Way Things Are on Aliens, Psychos & Wild Things Vol. 2 (CD). 	Norwegian Wood/Raga Rock	(World Pacific 77831) 1966

NB: α shown as by 'Bud Shank & The Folkswingers'.

This group operated out of Los Angeles. The two 1964 albums were produced by Jim Dickson. He asked Dillards members Doug and Rodney together with Dean Webb to help him on his instrumental project, rounding it out with session guitarist Glen Campbell and Nashville based dobroist Tut Taylor, who was in L.A. to work on his own solo instrumental albums in '64.

Jim Dickson called the group The Folkswingers and they recorded folk and bluegrass songs to cash-in on the current trends. Basically they kept the name for the 1966 album and tried to tackle another musical trend. Raga Rock unashamedly cashed in on the success of Ravi Shankar and the emerging use of the sitar in Western pop-rock (Beatles, Stones, Byrds), offering up instrumental versions of the latest cool hit sounds, many with fuzzed guitar, and all topped off with that exotic sound. The more obvious and successful choices for such treatment are here - Paint It Black, a regular on later "exploito" albums of exotic-psych, Eight Miles High and Shapes Of Things. Also tackled (with varying success) are Norwegian Wood, The Association's Along Comes Mary, Outsiders' Time Won't Let Me, Kicks, Hey Joe, Homeward Bound and The Turtles' Grim Reaper Of Love. Their own Raga Rock is the finale - although it starts off rather pedestrian, it's soon spiralling off into Eight Miles High territory, but comes back to earth way too soon.

A couple of the names on the Raga Rock release should also strike a chord - Larry Knechtel (later of Bread) and Hal Blaine were part of the elite corps of L.A. session musicians known as The Wrecking Crew.

Jim Dickson not only went on to produce the Byrds, Flying Burrito Brothers and Country Gazette, but in 1964 alone, produced World Pacific sessions for The Kentucky Colonels, The Dillards (including a live album and tracks with drummer Dewey Martin later of Buffalo Springfield), sessions for the Hillmen {Chris Hillman's pre-Byrds bluegrass group}, as well as the embryonic Byrds in their original and Jet Set/ Beefeaters formations.

Their version of Eight Miles High has been compiled on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 4 (CD); and Norwegian Wood can now be heard on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 9 (CD) (MW/JO)

These albums were part of the University of Rhode Island yearbook series. The 1977 one blended boogie, bluegrass and hippie-folk. The cover features a drawing of a castle. The 1978 one veered towards progressive folk-rock with horns. The cover features a photo of a Volkswagen Bus. This school series started with at least three albums called Perspective, and also included Right Of Little Rest and Closely Watched Trains. The Follies Bazaar series continued beyond the time frame of this book with Dressed To Thrill (198?), Ten (198?), Road (1983), and probably others. (VJ)

2	BLESSED WEAKNESS	(National Federation Of Christian Life Communities PAS-753383) 1975 R2

Originally from Massachusetts, this Christian folk sextet relocated to Des Moines, Iowa. The high-pitched female vocals recall Joan Baez. There is also a male singer who accompanies here on some tracks. The backing is primarily a church organ, acoustic guitar and piano on Followers Of The Way.

On Blessed Weakness, which was recorded in St Louis, Missouri the female vocals are backed by acoustic and 12-string guitar, flute, recorder, piano and hand percussion. All the tracks are self-penned. (VJ)

A Chicago act whose album of soft psychedelia is heavily orchestrated in places. A couple of tracks from the album were used in a porno B-movie, 'The Babysitters'. Recorded in 1969 it's expertly produced, lush orchestrated mellow psychedelia with great fuzz guitar work as well as more rousing psychedelic rock. It's a very pleasant and melodic album which maintains a high standard throughout, with the title cut and Here We Go Again among its finer moments. They didn't release any singles, but they have one track, Forever Is A Dream compiled on Ah Feel Like Ahcid. (CD).

45s: Never Say Die/Mama Rand's (Capitol 2052) 1967
Just Lazy/You Got A Ticket To A Mobile (Capitol 2215) 1968

From Island Park, Woodmere, New York, The Footprints' first single featured two decent garagy beat-pop numbers that sound a bit dated by 1967, despite being punctuated by some clear ringing guitar spots and steaming organ. Mama Rand's was a popular live number, named after the club where they played. The second single is lame. (MW/MM)

FOOD - Forever Is A Dream CD.

45: Harlan County/Changing Colours (Sundown SD-115) 1969

Originally from New Orleans, Jim Ford moved to California in 1967 and met Pat and Lolly Vegas. Together they wrote P.J. Proby's hit, Niki Hoeky and managed to get a record deal with Sundown, a small subsidiary of White Whale.

Released in 1969, Harlan County, his only album, is a very consistent mix of pop, country and rhythm and blues with some tracks totally relevant to this book: a fuzz-drenched version of Willie Dixon's Spoonful, Dr. Handy's Dandy Candy with its drugs-related lyrics and I'm Gonna Make Her Love Me. The other tracks are more pop or country oriented but Ford's vocals and lyrics are constantly outstanding. The sleeve looks like a wrapped parcel, complete with stamps and rope, and credits as special assistants "red wine, white wine and little sleep"!

In 1971, Jim Ford went to London to record a second album. After some sessions with Brinsley Schwarz and the Grease Band, the project collapsed and the tapes disappeared.

Back in the U.S.A, he wrote some songs in 1972 for Bobby Womack and later worked with Sly Stone but, apart from that, little has been heard from him ever since. (SR)

Neal Ford was a prolific Houston-based artist. He formed The Fanatics in 1965 out of an earlier band The Ramadas, who had several singles in their own right. Most of The Ramadas output pre-dates this book, but Life Is So Tough a powerful punker from 1965 is worth checking out.

They were still in their mid-teens, when they changed their name to Neal Ford and The Fanatics and they went on to produce a string of singles, both punk and ballads, most of which were not on their album.

When the outfit disintegrated - Lanier Greig went on briefly to The Moving Sidewalks and the first ZZ Top line-up - Ford cut a solo single and then formed a new outfit, The Neal Ford Factory. He later played with The Sound Investment and Rick Mensik and was last reported running a Nashville-based talent agency.

Two more essential single reissues of awesome unreleased 1966 material have been issued by Caped Crusader: Good Men For You (CC-74) and Woman/I Can't Go On (CC-75) both in 1995.

Compilation appearances have included: I Can't Believe (a previously unreleased cut from 1966) and I Will Not Be Lonely on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD) and Acid Visions, Vol. 2 (LP); I Will Not Be Lonely on Mayhem & Psychosis Vol. 3 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis Vol. 2 (CD), Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 (LP); Shame On You on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Garage Beat '66 1 (CD); Life Is So Tough on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD) and Acid Visions (LP); She Is All There Is (previously unreleased) on Houston Post - Nowsounds Groove-In (LP), Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD) and Acid Visions Vol. 11 (CD) (Spalax); Bitter Bells on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 17 (LP); and I Will If You Want To on Acid Visions Vol. 11 (CD) (Spalax). Ford Theatre is the place where Abraham Lincoln was assassinated and the liner notes explain that "the six musicians chose this name because it corresponds to what they are trying to create - a vision of America in all its present chaos and agony".

The group was probably from Milford, Massachusetts, given that their first album gives a credit to 'the population' of that town. Produced by Bob Thiele (Eden's Children, Free Spirits), Harry Palmer and Fred Cenedella, Trilogy For The Masses is excellent in parts, particularly the nine-minute 101 Harrison Street. Much of the music is heavy psych with orchestration, swirling keyboards, some great raga fuzz guitar and long instrumental passages. All the tracks were written by Harry Palmer and Wally Magee (who also led the string quartet present on some tracks).

It's a pity that their follow-up, 'a musical concept' album, was not as interesting.

45: Little Black Egg/Won't You Be With Me (Night Owl 678) 1967

Not forgotten after all. This short-lived Illinois band included members from Wauconda and Woodstock. Their lone single flowered in the 'summer of love' on Wisconsin's Night Owl label, a subsidiary of Jim Kirchstein's Cuca empire. That Wisconsin connection ensured that it was Gary Myers who tracked them down, in his second book on the Badger state, 'On That Wisconsin Beat'.

Originally from San Diego, California these three musicians had played together in 1967 in an outfit called The National Debt. When Jerry McCann left to lead Framework, Cutler and Jacobsen became Anthrax, playing gigs up and down the coast as an instrumental duo. They were 'discovered' by Russ Miller of Elektra and Lonnie Mack at one such concert, and the duo recorded an album for the label in 1969, produced by Lonnie Mack. Label president Jac Holzman deemed the instrumental progressive album devoid of commercial potential and refused to release it. He suggested the band find a vocalist and Cutler and Jacobsen asked McCann to join them; after auditioning for Jac Holzman he was signed up and that was the end of Framework.

During the course of 1970, the trio rehearsed and recorded several times at Elektra, leaving behind a number of unissued tracks before settling on a finished album master sequence.

Elektra were also not happy with the band name and insisted on a change. The band did, grudgingly, but only to Formerly Anthrax (!). The label did manage to get their own back - on the album sleeve "Formerly Anthrax" appeared in brackets and smaller print below the title and it had been assumed by almost everyone since that the band was called Show Of Hands, and were formerly known as Anthrax. So you'll invariably find the album filed and listed under 'S'.

Whatever, this is an excellent album but in no way is it garage or psych - rather a smorgasbord of late sixties jazz-infused rock with progressive tendencies, by three talented musicians. It opens with the Focus sound-alike No Words Between Us (non-lyrics with swelling keyboards and busy Bruford-esque drumming) and this feat is repeated at end of the side with the stand-out instrumental I Want To Fly, where velvety, Akkerman-like guitar soars over waves of reedy glissandos. (Coincidentally Akkerman's pre-Focus band Brainbox had been on Elektra in the US). Moods and instrumentation shift from cool to a soulful intensity across the 10 tracks and their choice of covers showcases the variety of influences - Van Morrison's Moondance is jazzed up and works well; the Jimi Hendrix medley May This Be Love/One Rainy Wish is plaintive and subdued; their choice of Richie Haven's No Opportunity Necessary, No Experience Needed will draw obvious comparisons to the Yes version recorded the same year (on their Time And A Word LP).

McCann provided the group with a versatile vocalist and flautist; more colours for their palette. He also supplied two compositions, Like A Child and These Things I Know, unreleased Framework recordings that can be compared to the Elektra album versions via the Framework retrospective. (Incidentally, both the unreleased session tapes and the live acetate also include several other Framework songs.)

Other highlights include: the bossa nova rhythms of Stanley's Theme; the banjo instrumental Mount Olympus Breakdown which starts to sound like Jimmy Page's White Summer and as the pace picks up and bongos join in, it seems to turn into a sitar, momentarily - a strange effect; the apt finale Toy Piano which builds to a climax of swooping guitar and heavy, ELP-like grandeur. Recommended to any proggie or fan of late sixties left-field rock; this album used to be seen regularly in cut-out/bargain bins and should not be difficult or expensive to acquire. Frankly, we don't know why; the only thing against it would appear to be the drab child-like paintings of the band members across the gatefold's exterior.

FORMERLY ANTHRAX - Show Of Hands LP.

Days before recording was due to begin on a second studio album, Cutler was badly injured in a bike accident. Framework drummer Carl Spiron sat in to fulfil the band's scheduled live appearances but momentum was lost on the recording front and Elektra dropped the band.

Cutler and Jacobsen both stayed active in the music business in the San Francisco area, Cutler mainly as a session drummer although he was with Tommy Tutone's band for some time; Jacobsen played with a number of Bay Area bands through the seventies - nineties including Van Morrison, Swamp Dogg, Donald Kinsey, Norton Buffalo and Huey Lewis and The News. Jacobsen has also worked extensively in the field of equipment design and manufacturing, notably with Acoustic, Gauss and Cerwin-Vega as well as his own company RAM (Redwood Audio Manufacturing), a company that designed and built stage equipment for Foreigner, Gamma, Night Ranger and The Starship, among others. McCann is still active in San Diego as a performer and guitar teacher, and released both a cassette Unframed and a CD Blue Plate Special in 1997. The band reunited in 2000 and then recorded a demo at Jacobsen's home studio, although they were ironically calling themselves Show Of Hands by then. (MW/CF/SR)

It was released on the same label as Maze, Ferguson Tractor and many other unusual releases. Babe is less interesting. (KSI/MW)

The above album by this Boston band contains some good tracks. All the material was written by the band. Mr. Man and Crystal Forms both portray Stratton's vocals favourably and include some good guitar work. Others, such as Actions Of A Man and What Good Is Spring? find Caroline and the band in a mellower mood. Another track Know Today is an instrumental, although the record cover includes lyrics for it. However, overall the album does not maintain the standard set in its opening cuts.

On the same label as The Leaves, this was a California mixed male-female pop group with orchestrated backing. They had a big hit with The River Is Wide. Later efforts included Trip On Me, groovy flower-pop for the "beautiful people" and parents who thought they were hip.

Produced by Les Baxter in Los Angeles, with the help of session men, their album contains songs like Girl Without A Boy, Trip On Me, It's Sunday, We Can Make It, Look The Other Way, The Time Is Now, World Of Illusion and their 1966 hit, The River Is Wide. The album combines exotica and Spector which makes it a little unusual!

	Sunshine On A Cold Morning/ Day Don't Come	(Colgems 1032) 1968
	Liza Jane/Witness People	(Colgems 5033) 1969

This band played in Fredericksburg, Texas between 1966-69 and was originally known as The Crossfires. Their early singles were slick, well-crafted pop songs - Day Don't Come was also covered by Michigan's Cherry Slush. The most relevant song to this book was Witness People, a superb slice of heavy psychedelia, which was out of character from the rest of their output. Another track, Sunshine... features quite outstanding sixties pop and could easily be mistaken for Emitt Rhodes and the Merry-Go-Round. Their slower dramatic version of The Monkees' hit Take A Giant Step is also excellent.

Details of the Crossfires single are:

45:	Hard Woman/Thing Of The Past	(Sur-Speed 223) 1967

This single was produced by W.C. "Red" Wortham at his Sur-Speed Studios in Nashville. Wortham passed away in 2002 after a long career in music; he started out as a guitarist in the big bands of the thirties (incl. Glenn Miller and Benny Goodman) then turned his hand to independent production in the forties, owned a string of labels right through to the eighties, catering for all styles of grassroots music. His Sur-Speed label produced a few of interest, from our viewpoint, including releases by The Cutaways and The Rogues.

Hard Woman is a really raw, nasty punk song which you'll find on Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP) and Boulders, Vol. 8 (LP). (VJ/MW)

From Goodlettsville, Tennessee this foursome was popular on the Memphis scene in the mid to late sixties. 45:	The Quadruple Feature In Cinemascope And Color At The Drive In Movie Tonight/ Goodbye	(Paris Tower PT-107) 1967

Previously known as The Rogues, this band's single was written by a disc jockey at WLCY radio in Tampa. 5,000 copies of this were pressed, of which approximately 2,000 were sold. In 1967, the band evolved into The Outlaws, who later achieved fame and fortune in the mid-late seventies with hits such as Ghost Rider and Green Grass And High Tides. (IT/SMR)

45:	The Simple Life/?	(Wells-Desett 2275) 1965

This promising Los Angeles-based girl group sing about the pleasures of living in L.A. in The Simple Life, a simple folk ballad with melodic vocals. It's on the same obscure suburban label, run by producers Ed G. Wells (of fifties vocal group The Six Teens) and Desett, which put out a single by The Periscopes.

Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 introduced the song to a wider audience. (VJ/MW)

45: Don't Give Up Hope/Problem Child (Fairchild 1001) 1966

This raw punk single was the work of a band from Corpus Christi, Texas. Aged 14 - 17, most went to King High School in Corpus Christi, and their manager/roadie/friend Dennis Fairchild put out the single on his "Fairchild" label.

In their time they played regularly at places in and around Corpus, including the Naval Air station at Kingsville, and The Stork Club as well as local TV and a couple of "Battle Of The Bands" contests. They also got to support Charlie Rich!

In 1967, they changed their name to The Chosen Ones, recruiting older brother Jim Chandler on lead vocals, with Jerry and Kenny switching to harmony back-up. As such they issued a further single, The World's Dark Side/Bald-Headed Lena (Gulfside 1144) 1967. The flip was also recorded by The Lovin' Spoonful. In the seventies they also played as The Chandler Bros, in and around Houston.

Today Mike Burrows still lives in Corpus, Jerry and Kenny reside in the Houston area and Jim has moved to California.

Problem Child, which was written by 15-year old Kenny and 17-year old Jerry Chandler, can also be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 11 (LP) and Total Raunch (CD). (VJ)

NB: α shown as by The Fourmost Authority.... χ shown as by The Foremost Authority... and β shown as both variants! α also had a promo release with a longer version of Dance, Dance.

Probably from Los Angeles, this band's singles appeared under a mix of Fourmost/Foremost banners. Dance, Dance, appeared in a longer form on promo copies, with the R&B-ish fade out being removed from later stock copies. Described by some as good up-tempo rock with neat guitar solo and crisp vocals, their other material is mostly tame pop. Childhood Friends, written by Dick Torst, is vaudeville-style pop; it was covered in the same year by Teddy & The Pandas and by Yellow Payges. ALBUM: 1 NORTHLAND SHOPPING CENTER BATTLE OF THE BANDS (2-LP) (MAGNA 71014) 1967 R3

NB: (1) is a various artists compilation that features six tracks by The Four O'Clock Balloon.

45: Two Heads/Dark Cobble Street (Magna 71152) 1967

From Columbus, Ohio all except Roger Alton were students at Ohio State University. As worthy winners of the third annual 'Battle Of The Bands' held at the local Northland's Shopping Center in 1967 they were rewarded with a whole side of the double-album that captured the event. Six tracks - Somebody To Love, Motherly Love, Strawberry Fields Forever, Plastic Fantastic Lover, (Who Are The) Brain Police and Wake Me Shake Me. Not yer usual bunch of covers, they clearly wore their influences on their sleeves (or over their kaftans). All are performed with confidence and verve, and they were certainly (two) heads above the competition judging from the rest of the album.

Second place went to the Dubonnets, third the Trolls, fourth the Thirteenth Dilemma and fifth the Lapse Of Tyme. Other groups on the album are: Tonebenders (a girl group, doing Little Black Egg), Verdics, Brass Tax, Restless Knights, Kings English, Rubber Band, Lo-Brows, St.John's Mod, Unchosen, Sound Of Us, and The Lorey's from nearby Sparta with Don't You Care. Unfortunately there's no track listing to know exactly who does what and the unfortunate Nazar Blues and Vi-Counts who also took part didn't make it onto the album.

After such evident promise by Four O'Clock Balloon the resultant single is a bit disappointing but judge for yourselves - their cover of Jefferson Airplane's Two Heads is on Glimpses, Vol. 4 (LP) and Brain Shadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), whilst Dark Cobble Street is on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP). 45s:	You're Gonna Be Mine/Batman	(Hideout 1003) 1965
	You're Gonna Be Mine/Freefall	(Hideout 1003) 1965
	I Feel A Whole Lot Better/ I Can't Live Without Your Love	(Hideout 1012) 1965

Formed summer 1965, this was a seminal band on the Birmingham, Michigan scene. Jeff Alborell was previously in The Pharaohs and would later be in The Heavy Metal Kids; Gary Burrows had been in the Electro-Tones and was brother of Steve (The Mushrooooms, Heavy Metal Kids); Glenn Frey joined from the Subterraneans in the spring of 1966, moved on to The Mushrooms and the Heavy Metal Kids, then hit the trail to Florida where he formed Longbranch Pennywhistle in 1970, moved on again to California, and found fame and fortune with The Eagles.

They seem to have had some connection to The Fugitives 'cause You're Gonna Be Mine, considered by many to be their finest moment, appeared under both names. For their second single Gene Clark's I Feel A Whole Lot Better was given similar treatment. The Hideout was a Detroit teen club started by Dave Leone and Ed 'Punch' Andrews in May 1964 and the following year Leone started the Hideout Record Company, which like the club, thrived for a short while.

The rare compilation album Best Of The Hideouts contains Baby Blue, I Feel A Whole Lot Better and I Can't Live Without Your Love. Baby Blue, is a competent enough version of the much-covered Dylan song. The vocals and 12-string guitar give it good treatment. The album, which has been reissued also features tracks by other Hideout regulars The Underdogs (4), Yorkshires (2), Pleasure Seekers, Henchmen and Doug Brown.

Paul Kelcourse also played in The Fugitives, and along with Jeff Alborell played in The Heavy Metal Kids, with Glenn Frey (ex-Mushrooms)

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: You're Gonna Be Mine on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Michigan Mayhem Vol. 2 (CD), The Best Of Hideout Records (CD) and Friday At The Hideout (CD); I Feel A Whole Lot Better on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP), Best Of The Hideouts (LP) and Friday At The Hideout (CD); You're Gonna Be Mine on Best of Hideout Records (CD); Baby Blue on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 5 (LP), Best Of The Hideouts (LP) and Friday At The Hideout (CD); Batman (aka Freefall) on Friday At The Hideout (CD); and I Can't Live Without Your Love on Best Of The Hideouts (LP). 45s: The Far Side Of Your Moon/Pink Cloud (Soul City 765) 1968

A suitable track for the 'Barbarella' movie, the groovy The Far Side Of Your Moon is pleasant Eastern keyboard doodling and Telstar spacey effects topped by little-girl vocals similar to Hole In My Shoe. It's fairly far out. Pink Cloud by contrast is a stupid but amusing nursery-rhyme song with inane whistling. Undoubtedly a studio effort, songs are credited to R. Graves and Steve Venet. Steve was a Screen Gems writer and Nick Venet's brother - he wrote many songs for "Red Bird" girl groups and also composed the classic Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day.

John Wilmeth later played with Southern Comfort. The band may have come from L.A.

KIM FOWLEY - Outrageous LP.

Son of Hollywood actor Doug Fowley the multi-talented Fowley - singer, producer and composer - was born in Los Angeles in 1942. He got into the music business as an assistant to Marty Melcher (Terry's Dad) who ran a music publishing company. He was pals with The Cadets and other black vocal groups of the time and was a sometime member of his school-band The Sleepwalkers (notable for including at various times Bruce Johnston, Sandy Nelson, Phil Spector and various others). Among the groups Fowley wrote for and produced were The Jayhawks, B. Bumble and The Stingers, The Innocents and The Hollywood Argyles. In the early sixties, he was involved with The Rivingtons and Paul Revere and the Raiders, but it was novelty scams like Alely Oop and Nutrocker which became worldwide hits and set his career pattern.

He also ran Chattahoochee records for a time, roping other Hollywood chancers like David Gates in - The Murmaids, Kathy Young, and various Chicano bands like Thee Midniters to make up their roster. He then became a press officer for Motown and for various Brit bands inc. The Yardbirds (incidentally, WCPAEB came together at the end of tour party Fowley threw for The Yardbirds at Bob Markley's house).

He moved to England for a couple of years in 1965, first working with P.J. Proby as publicist and tour manager, and then with Andrew Loog Oldham on various projects, as well as producing lots of records. Two of his single cuts from the period, Pop Art '66 and Lights, were collaborations with Mark Wirtz, while the backing on Don't Be Cruel contains most of Fleetwood Mac plus sundry cronies. Eventually however, EMI compelled Fowley and Wirtz to go out and find some bands and stop messing about at Abbey Road. They returned first with the Inbetweens, then later with Pink Floyd, Tomorrow, and The Soft Machine. The first two were signed, and Fowley took the Softs to Polydor for one single and a bunch of unreleased tracks. Fowley also discovered and named Family, cutting a one-off single for Liberty. Somewhere inbetween all this he also found time to work with Cat Stevens, The Rockin' Berries, Dave Mason and Jim Capaldi.

Upon his return to America he worked on the first Mothers Of Invention album and in 1967 he also formed a home for bands which was used by Sparrow, Jim Morrison, and Rose Garden.

Undeniably, Fowley had a talent for novelty songs and uncomplicated teenage anthems. An example of the former was The Trip, which was very popular around L.A. in 1966 and was covered by Godfrey and Thee Midniters, amongst others. In the eighties, this would be a favourite track amongst the "garage" freaks.

His first album Love Is Alive And Well features The West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band (as does the non-album single cut Strangers From The Sky) and was co-produced by Michael Lloyd. His second, Born To Be Wild contains groovy organ instrumentals; Outrageous is experimental hard psych and Good Clean Fun features Lloyd, Mars Bonfire, Skip Battin, Warren Zevon, and Rodney Bingenheimer. The latter album turns into a contract breaking farrago halfway through, as his signings to Liberty/Imperial, Zevon and Johnny Winter, were both dropped whilst it was being recorded. When Winter became a big star in the U.S. only a couple of months later, it was too much to bear.

He continued to record albums throughout the seventies, but in the eighties confined his activities more to songwriting, publishing and talent spotting. In the late nineties, however he's been getting more recognition from current acts, played his first gigs since 1968, including sell-out shows in London, and performed a song cycle with narration The Ghosts Of Scotland for BBC Radio Scotland. He's also made some bizarre dance records which have actually made the club charts - ably assisted by Joe Foster, Norman Blake, Steve New, Roni Size, William Orbit and various members of the Fall, BMX Bandits etc. One particular offshoot of all this was a strange version of Millennium's Prelude, whilst a remix of Animal Man from Outrageous was a stand-out track on a recent Bentley Rhythm Ace project for Ministry of Sound.

In 1969 Fowley did production work for A.B. Skhy, Earth Island, Seeds and Gene Vincent and was the master of Ceremonies at the Toronto Peace Fair. He also did production work in Sweden. In 1970 he wrote for Skip Battin and formed a drag band. He wrote for Battin again in 1972 and produced for Flash Cadillac. In 1975, he handled production work for The Runaways and Venus and The Razorblades.

Anyone interested in investigating Kim Fowley's unique work should check out Mondo Hollywood, Vol. 1, a compilation CD which contains tracks from the sixties, including many of his more bizarre offerings like The Trip and Gypsy Canyon.

An earlier retrospective, Living In The Streets is also of interest - as it includes the Chattahoochee single by Jimmy Jukebox, the Original Sound single by King Lizard, and Fowley's Born To Make You Cry single. It also includes a 1974 single, recorded by Fowley as Lance Romance and four more tracks, Summertime Frog, Love Bomb, Living In The Streets and Sex Dope And Violence.

Impossible But True - Kim Fowley Story (CD) is a 32-track compilation spanning the period 1960-69. It features an interesting array of tracks including To Die Alone by The Bush (a pre-Misunderstood combo), Pink Dominoes by the Crescent, Comedown Song by Spider, the rare first single by The Soft Machine and much more.

Compilation appearances have included: Astrology on Kim Fowley - Underground Animal (LP & CD); The Trip on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); They're Coming To Take Me Away, Ha-Haaa! on Napoleon Complex (CD); Young America Saturday Night on Only In America (CD); Animal Man on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP); The Trip and Underground Lady on Pebbles Box (5-LP) and Trash Box (5-CD); Underground Lady on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); Strangers From The Sky on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD); Bubblegum on Ah Feel Like Acid (CD); and The Canyon People on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP) - the latter captures him explaining to CBS news cameras, in the summer of 1967, how 'the canyon people' had replaced the 'flower children' as America's hope for the future! Little has come to light about this Alabama group. Possibly from the Birmingham area, their single was engineered by Ed Boutwell and presumably recorded at Boutwell Studios, where the Rockin' Rebellions also recorded.

The Fox-Davis composition Funny Kinda Day can be heard again on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). It's a dreamy beat-ballad for the ladies and saunters along with some crisp percussive fills. Their faithful Bob Dylan cover on the flip is a little pedestrian and doesn't compare favourably with The Leaves version. (MW)

45: Revolt Of Emily Young/Into Something Real (Decca 32660) 1970

This is a 15-track psychedelic concept album with some soft-psych and rockier material too. It was co-written by Buzz Cason (who'd founded Nashville's Casuals, recorded with The Statues, and enjoyed solo success under the pseudonym 'Gerry Miles') and singer/guitarist Pepper Martin, who turns in a good vocal performance on the album. The material was produced by Cason and credited to the studio band Foxx. The album traces the the birth, childhood, and life of Emily Young and her interactions with family and friends. She leaves home to hitch-hike round the country. Side two features her spiritual search Opus Epyllion (The Age Of Light), downfall (Flight Termination) which has a good lead guitar solo, and death (Just Another Village Incident). It hasn't all aged well but is worth investigation. (VJ)

45: Sanc-Divided/? (Angelus 571) 1971

This album has some good guitar and Jim Beach's vocals are reminiscent of The Doors, although he was singing on Sunset Strip long before Jim Morrison took to the stage. Indeed, his grungy vocals, the dual fuzz and wah-wah guitars on this album are key factors in its popularity among collectors. Sanc-Divided, which was also included on the album, can be heard on the Valley Of The Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) compilation.

Jim Beach had earlier sung with Fever Tree, although he did not record with the band. Fraction also recorded two further albums, which remain unreleased.

The Filling The Gap (LP) compilation incorrectly states that they were previously known as Stone Garden and had issued at least one single on Angelus entitled Oceans Inside Me - this is now known to be the work of a completely different outfit. (VJ/JBh)

45s: α Iron Door/Funny Kind Of Sunshine (KB Artists) 1968
I'm Gonna Move/The Direction (Harvey Swartz HS-0001) 1969

NB: α acetate-only, issued to band members.

San Diego's Framework was assembled in 1967 as an all-original "underground" rock group. They were represented by a local production company (KB Artists) that also handled The Brain Police. Their first recording was an acetate recorded at Sunset Sound in Los Angeles and is the only known recording of line-up 'A'. In August 1968, Fann replaced Gallahar and shortly after the band stripped down to a trio.

The second single showed a dramatic change stylistically, all connections to pop being abandoned. Just 500 copies were pressed and as recorded here, they sound remarkably like Frumious Bandersnatch despite never having heard of their Bay Area counterparts! The single has a very clean sound as the band used small amps in the studio, but live in the sixties they cranked through over-driven stacks and their concerts are the stuff of legend. The Direction is a tremendous trippy dirge, with Cream-like vocals and drumming, and introspective lyrics:

FRAMEWORK
"SKELETON"

FRAMEWORK - Skeleton 2-LP.

"Love is something you can't feel
But hate leaves scars that never heal
I can feel the harm that's been done
Please correct me if I'm wrong
But peace has been absent for too long
I can feel the harm that's been done"
(from The Direction.)

At this point Framework became a top live draw in San Diego, playing blues-based hard-rock similar to Cream. At the tail end of 1969, Rick Randle joined the band from The Brain Police.

Framework folded on New Year's Eve 1970, when McCann accepted an offer to join Anthrax, who then recorded an album for Elektra as Formerly Anthrax. They'd gained not just a talented guitarist but, as a bonus, a flautist and versatile vocalist, who took up lead vocal duties on their accomplished jazz-prog-rock album. He wrote too and brought two compositions from the Framework repertoire (and featured on the Rockadelic/Shadoks retrospective) - Like A Child and These Things I Know.

The lavishly presented Rockadelic album collects all extant recordings of the band - both singles, a rehearsal from January 1969, live concert material from late 1969, and an acoustic demo track that McCann recorded at Elektra.

McCann and Spiron had played together in The Orfuns, a punk band that folded in 1965 when McCann ran into trouble with the law.

Jerry McCann continues to play and record in San Diego. His recent releases include Unframed (cassette) and Blue Plate Special (CD) in 1997, All Lit Up Like The Moon (CD) in 2003, and What It Is & What It Was (CD) in 2010. You can check out his website at http://www.jerrymccann.com/

ALBUM: 1(A) COSMIC BEAM EXPERIENCE
(Cosmic Beam Records CBE-001) 1976 SC

NB: (1) had a limited pressing of 1,000 copies. (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive RRCD112) 2005.

Multi-instrumentalist Francisco Lupica created his own one-man brand of post-hippie, pre-New-Age music in the mid-seventies with his Cosmic Beam Experience show, which he combined with visuals. Playing acoustic and electric guitars, drums, chimes, zither, and four steel channel beams, he released and distributed his album himself.

He'd already been around for a decade or more; initially based around the San Francisco Bay area, he was drummer in Bob Segarini's Us, who recorded for the Autumn label circa 1965 but never saw any commercial releases (check out the Nuggets From The Golden State: Dance With Me CD). Next he joined Travel Agency, a San Francisco trio who released some rare singles (one as by Act III), before being signed to Viva and releasing a fine album and single. At the end of the sixties, he played with Taj Mahal and Lee Michaels then teamed up with Ashish Khan in the east-west fusion band Shanti, who released a self-titled album on Atlantic in 1971; the band also included Steve Haehl from Travel Agency. After Shanti split up, he relocated to Santa Barbara and began to perform solo in 1972.

In 1976 he was musician and composer for 'Tanka', a very short animated film about Tibetan thankgas (images from the Tibetan Book Of The Dead) alongside former Shanti bandmates Ashish Khan and Pranesh Khan; in 1979 he was sound effects creator for 'Star Trek - The Motion Picture'; and in 1998 his music was used and sampled in the film The Thin Red Line. More recently he played viola on the Deep Song CD by Ranee Lee. (MW/SR/VJ)

	Can't Find A Way/Won't You Come Home	(ABC 10782) 1966

This Leland, Mississippi band was fronted by Joe Frank Carollo. For the Block/ABC recordings, the line-up was reportedly Carollo plus three of the Memphis Marks (Correro, DeWitt, and Tidwell). Correro would reappear some time later in Paul Revere & The Raiders.

Carollo joined The T-Bones and in the early seventies was one of the triumvirate who broke away to form smooth-popsters Hamilton, Joe Frank, & Reynolds. They hit the charts in 1971 with Don't Pull Your Love and again in 1975 with Fallin' In Love and Winners And Losers.

Can't Find A Way did find its way onto Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP) in the early eighites, thereby causing some confusion as to the band's origins; since then it has turned up on Victims Of Circumstances Vol. 2 (LP/CD), A History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis Vol. 1 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Mississippi (CD). Musically a hard-rock/blues act from Florida, with pretty wild vocals. The whole of side two of the second album is taken up with Climax, an 18-minute 10-second drivin' instrumental hard-rock rendition, which on the best scenario is reminiscent of the long instrumental jams of the San Francisco Ballrooms and at the worst monotonous.

Alan Franklin was a songwriter who recruited musicians on a session basis to record his material. His album features Tampa musicians, David Dix and Buzzy Meekins (see The Outlaws entry), plus Chris Russell. The album was recorded in Orlando. (VJ/SMR)

45s:	La Do Da Da/Route 66	(Sunco 1008) 1966
	Midnight To Six Man/Shady Sam	(Lizard 21002) 1970

We are informed that this group hailed from Billings, Montana originally, though they toured all over the country. In 1968 they relocated to Santa Fe, New Mexico, then moved onto Colorado Springs before making L.A. their final base in 1969, removing the final 'S' from their name and recording the Conception album. All told they lasted from 1965 to 1971 and just 1,000 copies of their first single were pressed back in 1966.

The Conception album has been likened to early MC5, but the Relax Your Mind CD of an unreleased 1968 album, is more overtly psychedelic and is one of Collectables' more worthwhile reissues. It was recorded at Norman Petty's studio in Clovis, New Mexico.

When the band broke up in 1971, three members went on to form an outfit called The Cows, who recorded an unreleased album, Hunchbacks From Outer Space. It had been thought that Frantic had become an act known as Farm Band, however Frantic member Dennis Devlin, says this is false... commenting "I suppose one shouldn't discount the possibility that there may have been more than one band in the USA calling themselves Frantic; there were certainly several "The Frantics" as you know. Another theory springs to mind as to why they may have been connected to us. It was common practice in the Midwest during the late sixties for unscrupulous promoters to book unknown local bands into venues as touring English bands, as it was thought at the time that all musicians with long hair looked alike. When we were playing Midwestern gigs there was a bogus "Them" playing the same circuit. Most people wouldn't have known the difference. I assume these bands were encouraged to work up a few songs by whatever group they were pretending to be and hope for the best. What this is leading to is that after Frantic broke up, we heard rumours of a bogus Frantic playing back in the Midwest, apparently having learned our album. I know none of the original Frantics were involved, but perhaps the Farm Band started off as a bogus Frantic? It would be interesting to hear from a Farm Band member."

Compilation appearances have included: Route 66 on Punk Classics (CD) and Punk Classics, Vol. 5 (7"); both Relax Your Mind and Just For A While on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 6 (CD); and two unreleased tracks on Just For A While and Think About It on Get Ready To Fly (CD). (MW/DD)

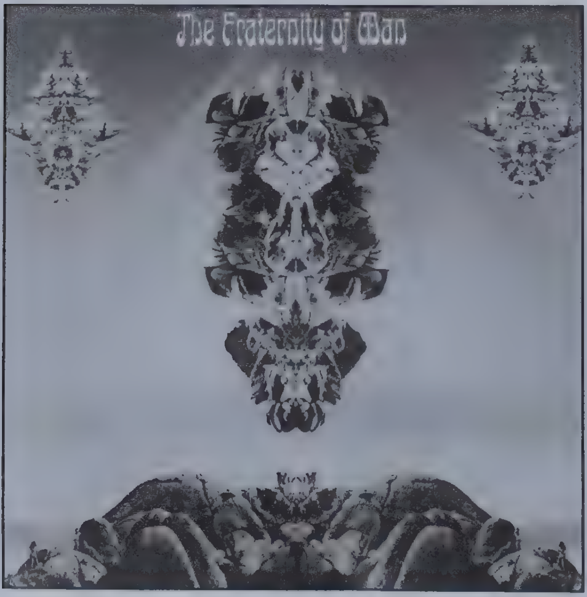
45: Don't Bogart Me/Wispy Paisley Skies (ABC 11106) 1968 133

This Los Angeles band grew out of Factory of which Kibbee, Hayward and Klein were members. They are probably best known for Don't Bogart Me, which appeared on the soundtrack to counter-culture epic "Easy Rider".

Produced by Tom Wilson (Mothers, Ill Wind, Velvet Underground, Harumi etc), their albums are musically quite diverse and raw, but worth investigation. With its superb sleeve, Fraternity Of Man contains a cover of Frank Zappa's Oh No I Don't Believe It, all the other tracks being group compositions. In The Morning is particularly notable for its lyrics ("High in the morning, high in the afternoon, high in the evening...") whilst Candy Striped Loin's Tails features good use of sitar, guitars and percussion.



THE FRATERNITY OF MAN - Self Titled LP.

Their second album, Get It On is equally as good. Once again the group composed most of the songs (including Too High To Eat), except for three covers (Sonny Boy Williamson's Don't Start Me Talkin', Cat's Squirrel (also recorded by Cream) and Trick Bag penned by P. Weedon).

Ingber had previously played with The Mothers Of Invention and later became Winged Eel Fingerling with Captain Beefheart. Hayward later played in Little Feat (Lowell George had guested on a couple of The Fraternity of Man's album tracks), and Kim Fowley also guested on the first album. Warren Klein later worked with Kim Fowley on his I'm Bad release.

In The Morning and Plastic Rat also appear on a rare compilation of Tom Wilson's productions, Tom's Touch, released by ABC in 1969.

Retrospective compilation appearances include: Don't Bogart Me and Fherinst on Then And Now, Vol. 1 (CD); Bikini Baby on Then And Now, Vol. 2 (CD); and Wispy Paisley Skies is on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 1 (CD). (VJ/SR/JFr)

45: A Love Song/Salvation Lady (Arpeggio 1057) 1971

The Fred album encapsulates the band's 1970-1974 period. Gathering together their single and seven unreleased tracks, Joe DeChristopher recounts the history of the band within the lavish heavy-duty gatefold. A brief precis:-

DeChristopher had met Price in 1967 at Bucknell University (BU) in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania and joined Price's band, Still At Large. Over the next three years the band picked up other students and evolved into Fred. Classmate Gary Rosenberg was the band's No. 1 fan, a college radio DJ and sometime poet - he occasionally performed with them on stage and became their lyricist. He was also their guide to other sounds around, introducing them to the likes of Procol Harum, Jethro Tull, Frank Zappa and The Mahavishnu Orchestra, whose songs they would cover.

PSYCHEDELIC PSOUL

THE FREAK SCENE - Psychedelic Psoul LP.

In 1970, the band graduated (or left) BU and moved into a couple of farms near Lewisburg. They continued to perform at local clubs and schools. The first recordings, which make up the bulk of the album, were done the following year and their debut single was released. In 1973 occasional member Peter Eggers joined the band permanently and marked the end of their formative chapter, with the departure of Gary Rosenberg. The liners announce that later recordings are forthcoming.

There's some fine fuzz solos and acidic leads with occasional wah-wah but despite being tagged as psychedelia elsewhere, there's a strong aura of mellowed, slightly trippy, pastoral rock that's coming from folk roots and gently drifting off in a prog/hippie direction. The violin adds to the non-urban vibe but is more like Curved Air than Mahavishnu.

A Love Song previously appeared on the 1982 compilation Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP).

There may be a further single on the Arpeggio label which includes a track called Killing Confusion, but its existence remains unconfirmed. (MW)

α 5 O'Clock Traffic/Red Pier (Forte 3001) 1968

NB: α also issued in Canada (Evolution E.1001) 1969.

The Fredric played pleasant minor league soft pop-rock with some psychy moments. From Grand Rapids, Michigan this outfit would evolve into Rock Garden who cut one single - Johnny's Music Machine/Love Is A Good Foundation (Capitol 2806) 1970, then Garden The Winds Of South Chicago/The First Day Of My Life (Capitol 2919) 1970. Both these singles are best avoided.

Lead vocalist Joe McCargar and guitarist Bob Geis were high school mates playing in a local band. When their existing drummer and guitarist quit, shortly before a gig, they drafted in Steve Thrall, with whom they immediately struck up an accord. In the days that followed, David Idema - a family friend - and Ron Bera were added and the band began to rehearse extensively.

They soon caught the eye of a booking agent, who got them a support slot for U.K. duo Harper and Rowe, who were doing a U.S. promotional tour. Harper and Rowe, didn't want to be upstaged by a local support, so the band changed their name to The Fredric on their way to the first gig in Fredric, Michigan. They soon developed a good local reputation, and opened shows for The Box Tops, Tommy James and The Shondells, and Yellow Balloon, amongst others.

The oft-hyped-as-a psych-megabuck-rarity album has seen a boot reissue, but even better is the Arf! Arf! CD reissue, which includes the non-album Five O'Clock Traffic plus three cuts recorded for an aborted second album.

It should be said that, while the album may not blow your mind, the music is of a consistently high quality throughout.

Compilation appearances have included: Federal Reserve Bank Blues on The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD); Red Pier on Best Of Michigan Rock Groups 2 (cassette); Morning Sunshine on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 1 (CD); Five O'Clock Traffic on Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP), Filling The Gap (4-LP), Gathering Of The Tribe (CD) and Best Of Michigan Rock Groups 2 (cassette); and the previously unreleased Country on *The Arf! This was the work of an obscure and too short-lived Michigan band. (A Day Of Decision) For Lost Soul Blue is a superb venture into psychedelia with lots of fuzz, wah-wah and bizarre lyrics. After the ultra heavy topside, the flip could only be a lighter affair - bright midfast handclappin' pop-rock with some finger-pickin' good guitar.

45: Land of Diana/Images (Monitor 45-1806) 1967

A Boston group whose sole album, recorded at CBS Studios in New York, is excellent - full of the acid imagery which typified the Bosstown sound in 1968. Almost every track is of interest. For example Land Of Diana has a compelling organ intro, Visions Of My Own some fine woodwind instrumentation and Inside People unusual fuzztone vocals and pleasing keyboards. The album also has a jazzy free-form feel.

In 1997, an alternate single mono mix of Land of Diana surfaced on Erik Lindgren's excellent A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD), and in 1998, Distortions reissued Peak Impressions on CD together with three bonus cuts: the mono single version of Images, an alternate stereo mix of Land Of Diana, and Incidental Music - 20-odd seconds worth of spacey keyboard noodlings.

In the mid-seventies, Bob Margolin became a member of Muddy Waters' band and he later played with the Johnny Winter Group. He is still touring and recording Chicago Blues albums. Nick Carstoiu too remains active in the music scene.

In 1978, Mike Spiros released, as "Mic Spiros and the ITMB (Incredible Two Man Band)", a rare album of atmospheric prog-rock based on keyboards and synthesizers. (VJ/MW/SR/JRe)

This sophisticated pop-psych/soft-rock group with exquisite vocal harmonies, ethereal arrangements and harmony vocals led by Chris Dedrick released several albums on Command/Project3 and was based in New York State. Their records may interest fans of groups like Neon Philharmonic and are becoming more and more sought-after.

Kites Are Fun their debut album includes a fine version of 59th Street Bridge Song and a baroque rendition of The Beatles Michelle as well as the opus The Proper Ornaments. Many consider this one of the best harmony psych-pop albums of the sixties with breathtaking vocal harmonies interwoven with delicate orchestration and diverse instrumentation. It will appeal to fans of The Beach Boys, Sagittarius and The Association.

Their follow-up You Could Be Born Again blends some complex originals, including Duke Ellington's I Like The Sunrise with classic sixties pop hits. By their fourth album Stars/Time/Bubbles/Love the group was mixing their soft-psych sound with elements of funk as Chris Dedrick began to introduce his love of jazz, gospel singing and the Motown sound into their music.

One By One is full of funky riffs and lush string arrangements and includes their version of Light My Fire.

Ther final album was released on the small Rochester, New York-based Ambrotype label. It contains more self-penned material than their previous efforts and was also self-produced. It contained the same exquisite vocal harmonies and ethereal arrangements as their earlier efforts. Chris Dedrick became an active session musician and arranger. (SR/MW/VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) BRINGS FRESH AIR (Fresh Start FSR-1) 1975 R1

A rural-style rock album recorded at Asterik Recording Studio, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. It was produced by the group and Gino Manetta. Aside from the rather inane country song that opens the album, there are some fine tracks. No Sugar is a trashy hard-rocker with fuzz guitar, and He's A Mercenary Soldier is a cool acoustic rock track reminiscent of Jethro Tull. THE FREEDOM HIGHWAY

THE FREEDOM HIGHWAY - Made In '68 LP.

GARY PHILIPPET	gtr, vcls	DE
DAVID SCHALLOCK	bs, vcls	E

NB: Line-up 'A' initially known as City Lights, then Freedom Highway 1965. Line-up 'B' 1966; Line-up 'C' 1967-8; Line-up 'D' 1968; and Line-up 'E' 1969-70.

ALBUM: 1(C/E) MADE IN '68 (RD Records RD 9) 2001

NB: (1) also reissued on CD (RD Records RDCD 4) 2001 with three bonus tracks.

This act used to play at the Avalon Ballroom and outdoor San Francisco shows. They were led by guitarist, singer and songwriter Richard Harris, who was later known as "Richi Ray". They never put out a record in their day, but they were a great live act and over their four year life-span played with Buffalo Springfield, The Doors, Grateful Dead, Quicksilver, Big Brother and the Holding Co., Jefferson Airplane etc.

Their retrospective album features studio recordings of two incarnations. The earliest material consists of three terrific tracks that sound like Moby Grape circa their debut album. The stunning Be My Friend has the same infectious energy as the 'Grape's Omaha and is the stand-out cut on offer here. More than half of the album was recorded in 1969 and is in a slightly more rural-rock style but still exhibiting plenty of energy and ideas. An insert is included with memoirs of two group members and an abundance of general information.

Brymer and Schallock were both previously with The Pullice. Philippet had fronted The Mystics during the pre-British Invasion era that also featured Larry Otis (Red Mountain, Born Again) for a short time. He was also with Electric Train and Front Line and, after leaving Freedom Highway, he went on to Copperhead, Earthquake and The Greg Kihn band as well as playing on Kathi McDonald's album Insane Asylum. Schallock went on to Big Brother, The Sons (neé Sons of Champlin), and David Bromberg's band. Brymer played with the Marin-based Ducks (with an album on the Just Sunshine label, unconnected to the Santa Cruz-based band assembled by Neil Young), and played with Barry Melton. He is still active on the Bay Area music scene. Richi Ray Harris went on teach at Sonoma State University then took a role in the Broadway stage show "Beatlemania". Thanks to Mike Somavilla for the use of his liner notes to Made In '68 for this entry. (TO/CF)

The Free For All (Canada/NY/CA)

45: Blue Monday/Show Me The Way (Challenge 59339) 1966

It has been revealed at long last that this was actually Nova Scotia's Great Scots under a pseudonym, though they did spend plenty of time south of the U.S./Canadian border, recording in New York and later Los Angeles. Their story is revealed on two recent Sundazed releases - The Great Lost Great Scots Album (Sundazed SC-5052) 1997 and Arrive! (Beat Rocket BR 101, 1998). See their entry in the Canadian section of 'Dreams Fantasies And Nightmares'.

Blue Monday was a big beat number. The flip, is an undeniably commercial pop-punk song (co-written by Keith Colley, a familiar L.A. writer, and produced by Richard Delvy, another significant figure in the L.A. scene at that time).

You'll also find Show Me The Way on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 1 (CD), I Turned Into A Helium Balloon (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 6 (CD). (MW)

45: Singing My Own Song/Sixteen Tons (PS) (Starshine 7059) 1970

This hard-rockin' Cortland, Ohio band recorded on the same label as Morly Grey and Biggy Rat.

The single comes in a "1970 Limited Collector Edition" picture sleeve (way ahead of the times there) which also optimistically announces 'release of record to be limited to 10,000 Annually Worldwide'. The searing guitar on Sixteen Tons certainly merits that. L.J. informs us that originals came out on red labels. Those on pink labels are a later pressing. The picture sleeves that came with the pink label records were printed up in the nineties by the band's "manager" Floyd Phillips to enhance their collectability.

The World In Sound album/CD release is mostly comprised of new material and updated versions of their old playlist. The material is mostly downer psych-rock and some draw comparisons with the first Dragonwyck album. (MW/VJ)

I Need Your Lovin (mono) (Mainstream 730) 1970
Now That She's Gone/
(Don't Let Me Be) Misunderstood (Mainstream 732) 1970

This Cleveland, Ohio band was originally known as Paper Sun. One of the last rock releases on Mainstream, it's both disappointing and directionless. Some tracks are rock-oriented (the uninteresting cover of The Animals' Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood), some are dreamy ballads with flute and delicate piano, whilst others are pop (their cover of Eric Carmen's I Need Your Lovin), all have some female vocal harmonies.

NB: (1) also on (Sparton ABC/ABCS 593) 1967 (Canada). (1) reissued on CD (Sunbeam Music SBRCD5018) 2006 with a rare bonus track I Feel A Song and an extensive booklet with previously unseen photos and liner notes by Ritchie Unterberger.

Blue Water Mother/
Cosmic Daddy Dancer (ABC Paramount 10976) 1967

NB: only I Feel A Song is a non-LP cut.

Produced by Bob Thiele, Free Spirits were a group of talented young New York jazz musicians trying to do an "electric rock" album with original material. There are some really nice tracks and instrumental parts (Angels Can't Be True, I'm Gonna Be Free with its sitar, Cosmic Daddy Dancer with an excellent guitar...) but the vocals are generally too weak and most songs are not strong enough. Bob Thiele was later more successful in introducing jazz musicians to rock with Eden's Children.

When the album failed to make any impact, Coryell and Moses departed. The others soldiered on, changed their name the following year to Everything Is Everything, and enjoyed chart success with Witchi Tai To. Written by Jim Pepper, it would be covered by Harpers Bizarre, Brewer & Shipley, and Taiconderoga amongst others.

Of course in hindsight it can be seen that the Free Spirits were ahead of their time. The album went on to become very sought-after and quite expensive, not least because of the subsequent kudos that Coryell has attracted in his long and distinguished career. It was only a matter of time before the album would be reappraised and reissued. Disappointingly the CD reissue adds just one 'bonus track', the non-album single track I Feel A Song. That's all, no unreleased cuts, although it boasts a 12-page booklet with several photos, and detailed liners by Richie Unterberger.

Pepper died in the nineties. (SR/MW)

Why Why, Why/She's Hurt (Mala 532) 1966

Originally from Toronto, Canada this "project" was executed in New York. The flip to the first single, a very solid punk-pop sound with a heavy bass, written by Wes Farrel and Doc Pomus, can be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP). Unfortunately She's Hurt is a pre-Beatles type ballad whilst Why, Why, Why is a mournful harmony ballad brightened only by a few bars of squealing guitar. (VJ)

10" EP: 1(A) LAST ROUNDUP (No label SS-11179-01) 1965

This is a privately-pressed prep-rock album with horns. The tracks include covers of The Beatles' All My Lovin' and Sam The Sham and The Pharoahs' Wooly Bully as well as a couple of Spanish-titled tunes (Salud, Amore y Dinero and El Momento Verdad). Much of the remaining material is MOR though and even includes a whistling solo on So What's New. The playing is pretty amateurish too. The album includes no liner notes and nothing has been uncovered about the origins of the band. (VJ)

45: I Need Love/Goffin Goffin (Hiback HB-107) 1966

An obscure southern California band on a label which released efforts by a couple of "Inland Empire" bands, the Aquamen and The Bush. Produced by Steve Cox, I Need Love is rough'n'ready pop-punk, sounding like the Troggs covering Buddy Holly, with a good guitar break. The flip is an awful, drippy novelty/nonsense ballad. (MW)

Free Will (?)

ALBUM: 1 FREE WILL (Guinness GNS-36041) 1977 R1

ALBUM: 1 GLIDER (w/insert) (Fric Frac JP-FL-1-77) 1976 R1

This was a guitar-driven jazzy progressive outfit from California whose album was privately-pressed. The few known copies have a paste-on cover and an insert. The album utilises lots of synthesisers and funky rhythmns and there's a three-part suite on each side. (SR/VJ)

The rarest release on Amaret (a label mainly known for the albums by Crow), this album is a good mix of pop and hard-psych, with heavy guitar and organ. The album includes a fast-paced cover of Buffalo Springfield's For What It's Worth. Fresh Air was a Los Angeles band previously known as California Grassfield. (SR/VJ)

	I Can't Make It Any More/I Know	(GM-Luv 102) 197?

Great late sixties psychy obscurity by a band from Fostoria, Ohio... one of a glut of Fresh Air outfits around at the time. Released in the spring of 1969 on a CEI/Courier subsidiary, the Now! single delivers a jaunty version of Iron Butterfly's trite ditty to love and hippiedom. The flip is a melodramatic rock ballad with busy keyboards, book-ended by guitar spirals. After this single, they changed name to Whail. (MW/CF)

ALBUM:	1(A)	HEAVY	(No label B.P. 1/2) 1970 R6

NB: (1) demo album issued in plain sleeve with title sticker on shrinkwrap, only 54 copies were thought to have been pressed. (1) was reissued in newly-designed sleeve on heavy duty blue vinyl in a numbered limited edition of 450 (Shadoks 022) 2001. (1) also reissued on CD (Shadoks 022) 2001.

This band was from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. They formed in 1968 and by 1970 they were performing primarily original material which necessitated the recording of the demo album. Only 54 copies were pressed, and they were used for promotion... it's now rather difficult to locate!

It ranges from post-Hendrix/Blue Cheer brain-numbingly heavy acid-rock (watch out for the opener, Hassles), through bluesy moods, lighter jazzy touches, to jangley almost-folk-rock restraint. The lyrics occasionally head in a religious direction but are not preachy; the overall feel is more one of "Old Crow" than "Old Testament".

Fresh Blueberry Pancake shortened their name to Pancake before calling it quits in 1972.

45:	Alley-Oop/Sweet Pea	(Mercury 72684) 1967

This album was produced by Curt Boettcher and was a studio-only project based in California. Mike Deasy was 'Friar Tuck' and is so depicted on the cover. A survivor from the instrumental and surf scenes he'd be involved in many other Los Angeles studio projects and outfits, often with Curt Boettcher and others of this particular clique of seasoned session musicians. These include Flower Pot, Ceyleib People, Your Gang and Gator Creek. Not one of Boettcher's greatest; the album does nonetheless include vocal tracks from the pre-Sagittarius and Millennium outfit Ballroom.

FRESH BLUEBERRY PANCAKE - Heavy LP.

The album contains fuzz guitar and sound effects and on side one rather strange versions of well-known rock and pop songs. The unusual, slow version of Louie Louie catchies the ear. Side two comprises guitar instrumentals penned by Deasy and supplemented by backing voices. They are well played and overall the album is a good fun listen.

Scheff, Benay and French also recorded as Goldenrod. (VJ/MW/JFr)

Penns Grove, in the southwestern tip of New Jersey, was home to this band of four brothers. They started off with a pretty primitive punk sound typified by I Lost Her and Don't Tell Me What To Do, but in mid-career were also influenced by bands like The Zombies and Searchers as evidenced on She Can Go. By 1968, they were experimenting with psychedelia. Sadly When Love was not released at the time but it's full of whining vocals and psyched-out guitar. Alas! Despite experimenting with a horn section and female back-up vocalists they vanished back into obscurity but you can hear their finer moments:. I Lost Her, She Can Go, Don't Tell Me What To Do and the previouslu unreleased When Love on the Attack Of The Jersey Teens (LP) compilation. Don't Tell Me What To Do can also be found on Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD). This was a Los Angeles-based studio only product of Sean Bonniwell and Paul Buff, who were behind the Music Machine's recordings. For Bonniwell completists only, it is very disappointing compared to his previous output: Nothin's Too Good For My Car is inane pop whilst the flip is country-style pop! 45: Can't Go Home/How You Gonna Keep Your Little Girl Home (Smash S-2144) 1968

Upon the demise of The Enfields (a Wilmington, Delaware outfit), Ted Munda quickly formed another band with John Rhoades and two former members of another local band The Turfs, Wayne Watson and Jimmy Crawford. In May 1967, they entered the Virtue Recording Studios in Philadelphia to record a six-song demo, which several labels (including Kama Sutra) expressed an interest in but none would actually release. The tracks - Time Music, Wallace, He Plays With Frogs, Funny Flowers, Blue Boat Makes Me Sad, Jello Lights and Bambi's March - can now all be heard on the Distortions/Get Hip retrospectives. They perfectly showcase Munda's fine songwriting and breathtaking Zombies-style vocals.

John Rhoades left the band in the late summer of '67, being replaced by Linzee Lee and Ray Andrews, and a further five original songs (You See I've Got This Cold, Last Beach Crusade, Hot Apple Betty, Together and Sing A Song) were recorded in July '68. These tunes were arguably Munda's finest work, with a Beatles/Left Banke feel, and can be found on the Get Hip CD retrospective. They were all passed over at the time, however, in favour of the two tracks Can't Go Home and How You Gonna Keep Your Little Girl Home, which were penned by Cameo Parkway staff writer Neil Brian. In fact, the band was only allowed to sing on these two cuts, with hired session musicians playing all the instruments. Subsequently, the band fell out with label owner/producer Joe Renzetti, and went their own way... they didn't record again, but did get to open for The Who and Pink Floyd at the Philadelphia Music Festival in late 1968, shortly before they split.

Ted Munda went on to play with Hotspur, who released an album on Columbia in 1974, and later in the eighties, an outfit called State Of Heart. He has also written some children's books.

Both the Get Hip/Distortions retrospectives come with detailed liner notes from Dave Brown, from which this entry has largely been taken. (VJ/MW)

Joyride is a strange, haunting album of acid-inspired experimental weirdness, which is worth seeking out and is becoming a minor collectors' item. It contains six, largely instrumental tracks. There are plenty of sound effects and backward tapes on these recordings.

Drake Levin, Mike Smith and Phil Volk were all ex-Paul Revere And The Raiders and together with Ron Collins also recorded as Brotherhood. Collins was also in Beat Of The Earth. The band was from Los Angeles. (JTk/VJ)

From Detroit, Michigan this act (originally known as The Detroit Vibrations) was another fine example of the local hard-rock and blues scene. Although they actually enjoyed three Top 100 hits in the US, by far their finest moment was their highly original rock arrangement of House Of The Rising Sun (a traditional popularised by Dylan and The Animals), also notable for some superb guitar work.

Produced by Michael Valvano, their debut album also sold well, peaking at No. 11 in the Charts. Apart from House Of The Rising Sun and Cryin' Shame (written by Valvano), all their material was written by Beaudry and Thompson. Recorded in New York and entirely composed of original tracks penned and produced by the group, the second album also met with some commercial success, climbing to No 149. Both albums combine hard-rock and blues and are enjoyable if you like this style.

FRIJID PINK ALL PINK INSIDE
FRIJID PINK - All Pink Inside LP.

The group then broke up and Rick Stevers assembled a new line-up with Craig Webb (ex-Lost Nation) on guitar. Recorded in Toronto, the third album, Earth Omen, was produced by Vinnie Testa and Clyde Stevers and is heavier in style, with keyboards and some harder guitar work. Some ballads were also now included on here and are not their most interesting aspect. Lion Records was a subsidiary of MGM.

A fourth and final album was released on Fantasy in 1975.

Compilation appearances include House Of The Rising Sun on Michigan Rocks, Vol. 2 (LP) and Cryin Shame on Cherrystone's Rocks (CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

The band originated from Omaha, Nebraska. The album is melodic, progressive rock, rather than psychedelic or garage. It's a solid album built around guitar/keyboard interplay and has become a minor collectable. The highlight is the nine-minute Away From Home.

For a while they were the house band at a club in Council Bluffs, Iowa. They grew in popularity as a live act and once pulled in 7,500 fans for a 'Musicians Union's Concert in the Park' in Omaha. In early 1973, Tom Jackson quit the band and was replaced by Rick Brown on drums. In July 1973 they recorded From The Pond and spent the next few months touring heavily to promote it. At this point Steve Beedle was added to the line-up. They split in autumn 1974. (VJ)

Always Leaving, Always Gone (Happy Tiger 569) 1970

An obscure pop-rock group, their single was produced by Dean Christopher and offers covers of songs written Jeff Barry/Ellie Greenwich and Dick Monda. Pretty Thing is a delicately orchestrated song, a bit in the style of The Left Banke. The flip is more in a country-pop vein. (SR)

45:	Thoughts/You Better Behave	(Dial 4052) 1967

Front Page News' Thoughts is a great fuzz guitar song. You can also find it on the The Magic Cube (Flexi & CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD) or Gone, Vol. 1 (LP) compilations. More recently, it has reappeared on Big Beat's I Turned Into A Helium Balloon (CD), Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD) and Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). Unlike some previous compilations, these are bona-fide 100% legitimate, so they get access to the master tapes which are used wherever possible. This can throw up the odd anomaly and here's a good 'un. Has anyone else spotted that the CD version of Thoughts sounds a little different, like SLOWER? The original single track is 2:45 and, yes, the CD track is several seconds longer. Having retimed both and played single & CD simultaneously, I can only surmise that the original single was mastered at the incorrect speed and that the transfer for the CD was done at the correct speed, since the CD version actually sounds RIGHT - though it does take some getting used to. File this useless info alongside Mad River's first album mis-master, for conversation stoppin' trivia....

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Akarma AK 135) 2000 in a heavy duty gatefold sleeve and on CD (Akarma AK 135) 2000 in a fold-out mini-LP sleeve with two extra bonus tracks.

Based in Boston, Massachusetts they initially played covers around the Boston clubs until songwriter Steve Cataldo joined the group in late 1967. Signed to MGM Records, they recorded an album in April/May 1968, produced by Alan Lorber, who was responsible for Bosstown Sound Productions. Its release was delayed by the numerous releases of the other MGM Bosstown acts; and when the band broke up before the album's imminent release, the label decided not to proceed without a functioning band to support it. It was finally released (on CD) in 1996.

The album is less psychedelic than some of the other Bosstown releases i.e Ultimate Spinach, Beacon Street Union and is more like early prog - similar in some ways to Detroit's SRC. Prophecies/Morning Blue opens with the sounds of children playing, over which elegiac voices intone predictions of nuclear holocaust. After a gradual acceleration, the music suddenly lurches at the point of climax into a heavily syncopated, frenetic jazz piano solo in 5/4 time. Prism Fawn has an imperious organ/guitar riff and a driving beat. One Eyed Minor is a jaunty piece in a folkdance rhythm and Feels Like Love is a nondescript rocker, but Silver Children has a pleasant relaxed groove and Valley Of Eyes is another intense apocalyptic piece with flanged drums and bluesy 1968-style fuzz guitar. Without You is a dull proto-70s soft-rocker and For The Best Offer ends the album in a tone of enigmatic whimsy. Overall it's an enjoyable addendum to the Bosstown canon.

Cataldo later recorded as St. Steven, whilst Bartlett was in Brother Fox And The Tar Baby. Later still, Cataldo formed the punk band Nervous Eaters and played guitar on some Willie Alexander recordings.

The bonus cuts on the reissue of the One St Stephen album are actually by Front Page Review.

Compilation appearances have included: Prophecies/Morning Blue, Silver Children and Valley Of Eyes on The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD); and Inside The Coloured Heaven and Moon In Blue (miscredited as St. Steven) on Filling The Gap (4-LP). (VJ/LP)

This Michigan-based rock outfit's recorded output may be of some passing interest to readers. They were previously called Dick Wagner & The Frosts, and then Dick Wagner And The Frost under which name they released the above single on Date. Dick Wagner had earlier led the Flint-based Bossmen.

Whilst Frost enjoyed Top 100 hit singles, their albums all sold reasonably well too. Rock And Roll Music was a part-studio/part-live album. Although the studio material is more polished, it's the live material that catches the ear. The live tracks were also recorded at the Grande Ballroom, Detroit.

Live At The Grande Ballroom was recorded in Detroit back in 1969. It has been lovingly remixed and repackaged by Vanguard in a triple fold mini-gatefold CD album sleeve with extensive notes about the band.

Dick Wagner later went on to Ursa Major.

As these albums were released on Tower many consider that there is almost certainly a connection with The Chocolate Watch Band, especially as we know the latter didn't play on all their studio cuts.

The movie 'Wild In The Streets' starred Chris Jones as Max Frost and the California band Davie Allan and The Arrows appeared in the film as the backing band. The band had also earlier appeared in the film 'Three In The Attic', which featured their Sittin' In Circles single, and the flip by Chad & Jeremy.

Confusingly, it is also claimed that the ubiquitous Michael Lloyd (of The Smoke etc.) had some involvement with Max Frost and The Troopers, and that The Smoke may have been responsible for some of the recordings.

From San Mateo on the San Francisco Peninsula, Rich and Tom Martin had been performing together since the beginning of the decade, starting with instrumental surf and greasy R&B in the Impressions; jangly folk-rock with The Newcastle Five; the fuzz-tinged garage-rock of The Art Collection, and last but not least, the thundering mod sound of Powder.

When Powder failed to ignite the American public, the pair began work as an Anglophile influenced pop duo, and were signed to Imperial. Their first single, She's Got Love scrapped into the Billboard charts and an album of lush orchestrated pop was recorded, but then shelved when their follow-up singles bombed.

In 1971, Rich and Tom signed a new deal with Uni and finally got an album, eponymously-titled and singer/songwriter-orientated, released the following year.

Their unreleased album, Visualize, finally saw light of day in 2002. Typical of the slightly-psych big production L.A. pop of its period, it includes their first four singles, detailed liners by Alec Palao and reminiscences by Richard Frost. The material, which has stood the test of time well, is imbued with the zeitgeist of Los Angeles in its last throes of pop innocence. The Martins' heart-on-their-sleeve Anglophilic sensitivity is less derivative then remarkably refreshing, with superbly recorded arrangements that any late sixties pop fan will cherish. Their music is uncomplicated, fun, yet eminently memorable. Tony Macauley would be proud. (SR/JFr/AP)

FRUMIOUS BANDERSNATCH - Self Titled Picture Sleeve EP.

From Lafayette, California Frumious Bandersnatch came into existence when All Night Flight (line-up 'A' above) decided to change their name, and chose Frumious Bandersnatch from Lewis Carroll's "Jabberwocky" poem. The band's lynchpin, Jack King, had previously played with Shades Blue Ltd. and Denny had been with a surf act called The Breakers.

Line-up 'B' recorded just two tracks, Now That You're Gone plus an early version of Cheshire in October 1967. Neither was released at the time, but both have subsequently been included on A Young Man's Song CD retrospective. The band broke up at the end of the year when all their equipment was stolen; but after a short hiatus they reformed as line-up 'C', with Bob Winkelman joining from The Epics while Warner and Valory were recruited from The Good Timers.

This line-up recorded their classic EP which looked all set to make it big by the summer of 1968. This contained three tracks: Hearts To Cry, Misty Cloudy and Cheshire. On the first of these, Warner, Winkelman and Denny put together some of the finest acid guitar playing to come out of the Bay Area, but the band's drug and alcohol-fuelled manager Jim Nixon effectively killed their chances of getting a major label deal with his obnoxious behaviour (the group apparently had plenty of offers).

After Valory left to join Faun in late 1968, the band gradually lost impetus and finally broke up in late 1969; Tickner later joined Valory in Faun and both were later founder-members of Journey. Winkelman, Denny, King and Valory all later played at some time in The Steve Miller Band.

In 1995 Big Beat reissued their seminal EP as part of the CD, The Berkeley EPs, along with the June 1966 effort by Country Joe and The Fish, The Mad River and Notes From The Underground EPs. The following year they put together a passionate but unpolished collection of Frumious Bandersnatch rarities A Young Man's Song including live recordings, studio-outtakes etc, which with its 73-minute running time is definitely worth investigating by serious fans of the band.

Golden Sons Of Libra is a full album of album of previously unissued material from those EP sessions. It includes the full-length versions of Can-A-Bliss and Cheshire and was pressed on purple vinyl.

Hearts To Cry from their EP can also be heard on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP), Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book); and you'll also find Cheshire Cat on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box). (VJ/LP/MW)

Frummox was a Texas country folk-rock group with some psychedelic influences. Tracks like Song For Stephen Stills, Texas Trilogy and Kansas Legend may interest some readers. Their leader, Steve Fromholz, later released several solo albums between 1976 and 1979.

Among the musicians, Everett Barksdale also played with Fat City, Kenny Altman was in the Fifth Avenue Band and Eric Weissberg was a well-known studio guitarist. (SR/MW)

'Till The End Of The Day/
Ferry Gross The Mersey (Roun Sound 69,70) 1967

This British-influenced garage band was based in San Antonio, Texas. Louie, Go Home is a pretty good song, and the flip is a slow organ-led sloucher.

This lot were unconnected to the Houston band of the same name that included Sid Templeton and Steve Headley (later of The Lavender Hour and briefly The Clique) but did not record. There was also a garage band called The Fugitives in Austin in 1964-5 which didn't make it onto vinyl. They included Roky Erickson (later of The Spades and the 13th Floor Elevators) and George Kinney (later of Chelsea and The Golden Dawn).

Compilation appearances have included: You Know She's A Woman on Sixties Rebellion Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP); and Louie Go Home on Texas Punk, Vol. 9 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD). (VJ)

The Hideout was a Detroit teen club and record company run by Dave Leone and Ed 'Punch' Andrews. The Fugitives (who were originally known as The Tremolos) and came from Birmingham (a relatively affluent Detroit suburb) were the first band they discovered. They appeared playing songs like Louie, Louie on the opening night of the Hideout and were also the first band to be recorded on the associated Hideout record label, although they did have earlier recordings on the local D-Town label, which are hopelessly rare. Their album, which was recorded in a basement and then re-recorded to include fake applause and audience approval, was a mixture of cover versions like Louie, Louie and Love Potion No. 9 and originals like Friday At The Hideout. Just 500 copies were pressed and consequently they now change hands for a lot of money. Back then, copies were sold at the club for $3 each. The core of the band evolved into the Scot Richard Case and SRC.

Said Goodbye plus both sides of the Westchester single were also featured on an impossibly rare 1965 compilation Friday At The Cage A Go Go - Long Hot Summer (LP) which has been reissued as Long Hot Summer.

John Boyles is now a software designer in Waltham, Massachusetts.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Said Goodbye on Oil Stains (LP) and Quagmire Vol. 2 (CD); On Trial on Glimpses, Vol. 3 (LP); and Friday At The Hideout on Friday At The Hideout (CD). (VJ/MW/PK)

THE FUGITIVES

THE FUGITIVES - On The Run With... LP.

Yet more Fugitives. This was a rare garage album by an outfit from Richmond, Virginia originally issued on the collectable 'Justice' label. Comprising four originals and eight covers - including Turn On Your Love Light, Tossing And Turning, You Can't Catch Me, Ebb Tide and Get Out Of My Life Woman - it's one of the better Justice offerings. The vocals are raw and effective and accompanied by neat organ and drumming. On The Run was originally written as a single but then used as the title track of this album and showcases their sound at its best. The organ-driven Minus One Heart is also a decent band original.

Compilation appearances have included: On The Run and You Can't Catch Me on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 7 (CD); On The Run on Hipsville, Vol. 2 (LP); and What Made You Blue on Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). (MW/VJ)

Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP) captures this group's finest moment Mean Woman - melodic swinging beat with ringing guitars that nod more towards The Ventures than The Byrds. It's a shame their other material veered towards harmony-pop/Four Seasons sounds.

Johanson hailed from New London, Connecticut; the other three from Manhattan. The Fugitives may have also spent some time in Florida. (MW/MDo)

Possibly from Monticello, Georgia this is a different Fugitives to the pre-Mach V group (out of Savannah, Georgia). This group released three singles of which the most garagy track, Meggie (written by Tony McMichael and Rita Vest) is to be found on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD), whose liners mention that the crude debut Cry Me A River "isn't bad" and that the final single had moved off into soul territory. Named after a Norman Mailer-coined sexual euphemism, The Fugs were easily the most lyrically outrageous band of their era with songs explicitly documenting sex, drugs, and radical politics and were formed in New York in late 1964 as a vehicle for the satirical talents of two beat poets, Ed Sanders and Tuli Kupferberg.

Ed Sanders was born in Kansas City in 1939. His early musical influences were Hank Williams and jazz and rock'n'roll. After dropping out of Missouri University in 1958, he enrolled at New York University and he eventually graduated in 1964 with a degree in Classics. He soon became involved in the artists community of the Lower East Side of New York. He wrote his first poem in prison in 1961 after trying to board a Polaris submarine as part of an anti-nuclear protest. He also ran the Peace Eye Bookstore in New York City and published an arts magazine called 'Fuck You: A Magazine Of The Arts' which inexplicably failed to attain popular acceptance, while Kupferberg was another civil rights stalwart who'd already achieved a certain hip status when celebrated in Allen Ginsberg's "Howl" for jumping off the Brooklyn Bridge and surviving. Kupferberg was born in 1923 and graduated from Brooklyn College in 1944. He too later started his own magazines 'Birth' and 'Yeah' (from which he coined the slogan 'Fuck for Peace').

An early line-up with two "amphetamine" flautists soon gave way to a more settled group which included Steve Weber and Peter Stampfel of the similarly anarchic Holy Modal Rounders. Texan Ken Weaver was added first on congas and later, when resources permitted, on a full drum-kit. They soon performed at local galleries and poetry readings and developed shows at the Bridge Theatre.

Their first album was the result of two sessions in the spring and late summer of 1965: defiantly unprofessional but full of spirit and energy, it included musical adaptations of poems by Blake and Swinburne alongside satirical numbers like I Couldn't Get High, Boobs A Lot (a paean to cheerleaders' breasts), and Slum Goddess.

Meanwhile, the band's live performances were achieving notoriety for such stunts as tossing spaghetti at the audience, as well as their high obscenity content. Stampfel had left in the summer of 1965 and was replaced by Vinny Leary who brought a more pronounced rock 'n' roll perspective to the original folky musical foundation. John Anderson, a student from Yale, was added on bass around this time.

After recording the first album, The Fugs embarked on a six-week tour across the U.S, adding keyboardist Lee Crabtree (who'd been first employed as Fugs chauffeur) to the line-up. The tour went surprisingly well, although one concert was terminated prematurely when college officials pulled the plug during a LSD-generated 45-minute rendition of River Of Shit.

Steve Weber left soon after and was replaced by Pete Kearney while Sanders was beset by obscenity charges arising from publication of his arts magazine, 'Fuck You'. It took 18 months of court appearances to beat the charge. The band signed with ESP Disk and recorded their second album in the first two months of 1966. A more rock-oriented effort than their debut, it's considered by many to be their best and includes the anthemic satire Kill For Peace and the lengthy and atmospheric Virgin Forest. Group Grope celebrated free love complete with orgasmic noises while Coming Down detailed the downside of drugs. The album also contained two pretty ballads, Morning Morning and I Want To Know. Remarkably it made the album charts - surely the most outrageous album to have done so at that date.

The Fugs

it crawled into my hand, honest

THE FUGS - It Crawled Into My Hand, Honest LP.

Under investigation by the FBI (whose documents repeatedly referred to the band as "The Fags"), the New York City District Attorney's office, and the Postal Service, the Fugs were at the same time having trouble with their record company. They were also making changes to their line-up: three lead guitarists (Jon Kalb, Stefan Grossman, and Jake Jacobs (pre-Bunky and Jake)) came and went and bassist John Anderson was drafted despite The Fugs' valiant efforts to have him exempted as mentally unfit for service.

A third album, Virgin Fugs (composed of outtakes from the second album sessions) took the shock quotient to even higher levels with songs like Coca-Cola Douche, New Amphetamine Shriek and The Ten Commandments (memorably attributed to Kupferberg/God). Also notable are such gems as We're The Fugs, Hallucination Horrors, CIA Man and I Saw The Best Minds Of My Generation Rot which was written by Beat Poet Allen Ginsberg. The lyrics to We're The Fugs are atypical of the taboo subjects they set out to deal with.

"We Hate War
We Love Sex
Twos or threes
Four or Fives
LSD A dimethylatr"
(from We're The Fugs)

More vintage Fugs lyrics can be heard on Hallucination Horrors:-

"Benzedrine
Mescaline
Pot and LSD
I Need Aquamorphine
Hallucination Horrors is what I've got
Hallucination Horrors is what I've got"
(from Hallucination Horrors)

The band, dissatisfied with their ESP contract (they were only receiving a royalty rate of 3%), signed with Atlantic Records in late 1966. They were promised complete recording freedom and completed an album using top Atlantic sessionmen like Bernard Purdie and Chuck Rainey but for some reason the Atlantic contract was abruptly terminated in June 1967 and the album was never released. At this time the band were well on the way to fame and fortune with Sanders appearing on the cover of Life magazine but the problems with Atlantic robbed the band of a great deal of momentum; in Sanders words, "we lost a year and that really screwed us up".

They quickly signed with Reprise and were promised a no censorship deal by label head Mo Ostin and this time the deal was honoured. Most of the ESP band had left by this time because Sanders was insisting on a level of professionalism they were unwilling to provide. The core trio of Sanders, Kupferberg, and Weaver enlisted a team of crack players - Ken Pine and Danny Kootch on guitars and Charles Larkey on bass. Their first Reprise album, Tenderness Junction, reprised much of the material from the lost Atlantic album and included the lengthy Aphrodite Mass, a musical adaptation of Mathew Arnold's Dover Beach, the celebratory Turn On, Tune In, Drop Out, as well as the usual obscenities (Wet Dream). The ubiquitous Allen Ginsberg also popped in to chant Hare Krishna but the album is best known for documenting The Fugs' attempt to exorcize the Evil Spirits from the Pentagon on October 21, 1967. It was, as Sanders admits, a failure because the Vietnam War went on for another seven years but at least the "Out Demons, Out!" chant later provided the Edgar Broughton Band with their best-known number. Much of 1967 was also spent touring with The Mothers of Invention, Grateful Dead, Jefferson Airplane, Country Joe and The Fish, Velvet Underground, Moby Grape, MC5, Sly and The Family Stone, 13th Floor Elevators and The Stooges among others.

BOBBY FULLER FOUR.

Sanders and Kupferberg attended the Chicago demonstrations in August 1968 and their support of the Yippies was reflected in the songs Chicago and Yodelling Yippie, which appeared on The Belle Of Avenue A album. A second drummer, Bob Mason, had been added for their next Reprise album, It Crawled Into My Hand, Honest which was probably their best effort since The Fugs. Full of parodies of various musical styles - country, gospel, jazz, classical, Broadway musicals, etc - it resurrected the notorious River Of Shit as Wide Wide River and contained a Gregorian chant Marijuana intoning the various names of the drug as well as more songs about sex (Grope Need). It was originally to be called Raptures Of The Deep.

However Sanders was rapidly tiring of the whole affair, which had started as fun but had become a full-time business operation - he was working 10 to 15 hours a day just to keep things on an even keel and drinking too much - and he simply didn't want to become a "beatnik business person". After recording a country-flavoured and slightly tired-sounding final studio album, The Belle Of Avenue A which included songs like the title track, Yodelling Yippie and Weaver's ferocious indictment of the President Four Minutes To Twelve. The Fugs played their last concert in Hersey, Pennsylvania in March, 1969 and quietly disbanded. Shortly before they quit, Sanders recorded a final batch of demos.

Sanders soon after covered the Manson trial for Esquire magazine and wrote a book about Manson called "The Family" while Kupferberg formed a satirical theatrical group called the Revolting Theatre. Sanders also recorded two country-parody albums, Sander's Truckstop (1970) and Beer Cans On The Moon (1973) while Kupferberg had released a solo spoken-word album No Deposit, No Return in 1967. He also acted as a solo performer with his Revolting Theatre group and worked as a political cartoonist and published books as well as poetry.

In the mid-seventies ESP reissued their whole Fugs catalogue along with a compilation entitled Fugs 4 Rounders Score, which contained both Fugs and Holy Modal Rounders tracks.

In 1984, Sanders and Kupferberg reformed The Fugs without Ken Weaver and recorded a number of albums, Refuse To Be Burnt Out (1985), No More Slavery (1986), the 'anti-space-war opera' Star Peace: A Musical Drama In Three Parts (1987), The Real Woodstock Festival (1995) and The Fugs Final CD (Part 1) (2003).

Since the millennium Sanders has produced a range of new works, including 'Poem for New Orleans', which has been set to music by Mark Bingham) and the epic 'America: A History In Verse' that covers the country's history from 1450 to 2000. He's also invented musical instruments. The recent Thirsting For Peace album of poems utilised one of these - a Microtonal device and then there was the Talking Tie.

Lee Crabtree died in the early seventies and Pete Kearney is also deceased; Steve Weber and Pete Stampfel are still playing; Danny Kootch played with Carole King and Don Henley; Charles Larkey also played with King and married (and later divorced) her; and John Anderson became a lawyer.

In 2008 their song CIA Man was featured in the movie 'Burn Before Reading' by The Coen Brothers.

Live From The 60's compiles rare Fugs performances from their very first one in 1965 up until 1969. The offbeat style is in evidence throughout on tracks like I Couldn't Get High, Johnny Pissoff And The Red Angel, and the bizarre Exorcism Of The Grave Of Senator Joseph McCarthy. You'll also find Kill For Peace on Urban Spacemen and Wayfaring Strangers (book/CD).

The Fugs: Don't Stop! Don't Stop! is a 4-CD repackaged version of their first two albums with two further albums of previously unheard material. The previously uncompiled material consists of outtakes, demos and obscurities such as Carpe Diem (which was performed at Lenny Bruce's funeral), Elegy To Bobby Kennedy and a 13-minute collage of Kupferberg's deliberations. Live selections include extracts from a 1968 concert at the Psychedelic Supermarket in Boston and a 1969 concert at Rice University in Texas. (LP/VJ)

With his blatant reverence for Buddy Holly, fellow Texan Bobby Fuller (born October 22nd, 1942) was a bit of an anomaly in the mid-sixties. With his Stratocaster guitar and brash, full sound, at his best Fuller sounded like Holly might have had he survived into the sixties. Cracking the Top 30 in 1966 with a cover of Holly's Love's Made A Fool Of You, and then the Top Ten with I Fought The Law (written by one-time Cricket Sonny Curtis and featuring future Moby Grape guitarist Jerry Miller), Fuller had just become a star when he died in mysterious circumstances in a parked car in Hollywood (the police thought it was a suicide, just about everyone who knew him disagreed). Fuller's relatively short period of national stardom actually crowned a good half-dozen years of recording, during which he released many outstanding tracks. After a few local singles in his hometown of El Paso in the early sixties, he moved to California with his combo in 1964, and briefly had aspirations of playing surf music before hooking up with producer Bob Keane. In the short time he recorded for Mustang in 1965 and 1966, he waxed quite a few fine tracks (most self-penned) besides his hits, including Let Her Dance, Another Sad And Lonely Night, My True Love, Never To Be Forgotten, Fool Of Love, and The Magic Touch. Rocking, tuneful and infectiously joyous, they showed Fuller to be a worthy inheritor of early rock 'n' roll and rockabilly traditions without sounding self-consciously revivalist. While it's hard to imagine Fuller maintaining his success in the era of psychedelia, he no doubt would have gone on to produce interesting work.

A talented and prolific songwriter and a studio whiz who drew from Eddie Cochran and (though only slightly) the full guitar sound of the British Invasion as well as Buddy Holly, he recorded a great deal of unreleased studio and live material that was issued in the 1980s, when the depth of his loss began to be appreciated more widely.

Billy Webb and Larry Thompson later formed The Rooks, whilst Bobby's brother Randy later joined Blue Mountain Eagle and Dewey Martin's Medicine Show.

In 2003, Randy Fuller, Billy Webb, John Mueller, Larry Knechtel, Jim Thompson and Larry Thompson issued a tribute CD, Breakin' Rocks as The Bobby Fuller Drive.

Compilation coverage has included: Let Her Dance on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP) and Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD); Wine, Wine, Wine on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD); I Fought The Law on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Battle Of The Bands (CD) and Wild Thing (2-LP); and the previously unreleased Baby My Heart from March 1966 on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/JL/SR/LTn)

This group was comprised of students at Tabor Academy in Marion, Massachusetts and according to Erik Lindgren's excellent sleeve notes for his An Overdose Of Heavy Psych compilation, was limited to 500 copies. Relative Distance features some great guitar and gave the title to Aram Heller's excellent New England nuggets Relative Distance (LP). It has also been compiled on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD), but the flip, which features pleasant folk-rock, remains uncompiled. (MW)

THE FUN AND GAMES - Elephant Candy LP.

From Texas, this band evolved out of The Six Pents. Bobby Shad of Mainstream signed them, with two singles as Sixpentz, but when they discovered the similarly named Sixpence, changed names again to The Fun And Games Commission and their first single was released under this name. They played mostly well-crafted pop in the Millennium/ Sagittarius mould, with production duties being handled by Gary Zekley of Jan and Dean and Yellow Balloon fame. The Grooviest Girl In The World climbed to No. 78 in the U.S. Top 100 and the band lasted until the late sixties/early seventies.

Joe Romano had also played with A 440 and most of the band were also involved with Mayo Thompson (of Red Crayola fame).

John Bonno and D. J. Greer retired from the band just before they signed with Uni records. Sam Irwin later formed Phoenix and now has the band Duck Soup out of Austin Texas. Rock Romano went on to form Doctor Rockit and the Sisters of Mercy. He and the Sisters split and he continued to front Doctor Rockit. He also played guitar and bass with The Sheetrockers and even played bass with Duck Soup for a while. He now has a recording studio in Houston. Carson Graham played drums for several other groups and Paul Guillet retired from the professional music scene. Joe Romano went on to write and record songs, including several children's songs for Sesame Street. He now performs with Susan Elliott as Mood Indigo in and around the Houston area. Joe Dugan also played with several other groups.

An early version of It Must Have Been The Wind (from the Cinema single), with great vocals and some scorching guitar work, can also be heard on the Psychotic Reactions (LP) and Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD); The Way She Smiles has resurfaced on The Electric Coffee House Volume 2 (CD); Close To Carmel gets a new lease of life on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 3 (CD); and previously unreleased mixes of One, Ride On Love, Today - Tomorrow and Someone Must Have Lied (To You) are all compiled on Sixpentz: Summer Girl (CD), along with It Must Have Been The Wind and Holding Me Back. FUNKADELIC

FUNKADELIC - Free Your Mind CD.

Born in 1941 in North Carolina, George Clinton formed a doo-wop group, the Parliements, in the mid-fifties. After several line-up changes the Parliements had to wait until 1967 before they charted for the first time with the soul single (I Just Wanna) Testify. In 1968, Clinton formed Funkadelic and signed with Westbound, a new label created in Detroit by Armen Boladian (they also released several Teegarden and Van Winkle albums). Funkadelic was a musical commune of sorts that included members of Parliament.

Funkadelic (for "Funk" and "Psychedelic") tried, rather successfully, to merge soul, funk, rock and psych and will interest fans of Sly And The Family Stone and Hendrix (a major influence on their guitarist, Eddie Hazel). In a slightly different style, another black group, The Temptations, tried to do the same with their Psychedelic Shack period.

FUNKADELIC - Maggot Brain CD.

Free Your Mind... And Your Ass Will Follow built upon space-rock with other worldly noises and other creative influences to create a kind of acid-funk with sharp lyrics with a political edge and wacky sound effects.

Funkadelic switched to Warner Brothers in 1975 and released Hardcore Jollies in 1976. Westbound meanwhile released archived tracks as Tales Of Kidd Funkadelic, which did significantly better than Hardcore Jollies and included Undisco Kid, a R&B Top 30 single. In 1977, Westbound capitalised on the success of Tales Of Kidd Funkadelic by releasing The Best Of The Early Years. Their magnum opus One Nation Under A Groove followed in 1978 and it spent six weeks on top of the R&B charts.

Funkadelic continued to record beyond the time-span of this book. Their albums were generally housed in highly coloured sleeves and the musicians were among the first to wear exuberant science fiction outfits, with strange boots, glasses, feathers etc. A very prolific musician but also an advised businessman, George Clinton managed to sign the same core of musicians to different labels and therefore also formed Parliament (Invictus and Casablanca), the Brides Of Funkenstein (Atlantic), the Parlets, Bootsy Collins Rubber Band (Warner Bros.) and the Horny Horns.

It should be noted that this George Clinton musn't be confused with the Californian white keyboard player who formed Timber, was an active sessionman and today composes soundtracks. It's also worth mentioning that the group backed Ruth Copeland on her album I Am What I Am (Invictus ST-9802) 1973. (SR)

Jesse Furlough (NV)

45: Insect Gladiator/? (Radiant Records 6604) c1968

From Las Vegas, Nevada Jesse Furlough was a hippie singer with strange lyrics, but the music is unfortunately old-fashioned teen-rock. (SR/HMa)

The Furniture (IL)

45: Keep On Running/I Love It Baby (Stature 1105) 1968

The Furniture, from Galesburg, Illinois recorded a good cover of The Spencer Davis hit. I Love It Baby later resurfaced on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD), Pebbles Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD) and Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP). (VJ/MW)

45: Cruisin' For Burgers/Hound Dog (Epic 10514) 1968

Fuse came from Rockford, Illinois. The lineage of this band is reported to stretch back via certain members (Rick Nielsen is frequently mentioned) to the Phaetons, via the Boyz, and possibly the Huns. The band was actually called The Grim Reapers but changed their name to Fuse upon signing to Epic. Peterson and Nielsen were also in a post-Todd Rundgren version of Nazz, and Sick Man Of Europe. Bassist Tom Peterson (aka Petersson) and Rick Nielsen went on to play with Cheap Trick. This album is pretty heavy.

The single has non-album cuts and is much rarer than the album. They also have a song from their album, Permanent Resident on White Lace & Strange Volume 3 (CD). (VJ/MW/CF)

ALBUM: 1(A) BORDER TOWN (Atco SD 33-295) 1969

45: Another Man/News Of Salena (Atco 6715) 1969

Unusually for a sixties album, the sleeve notes to this album give a lengthy history of the members of the group. In doing so, they fill in many of the missing pieces of the Los Angeles music scene jigsaw. Bill Wolff had been in Sound Machine, The Psychedelic Rangers (an early Doors incarnation) and the Peanut Butter Conspiracy, whilst Gary Marker had been in the Rising Sons with Ry Cooder and also Sound Machine.

Marker, Lane, Matzkin, Luther and Ry Cooder were also briefly in a band called 'The Jazz Folk', but when this group broke up Marker, Lane and Luther formed a group 'The New World Jazz Company' with future Spirit members Ed Cassidy, John Locke and Randy California. When the latter three went off to form Spirit, Kevin Kelly was brought in on drums to form the first version of Fusion but he quickly left to join the Byrds and Richard Matzkin was brought back in to finally form the group that recorded the above album, Border Town.

The record consists mainly of fairly ordinary blues-rock with a lot of tasty slide guitar. Side two sees the group exploring some new areas with some jazz and country influences. The highlight of the album is the extended closing instrumental track Erebus which has a strong jazz-rock feel. (TA/MW)

Future Shock (?)

45: It's Too Late/Riding High (Mainstream 726) 1970

By the time of this single Mainstream wasn't the label it used to be and it shows on the pedestrian It's Too Late, which apart from an acceptable short guitar solo is something like proto glam-rock without glamour. The flip is even worse: a lame orchestra plus band version of Watermelon Man, although there are no credits to state this fact on the record. Theft and boring, quite a combination! (MK)

This quartet was formed by Chuck Alden, previously of The Wild Ones, and was house band at New York's Arthur Club from 1967 to 1968.

Their first and third singles on which they tackled some interesting covers were co-produced by Ellie Greenwich. Their style was overblown, orchestrated brass-pop melodrama with burbling Fudge-like organ and some fuzz guitar - the result sounds like Blood Sweat & Tears doing musical show tunes, especially on the over-elaborated Walker Brothers hit. The second single features a pair of self-produced band originals by John Turi, Alden Foote, and Roger Valdez. The third couples a cover of Traffic with The Wildweeds' soul-pop hit (also covered the previous year by The Moving Sidewalks). (MW)

ALBUM: 1 SNAKE DANCE (Fleetwood GAB-1) 1966 R2

This obscure mid-sixties album is now a collectors' item. The bulk of the material is comprised of surf and rock'n'roll instrumentals, including a number of self-penned numbers. The other tracks suffer from the lack of a decent vocalist. (VJ)

This acoustic trio was based in Laguna Beach, California in its formative years, but moved to Washington State in the early seventies and issued the first press there. They eventually returned to Laguna Beach and reissued the album in a newly-designed sleeve. The album is consistently good throughout, in a laid-back acoustic folk style, and is recommended to fans of the genre. It was originally issued in a colour "peacock" sleeve. (CF)

45: It'll Never Work Out/She Doesn't Care (Staff BP 188) 1966

Came out of Gary, Indiana and were fronted by a 16-year-old singer. The Stones-influenced teen-rock number It'll Never Work Out can be also be heard on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP), but it's nothing special. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1 COSMIC FORCE FIELD (Airship) 1971 SC

This group was a later incarnation of The Swamp Rats and is in no way psychedelic. The album is hard/heavy Stones-influenced rock that suffers by comparison to their garage stuff. Formed in Tacoma, Washington their early recordings are irrelevant to this book but when they signed to Etiquette, their career began to take off. With the onset of the psychedelic era, they became the first Northwest band to use an automatic lighting system. They also played outside the Northwest adding a string section to their recording of I Who Have Nothing in L.A. In search of a new image they changed their name to Rock Collection in 1967.

They have three cuts (Rudolph The Red Nosed Reindeer, Please Come Home For Christmas and Christmas Eve) on the 1965 compilation album Merry Christmas From The Sonics Etc (LP), which was reissued in 1985. I'm A Worker and She Said I Do also appeared on the 1966 compilation The Northwest Rock Collection, Vol. 1 (LP).

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Along Comes The Man on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD) and The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP); On The Beach on Follow That Munster, Vol. 1 (LP) and Required Etiquette (CD); and I'm A Worker, Make Love To Me Baby and She Said I Do can all be found on Required Etiquette (CD). This Trenton, New Jersey group's best known song is the brilliant fuzz punk raver Don't Lose Your Mind, but Piccadilly Circus is also an excellent fuzz instrumental and the Veep single is a decent beat effort and was probably also issued on Mohawk.

The band formed in 1964 at Blessed Sacrament Grammar School and gave over 80 performances at the 1964-5 New York World's Fair. They went on to win the world's largest 'Battle Of The Bands' at Lambertville Music Circus and were featured in the New York Times and Readers Digest magazine.

Now at College, they added a lead vocalist, Steve Shier, and changed names briefly to Galaxie V and then Alexander Rabbit.

Compilation appearances have included: Don't Lose Your Mind on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP), Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Glimpses, Vol. 2 (LP); Piccadilly Circus (from the Mohawk single) on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz Vol. 1 (CD) and Garage Beat '66 4 (CD); and Piccadilly Circus also appears on Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP), but is incorrectly billed as Don't Lose Your Mind.

NB: The sleeve notes to Turds On A Bum Ride suggest that this band came from Los Angeles, but this is incorrect. (VJ/MW/RMh)

This heavy progressive/space-rock album with female vocals and extended tracks is an important item among collectors (though some would say it's overrated hype!). The band was almost certainly from Jacksonville, Florida.

A 2-LP/CD of unreleased material recorded between 1979-84, Very First Stone (Akarma AK-085(/6)) 1999, is by comparison dreadful. (VJ)

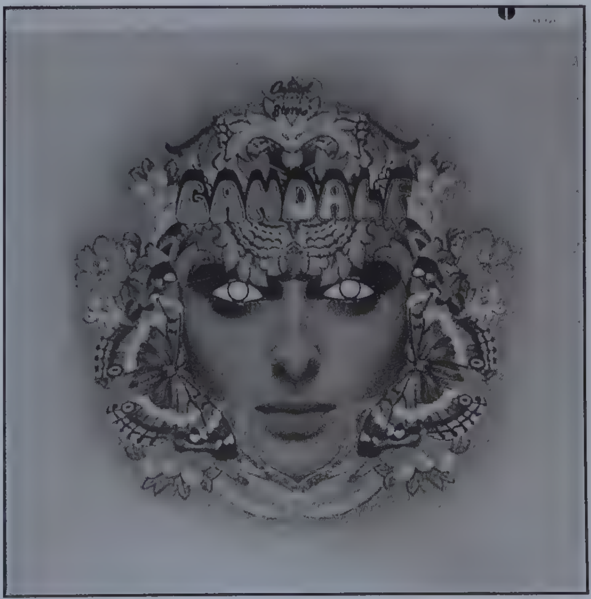
Gandalf 2 (Sundazed SC 6199) 2007 compiles Peter Sando's post-Gandalf solo cuts, singles by the short-lived studio outfit The Barracuda and demos and live recordings.

45: Golden Earrings/Never Too Far (Capitol P-2400) 1968

The above-mentioned album is excellent, but unfortunately originals are expensive. The opening cut Golden Earrings (a 1948 hit for Bing Crosby!) is a beautiful relaxing number which culminates in a spacey climax. The album also contains sensitive covers of three Tim Hardin compositions (Hang On To A Dream, Never Too Far and You Upset The Grace Of Living) a lovely version of Nature Boy and some strange instrumentation in Can You Travel In The Dark Alone, which is easily the best of Peter Sando's two originals on the album. There's also an ethereal and delicate cover of Harry Belafonte's 1957 recording Scarlet Ribbons. The album is a superb piece of laid-back pop-psychedelia with some progressive influences. It was produced by Koppelman and Rubin, who are best known for their production work for The Lovin' Spoonful and The Sopwith Camel.

Until recently next to nothing was known about the group apart from their line-up, but as the Gandalf album was originally issued on the "Rainbow" Capitol label, this should have dated it as 1968 as Capitol switched to the "Light Green" label in 1969. It has subsequently transpired that it wasn't actually released until January 1969 (over a year after the recording sessions). When it was released, Capitol barely promoted the album, although Golden Earrings was included on a promo EP entitled Four Is A 4-Letter Word.

In fact Pete Sando tells us that Gandalf had their roots in Thunderbirds, an outfit formed by Bob Muller, which were based in Greenwood Lake, New York. They soon transformed into The Rahgoos and went on to play the bar circuit in Greenwood Lake, New York, the Jersey Shore, and various New York City clubs and coffee houses, such as The Phone Booth, Murray The K's World, Electric Circus and legendary Night Owl Cafe, in Greenwich Village.



GANDALF - Self Titled LP.

They met songwriters Gary Bonner and Alan Gordon (of Magicians fame), one night at The Night Owl, who in turn introduced them to Koppelman and Rubin. Suitably impressed by The Rahgoos, and their rather unique approach, they arranged for the Columbia deal, under the new moniker Gandalf and ushered them in to Brooks Aurthur's Century Sound studios in New York.

Shortly after the album's release Gandalf guitarist Pete Sando sang on The Barracuda single The Dance At St. Francis, which was written and produced by Gary Bonner/Alan Gordon and charted, when it was originally released in 1969.

In the seventies and eighties, Sando played with various New York and L.A. bands, recording an unreleased album in 1981 entitled Sandcastles. He's recently finished a new singer-songwriter CD, Creatures Of Habit and co-written three tunes for a movie called "Time Served".

Gandalf 2 compiles Peter Sando's post-Gandalf solo cuts, singles by the short-lived studio outfit The Barracuda and demos and live recordings. The best cut is a 1971 studio effort Bird In The Hand whilst country-rock is represented by I Won't Cry No More and Bad Dream and Downbound Train are bluesier numbers.

Compilation appearances have included: Golden Earrings on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); and Can You Travel In The Dark Alone on Rock A Delics (LP), Electric Psychedelic Guitar Headswirlers 9 (CD) and Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD).

The Sundazed Gandalf reissue on CD is highly recommended to fans of U.S. psychedelia. (VJ/MW)

Also relevant is The Tin Angel (CD) (Gear Fab GF-212) 2004 which was the product of a session in New York's Charles Dickens Studios in 1968.

Chris Wilson was a Long Island folkie active on the scene from 1966 to 1974. He spent some time living in Greenwich Village, where he recorded his best known home-made album The Grey Wizard Am I in 1972. He called his style "Elven music" - guitar-orientated folk-rock with lilting melodies and fey lyrics from Middle Earth, very enchanting although it lacks variety of mood. 1,000 copies were pressed and sold to friends; some made it to stores and over the years garnered a cult reputation to become a valuable collectors' item.

GANDALF THE GREY - The Grey Wizard Am I LP.

He released more private albums under his real name including All My Thoughts (his debut), The Sun Is Down, and Tin Angel #1. He has put together a CD collection of 18 tracks from 1972-2001, Conversations With Mom (And Dad), available only via GWM@wizardtv.com .

The Tin Angel CD is a 21-track retrospective comprising two tracks from 1966 sessions, eight from 1968's Tin Angel sessions, and 11 from 1969. (VJ/MW)

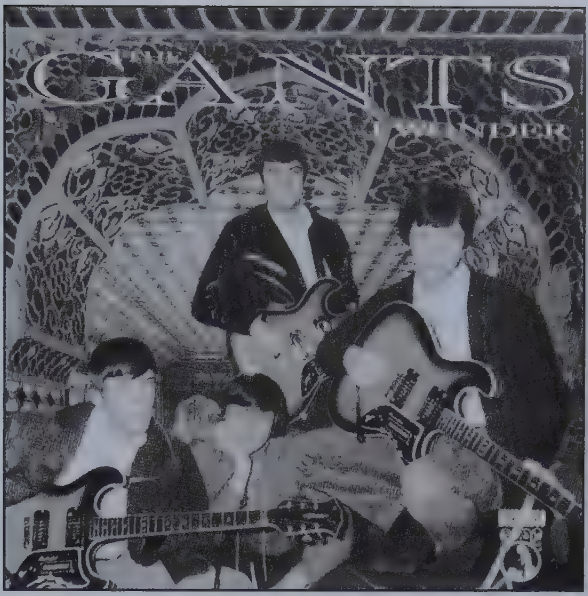
NB: α shown as by Sid Herring and The Gants.

Greenwood in Mississippi was home to this band which came together in 1963. At the time of line-up "A" they were actually known as The Kingsmen. They called themselves The Gants when Johnny Sanders replaced Johnny Freeman on guitar. The name was taken from a local shirt manufacturer! In their early days, they sounded much like The Beatles and by chance The Animals' manager Mike Jeffries spotted them playing in Mississippi and booked them as a support act for an Animals tour.

Before long they were in Alabama's Muscle Shoals studio recording their own arrangement of Bo Diddley's Roadrunner. It was very popular locally and after release on a couple of local labels it was picked up by Liberty and this national distribution took it to No. 46 in the national charts. An album followed and was made up from material recorded at the same session. It was a mixture of punk covers like Gloria and House of The Rising Sun and Sid Herring compositions like the melodic My Baby Don't Care and Six Days In May which underscored Herring's songwriting skills.

A Johnny Burnette composition was chosen for their second single but it failed to return them to the charts. The third single took two of the better tracks from their Gants Galore album which had been recorded in Los Angeles earlier that year. Compared to their first effort this was disappointing. No Herring compositions were included and the whole album consisted of cover versions, including The Standell's Dirty Water, The Yardbirds' Shapes Of Things and Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues and C'mon Everybody.

In 1966, they were taken to Nashville, Tennessee, where they recorded a new single I Want Your Lovin', a fresh-sounding record with a taint of country and western influence, although The Beatles influence was still very evident. The third (and final) album was also recorded at the same time. This contained fine covers of Paul Revere's Hungry and The Rascals' You Better Run and some more fine Herring compositions, particularly I Wonder, a fine Beatlesque song. When neither the single nor album made much impression they returned to Los Angeles and assisted by David Gates they recorded Greener Days, a good harmony-pop song, which had some regional success but failed to break through nationally.



THE GANTS - I Wonder CD.

After one further harmony-pop single in April 1967, Johnny Sanders quit and Johnny Freeman returned to replace him, but by the end of the year the whole band had largely collapsed. Only "largely", however, as some gigs were booked in the first half of 1969 through a Memphis Talent Agency and The Gants went on the road with Alston Meeks (ex-Reets) and Johnny Jennings taking over Johnny Sanders' guitar parts. In 1971, Herring and Wood formed Watchpocket. Sid Herring continued to record spasmodically and even released an album All American Dream in 1982.

Much of The Gants best material is collected on the three retrospective compilations (although Bam Caruso's early vinyl compilation omits both sides of the corkin' Smoke Rings single); but you'll also find:- I Wonder on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP) and The Electric Coffee House (CD); Smoke Rings on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 2 (LP) and Trash Box (5-CD); Roadrunner on Garage Monsters (LP) and Battle Of The Bands (CD); Just A Good Show on It's Only A Passing Phase (LP); Another Chance on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); and both Another Chance and What's Your Name on Garagelands Vol. 2 (CD).

Johnny Freeman is still active in the local music scene, playing together with Johnny Jennings in a band called Curb Service, where Gants' songs form a part of their set. Sid Herring now resides in Nashville.

Come the new millennium and it's all happening again for The Gants. Not only are there two decent (if overlapping) CD compilations, but The Gants are back in action, a headliner act for the three day Cavestomp extravaganza, also featuring the Blues Magoos and Troggs. (VJ/MW)

"Uncle Jerry" was the co-leader of the Grateful Dead and a kind of musical guru for the Bay Area groups. Apart from his prolific work with the Dead, he also released several solo albums with various members of the Dead plus Bill Vitt and John Kahn, Ben Benay and even Larry Carlton. They will be of interest to "Deadheads", but are probably best avoided if you don't appreciate the Dead's particular style.

The 1972 Warner Bros. album is quite a rural-rock classic, having several cuts that became staples of the Dead's live shows, like Sugaree and Deal. On this album, Garcia plays all the instruments except for the drums, which are provided by Bill Kreutzmann. If you like Workingman's Dead and American Beauty, this album will interest you and will not be hard to track down.

In direct contrast to the 1972 release, the vast majority of the ten tracks on Garcia's 1974 album are cover versions performed with an ensemble, rather than just by the multi-instrumental artist. This album heralds the origins of what would ultimately become the Jerry Garcia Band. Backed by studio session musicians, covers such as the Rolling Stones' Let's Spend the Night Together and Van Morrison's He Ain't Give You None sound over-elaborate. The better moments are his version of Peter Rowan's Mississippi Moon, The Marvelettes' The Hunter Gets Captured By The Game, and Little Milton's That's What Love Will Make You Do, which became popular favourites of his live act.

As if recording with the Dead and solo wasn't enough, Garcia can also be found guesting on albums by Jefferson Airplane (Volunteers and Early Flight), It's A Beautiful Day (Marrying Maiden), Link Wray, Papa John Creach, Tom Fogerty and Merle Saunders. He also contributed Love Scene to the Zabriskie Point movie soundtrack; and First Trad and Second Trad (both with Sarah Garcia) appear on California Christmas Vol. 2 (LP).

The Grateful Dead leader teamed up with his usual jamming rhythm section (Vitt/Kahn) and Howard Wales, the former A.B. Shky keyboard player for a mix of psych, jazz and blues. Curley Cooke (Steve Miller Band, A.B. Skhy) and Martin Fierro (Sir Douglas Quintet) guested on some tracks. It's mostly recommended for Dead-heads. Wales would also play on some Grateful Dead albums. (SR)

Here's a lovely flower-pop single with touches of psychedelia from a one-off L.A. studio creation by writers Tandyn Almer and John Walsh, featuring Ruthann Friedman on vocals. Little Girl Lost And Found was covered a few months later by UK's Peter & The Wolves.

Little Girl Lost-and-Found has re-emerged on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 2 (CD) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (MM/MW)

45: The Wozard Of Iz/Zi Fo Drazow Eht (A&M 962) 1968

Along with Beaver and Krause, Mort Garson was one of the first specialists of electronic sounds and early synthesizers to be active on the "pop" market. Between 1959 and 1980, he has released a large number of albums and singles under different names. Be aware that he also arranged and produced several easy listening and pop records during the early sixties! His better known project is the Zodiac Cosmic Sounds and he also recorded as Lucifer. Among the records released under his name, the Wozard Of Iz from 1969 is a strange electronic version of "Wizard Of Oz" with weird lyrics. The album was produced by Bernie Krause and the partner of Lee Hazelwood, Suzie Jane Hokum, was Dorothy. Not recommended for young kids! After that came a series of 12 albums "dramatically narrated with electronic music accompaniment". Housed in very colourful sleeves, they were produced by Allen Stanton (Brewer and Shipley, Byrds), with scripts written by Jacques Wilson and electronic musical score composed and realised by Garson. The narrators included Nancy Priddy, John Erwin and Michael Bell. Overall it's in the same style as the Zodiac Cosmic Sounds but with more spoken passages. Circa 1973, Garson recorded Mother Earth's Plantasia, an album of music to help the green plants to grow... He would later be seen as a "New Age" pioneer.

For Mort Garson completists, there's also an old single: Gas Light Village/Drum Tango (Todd 1050) 1959, yes '59 as by 'Mort Garson and His Orchestra', as well as several other singles on MGM, Landa, Joy and Coral! These most certainly have a different sound than his later work. (SR/VJ/CA/MW)

45: See/Couldn' Make Up My Mind (Debtone 800) 1968

This band was formed in Spokane, Washington by Ned Neltner, (formerly of The Mark 5) after he completed a period of military service. Curtis had previously played with The Kingsmen and Kenfield with The Rock-N-Souls. They soon relocated to Seattle and played at all the top clubs like The Happening. They toured nationally with The Box Tops whose managers handled their business affairs and arranged for them to record the above single at Ardent Studios in Memphis, Tennessee under the production of Don Nix. It was a big hit in the Northwest. Epic bought the material from the Ardent sessions for an album, which was never released and the band were also involved in a multimedia event with the Seattle Opera, which toured the state's schools.

The band really fell apart soon after Ned Neltner departed, dissatisfied with their art rock direction, to write songs for The Wailers with Buck Ormsby. He later produced Locksley Hall's album and was last reported playing for JR Cadillac, a Puget Sound group. Barry Curtis plays with the reformed Kingsmen and Mike Clother has his own band. This Long Island, New York band's sole single is noteworthy. I Am Afraid comes on like a soulful version of The Vagrants with some nicely fuzzed heaviness and a haunting quality provided by an unusual keyboard sound. ALBUM:	1(A)	THEIR FIRST ALBUM	(Tonsil T-4001) 1970

NB: (1) originally released with gatefold cover. (1) also released in France (Tonsil T 4001) 1971.

Signed to the small New York Tonsil label, the band's 1970 debut Their First Album teamed them with producer Teo Macero. Musically the comparison with Blood, Sweat and Tears (BS&T) simply couldn't be missed. Backed by a BS&T-styled horn section (Richard Grando, David Gross and Enrico Raja), singer Bobby Osborne's growl sounds little more than a David Clayton-Thomas wannabe. With Olivia responsible for the majority of the material (Gross contributing two selections), tracks such as If You Just Think Of Me, Light The Road and Just Like That weren't bad (particularly if you liked early BS&T). On the other hand, why bother when the original was readily available? Sales proved non-existent; certainly not helped by a dumb name and one of the year's ugliest album covers.

Bill Davidson was previously with the Steve Baron Quartet. Grando also played with a latter era Earth Opera. (SR/SB)

	Sundays/What A Feelin'	(M.W. Lads MWL-4966) 196?

The first single listed contains soulful garage covers by a Philadelphia outfit who would become The Bubble. Their version of First is most excellent indeed. They also did some commercials for M.W. Lads that can be sampled on Crude PA, Vol. 2 (LP) and the last single listed contains gentle orchestrated folkie-flower pop. Sundays features some very mellow use of wah-wah. Still, a long way from the Pro single. It's unclear whether composers J. Stumpo, D. Stumpo and R. Steinbronn were group members.

First I Look At The Purse can also be heard on Fuzz Flakes & Shakes Vol. 7 (LP & CD). (MW)

	Clouds Don't Shine/No One Cares	(Busy-B Zap 4) 1967

This interesting sounding band came out of Louisiana. Rebecca Rodifer veers towards psychedelia and boasts a catchy guitar riff and a rather Eastern-influence. This is evident again on No One Cares, a punkier song which has a fine Eastern riff alongside a typical punk style beat.

The above line-up came together in New Orleans in late 1965 when Carter and Collins, the remnants of the original Gaunga Dyns, merged with another west bank outfit, The Twilights. Read their full story in "Brown Paper Sack #1", which also reveals how they came to cover the Glass Kans' Stick With Her on their first single.

	Come Back To Me/ Sooner Or Later	(Counterpart C-2639/40) 1968

From Columbus, Ohio the Hillside single is simple and winsome Beatlesque garage-pop, and harks back to 1965. The Counterpart single is more in tune with the times, and kicks off with waspish guitar but ruined by subsequent brass. The catchy pop flip has a fluid guitar solo but is spoilt as well by pointless brass tootlings. Their earliest compilation appearance is on the Hillside '66 album where they cover The Outsiders' Time Won't Let Me. The following year Hillside put out a Hillside '67 EP and here are The Gears again, this time with a rather good garage-ballad We're Through. No, they didn't make it onto Hillside's 1968 Promotion 7", just in case anyone was wondering. More recently, Explanantion has been compiled on Die Today (CD).

It's way past time that these sought-after local scene Hillside releases, and the Northland Shopping Center Battle Of The Bands (featuring the Four O'Clock Balloon and more Columbus acts), got wider appreciation by being reissued.

The press kit from promoters Dynamic Entertainment for the Counterpart release comprised 2 A4 sheets, one a photo of the band and the other details of the line-up (B above) with encouraging words from Jerry Razor, of WLW-C TV4, the usual "one of the most exciting new groups.." .. and then they were not heard from again. 2(A)	ARTHUR GEE (w/booklet)	(Tumbleweed TWS 101)	1971
3(B)	CITY COWBOY	(Tumbleweed TWS 107)	1972

NB: (1) reissued as In Search Of Arthur (RD Records 13) 2004 with previously unreleased material and a pre-album single he made in Canada as bonus tracks. (3) issued with a songbook and housed in a gatefold sleeve.

From Toronto, Canada originally this noteworthy singer/songwriter relocated to Denver, Colorado and released a series of albums mixing dreamy folk ballads, psych, prog and country. The first album listed above is an incredibly rare one-sided demo that is credited simply to Arthur and was recorded whilst Gee was in California. It's a dark loner folk album.

The first album he recorded for Tumbleweed is especially good and came housed in a superb gatefold sleeve with a songbook. The lyrics are quite mystic and not always easy to understand. With a tight yet loose band backing him, Gee starts out on his troubled journey with conviction and musical intelligence from the very first note. Rural elements are strongly present, though never intrusive and always stylish. The production is simple and clear and the songs are mostly fairly persuasive, while Gee's voice is a fine and emotional vehicle, again without anything pushy about it. The rocking Waterweight is quite good with its lovely flute and expert arrangement, as is the opening Dimensions, a sombre and introspective song. The very esoteric Confessions with mellotron and an eerie wavering sound could easily pass for what seems to be called "downer-folk" nowadays. Not very spectacular, but it's a worthwhile effort nonetheless.

	She's Mean/You Know' Til The End of Time	(Sara J-6599)	1965

NB: α shown as by Joey Gee with The Bluetones.

Joey Gee formed his first band The Bluetones (line-up 'A') in Iron Mountain, Michigan. He left them to attend broadcasting school at Career Academy in Milwaukee, Wisconsin and assembled the Come-Ons (line-ups 'B' and 'C') for the duration of his stay. They released two eagerly-sought singles and got to open for the likes of The Turtles.

She's Mean is really a R&B-surf style workout and You Know' Til The End Of Time is raw proto-punk.

On his return to Michigan he continued to perform for a few years before carving out a career in radio. He relocated to Seattle in the early seventies and has worked for several stations under the name of Joe Cooper.

Compilation appearances have included: She's Mean on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP), Garage Beat '66 4 (CD) (in stereo), and The Cuca Records Story 2: Garagemental (CD) (in stereo); and You Know - 'Til The End Of Time on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP) and The Cuca Records Story 2: Garagemental (CD) (in stereo), which also features previously unreleased versions of Jenny Jenny and Little Latin Lupe Lu.

Gloomy Sunday/What's It All About (Mercury 72869) 1968

Genesis was a short-lived late sixties Los Angeles band. Their album is a melodic collection of songs notable for male-female harmony vocals and searing guitar. The highlights are the 16-minute World Without You and the orchestrated Gloomy Sunday. The album is worth obtaining.

Genesis also contributed a track, The Long Road to the 1972 Do It Now Foundation drug education album.

Kent Henry went on to play for Charity and later for Steppenwolf. Fred Rivera and Sue Richman went on to play for Delaney Bramlett and The Thieves respectively. Jack Ttanna had previously played with The Sons Of Adam, when he was known as Joe Kooken.

You can also check out Angeline on White Lace & Strange (CD). (VJ)

45s: Society's Child/One Day Boy (Rare Bird R-5000) 1970
I Feel Fine (Funky)/Resolution (Rare Bird R.B.5014) 197?

The debut single is a female-led keyboard rock cover of Janis Ian's song by an obscure outfit. Maryann Farra next fronted a funk/soul/disco outfit called Satin Soul, of no interest here. (MW)

45: Something Beautiful/Call My Name (Beverly Hills 45-9340) 1970

Produced by Bill Traut for Dunwich Productions, Something Beautiful penned by A.Tucker and K.Wakefield, is pop with strong bass parts and horns. The flip written by K.Chovan and J.Zdanowicz is good pop-rock similar to Paul Revere and Raiders (but without the guitars), and again features strong bass parts. (SR)

This Dallas-Forth Worth punk combo was fronted by Seab Meador. A decade later he was at it again with seventies punk band The Werewolves, who released an album produced by Andrew Loog Oldham in 1978.

It's A Cry'n Shame is a classic of the genre, a compilation regular, and an inspiration to many of the shaggy, primevil, eighties/nineties retro-garage bands. It was covered by the Untold Fables on their 1985 album, Every Mother's Nightmare.

45: You Gotta Leave/
I Believe (Northwest International NWI 2694) 1967

Hailing from Portland, Oregon where they formed in 1965, Gentlemen Wild's music was an amalgam of early Northwest rock and punk. When Bob Hart joined in 1966, his father Ross took over their management and soon their fortunes prospered. They won the Oregon 'Battle Of The Bands' in May 1967, made some local and national TV appearances, became the house band at "Tork Club", a teen nightclub in Portland and opened for many big sixties acts. Their sole single, which was very punkish in style, became a big regional hit both in the Northwest and on the West Coast. When they finally disbanded in April 1969, Cathey and Vermilya went on to play with River.

Presumably they are the same Gentlemen Wild who entered the 1967 National 'Battle Of The Band' finals at the Ridge Arena in Braintree, Maine and whose live performance of Nowhere Man was captured for on the resultant 2- and 3-LP set - see Gents (UT) entry.

Compilation appearances have included: You Gotta Leave on Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP), 60's Choice Collection, Vol's 1 and 2 (CD), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP) and Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP). Back in 1967, Nowhere Man also appeared on Battle Of The Bands (LP). (VJ/MW)

Gale Garnett had earlier made three solo albums for RCA in the early sixties. A New Zealander by birth, she came to the USA in 1951 and worked as an actress from 1957. She appeared on many TV shows including Hawaiian Eye and Bonanza. The albums are not sought-after by collectors, but pleasant and relaxing. They are an eclectic mixture of styles ranging from trippy psych to folk-rock, rootsy pop and much in-between. The second includes a good version of Dolphins. (VJ)

	Our National Anthem/Song for Three	(Columbia 4-44152) 1968
	2:10 Train/Reelin'	(Epic 10448) 1969

Produced by Terry Melcher, this album is a nice example of Californian psychy soft-rock. The instrumentation (harpsichord, tabla, flute, slide guitar) provides an interesting background for the voices and songs of Pamela Polland and Rick Stanley. Ry Cooder also guested on slide guitar on one track. Among the best tracks are Through A Dream, Young Man Blue and the instrumental Overture. Young Man Blue can also be found on Rockbusters, a 1969 radio promo album. The singles are not from the album.

Pamela Polland was also known as a songwriter (her Tulsa County was recorded by The Byrds and The Rising Sons). She formed Gentle Soul with Rick Stanley in 1966 as a duo and over the three years they were together, various musicians were part of the group, including Jackson Browne, Sandy Konikoff and Riley Wildflower.

After the group split, she sang with Joe Cocker for the Mad Dogs And Englishmen tour and album. Then she moved to Hawaii where she still lives and records. Her 1972 album for CBS features Taj Mahal and Marc McClure and is interesting. (SR)

The Gentrys formed in Memphis, Tennessee in 1963 as a seven-man band. Their debut album Keep On Dancing just made the Top 100 and the title cut climbed to No 4. This was their only big hit, but they enjoyed several other minor ones. They featured Larry Raspberry as their lead singer. Their early keyboardist Rick Allen later joined The Box Tops.

They disbanded in 1966, but original member Jimmy Hart reformed the band in 1969 for the album on Sun, which also generated three further Top 100 hits. The album is good hard turn-of-the-decade rock that is worth a listen if you're into that particular bag. Hart was now the lead singer.

Larry Raspberry, who wasn't in the reformed line-up, joined Alamo, who recorded an album on Atlantic in 1971. Alamo included Richard Rosebrough who worked in the Ardent Studios, later joined Alex Chilton's band and went on to work with him in Big Star. Later still, Raspberry formed The Highsteppers.

Jimmy Hart is currently a wrestling manager known as the Mouth Of The South.

45: I Wonder Why/Moonlight Sonata (Normandy NRS 91067) 1967

This Utah band's claim-to-fame is that in 1967 they were the number one band in the USA. After regional and state rounds, a final National 'Battle Of The Bands' was staged in Braintree, Massachusetts which was recorded live for posterity and made available on the (3-LP set) Battle Of The Bands - Ridge Arena .. (Normandy 30867) which was also available as a 2-LP set.

First place went to Utah's Gents, who got an encore which was also captured. Their tracks on the triple-album set are: You Can't Sit Down, Moonlite Sonata, Six O'Clock, Roll Over Beethoven, Come On Down To My Boat and Things We Said Today. The ultimate prize was to record for the mighty Normandy label which they duly did, presenting two very different sounds from their repertoire - so different that it might be thought to be a mispress, with a 101 Strings type ensemble on the flip of an excellent garage-punker.

Second place in the finals went to Action Brass and third to Tony's Tigers - they have two tracks preserved apiece.

You can also listen to I Wonder Why on Destination Frantic! (LP & CD). (MW)

45: If You Don't Come Back/I'll Cry (Duane 1046) 1966

From Bermuda, although the label Duane has New Jersey connections and RPC is a Camden, New Jersey, label. They run through a bevy of typical garage covers in a 'prep-rock' style. The musical menu is mostly British Invasion covers and a few instrumentals. It's very basic stuff - no fuzz, no off-the-wall ravers - just honest and workman-like attempts that may sometimes sound flat and far from inspiring. But then that's what is so appealing about this genre and why serious collectors will pay a fortune for an original.

This is a very rare folky singer-songwriter album. It's for singer-songwriter rather than psychedelic enthusiasts. Geoffrey is Geoffrey de Mers who wrote seven of the eight tracks himself and co-wrote the other - A Tale Of The Banshee - with Erin McFadden. He also handled the production and played acoustic guitar. The album is pleasant but nothing special, although some dealers compare him to Tim Buckley or Athur Lee Harper.

This Augusta, Georgia band was legendary on the "beach music" scene and latterly known as Billy Scott & The Georgia Prophets (1974-1985).

Their first release was a single produced by Tommy Witcher and Roy Smith and arranged by the session musician Emory Gordy Jr, with vocals by "Billy and Barbara" on For The First Time, the flip being a Bobby Bloom pop song. Their album is in the 'exploito' style, with covers of Traffic's Feelin Alright and Neil Young's Down By The River.

Jimmy Carl Black and Bunk Gardner were previously in the Mothers of Invention, Tjay Contrelli was in Love circa Da Capo and Denny Walley was a member of Big Mouth.

Their first album was produced by Keith Olsen (the former Music Machine/Millennium member) and should particularly interest the Zappa and Captain Beefheart fans. Musically it mixes blues (Low Ridin' Man), instrumental tracks (Siesta, Quaker's Earthquake) and rock tracks (Other Man, L.A. County Jail 59, Let Us Live); its high point being An American National Anthem written by Black about the Indian killings ("Indian Land is stolen, 52 million dead, each one's head is scalped by a trick taught by white man hunters coming over the land"). The lyrics and musicianship are both really strong. Buzz Gardner, Murray Roman and a small string section also played on this underrated album.

Denny Walley was a member of Captain Beefheart's live band from 1975-1977. He also recorded and toured with Frank Zappa beginning in the mid-seventies.

Geronimo Black reformed in 1980 to record Welcome Back on the small Helios label, with new versions of Low Ridin' Man, Other Man and An American National Anthem plus four new songs and covers of Hoochie Coochie Man and Lovesick Blues with the help of other ex-Mothers of Invention: Ray Collins, Don Preston and Buzz Gardner. Operated out of Mankato, Minnesota but they were an important part of the Minneapolis sixties scene. They were originally known as The Jesters but altered the spelling when they discovered there was another band of the same name. Run Run Run, a bouncy pop tune, actually made the Billboard Charts. The song was also recorded by The Castaways and like them The Gestures was quite influenced by the British invasion sound. All four of their tracks can be heard on the 1965 compilation The Big Hits Of Mid-America, Vol. 2 which also came out on the Soma label. Dale Menton, who fronted the band, was in several other Minnesota bands including The Best Things, The Madhatters, The Seraphic Street Sound and Buckwheat.

In 1996, Sundazed released Meet The Gestures, which contains all their single cuts, plus loads of unreleased material. The additional unreleased tracks confirm a strong British invasion beat era influence on the band. There are three more Dale Menton originals - two versions of I'm Not Mad, an instrumental Savage World and Stand By Me, a gentle beat ballad. The remainder of the material comprises cover versions, which injected enough of their own style and flavour to make them good sixties recordings: - Things We Said Today (two versions) (Beatles), She Cried (Jay and The Americans), Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying (Gerry and The Pacemakers), Can I Get A Witness (Marvin Gaye), Long Tell Texan (Coasters) and Hi-Heel Sneakers (Tommy Tucker). It seems these were recorded very soon after the release of their second single in the hope of releasing an album which didn't happen until Sundazed stepped in!

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Run, Run, Run on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP) and there's a previously unreleased demo version on Gravel Volume 3 (CD); Don't Mess Around on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 7: Backyard Patio (LP & CD); I'm Not Mad on Soma Records Story, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 2 (CD); Candlelight and It Seems To Me on Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP); Don't Mess Around and Run, Run, Run on Soma Records Story, Vol. 3 (LP); Run, Run, Run, Don't Mess Around and Candlelight on The Big Hits Of Mid-America - The Soma Records Story (2-CD); and It Seems To Me on Changes (LP) and Garage Dreams Revisited (7"). 45:	Laugh At The World/Third Side	(L.B.J.(What Now) 242) 196?

There was a veritable explosion of hard-rock bands in Michigan at the butt end of the sixties, particularly from the Upper Peninsula. Their obscure one-offs, mostly micro-presses on private labels, have become a special sub-genre dominated by uber-collectors, those with money to burn, given the hyper-asking-prices even after appearances on compilations.

This stereo single comes with a (PLAY LOUD) tag, was produced by Dave Heller, and both sides were composed by Miller & Lowenberg. A folksy blues-rocker is backed by Third Side, a screeching hard-rocker which was featured on Michigan Mixture Vol. 11 (LP). (MW)

The first album is an orchestrated folk-rock album that some 'deaf' dealers tend to present as psychedelic, probably because the liner notes talks about cosmic consciousness and that Ghent's publishing company was Peyotl Music. Produced by Jill Gibson, all the songs were penned by Ghent, who had a rather pleasant voice but no particular skills. The album is rather monotonous and better avoided.

Yankee Rebel's Son is essentially country-rock and was recorded with a second line-up of Ben Keith, Eddie Hinton, Charlie McCoy, Norbert Putnam (who also produced the album, and Dave Briggs. (SR/VJ)

The Ghosters were a long-lived and popular Benton Harbor, Michigan band with a repertoire of rockers and ballads. They released several singles with fair regional success; all except the first were on their own label and were recorded mainly at RCA and Universal studios in Chicago.

Don Jobe recalls: "The Ghosters was formed by a group of boy scout musicians from the Benton Harbor/Coloma Michigan area, ages 15 to 17, in March of 1964 to prepare as an exhibit for the southwestern Michigan

THE GESTURES - Meet The Gestures LP.

Council Boy Scouts of America Scout-O-Rama held at the Berrien County fairgrounds in Berrien Springs, Michigan. The first public performance was given over a two day period at that event in May 1964.

"The band gave itself away to six winners of a drawing held at the conclusion of the Scout-O-Rama. The winners could use the band free of charge for any event they desired (assorted parties, benefits, etc.). The promotional scheme was well publicised in the local newspapers several times and led the band to join the American Federation of Musicians and some steady work for teen events (dances, proms, homecomings, etc.).

"In the late sixties the band became one of the most popular college (primarily University of Michigan, Western Michigan University, Nazareth College, and Lake Michigan College) and bar bands in the Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, South Haven and northern and middle Indiana areas. In the early seventies the band became a four-piece when, during the Vietnam War, drummer Mike Lewis joined the army. Lead singer Don Jobe took on the drumming duties.

"In 1974, the band re-formed and established itself in the Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, and South Haven areas. The only remaining original member was Don Jobe. New members of the Ghosters who stayed with the band until 1989 were Jim Hallberg, Dan Stersic, and Mike Jannecke. After 25 years of steady gigs, the Ghosters disbanded in 1989."

What happened to the members of the band? "Don Jobe has been a high school English teacher since the late sixties at Hopkins High School, Hopkins, Michigan and a driver education instructor. Wayne (Lance) Nelson, an accountant, served as Vice-President of Van Buren State Bank in Hartford, where he was elected Mayor for two terms. Mike Lewis is a retired medical administrator now living in Florida. Guy Berley is a social worker in Indiana. Virgil Callender works in home construction as a contractor. Jim Hallberg was a high school band director and a teacher at Thornapple-Kellogg Public Schools. Mike Jannecke owned his own propane gas business. Dan Stersic has been working for Kalamazoo Public Schools for over 20 years."

Going To Have A Party has also been compiled on 50 Early Rocking Tracks (CD). (MW with thanks to Don Jobe/SR/VJ)

	ESP/Hot Line Conversation	(Uni 55155) 1969

From Santa Barbara, California this band evolved out of Ernie's Funnys. Their albums are now very minor collectors' items, and their material patchy. For example, Listen Girl is excellently warped pop-punk, in a UK-freakbeat style, busy with effects, but its flip side, Summer Breezes, is bitterly disappointing acoustic harmony dross. Their cover of Hi Ho Silver Lining is also a letdown - a lightweight over-arranged pop affair - yet Hot Line Conversation is a heavy, screeching fuzz-rocker. Their cover of ESP is more excellent hard-rock with phasing and has resurfaced on Artificial Faces (LP). The Cool It Helios album opens with a sound effects and narration track by Dave Diamond, best known for the Diamond Mine track on Pebbles, Vol 3 (LP).

45: Awake In A Dream/Look At The Girls (Poppy 504) 1968

This is one of the best ridiculous band-names of the sixties but, as is often the case, the music is not as weird and wonderful as one might expect. A side project for Jim Ryan, Awake In A Dream is a fine Pet Sounds-influenced version of the original he did with the Critters while the flip is engaging harmony-pop ala Cyrkle.

Look At The Girls is mellow Beach Boys-a-la-Pet Sounds fare, which has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 3 (CD). So, this single is nothing to freak out about. (MW)

	February Sunshine/Big Apple	(Ode 102) 1967	106
	What's So Good About Goodbye/ Mark Twain	(Ode 104) 1967	116

The Blokes was a Los Angeles teen quartet that had formed in 1964 in response to the English Invasion. The next year they moved into Byrds territory and a year after that, the rise of The Mamas & The Papas resulted in the acquisition of singer Diana DeRose. A rebranding as Giant Sunflower completed their transformation into a flower-power pop group. Their debut was picked up by Ode for national distribution and, with Lou Adler's involvement; comparisons to the Mamas & Papas were inevitable. Still they still didn't quite reach the Top 100 so another change was deemed necessary and they became The Rose Garden.

February Sunshine can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP), it typified the commercialism of flower-power pop in this era. (VJ/MW/RuJ)

45: Oh! Sweet Love/Keep It Up (Harbour/Buddah 308) 1968

Gidians Bible (IN)

45: Love Is The Answer/The Dream (Golden Voice 834G-2377) 19??

This ultra-rare garage-psych single by an Indiana band is currently uncompiled. Love Is The Answer features lots of fuzzy guitar. The flip is mellow with some organ/psych moves towards the end. Some copies came with an inner sleeve that had the band's business card and a WNAP radio survey stapled to the paper sleeve. The single dates from 1969 or 1970. (VJ)

45: She's My Baby (Part 1)/(Part 2) (Power 259-945) 1981

Supposedly an obscure Los Angeles band, this single actually dates from 1981 and was a fake single put out by Erik Lindgren in Massachusetts. A "fools-gold-nugget" in the vein of Katz Kradle, Huntsmen and Wolfmen, She's My Baby has nonetheless been compiled on Pebbles Vol. 8: Southern California (CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP). It's a pounding rocker! (MW/MM)

ALBUM: 1(A) HEXAGRAM 16 (Warner Bros. WS-1910) 1971

This was the only solo album of Russ Giguere and is much better than most of his previous work with The Association.

Hexagram 16 was co-produced by Giguere and John Boylan, who also contributed a song he'd earlier recorded with Appletree Theatre. The album is a good mix of California pop and folk with some brilliant guitar parts, the most notable songs being In New Germany, Brother Speed and the ambitiously orchestrated Pegasus. (SR)

Jimmy Gilbert (MI)

45: Believe What I Say/
So Together We'll Live (Darn-L 853-D-5264) 196?

An obscure Michigan-based outfit, both sides of this disc can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP). Believe What I Say is a good pop-punk song with quite a lot of fuzz that has also been compiled on Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). The flip is more poppy. (VJ)

John Gilbert/Meade River (KY)

ALBUM: 1 JOHN GILBERT/MEADE RIVER (AV Records) 1972 R2

This album was made as a tribute to Kentucky-based John Gilbert who died in a car crash at just 17. Side one consists of his instrumental guitar workouts and side two is split between psych-rock played by the whole band and sparse folk. The album was financed and released by his parents. His group Meade River was reported to have been named after a military operation during the Vietnam War. (VJ)

The Gillian Row (OH)

Personnel:	DAVE
	JOE

A hairy punk quartet whose raw version of Them's Gloria is one of the choice cuts on the rare 1966, WONE, The Dayton Scene (LP). This features one cut each from a dozen Daytonian acts, selected from the WONE sponsored three-day 'Battle Of The Bands'.

Their image matches the sound - not prepared to pose well-dressed or in matching outfits in front of a curtain or plain backdrop, these rebels with the Pretty Things look are pictured crouching in a dingy brick-and-plaster corner of a garage or cellar.

Regrettably The Gillian Row didn't graduate to releasing their own singles, like Jerry and The Others (who provide the other choice cut on the WONE LP), The Dawks and The X-cellents. Still, you can hear their two-minute 24-second legacy on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP). (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) GINGER (Cheap Swank no #S80-423-2676) 1973 R2

From Minnesota, this album was released by the group after the death of Bob Edwards, their lead singer. Side one contains poorly recorded live and studio cuts recorded with Edwards, whilst side two consists of songs written in his memory and recorded in the studio during 1972-73. Musically it's rural psych-rock, organ driven, with an under-mixed lead guitar and trippy effects, and vocals by a brother of Edwards. It came in a plain white cover, some with inserts. (SR)

45: Country Life/Ginger (International Artists IA-142) 1969
NB: promo copies in translucent green vinyl.

Probably from Texas, a rural-rock group influenced by The Byrds (jangly guitar and harmonies), with some fuzz on Country Life. This was one of the last records released by this famous label.

Compilation appearances have included: Country Life and Ginger on International Artists Singles Collection (LP); and Country Life also made it onto Austin Landing. (SR)

NB: 'A' side by Up.

The famous beat poet and activist recorded an album of William Blake's poems set to music. He also recorded a single to support John Sinclair (MC5) and worked with The Fugs as well as supplying the title track to Tonite Let's All Make Love In London (LP) soundtrack.

	Let's Play Make Believe/No Ma, It Can't Be	(ABC 11199) 1969

Glad was originally formed when four sophomores at Encina High School in Sacramento, California formed a surf instrumental group called The Contenders in 1963. They were also known as Tim, Tom and Ron and The New Mind. By 1965 they had changed name again to The New Breed and achieved some commercial success locally. When Los Angeles producer Terry Melcher (Doris Day's son) signed them to his Equinox label, he changed their name again to the hippier-sounding Glad. They recorded two psychedelic singles for Equinox, and two for ABC. Produced by Eirik Wangberg, the album is in a flower-power pop/soft-rock vein with lots of harmonies and orchestration. It's sought-after by some collectors but is in fact quite bland. Schmit went on to play for Poco and later The Eagles.

Unhappy with the style imposed by Melcher, the other three formed another country-influenced outfit, Redwing, who recorded five albums for Fantasy during the 1970s.

From Tyler, Texas a rock group fronted by Rhone (ex-Mouse and The Traps) and Voelker (ex-Rio Grande). Their two albums were produced by Robin Hood Brians and Randy Fouts.

Their two albums feature ex-members of several Texas groups: Five Americans, Rio Grande, Michael Rabon and Choctaw... plus the ubiquitous session men Ron Tutt and Jerry Scheff.

Musically, they were very close to Brewer and Shipley, Burton and Cunico and numerous early seventies groups with vocal harmonies, combining electric and acoustic guitars with hippie values. (SR/MW)

Although sometimes seen described as soft-psych or hippie-rock, the album by The Glass Bottle (a sextet with two female singers) is in fact a tedious vocal pop effort with material comprised of covers and songs from soundtracks. Only one track, Red River Sal deserves to be heard as it has a surprising heavy rock feel with some good electric guitar work. Their album was produced by Bill Ramal and Dickie Goodman.

The flip side to their second single, Things, was a Bobby Darin cover. This New Jersey outfit issued several other singles on Avco Embassy.

Gary Criss was ex-Gary Criss and His Crystals.

Avco Embassy also issued albums by Liquid Smoke and Bead Game. (SR/RHn/JosephVaccarino)

	Guess I'll Let You Go/ David's Rap (promo only)	(Warner Bros. PRO 309) 1969

Produced by Richard Podolor (Steppenwolf, Jamul), a Santa Cruz, California outfit whose album is pleasant soft L.A. flower-power with several good psychedelic cuts, including Agorn (Elements Of Complex Variables). Their material was written by Ralph Parrett, except for Agorn and I Want To See My Baby, which he co-wrote with Green and Capilouto.

The flip to Sidewalk 920 is unknown; it may only have been issued as a double 'A' side. Teenage Rebellion is good fuzzy pop and was also the title track to the Teenage Rebellion (LP) soundtrack.

Both sides of the promo-only single are stereo and billed as "The Glass Family Electric Band". David's Rap is David Capilouto "telling his friends about the LP"; he sounds pleased, if not high, and just about every sentence ends with "man"!

They also had one track I'm Losing It on the 1967 compilation Freakout U.S.A.! (LP). Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Guess I'll Let You Go on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 11 (LP) and Slowly Growing Insane (CD); Agorn (Elements Of Complex Variables) on Psychedelic Visions (CD); I'm Losing It on Filling The Gap (4-LP); and House Of Glass meanwhile is included on the EP accompanying the French book "Le Rock Psychedelique Vol.1". Glass Harp formed in Youngstown, Ohio in the late sixties and were among the State's prime flag bearers of the British invasion. Phil Keaggy had earlier played in The Squires, Volume IV and New Hudson Exit.

In 1969 they recorded a single for United Audio and an unreleased acetate-only album of rock and psych material. Only ten copies of the acetate album were made, which contained both sides of the United Audio single plus I've Just Begun, a typical slice of Zombies' - influenced pop and six other tracks, some with heavy wah-wah guitar. One copy of the acetate was sent to Apple Records in the hope of getting a contract, but it was rejected. The bass player on these United Audio recordings was Steve Markulin, a cousin of Joe "Ting" Markulin, The Human Beinz rhythm guitarist. Dann Pecchio joined later and he is featured on all the Decca recordings.

Their Decca albums, which are in a progressive/psychedelic style with Christian themed lyrics, are beginning to interest some collectors.

Both tracks on their first single Where Did My World Come From/She Told Me were written by Phil Keaggy, who also produced several records for Ohio area garage bands and later achieved success in the Christian music movement.

One track from the 1969 United Audio sessions, I've Just Begun has subsequently re-surfaced on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP). (VJ/MMy/GGI/MW/BWd)

2(A) ON JOY AND SORROW (RCA LSP-4270) 1970

45: The Raven/El Dorado (RCA Victor 74-0205) 1969

Their first album is an attempt to set poems by Edgar Allan Poe to a rock format. Although they don't really pull it off the music isn't bad on cuts like The Raven. Much more relevant is the second album, which features some great guitar work, especially on Extention 68. Both albums are available quite cheaply. The band was mostly Italian Americans who came from the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre area of Pennsylvania. They were previously known as El Caminos and also made recordings under that name.

45s: Silence Of The Morning/Oh Sandy (Sound Patterns 139) 1968
I Can See The Light/Stick Over Me (Sound Patterns 150) 197?

From Ypsilanti, Michigan this outfit's tenure was 1964-1972 and they were originally known as The Cyclones.

Their first single, Silence Of The Morning is a stunning slice of guitar-driven psychedelic punk which is well worth checking out. The flip is disappointing in comparison. Their second single, I Can See The Light, is a heavy slab of bad-trip psych-grunge.

The band is still rockin' and rollin' in the 21st century.

Compilation appearances have included: Silence Of The Morning and Stick Over Me on Michigan Mixture, Vol. 1 (LP); Silence In The Morning on Sixties Archive Vol. 6 (CD), Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol.1 (LP & CD), An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD); and I Can See The Light on Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 1 - 60 Miles High (LP & CD). NB: Some white label promos have Dry Your Eyes labels on both sides but do play It's Only A Dream on flip.

This late sixties Cincinnati, Ohio band included Bayless and Coghill from The Chosen Lot. Before that both of them and Mendell were in The Continentals, whose only release appeared as by the Experimental Blues Band. Denny Bayless described Glass Wall as "one of the area's most popular bands. Two drummers and two Hammond B3 players, guitar, and bass - it was powerful music! There was a 25 year reunion in the late nineties where all the old members gathered for a big concert in the park for a huge crowd."

After The Glass Wall, Mike Connor went on to Pure Prairie League. Steve Mendell moved to Nashville and was in White Duck, before relocating to Texas where he played and did engineering for Willie Nelson. Bayless moved to Nashville and spent a few years playing drums for Ray Stevens in his "Everything Is Beautiful" period. He remained in Nashville, doing sessions and road shows for many of the big country stars.

Larry Goshorn was previously with The Sacred Mushroom; like Connor he was later in Pure Praire League. (MW w/thanks to Denny Bayless)

NB: 1st shown as by Pop Art, 2nd shown as by Dave Heenan Set.

A Great Neck, Long Island band who first came together in 1965 as The Justice League. By the time they made their debut single, they were known as Pop Art. Lead vocalist Mike Gayle left during the recording of the follow-up and was replaced by British ex-pat and former Mersey Lad Dave Heenan; the single was released as by The Dave Heenan Set. That line-up didn't last long and Heenan departed the scene. The original members regrouped and, joined by ex-Flying Machine drummer O'Brien, became Glitterhouse. They came to the attention of Bob Crewe and started work on their album in early 1968; Crewe also used them on some of the tracks for the 'Barbarella' movie. Unfortunately their singles bombed and when the album eventually emerged with minimal promotion, lack of success and gigs finished the band.

There was a brief reunion in 1974 and again in 2002. The retrospective CD contains the Pop Art single, Alice In Wonderland from the Dave Heenan Set single, a 1967 audition tape of New York Blues, a pair of 1968 demos, four tracks from the 1974 reunion, and a dozen recreations (2002 re-recordings of their album tracks plus the three songs they did for Barbarella).

Michael Gayle wrote all the songs on their album and by far the best cuts are on side one. Tinkerbell's Mind, Princes Of The Gingerland and Child Of Darkness (Journey Of A Child Traveller) are all symphonic psych-pop in a Procol Harum vein and are worth seeking out. Also of note is Happy To Have You Here Again, which has a good-time feel with some chirpy keyboards and nice harmonies.

Mark "Moogy" Klingman went to play in a later line-up of The Vagrants and in 1969 was heavily involved in the series of 'super-sessions' (with Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck, Keith Emerson, Harvey Mandel, Linda Ronstadt) which became known as Music From Free Creek album.

45s: Holy Roller/Climbin' The Walls (Advanced Promo 189249) 1972
But I'm Tired/Sunshine Floods All Over Me (Skratchy 451) 1975

The album was a studio project masterminded by Linden Hudson at Walt Andrus' studio in Houston. Hudson produced, engineered and sang on it. Despite being a lighthearted exercise, it does contain some good music: - bluesy jams with guitar, harmonica and organ. It features only six tracks in all, including the long Spin Me A Rag, Slow Rock'n'Roll and Studio Blues Jam. The liner notes written by "Jack Smack" stand out: "Meat Music is the next best thing to sex, as a matter of fact; one could say that they are one-in-the-same. When Meat music and sex are combined... well, it's swell. In this sampler album, Glory has combined meat music with neat music and even some sweet music (...) This bit of wax will, perhaps, give you some idea about where America's Glory truly lies (or is it lays)".

Hudson and friends returned in 1972 to record the non-album Holy Roller single. The later 1975 single was an acoustic effort involving Texas guitarist Van Wilkes and at least one former member of Homer.

The Lost Songs (A Meat Music Sequel) contains five Glory cuts from 1974 to 2001. Of these Seventeen (from 1984) featured a guest appearance from Texas guitarist Rusty Burns performing with gusto; Sunshine Came Down (from 1974) is mellow rural-rock with an appearance from Van Wilks; Moon Shinin' (from 1979) featured an unknown lead guitarist and Linden Hudson, who wrote and sung on the these three tracks. Hudson wrote, played all the instruments and sang on the other two - the bluesy Forget All About It and Mechanic Annie (both from 2001). It's certainly worth a spin. (VJ/SR)

Glory was probably San Diego's longest-lived underground rock band, lasting from the late sixties until the early eighties when Raney formed The Beat Farmers (who themselves issued nine records!).

Raney and Pinney had previously played together in The Roosters, the house band at San Diego's Cinnamon Cinder club. Pinney, Willis, Morse and DeLoach were all ex-Iron Butterfly alumni, and Bennett had recorded with The Brain Police.

The recent Rockadelic album contains a live concert by the band from 1970 which was broadcast on San Diego's underground radio station KPRI, and here the band are revealed to be purveyors of a dark but energetic blues-rock style. Another release is planned, collecting material from several line-ups of the band and including some of their seventies vinyl output, which is all extremely rare. (CF)

ALBUM: 1 EXIT (Hand In Hand HHGR-1000) 1977 R1

This is an obscure melodic rural progressive album with nice vocal harmonies from an Arizona religious band. The opening cut Exit-Glory Road has a classic artsy progressive hard-rock guitar overture. The album also contains a number of rural acoustic songs as well as a couple of dreamy soft-psych tracks: Straight Gate delicately utilises flute and reverse guitars and the mostly-acoustic New Jerusalem is similar with trippy synthesisers and wah-wah guitar. Some collectors rate this quite highly. (VJ)

Acetate: Cheatin' (Hollywood Central Recorders no#) 1968

NB: one-sided 8" metal acetate, one song only.

This long-lived San Diego, California band went through a number of personnel changes and included several notable musicians... Rick Randle (Man-Dells, The Other Four, The Brain Police); Roger Flores (Brat); Terry Fann (Framework). They also changed styles with the passing years. Line-up 'A' was a Buffalo Springfield/Byrds-type of band, characterised by Bravens' 12-string guitar. Line-up 'B' that recorded Cheatin' was a gritty blues-based rock band, and the 'C' and 'D' line-ups were loud heavy-rock (described to me as cross between The Who and Black Sabbath!). While the band recorded several times, the tapes have yet to surface, and it is possible that Amado Santos may have the band's audio archive. He was last thought to be in Houston, Texas, but his current whereabouts are unknown.

In 1972, the band became Madame Beast (with the addition of female vocalist Leslie Lyons) and toured the USA extensively after signing with a booking agency. They continued (with various personnel changes) until 1975.

The band also made a single in 1968 that was issued under the name Mixed Grill. (CF)

This New York-based avant-garde rock group's albums have not aged well but do deserve a mention here. From the same label as The Fugs, their recorded output (I've avoided using the word music) was even more anarchic. It tended to consist of wailing unmelodic vocals, avant-garde solos and various background noises. Their second album does include two more structured tracks, Radar Eyes and Soon The Moon, but Squeek probably epitomises best the sound they were striving to achieve. Overall, their third album is a slightly more structured and successful psychedelic venture, which makes more effective use of sound effects than their second effort. It also contains a few folky numbers like Walking Guitar Blues and Neet Street. Their fourth album was more in the mainstream rock mould but better produced. Certainly, the first three albums are for fans of highly experimental avant-garde rock only.

Jim McCarthy (ex-Dick Watson 5) also recorded a solo album, Alien (ESP-3003) 1973, on which Paul Thornton plays maraccas. The session musicians included Left Banke members Steve Martin and George Cameron. It's pretty typical singer/songwriter stuff with Word Of Honour the stand-out track.

In the nineties German label Zyx reissued the entire ESP catalogue on CD, including Godz Bless California, which comprised unreleased material and outtakes from 1970-74.

You can also check out Radar Eyes on Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD). (VJ/DSb)

45:	No Parking/ Summer Time	(Golden State Recorders GSR-501) 1969

From San Francisco, their single was part-produced by Country Joe in late 1969 at Leo De Gar Kulka's Golden State Recorders, whose legacy has been explored by Big Beat in the Nuggets From The Golden State series. The band also recorded an album, which remained unreleased until Rockadelic came to the rescue in 1995. Side one is best: No Parking and Righteous Road are high-energy rock; Conquistadore has some Santana-influenced percussion and Summer Dresses is essentially hippie-pop; but the stand out track is the laid-back High On Love, which has some lovely melodic guitar. Side two is less impressionable.

The band was managed by Ron Cabral along with his brother Dennis from 1968 to 1973. They played shows at both the Fillmore and Winterland with groups such as: Big Brother and the Holding Company, Hot Tuna, Ten Years After, Malo, and Mike Bloomfield. They also recorded and appeared with Country Joe McDonald.

Mission Rock features line-up (B) performing 13 live cuts, recorded in 1971 in San Francisco - loose, jammy, West Coast blues-rock, with occasional Santana-like vibes from congas and Latin percussion. Robin Sinclair was originally from Texas and spent some time in Chicago with her former band, Salloom-Sinclair (And The Mother Bear), before heading west; her raw and expressive vocals suit the material and could certainly be compared to Janis Joplin. The repertoire is predominantly originals; there's a cover of You Can't Judge A Book plus a couple of numbers written by the band's inspirational friend Country Joe (Summer Dresses and Piece Of Your Action).

San Francisco Origins 1970 features a 1970 live set from the Fillmore West which includes a primitive version of their Golden State Recorders single.

Sebastian Nicholson and Richard Coco are now sadly deceased.

No Parking and a previously unreleased effort I Saw You can also be found on the Big Beat's What A Way To Come Down (CD) compilation. (VJ/MW)

Originally from Chicago, Barry Goldberg is a singer, songwriter, producer and pianist who was very active between 1965 and 1976 on the Chicago and San Francisco scenes, generally playing a combination of electric blues with soul and rock.

In 1966, after the Goldberg-Miller Blues Band, he released his first solo album, produced by Billy Sherrill and then formed the Chicago Loop with Mike Bloomfield who would soon move to California.

In 1967, Goldberg was asked to join the Electric Flag by Bloomfield and Gravenites. Shortly afterwards, he signed a long-term contract with Buddah Records and recorded four albums for the label, the best of which is Two Jews Blues containing songs like Jimi The Fox (dedicated to Hendrix), Spirit Of Trane (for Coltrane) and Blues For Barry And, with excellent guitar parts by Bloomfield, Harvey Mandel, Duane Allman and Eddie Hinton.

In 1972 he joined Neil Merryweather for the Ivar Avenue Reunion album and kept on working constantly with Bloomfield on his solo albums, the reformed Electric Flag and the creation of KGB. Goldberg was also a producer, notably for Mother Earth, David Blue, James Cotton and The Rockets. The band also had links with The Music Machine. Ron Edgar drummed with The Goldebriars, Keith Olsen later married Sheri Holmberg and the Goldebriars' tour manager Sean Bonniwell later borrowed their 'all in black' image for The Music Machine. (AGo/JFr/MW)

Some of this hippie singer's songs were compiled on the Hippie Goddesses CD. (SR)

The Golden Catalinas hailed from La Crosse in southwest Wisconsin. They were originally known as The Catalinas, recording an instrumental for Cuca in 1962 and a three more singles before adding the 'Golden' to their name in 1965.

With the new name came a change of image - gold suits, gold shoes and bleached hair. Varsity Club Song, a raw garage punker with classic nasal vocals and organ beat, paid homage to one of La Crosse's top teen clubs in the mid-sixties. A rather messy production though.

Drummer Jim Kelly had previously played with The Phaetons. Alan Posniak left the band in 1966 and formed Target Productions, which would be home to the Target and Tee Pee labels. Pete Sorce joined the band for the Dee Dee single. He started performing in 1948, aged 10, and had been recording solo and with backing groups (incl. The Driftwoods) since 1959. He would also work with The Pharaohs, Good Intentions and Big Apple.

Compilation appearances include: Can Your Monkey Do The Dog on Tougher Than Stains (LP); and Varsity Club Song on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP). (VJ/GM/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) POWER PLANT (International Artists IA-LP-4) 1967 R1

NB: (1) has had a limited vinyl repressing as part of a box set (International Artists) in 1979 and was counterfeited on vinyl (International Artists IALP-4) 1986. (1) reissued again on vinyl (Decal LIK-24) 1988. (1) reissued CD (Fan Club NRCD 4126) and again on CD (Eva B26) in 1992. (1) reissued on vinyl (Get Back GET539) 1999 and on CD (Sunspots SPOT 513) 2002 remastered and housed in a mini-card gatefold sleeve, limited to 1,500 copies. (1) reissued on CD (Charly SNAX 6023 CD) 2008 in deluxe packaging.

Taking their name from the esoteric teachings and philosophy of the Hermetic Tradition, this band was formed in Austin, Texas in 1967. The 13th Floor Elevators got them a recording contract with International Artists. Indeed, George Kinney and Roky Erickson had grown up together in South Austin, attended the same school and played together in The Fugitives, a garage band from 1964/65. Kinney also played in Chelsea from late 1965 to late 1966 joining The Golden Dawn at the invitation of some high school friends when Chelsea fell apart.

The album is one of the best on the label with fine psychedelic instrumentation and thought provoking lyrics. The material is consistently good and it's hard to select highlights. On the liners to the Charly reissue

THE GOLDBERG-MILLER BLUES BAND - The Mother Song (Promo 45 PS)

Kinney explains what some of these songs are about. For example, Evolution is about the brand of psychological evolution 'developed by the philosophers Gurdjieff and Ouspenski'; I'll Be Around was a song 'criticising the status quo level of thinking' and is saying that the new ideas offered in the album and elsewhere are superior to the old worldview'; My Time was about Kinney's rebellious relationship with his dad; A Nice Surprise was about 'the importance of seeing things in a new light'; and Ever Day was a love song lamenting the loss of a woman's love'. Sadly, International Artists delayed the album's release until after The 13th Floor Elevators' Easter Everywhere (which was a fatal blow to the band, which was then regarded by many as an Elevators copy band) and failed to promote it when it was released.

The band fell apart when Kinney, determined to have nothing more to do with International Artists, headed for California. Together with George Banks (who did the artwork for the album) Kinney later published Roky Erickson's book "Openers" whilst Roky was in Rusk State Hospital and the book helped to win his release. Bill Hallmark went on to sing and play guitar for Rubayyat along with the 13th Floor Elevators' Danny Galindo.

One cut from the album, Starvation, was later issued on an EP by Radarscope (RAD 88) 1978 in the U.K. along with cuts by the 13th Floor Elevators, The Red Krayola and The Lost and Found. Copies were given away at Red Krayola's 1978 reunion gig at London's Hope and Anchor pub.

Bill Kinney reformed the band in 2001. They did a West Coast tour in 2004 and there's a live CD of some gigs from the tour, The Legend Of The Dawn. Jimmy Bird and Bill Hallmark both played on their 2006 Texas Medecine CD.

Compilation appearances include: My Time on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP), Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD) and there's a live version on Potbuster (CD), which was given away with 'Ptolemaic Terrascope 33'. Much later, in 2007, a recording of George Kinney & The New Riders Of The Purple Sage called Step Down Satan was on Timemazine #2 (CD) which came free with the fanzine. (VJ)

The Golden Gate (PA/NY)

ALBUM: 1 YEAR ONE (Audio Fidelity AFSD-6230) 1969

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Now Sounds CRNOW 12) 2009.

This was a New York City/Philadelphia studio project that has recently got a timely reissue. Billy Carlucci and Reid Whitelaw were a pair of New York-based songwriters who, after kicking around the business for several years, penned Goody Goody Gumdrops for the 1910 Fruitgum Company. It was the first of a string of pop songs the team would write for the Kasenetz-Katz bubblegum empire, and they formed a bubblegum act of their own, Marshmallow Way, who cut an album for United Artists.

GOLDEN DAWN - Power Plant LP.

By 1970, Carlucci and Whitelaw had ambitions to make music that was classier and more mature, and they signed a deal with Audio Fidelity Records for their new project. The Golden Gate combined polished pop tunes and a production that matched the well-crafted pop/rock of acts like The Buckinghams with horn-based arrangements in the manner of Chicago and Blood, Sweat & Tears. Year One is full of bright orchestrated pop with songs like High On A Melody and Monday After Sunday decidedly commercial and tracks like Ready, Willing and Able, Diane and Ridin' High exhibiting a clear Four Seasons influence. This album is for fans of East Coast vocal harmonies and strident pop. (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Heyoka HEY 205) 1985. (1) reissued again on vinyl (World In Sound Records RFR011) 2000 in a heavy duty sleeve and featuring a detailed insert with band history and bonus tracks. (1) also on CD (World In Sound Records WIS 1012) 2002 with bonus tracks.

From Los Angeles, Goldenrod was part of the "Our Productions" crew, along with Mike Deasy, Lee Mallory and Curt Boettcher. As part of this talented group of people, they contributed to numerous albums and sessions in addition to those released as Goldenrod. Some of these included Tommy Roe, Darius and backing the Association on their first two albums. Much of this session work was done on a "conveyor belt" system; with all the instrumental tracks being cut at Gary Paxton's studio, and vocals for the more well-known acts cut at Columbia.

All three had earlier played with Ballroom with Boettcher and together with Mallory; they formed the basis of the original line-up of Millennium. Scheff contributed Dandelion Wine to the Millennium repertoire, but all three left when it looked like Millennium would turn into a 'proper' band rather than a studio project. Goldenrod is also thought to have backed Lee Mallory live.

The Goldenrod album contains four long instrumental tracks consisting of extended and improvised jamming with mystical titles, such as Karmic Dream Sequences and Descent Of The Cyclopeans. The former was written by Curt Boettcher and Lee Mallory, and was later also recorded by Millennium.

Apparently the group first met while they were recruited to back The Fifth Dimension and they all went on to become top L.A. session men; Scheff also went on to back Elvis Presley and Benay appeared in Fun Zone in the seventies. (VJ/MW/JFr)

45: Strike/Gutterball (PS) (A&R 714) 1962/3

Formed in 1961 by students attending Ramona High School in Riverside, California earlier line-ups reportedly included Glenn Campbell, long before he joined the Misunderstood. According to the album notes, The Goldtones soon started picked up awards, including first place at "one of California's most important music festivals, The Starcapades".

The album liner notes also echo some of the backlash directed at the second wave of British Invasion bands, claiming that this band achieved their success "without the aid of the usual standard props such as long unkempt hair, the unwashed look and high heel boots with skin tight pants". Indeed, this was no garage band; The Goldtones were old school cabaret/showband ...and already old hat, with their sparkly-gold jackets, matching gold shoes, and short, slicked hair.

Basically they were a flash covers band, captured 'live' in front of a small crowd of squealing girls. The material ranges from R'n'R/dance/soul favourites (High Heel Sneakers, Wooly Bully, Walkin' The Dog) to recent hits (Downtown, Go Now, My Girl Sloopy). Most noteworthy is their attempt at Them's Gloria and the lone original, I'll Love Her.

The final liner note confirms just how out of touch the writer and band were "This is their first LP release. For certain there will be many more." Yeah, right.... Randy Seol's appearance on his next album was somewhat different - bedecked in kaftan, draped in beads, surrounded by paisley cushions and psychedelic ephemera, and with "long unkempt hair" ...in the Strawberry Alarm Clock !

I'll Love You from their album has got another airing on Quagmire Volume 4 (CD); and Gutterball and Strike from 1966 have been compiled on Diggin' Out (LP). (MW/SR/VJ)

GOLIATH - Self Titled CD.

This Indiana band formed from the remnants of other outfits. Bennett and Egy had been in Terre Haute's XL's, other members came from The Kicks and Sons Of Sound. A dozen cuts, recorded at the Allen-Martin Studios in Louisville, Kentucky for an unreleased album in 1970, comprise the Gear Fab retrospective. This was recorded by line-up (B) as Ted Bennett left the band after a few months. The 12-track album is comprised entirely of originals that range from riff-heavy hard-rock with throbbing keyboards to mellow, strummed rock ballads with a country flavour.

George Phelps, George 'Charlie' Egy and Paul 'Doug' Mason left to join The Carnations who became Raven.

The Peters brothers led the band for several more years and the line-up had changed considerably (the sleevenotes to the Gear Fab reissue name some of musicians who have passed through their ranks) by the time they released the Hot Rock & Thunder album. The Bridges album is housed in a fantasy cover.

Produced by Mann, Segall and Lowe and recorded at Sigma Sound studios in Philadelphia, the sole album of this forgotten group was strongly influenced by Vanilla Fudge, with long organ parts, various percussions, a deep voiced singer and slow motion covers of the Beatles' Eleanor Rigby, Bert Berns' Are You Lonely For Me Baby, Otis Redding's Loving You Too Long and Curtis Mayfield's Man's Temptation. Porterville/Call It Pretending (Scorpio 412) 1967

When Tommy and The Blue Velvets signed with Fantasy, they became The Golliwogs, much to the group's embarrassment. The seven singles on Fantasy and its affiliated Scorpio label show their evolution, from a Beatles-influenced group led by Tom Fogerty (born 9th November 1941) vocals and guitar to a rock, country and R&B act totally dominated by his younger brother John (born 28th May 1945). A gifted singer, songwriter and guitarist, John soon relegated his brother to rhythm guitar.

The singles are rare but can be found on The Golliwogs compilation album released in 1975. Alternatively, compilation appearances have so far included: Brown-Eyed Girl on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP) and Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD); Fight Fire on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Walking On The Water on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); and Brown-Eyed Girl, Call It Pretending, Fragile Child, Fight Fire, Walking On Water, You Better Be Careful and You Better Get It Before It Gets You on The Scorpio Records Story (CD).

THE LOUDEST BAND IN TOWN

GONN - The Loudest Band In Town LP.

Based in Keokuk, Iowa they emerged out of the ashes of The Pagans, a garage covers band, of which Moore, Gabel and La Master had been members. They were a controversial 'live' act and won backing from Bill Egan after he'd seen them playing a show in Burlington and wanted them to back him on a single. The deal was, they'd back him on two songs if he'd pay for them to record two of their own. So they backed him on Eddie Cochran's C'mon Everybody and Kansas City, which never got a release, whilst their two songs were issued on the Emir label. Late in 1966 they entered a basement studio in Quincy, Illinois to record a tape of cover versions for a guy in Florida who'd promised to get them lots of gigs down there. Fortunately, Craig Moore kept a copy of it and many of the songs can now be heard on their retrospective Rough Diamonds and Frenzology albums, because they never heard any more of the tape they sent to Florida.

1967 saw some personnel changes with Colvin and Stepp leaving to be replaced by La Master and Johnson. This line-up returned to Quincy to record another self-penned Garrett-Moore composition (the flip was a Kinks cover) which they released on their own Merry Jaine Records. Further convoluted line-ups took place in 1968.

When the split came, Gabel formed an eight-piece called Mother Hooker's Blues Band and Moore and Johnson formed a blues trio, Trinity.

The Voxx album, or the later Frenzology retrospectives are highly recommended, containing their fuzz-punker Blackout Of Gretely, the keyboard-led Come With Me (To The Stars), an unreleased single Doin' Me In and a number of spirited cover versions.

Craig Moore now runs a collectors label MCCM, which has put out reissue/retrospective singles on artists including Al's Untouchables and The Intruders. Other releases include a solo double album from 1989 Agonnagain (coloured vinyl 500 pressed), a 1994 7" EP Sun Session with Jim McCarty of The Yardbirds (recorded at Sun, Memphis, 1992) with a cover of Yardbirds' Evil Hearted You, and a new 7" Fine Surprise/Gonna Come For You from an upcoming album that also features Jim McCarty, Chris Dreja and The Creation's Eddie Phillips.

As for The Gonn, they have continued to be held in high regard and this has led to them reforming and releasing new material in addition to being actively involved in compiling their original sixties material. The two 30th Anniversary Reunion singles, released on Craig Moore's own MCCM imprint, reveal more about the band's recent activities. First off they reunited in 1990 for a festival held in Keokuk. Then, when Craig was assembling the Frenzology compilation in 1996 he got in touch with all the other members for their contributions to the project. The rekindled enthusiasm resulted in a full-blown reunion to celebrate their 30th anniversary with new recordings plus some live gigs in the U.S. and Europe.

It is to their credit that the new recordings on the singles recapture much of their sixties spirit and sound, and will NOT dilute their reputation. The had a new album, Gonn With The Wind a few years back in multi-coloured vinyl and limited to 500 numbered copies.

Compilation appearances to date have included: Blackout Of Gretely on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and The Chosen Few, Vol. 1 (LP); Doin' Me In on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), and Trash Box (5-CD); Signed D.C. on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8: Love Covers (LP & CD); and The Wind and When I Was Young on Garage Rock From The Heartland (CD). α Children Dreamin'/Sunny And Me (Senate 2106) 1967

NB: α shown as by Douglas Good & Ginny Plenty.

Clearly a studio project, but one that's only moderately orchestrated; it contains a few really good songs and two fine singers and so produces some excellent slices of baroque pop. There's plenty of tinny organ, harpsichord and celeste and all the tracks were written by the producers Wes Farrrell and Tony Romeo. Luckily they can both write a catchy tune and also know how to arrange them to provide a sound full of appealing innocence. Some of the songs have small unexpected twists, that modestly creep under the skin and Children Dreamin' is particularly fine and you can also hear it on Soft Sounds..Presents He & She (CD). Certainly this is one of many records made in a soft-psych style and sung by a male/female duo, but it is also one of the better ones of the era. The album also came in a great cover. (MK/VJ)

GOOD DOG BANNED - Self Titled CD.

Here's another rare private press album, this time from Humboldt County, in northern California in 1971. The album came in a plain cover with front and rear paste-on slicks. Caine was formerly with Sons of Champlin and had headed to Humboldt County to form a commune and 'get back to the land'. Chris and Doug were from L.A. where Doug had played in a number of garage bands and Chris's background was in coffeehouse folk music. Most of the band's vocal harmonies came from his influence. Dwight came from a small town in Colorado and his roots were more in country and rockabilly. Lee, who wrote four of the nine songs on the album, came from Pasadena and his roots were in gospel.

The diverse musical influences help ensure a nice blend on this album, which is one of the hardest Bay Area records of the era to locate. The group plays proficient rural-rock that sounds influenced by the early seventies Grateful Dead.

Rollin' Into Salyer got a further airing on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (CF/VJ)

Good Earth (?MI)

45:	Stone Free/Still Beside Me	(SWAC 903S-1001) 1968

	Jilted/Love Is Here	(Hip 8010) 1969
	Goodies/He's A Rebel	(Hip 8016) 1969

This soft-rock girl trio from Memphis recorded on the same rock subsidiary of Stax as Paris Pilot, Southwest FOB and Knowbody Else. The material on their album ranges from soft-rock to pop and psych with an elaborate studio production. Their story is told in Ron Hall's book on the Memphis scene (1960-1975) - 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door', (published in 2001 by Shangri-La Projects, ISBN 0-9668575-1-8).

Condition Red can be heard on A History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis Vol. 2 (CD). It's their take on the Shangri-La's Leader Of The Pack death-song format, where girl falls for rebel boy but it ends in rejection and cries of "watch out", followed by the (now) expected crash, sirens, and funereal church organ. 	I'm Lost/Shattered	(Rock-It 2000) 1968
	Whimper Girl/Moments Of Love	(Rock-It 3001) 1968

A bunch of San Bernardino Valley College students who came together circa 1964 as The Genteels. By 1967, they'd come to the attention of the area's teen scene entrepreneur and producer Bill Bellman, who managed The Torquays (of Harmonica Man fame).

Their debut release appeared on Bellman's Rock-It label in the spring of 1967. Both sides were composed by Ken Myers and betray an Anglophile influence. I'm Captured is catchy punk-pop with persistent beat and neat licks while End of A Love is mid-tempo harmony-beat. It made enough noise locally to be picked up by Liberty.

Unfortunately that was as good as it got. The follow-up I'm Lost is a fine, moody folk-punker but failed to break out of the region. Nowadays it's the raw emotion and intense fuzz-fest of Shattered which gets the attention of collectors and compilers. It's the epitome of hormonal garage-punk and one of the very best examples of teen angst expressed via this medium.

Their final effort in 1968 moved into hard-rock territory. Whimper Girl has that light-but-heavy Iron Butterfly vibe; Moments Of Love is a maelstrom of pumping Cream-like riffs and acid-etched leads.

The band got back together again after 40 years and a CD/DVD package is available via their website, www.goodfeelins.com .

Compilation appearances have included: Shattered on Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP), Gone, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 9: South California 2 (CD) and The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD); and I'm Captured on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP), Vile Vinyl (CD), Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD) and Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD). 45:	Inside, Outside/Patterns In Life	(Good Idea no #) c1968

This Christian rock/garage band came from St. Cloud, about 100 miles northwest of Minneapolis in Minnesota and operated between 1968-69. Their single is good and becoming hard to find and features keyboard-bass parts similar to The Doors. In addition to the single, they also recorded a track called 12:25.

After The Good Idea split in 1969, Rick Lia Braaten and John Miesen formed a trio with Bill Hallquist called Final Assembly. Bill: - "I had operated lights for The Good Idea briefly, and had earlier played in The Transgressors and The Other Guys with Rick Lia Braaten. In '69 we began work on what was to be another concept piece like 12:25 (Christmas Story), called Summertime Children with me on lead vocal. Bob Blank offered to re-join if he could bring in bass player Terry Tilley and we became Thundertree".

"John Miesen shopped the Good Idea track 12:25 around to labels and landed a contract with Roulette. We used 12:25 as one side and completed another side with the real Thundertree band."

You can also hear Inside, Outside on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 2 (LP) and Quagmire Volume 6 (CD). (VJ/BHa)

The Goodies Galore (TX)

45: Don't Fight It/Selfish Confusion (Liverpool 101) 1967

This Houston band wore their Invasion influences on their sleeve .. and label. Their sparse sound, punctuated by reedy Farfisa chords and vocal mannerisms reminiscent of Eric Burdon, would've been hip in 1964-5, but this disc was released in May 1967, on the threshold of the 'Summer Of Love'. (MW)

An Italian-American band from Long Island, New York The Good Rats was led by the Marchello brothers. Their singer Peppi Marchello was noted for his raunchy timbre. Their first album was produced by Ron Hoffkins and Barry Osslander but flopped.

The Good Rats persevered issuing numerous albums and singles throughout the seventies.

They also put out a single under the name Wrathbone, I Love Her, Yes I Do/Max The Ax (MGM 14146) in 1970.

This bunch was previously known as The Next Exit, and came from Beaumont and Port Arthur, Texas. Their sole album was produced by Huey P. Meaux and is a heavy R&B rootsy rocker, which continues where the American Blues' second album left off. Despite the occasional 'psych' tag by opportunistic dealers, this is definitely for those deeply into blues-rock similar to Johnny Winter, who also hailed from Beaumont and with whom they'd jammed. Recorded in Los Angeles, this is a decent album of hard-psych with some prog influences and good organ and guitar parts. It's nothing exceptional but quite pleasant and masterfully produced by Paul Rothchild (Doors, Love, Buckley, Joplin etc.).

Wayne Cook went on to play in a reformation of Steppenwolf and become a session musician. Some members later appeared in L.A. Jets and 1994. (SR/NK)

ALBUM: 1(A) GOOSE CREEK SYMPHONY (Capitol SM-444) 1970

Formed by Mike McFadden after Superfine Dandelion broke up, Goose Creek Symphony was a rural-rock group with strong country influences. Recorded in Arizona and produced by Kelly Gordon and Tim Ramsey, their first album is worth obtaining for Talk About Goose Creek, eight minutes of guitar duels, with the participation of Ed Black, another ex-Superfine Dandelion.

Led by Charles Gearheart, their subsequent albums are too country-rock oriented to be included here. (SR)

Broken Down Ole Merry-Go-Round/
We Must Be Doing Something Right (Verve 10612) 1968

This band formed at the University Of Mississippi in Oxford, Mississippi before making the pilgrimage to San Francisco. Their album was essentially harmony/pop-rock, certainly not one for garage fans. The stand-out tracks are The World Keeps Singing, Broken Down Old Merry-Go-Round and Year Of The Sun. The album was produced by Clark Boroughs of The Hi-Lo's.

Jim Weatherly later would become a soft country singer, releasing several albums for Buddha circa 1974/5 and he also won a Grammy for his composition Rainy Night In Georgia penned in 1973 for Gladys Knight. (VJ/SR)

Jimmy Gordon also was behind Peter Pan and The Good Fairies and was based in L.A. (VJ/MW)

Jon Gordon (?)

ALBUM: 1 JON GORDON (Tiger Lily TL-14008) 1976 R1

Nothing has been unearthed about Gordon, but his album is reportedly very diverse ranging from rural-rock, folk-rock, heavy guitar-driven blues-rock, rock'n'roll, and quasi-prog with a ballad thrown in for good measure. (VJ)

THE GOOD, THE BAD and THE UGLY - Self Titled LP.

Both sides of their sole release were penned by Dan Nordall just prior to his departure. Replaced by Cliff Fellows, the band became "T.H.E. Horde".

Highlights of their tenure included opening for The Kingsmen in Stevens Point and for The Turtles in Ashland, recalled leader Gordy Gillman in 'Do You Hear That Beat' (the book on fifties and sixties Wisconsin acts). Gillman became a fireman. (VJ/MW/GM)

The Gospel (?)

45: Redeemer/
I Won't Be Sad Again (Vanguard Apostolic VRS 35084) 1969

Both sides of this hippie-folk single were written and produced by John Townley of Magicians, Family Of Apostolic, and Apostolic Studio fame. Redeemer is a harmony-folk ballad with an Eastern/psychy vibe, like a spaced-out Steeleye Span. The flip is in a more traditional folk-country vein, with banjo and fiddle. (MW)

45: O. K. Sam/Go Talk To Rachel (Kapp 2115) 1970

This album is basically hippie-influenced country-rock. This was a mixed US/UK band, but it looks as if their album was recorded in the UK, with producers Mike Leander and Roger Watson, and engineers Martin Rushent and Mike Bobak. The album is pleasant enough with some good guitar moments, but in no way exceptional. It has yet to create much interest among collectors. Two of the best tracks were also issued on the above single. Other memorable songs are Recollections Of Jessica and St. Anne's Pretension.

OK Sam was later 'borrowed' and recorded as Important Exportin' Man by the New Riders Of The Purple Sage on their Panama Red album. Tim Hovey (co-author of same) had been a major child movie star of the 1950's. Tragically, he later committed suicide.

John Rapp later died of a drug overdose. Cliff Hall later played with Leo Sayer. Gordon Huntley was in Matthews Southern Comfort, and was later a member of Elton John's band. Matthew Kelly was previously with Horses, went on to Kingfish and is currently a member of Ratdog (Bob Weir's Grateful Dead carry-overs). He has also played on many of the Dead's projects over the years. Finally, Bob Legate became a successful real estate broker and currently plays with the Grateful Living. (VJ)

Probably from Texas, this album has been described as "a weird mix of country-rock and psych, sort of like Darius meets Euphoria (the Capitol one)". The songs include In The Morning (When You Dream), Death Letter Blues and Morning Dew.

TRX was a division of Hickory Records in Nashville. (SR/MGm/EMy)

You Won't Get Me Workin' is a powerful pumping fuzz-garage number with soulful intonations. Sadly, the flip is very soulful and brassy. They came from Erie, Pennsylvania.

This local Illinois one-sided album was issued in a plain cover with front and rear paste-ons. Its three tracks are hard progressive rock instrumentals with great guitar.

They also issued a single prior to the album, when David Winogrond was in the band. The pairing featured vocals and was unrepresentative of their later sound. Joan Burnstein married Gary Gand; they own Gand Music and Sound, a Chicago music store, and were still performing in 2009. (CF/MW)

45s:	He's Got The Knack/Love In Spite	(ABC 11123) 1968
	Do You Feel Sorry?/Girl On Fire	(ABC 11182) 1969

NB: He's Got The Knack and Do You Feel Sorry? are non-LP.

Produced by Bob Thiele (Ford Theatre, Eden's Children etc.), Eddie Kramer and Jay Senter, their album is a mix of light and heavy rock with some occasionally excellent guitar solos, leaning more towards progressive than acid or psych. Strunz and Benderoth, sometimes helped by St. John and Taylor, wrote all the songs, except Ugly Mascara penned by Ronald Hovanecz.

The band was based in Greenwich Village, having relocated from Washington DC when they were known as The Button, (which was the final incarnation of The Hangmen). The Button line-up included drummer Bob Berberich who returned to DC, teamed up with two other ex-Hangmen and Nils Lofgren to form (Paul Dowell and) The Dolphin and later Grin.

Drummer Richard Blakin, may possibly be the same guy listed as an engineer on Chicago's sixth album, from 1973.

The CD reissue includes the non-album He's Got The Knack. The track, which can also be found on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 3 (CD) and World Of Acid (LP), is a fast 'n' fuzzy mainly instrumental post-Vanilla Fudge rocker. Its flip side Love In Spite is also a pretty good heavy number. (VJ/MW/SR/BE/SteveMulcahy)

Graf Zepplin formed in the Chicago suburb of Oak Park in 1966. Unfortunately, when the drummer painted his drum-head decoration, he omitted the second 'e'; the band took the 'whatever' option and stood by their mis-spelt monicker thereafter, so Graf Zepplin it is.

You're In My Mind is an amazin' piece of sultry garage with bubbling, spacey effects which bring to mind Tea Company; check it out on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD) and Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP). (MW)

ALBUM: 1 MUSIC FOR THE STRUGGLE BY ASIANS IN AMERICA
(selected) (Paredon P-01020) 1973 SC

This hard strummin' electrical/acoustic folk trio was obviously influenced by Jefferson Airplane at times. Their album is housed in a thick cover with a book, a yellow vinyl pressing. (SR)

45s: That's When Happiness Began/She Needs Me (Valiant 736) 1965
Going Away Baby/
Golden Apples Of The Sun (Genesis 101) 1966
Nice Girl/Drop Down Sometime (Philips 40469) 1967

This band operated out of Los Angeles, and according to the Pebbles liner notes the original line-up met whilst in the Navy. The original line-up was based in the Los Angeles district of Lomita.

That's When Happiness Began, was an Addrisi brothers composition. The song was also recorded by Britain's Montanas and Australia's Mike Furber & The Bowery Boys. The Grains Of Sand's version can be heard on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP). Doug Mark, who played and sang on this single, later went on to The Sunshine Company.

GRANDMA'S ROCKERS - Home Made Apple Pie... LP.

Their second single was produced by Kim Fowley and Michael Lloyd, with Going Away Baby, being written by Michael Lloyd and Sean McLeod. It is a catchy up-tempo rocker. The flip, Golden Apples Of The Sun, was written by Michael Lloyd and Kim Fowley and is much more psychedelic, featuring some fine guitar work and culminating in a haze of confusion.

Their third and final single, a pleasant soft pop effort, suffers by comparison to their first two releases. It's also known that the band recorded further material, with Michael Lloyd producing, which has yet to be released.

Michael Lloyd was also in The Smoke, Rubber Band, and West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band. He became one of America's top record producers. Jimmy Greenspoon went on to become a founding member of Three Dog Night.

Compilation appearances have included: Going Away Baby and Golden Apples Of The Sun on Kim Fowley - Outlaw Superman (LP & CD); She Needs Me on Midnight To Sixty-Six (LP), Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD) and Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); Going Away Baby on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Great Pebbles (CD) and I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP); Goin' Away Baby and She Needs Me on Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD); That's When Happiness Began on What A Way To Die (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 1 (LP) and Hang It Out To Dry (CD); and Golden Apples Of The Sun on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 3 (LP). 45: Passing Thru'The Night/The Castaway of Capt. Haze (American Music Makers 008) 1967

This single was the work of a Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania band, who had recorded earlier as The Grand Prees. Produced by Lou Guarino, both songs are Beatles-influenced and were written by Bob Wyler, who was probably a member of the group.

Compilation appearances have included: The Castaway Of Capt. Haze and Passing Through The Night on Burghers, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); and Passing Through The Night on Gone, Vol. 1 (LP). (MW/SR)

45: I Wonder Why/I Got It Bad (Swank HFCS 154) 1968

A different outfit from the better known Los Angeles and Pittsburgh bands, this mob came from Oklahoma City, where they played in the second half of the sixties, recording this one single. I Wonder Why is a dire, drippy Elvis ballad with cooing backing singers behind a Presley impersonator; truly awful. Don't throw it away - hidden over on the flip is a treat; I Got It Bad is a venomous fuzz-punker with snaking leads, strong drumming, and a sneering vocalist. (VJ/MW)

The Grains of Sand (AL)

45: No Matter What They Say/This Little Girl (Chyme 101) 1968

This previously unheralded band from Albertville, Alabama is compiled on Teenage Shutdown 13 (LP) and Grains Of Time (CD). No Matter What They Say is on the lighter side apart from a blistering fuzz break; it would be straight out of the Class Of '66 were it not for its positive attitude towards the fairer sex. NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Del-Val DV 009) in 1993 (SC).

Just 500 copies of this rare garage-style album were made. A private release by high school kids, it was funded by their parents and mostly given away to friends and family. Musically it's a mixture of covers of Music Machine and Country Joe and The Fish songs with standards like Louie, Louie and there's a great fuzzy original Blue Peppers too. The band hailed from Iowa and like many of these albums it's pretty disappointing musically.

Jamie Farnum was later in The Guys Who Came Up From Downstairs.

Their version of Talk Talk has also resurfaced on Oil Stains, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/SB)

GRANICUS - Self Titled CD.

ALBUM: 1(A) GRANICUS (RCA Victor AFL 1-0321) 1973 SC-R1

NB: (1) has been reissued on vinyl circa 2007. (1) reissued on CD (Free Records 9702) 1997. (1) reissued again on CD (White Stallion Reissue no #) 2007. This is a reissue of the RCA album plus six bonus cuts from a 1973 radio show.

This obscure hard-rock group from Cleveland, Ohio may interest some collectors. The vocalist sounds really manic. The 11-minute Prayer is a particularly powerful, repetitive number. They don't seem to have liked Ohio and another song insulting Cleveland can't have helped local sales too much!

The obvious comparison is Led Zeppelin and their album should have met with success; somehow it didn't, despite being full of quality cuts. The band was dropped from RCA's roster and split soon after.

Woody Leffel would turn up in the electronic-prog studio collective Pi Corp, who also went under the name of Braino. In the mid-seventies he joined Zephania Cross, at the point when they reorganised and changed their name to Believe. Woody had been on the Cleveland scene for some years and had done time in other bands prior to Granicus, including Black Rose and Renaissance Faire (not to be confused with the band from Michigan's Upper Peninsula).

Joe Battaglia produced a demo for hard-rockers Pandora in 1974.

You can also hear You're In America on Up All Night. (CD). (SR/VJ/MW)

This Missouri hard-rock/heavy metal band is notable for Nick Christopher's warbling nasal vocals on Kiss Heaven Goodbye - he joined after the first album. The vocals may be an acquired taste for some but the backing is tight, energetic and the songs have some good hooks. The first album is less interesting but still relatively easy to find. (VJ)

45: If I Were A Carpenter/
Love Is Such A Game (Garland GR-2014) 1969

Salem, Oregon's answer to Blue Cheer? If I Were A Carpenter contains an awesome version of Tim Hardin's classic with some savage outbursts of fuzz and distortion. The flip is a comparatively mellow affair but still pretty wicked.

If I Were A Carpenter has been compiled on High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP). (MW)

Grapes Of Rathe (PA)

ALBUM:	1	GLORY	(Tarus) 1969 R4

Here's a very rare mix of garage fuzz and organ pop from a Pennsylvanian band, which was recorded circa 1968/69. The opening cut On The Brink is a great up-tempo psych number but it's pretty much all downhill after that. Hear that track on a compilation and give the rest a miss!

45:	Time Seems To Fly/Baby Come On Home	(Koper 127) 1966

Based in Texarkana, Texas this band was actually Kenny Wayne and his band The Starchiefs. The single was recorded at Buddy Knox/Ray Ruff's Checkmate studio in Amarillo, Texas in June 1965, but not released until October 1966, and then under a different name due to the band changing drummers.

The single was recorded while The Starchiefs (aka The Grapes Of Wrath) were touring west Texas/southwestern Oklahoma and the southwest parts of New Mexico on their first trip away from their usual northeast Texas/southeastern Arkansas/southeast Oklahoma territory. Baby Come On Home also featured a black session player on keyboards who used to be booked out as bogus "Booker T" and "Dave Baby Cortez" by Ray Ruff and Grapes Of Wrath executive producer Charlie Johnson. Both sides also featured two uncredited female vocalists, who appear on many of Ray Ruff's and Buddy Knox's recordings.

The Koper label was based in Houma, Louisiana. Baby Come On Home can also be found on Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD).

Wayne was later with Kenny Wayne And The Kamotions. (VJ/MW)

From Phoenix, Arizona this outfit lasted from 1964 thru 1973 and still get together on an annual basis. They released just one single, but recorded at least a dozen other tracks, which are gathered together on the Gear Fab CD. The excellent power-punk-popper Have A Good Time On Me, from 1967, can be heard on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD). (MW/RM)

45:	I'm Getting Tired/Y'love	(Goldust 45-5016) 1966

I'm Getting Tired is a catchy garage number written by D. Finn and L. McIntyre. The flip, composed by D. Finn, is a garage waltz (!) proclaiming various female attributes. The label is from University Park, a few miles northwest of El Paso.

Compilation appearances include: I'm Getting Tired on New Mexico Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 4 (CD); and both I'm Getting Tired and Y'Love on The Goldust Records Story (1965 - 1969) (CD). (VJ/MW)

Grasshoppers were a cool garage band from Cleveland, Ohio. Mod Socks, which was a sizeable radio hit in Cleveland, is a neat garagy update of Short Shorts (by the Royal Teens). It sounds better than you might think. The flip, Twin Beat, is an upbeat instrumental.

NB: There's also a rare French EP with PS: Where Were You When I Needed You/These Are Bad Times/Ballad Of A Thin Man/You're A Lonely Girl (RCA 8906) 1966.

The Grass Roots was originated by the writer/producer team of P.F. Sloan and Steve Barri as a pseudonym under which they would release a body of Byrds/Beau Brummels-style folk-rock. Sloan and Barri were contracted songwriters for Trousdale Music, the publishing arm of Dunhill Records, which wanted to cash in on the folk-rock boom of 1965. Dunhill asked Sloan and Barri to come up with this material and a group alias under which they would release it. The resulting Grass Roots debut song, Where Were You When I Needed You, sung by Sloan, was sent to a Los Angeles radio station, which began playing it. The problem was, there were no Grass Roots. The next step was to recruit a band that could become The Grass Roots. Sloan found a San Francisco group called The Bedouins that seemed promising on the basis of their lead singer, Bill Fulton. Fulton recorded a new vocal over the backing tracks laid down for the P.F. Sloan version of the song. The Bedouins were, at first, content to put their future in the hands of Sloan and Barri as producers. However, the rest of the group were offended when Fulton was told to record their debut single, a cover of Bob Dylan's The Ballad Of A Thin Man, backed by studio musicians. When that single, released in October of 1965, became only a modest hit, The Bedouins - except for their drummer, Joel Larson - departed for San Francisco, to re-form as The Unquenchable Thirst. Sloan and Barri continued to record and released Where Were You When I Needed You. The album never charted.

Amid the machinations behind Where Were You When I Needed You, no "real" Grass Roots band existed in 1966. A possible solution came along when a Los Angeles band called The 13th Floor submitted a demo tape to Dunhill. This group, consisting of Warren Entner, Creed Bratton, Rob Grill, and Rick Coonce, were recruited and put in the hands of Sloan and Barri. The first track cut by the new Grass Roots in the spring of 1967 was Let's Live For Today, a new version of a song that had been an Italian hit, in a lighter, more up-tempo version, for a U.K. band called The Rokes. Let's Live For Today was an achingly beautiful, dramatic, and serious single and it shot into the Top 10 upon its release in the summer of 1967. An accompanying album, Let's Live For Today, only reached number 75. The group began spreading its wings in the studio with their next album, GRATEFUL DEAD - Self Titled LP.

Feelings, recorded late in 1967, which emphasised the band's material over Sloan and Barri's. This was intended as their own statement of who they were, but it lacked the commercial appeal of anything on Let's Live For Today, sold poorly and never yielded any hit singles. 11 months went by before the group had another chart entry, and during that period, Sloan and Barri's partnership broke up, with Sloan departing for New York and an attempt at a performing career of his own. The band even considered splitting up as all of this was happening. The Grass Roots' return to the charts (with Barri producing), however, was a triumphant one - in the late fall of 1968, Midnight Confessions reached number 5 on the charts and earned a gold record. Midnight Confessions showed the strong influence of Motown and R&B on their music.

In April 1969, Creed Bratton left the band, to be replaced by Denny Provisor (ex-Hook) and Terry Furlong. Now a quintet, they went on cutting records without breaking stride, enjoying a string of Top 40 hits that ran into the early seventies, peaking with Temptation Eyes at number 15 in the summer of 1971. Coonce and Provisor left at the end of 1971, to be replaced by Reed Kailing, Virgil Webber, and Joel Larson - of the original Bedouins/Grass Roots outfit. They arrived just in time to take advantage of the number 16 success of Two Divided By Love, which was the last of the Grass Roots' big hits. The Grass Roots soldiered on for a few more years, reaching the Top 40 a couple of times in 1972, but their commercial success slowly slipped away during 1973. They kept working for a few more years, but called it quits in 1975.

Anthology: 1965-1975 is an excellent 36-track retrospective housed in a card slip case and including many tracks available on CD for the very first time. Their big hits like Let's Live For Today, Temptation Eyes, Two Divided By Love and Midnight Confessions all figure on it.

Compilation appearances have included: Where Were You When I Needed You on Nuggets, Vol. 5: Pop Part 111 (LP); Only When You're Lonely on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP); Let's Live For Today on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP); Mr. Jones (Ballad Of A Thin Man) on Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part 11 (LP) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book); Feelings on Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP); Let's Live For Today and You're A Lonely Girl on Penny Arcade, Dunhill Folk Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); You're A Lonely Girl on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD); Get It Together and I'm Living For You Girl on Undersound Uppersoul (LP); Let's Live For Today and Only When You're Lonely on Even More Nuggets (CD); and Is It Any Wonder, Out Of Touch, Things I Should Have Said, and Wake Up Wake Up (1967) on Dunhill Folk Rock 1: Is It Any Wonder. (MW/SR/VJ)

Recent releases which may interest collectors include Freshly Dead, a limited edition double live LP from 1966 when they were known as The Warlocks; Garcia's Gang, a limited edition 2-LP set from 1971 and Seastones, an ultra-rare and weird LP of electronics involving Phil Lesh which has recently had a limited reissue. Steppin' Out With The Grateful Dead, England 1972 (Grateful Dead/Arista GDCD 4084) 2002 is a 4-CD box set of seven shows from their 1972 England tour. This is essential for deadheads. Live At The Cow Palace 1976 (3-CD) (Rhino 8122-74816-2) 2007 gives a first official release to their 1976 New Year's Eve show but is well below the standard of albums like Live Dead and Europe '72. Three From The Vault (2-CD) (Rhino 8122-79983-1) 2007 captures a performance at The Capitol Theatre in Porchester, New York on 19 February 1971. The Dead Rock The Cradle: Egypt 1978 (2-CD) (Rhino 8122-79908-7) 2008 celebrates the 30th anniversary of their three performances in the shadows of the pyramids in Egypt in 1978. Birth of The Dead (2-CD) (Rhino RS 74391) compiles all the early material by the Grateful Dead including their recordings as The Warlocks. Punky and energetic, previously unreleased recordings such as Can't Come Down and The Only Time Is Now evoke the wild freedom of Ken Keysey's Acid Tests and the first germination of the counterculture. To Terrapin: Hartford '77 (3-CD) (Rhino 8122798690) 2009 is a 21-track set with a total of three hours playing time from their last night of a spring 1977 tour at Hartford Civic Centre.

Along with Jefferson Airplane, The 'Dead were the other foremost San Francisco underground group.

Jerry Garcia's first guitar was electric and his idol was Chuck Berry. He met Robert Hunter, their non-performing songwriter, at San Mateo Junior College, forming a bluegrass group with him called The Wildwood Boys. Earlier, Garcia had met Bob Weir and Ron McKernan (nicknamed Pigpen) while playing on the coffee house circuit in the Bay Area. Pigpen and Bill Kreutzmann, who Garcia had also met when working in a music shop, were forming a rock group called The Zodiacs. The Wildwood Boys changed their name to The Hart Valley Drifters and starred at the 1963 Monterey Folk Festival. Garcia's next group, Mother McCree's Uptown Jug Champions included Pigpen, Dawson and Bob Weir, they later changed their name first to The Asphalt Jungle Boys and then to The Warlocks. Kreutzmann replaced Dawson as the group's drummer and Phil Lesh was invited to play bass. This format played in Bill Graham's benefit concert for the Mime Troupe at the Fillmore.

The Warlocks had thus come from diverse musical backgrounds. Phil Lesh had a classical background (violin and trumpet), Pigpen's father had been an R&B player and Bill Kreutzmann had been a jazz drummer. Garcia, himself, had played mainly bluegrass. The Warlock's early music was rooted in the blues, but under the influence of acid (legal in California until 1966) their music became less conventional. They became the house band for Ken Kesey's Merry Pranksters and the Acid Freaks associated with them. This period is well-documented in Tom Wolfe's book "The Electric Kool Aid Acid Test". A bootleg does exist of The Warlocks' music, which was apparently recorded in Los Angeles in May 1965. The strange times in which The Warlocks operated suggested the need for a 'trippier' name and, after browsing through a dictionary one day, the band came up with The Grateful Dead. Their association with the Merry Pranksters soon diminished following Kesey's drug bust trial, conviction and his flight to Mexico. They soon became an important force in the new exciting San Francisco music scene.

The Grateful Dead played their first gig at Magoo's Pizza Parlour in June 1965. Soon they were playing all over town - the Matrix, the Avalon, the Fillmore - at all the major dance venues. They were, of course, the key attraction at Ken Kesey's Fair Day Trips Festival held at the Longshoreman's Hall in January 1966. Despite the outrageous dress, the drugs and the light shows, the success of this festival was really due to the music. The Dead were now playing the long, trip-orientated instrumental sets for which they became renown. Such events helped their development as a community group, often playing around the city for free. Their first recording Don't Ease Me In was issued in 1966, by a subsidiary label of Fantasy Records. Apparently unexceptional, copies are now rare and change hands for large sums. In the early seventies, two albums - Vintage Dead (Sunflower 5001) 1970 and Historic Dead (Sunflower 5004) 1971, which were issued by Polydor in the U.K. - were released and contained material from this era in the group's history. They contain the band's interpretations of numbers such as Dancing In The Street, Good Morning Little Schoolgirl and In The Midnight Hour.

The publicity that events on the U.S. West Coast were attracting led to a race among the major record companies to sign up all of the major West Coast bands. The Dead signed for Warner Bros - in many ways an odd choice and, in retrospect, probably the wrong one for the band. Their first album was disappointing, both in comparison with their live shows and with the early offerings of their counterparts like The Jefferson Airplane, Country Joe and the Fish and The Steve Miller Band. Its strongest track, The Golden Road (To Unlimited Devotion) was coupled with Cream Puff War on an US-only single (WB 7016) in 1967. This is now rare. The album, which had been recorded in three days, sold badly and to make matters worse LSD was made illegal in California and the group was inevitably busted. The band was getting into debt too but Lenny, father of Mickey Hart, who had recently joined the group as its percussionist, now became its manager. Later in 1970 they would have to file an embezzlement charge against Lenny Hart and replace him with John MacIntyre.

Two more psychedelic albums followed - Anthem Of The Sun and Aoxomoxoa. The first typified the long instrumentally-orientated pieces they had been playing at the Acid Tests. Born Cross Eyed was taken from the album, backed with a non-album track, Dark Star and issued as a single (WB 7186), which is also very rare. In America it was issued with a picture sleeve, although this was not a feature of U.K. copies. The picture sleeve version is now particularly sought-after by Grateful Dead collectors.

Aoxomoxoa is particularly memorable for its cover. A disjointed album overall, it does contain some interesting experiments in psychedelia, such as Rosemary and a few quite strong tracks such as St. Stephen, Mountains Of The Moon, and Dupree's Diamond Blues. Evidently, The Dead were unhappy with both albums, and Phil Lesh remixed and re-edited both in the early seventies.

Once again, commercially and in comparison with the offerings of their West Coast counterparts, both Anthem Of The Sun and Aoxomoxoa were disappointing.

Almost inevitably recording success eluded them until they issued Live Dead, a double album, in 1970. This showed them at their best, performing GRATEFUL DEAD - Live/Dead 2-LP.

GRATEFUL DEAD - Workingman's Dead CD.

GRATEFUL DEAD - American Beauty LP.

long, predominantly instrumental, improvised songs and included the legendary Dark Star, as well as St. Stephen and Death Don't Have No Mercy.

Eventually in 1970 they came up with two successful studio albums. The first, Workingman's Dead contained a number of short, well-constructed acoustic country-rock songs such as Uncle John's Band (also issued as a single), Black Peter and Casey Jones. The latter having a very catchy chorus:-

"Driving that train
High on cocaine
Casey Jones you'd better watch your speed
Trouble ahead, trouble behind
And you know that notion just caught my mind......."
(from Casey Jones)

The follow-up American Beauty also contained a number of tight songs, including a love song Sugar Magnolia and the autobiographical Truckin, which recounted the events of a year in which they had been busted again (this time in New Orleans) and had sacked their manager. They had also played their first European date at a festival near Newcastle-Under-Lyme in England. These three were the best of their early albums. Prior to American Beauty, Constanten, who was into scientology, left the band to concentrate on his studies. The following year a second 'live' double album was issued. Warner Brothers vetoed its original name Skullfuck and it became called simply Grateful Dead. This became their first album to go gold.

As a 'live' band they were now at the pinnacle of their achievement and in May/June of 1972 toured Europe again and issued a triple 'live' album as a record of its finer moments. They played at the Bickershaw Festival outside a depressing mining town in the North of England. By the end of the first day the audience were wallowing in mud and thoroughly miserable. Yet, gradually The Dead's music won them over and before long the audience was on its feet ecstatic.

The early seventies also saw the departure of Mickey Hart, perhaps embarrassed by his father's misappropriation of their finances. However, Europe 72, which was not one of their stronger live albums, did feature two new members, Keith Godchaux (keyb'ds) and Donna Godchaux (vcls), on record for the first time.

Upon their return to the States, disaster struck. Pigpen, who had been living on a diet of little more than booze and berries had developed a serious liver disease and accompanied them on the '72 tour against doctor's advice. On 8th March 1973 he died of a stomach haemorrhage. Pigpen had been a key band member, but the group survived this blow. History Of The Grateful Dead - Bear's Choice consists of previously unissued recordings from 1970 to fulfil their contractual commitment to Warner Bros. It was disappointing and quickly deleted, although Warner did later issue two compilations of material Skeletons From The Closet and What A Long Strange Trip It's Been which did provide a good introduction to the band's music.

1973 saw the band appear with The Band and Allman Brothers at Watkins Glen. They also set up their own Grateful Dead Records. Wake Of The Flood was their first studio recording for three years. It was rather low-key and suffered from poor distribution in the US where the band refused to sign a distribution deal. Here Comes The Sunshine and Stella Blues were strong tracks and Here Comes The Sunshine and Eyes Of The World were issued as singles but met with no success.

In 1974 the band announced their intention to stop touring full-time, partly as a result of over-exposure and partly so members in the band could concentrate on their own solo projects. 1974 also saw the release of From The Mars Hotel. One cut, US Blues had instant commercial appeal and was also issued as a single. China Doll and Unbroken Chain are also of interest, but the album also included some of their worst material. Both Wake Of The Flood and From The Mars Hotel featured a number of session musicians.

Blues For Allah was generally regarded as one of the band's best albums for some years and marked the return of Mickey Hart. The band also established Round Reels, a film production company which made a film about New York's Hells Angels 'Angel Forever, Forever Angel' and a film of their five days concert at the Winterland, San Francisco in October 1974. The accompanying soundtrack is generally regarded as one of the band's worst live sets. Round also issued a number of drab albums including Old & In The Way (a bluegrass outfit involving Jerry Garcia, David Grisman and Peter Rowan), the debut album by Kingfish, The Good Old Boys, two Robert Hunter albums, and Seastones (an unlistenable electronic project involving Phil Lesh). None of these records sold well and the label was short-lived.

GRATEFUL DEAD

GRATEFUL DEAD - Europe '72 3-LP.

Steal Your Face was a live double album. Release in June 1976, it was recorded live in concert at San Francisco's Winterland Ballroom between 16-20 October 1974. This is one to miss as it's generally considered by deadheads their worst live album on account of its poor sound quality and song selection. It was also omitted from Rhino's 2004 Beyond Description (1973-89) box set which compiled all their other live and studio material from this era. The sound quality is much better on the 1989 CD reissue though.

Terrapin Station was their first album for Arista. It represented a significant departure from their previous jazz-blues and traditional folk style being more progressive and influenced by bands like Yes and Genesis. The song structures on the album are tighter and more complex than their previous looser and more improvised sound. It divided their fans - some thought it was their creative zenith while others who loved this improvised style found it over-produced.

They went on to record numerous albums throughout the seventies and into the nineties. Jerry Garcia, Bob Weir, Mickey Hart and Keith & Donna Godchaux all made solo albums during the seventies too. Keith Godchaux was killed in a car crash in 1980.

The Dead certainly proved a durable outfit until sadly, Jerry Garcia died on the 9th August, 1995. Their 'laid-back' music lacked the urgency of The Airplane, but was sufficiently unique to secure a strong cult following. The secret of their success appears to have been their ability to adapt to the changing times and, in September/October 1981 they were in England playing three nights to packed audiences at London's Rainbow Theatre. Of the numerous compilations of their material, Skeletons From The Closet originally issued by Warner Bros in 1974 and reissued on Thunderbolt in 1987, is a good introduction to their music from the early years.

The Dead Rock The Cradle: Egypt 1978 is a 2-CD set celebrating the 30th anniversary of their three performances in the shadows of the pyramids in Egypt in 1978. On offer is mostly previously unheard music and DVD footage filmed during a lunar eclipse. The Rhino set is superbly packaged with fine sleevenotes.

More difficult to find but also of interest to 'deadheads' will be California Christmas, which features a version of Turn On Your Lovelight with Janis Joplin. California Easter has two tracks with them joining The Beach Boys(!) - Riot In Cell Block Number 9 and Searchin'; two numbers (including Hoochie Koochie Man from 1963) performed by Pigpen and Pete Albin and two numbers by Jerry and Sarah Garcia, also from around 1963. California New Year includes Uncle John's Band. Live At The Cow Palace 1976 (3-CD) gives a first official release to their 1976 New Year's Eve show but is not recommended.

The 2-CD set Three From The Vault captures a performance at The Capitol Theatre in Port Chester, New York on 19 February 1971. Bird Song and Deal, which both became future live favourites, get their first airing and Greatest Story Ever Told, Bertha, Loser, Playing In The Band and Wharf Rat also enjoy early renditions. The highlights are a soulful cover of Elmore James' It Hurts Me Too and a 15-minute heavy jam of Howlin' Wolf's Smokestack Lightning.

Birth of The Dead (2-CD) compiles some of the band's early material, including their recordings as The Warlocks and previously unreleased recordings like Can't Come Down and The Only Time Is Now, which capture the emergence of the counterculture and the freedom of Ken Kesey's Acid Tests.

To Terrapin: Hartford '77 is a 21-track 3-CD set with a total of three hours playing time from their last night of a spring 1977 tour at Hartford Civic Centre. It captures them very near to their live best in places (such as the Estimated Prophet, Playing In The Band, Terrapin Station and Not Fade Away section on the third CD). Elsewhere they serve up some of their classics with some cover versions intertwined between.

You can also find a version of Dark Star on the Zabriskie Point soundtrack. (VJ)

This single was a minor San Antonio outfit's sole stab at immortality - I Would But I Could is an Augie Meyer penned dirge but the flip, Take A Bite Of Life, is good up-tempo garage with a Diddleyesque beat.

Take A Bite Of Life can also be found on Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 14 (LP & CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). (MW)

GRATEFUL DEAD - Blues For Allah CD.

ALBUMS: 1(A) MY LABORS (Columbia CS-9899) 1970 SC
2(B) STEELYARD BLUES (Original Motion Picture Soundtrack) (Warner BS-2662) 1972

45: Drive Again (Theme From Steelyard Blues)/
My Bag (The Oysters) (Warner WB-7637) 1972

Originally from Chicago, Nick Gravenites moved to San Francisco and became a central figure in the Bay Area scene. Songwriter, singer, guitar player and producer, Gravenites is sometimes credited as Nick The Greek or Nicky Gravy. He was (and still is) a multi-talented man. Primarily known for penning Born In Chicago and East-West for the Paul Butterfield Blues Band on their first two albums (1965/66), he became a close friend of Mike Bloomfield and naturally became the lead singer of the Electric Flag when it was formed.

During the same period, he began working with Quicksilver Messenger Service, providing some of their songs (All Night Worker, on Live In San Jose and Joseph's Coat on Shady Grove) as well as producing their first album. After the demise of the Electric Flag, Gravenites became the lead singer of Big Brother and The Holding Company when Joplin left. He produced their underrated Be A Brother album as well as writing several songs for it. He also made a guest appearance on his own Buried Alive In The Blues on Big Brother and The Holding Company's final album How Hard It Is.

Gravenites first solo album from 1969, My Labors, was partly recorded live. It was a commercial failure, largely due to a horrid cover, but still really deserves to be heard if you like West Coast electric blues. Mike Bloomfield's solos are truly remarkable on the live tracks and John Cipollina is one of the "anonymous friends" playing on the studio cuts. The album was produced by Elliot Mazer.

In 1972, Steelyard Blues appeared. This was in fact the soundtrack of a Jane Fonda/Donald Sutherland movie and contains only original bluesy tracks which were mostly written by Gravenites and Bloomfield. (Gravenites also produced the album). Two tracks from the album were also released as a single.

Nick Gravenites production credits also include Brewer and Shipley, Chet Nichols, Southern Comfort and several blues albums (Sam Lay, Otis Rush).

In the seventies, Gravenites kept on working with Bloomfield until he died. In the eighties, he formed the Gravenites/Cipollina Band (also known as Thunder and Lightning) and still performs, produces and records to this day. His current group, Animal Mind, features Roy Blumenfeld (ex-Blues Project). (SR)

Mysteries Theme (Bernie Grundman Acetate) 1968

From Lakeport, California Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP) and Up From The Grave (CD) feature both sides of the first single, which is ridiculously rare. The second single and its full details remain even more elusive. Marble Orchard begins with a heartbeat, has a mystical quality and good acid guitar - with better production it could have been a real classic. The flip is a fine reverb-fuzz instrumental. (VJ/MW/AP)

The Gravity Adjusters Expansion Band (CA)

ALBUMS: 1 CHOOSE TO LIVE
(Golden State Recorders GSR S 2530) 19?? R1
2 ONE (Nocturne NRS-302) 1973 R1

The Golden State records release comprises a collection of poems on three tracks: Night, Brilliance and Music with Clyde Pound playing more conventional jazz with the quartet The Gravity Adjusters (spelt 'Adjustors' on the cover) on the remaining seven tracks. It is likely this album was issued before the one called One as Golden State Records was a late sixties/early seventies label.

One is a rare and strange album of avant-garde and experimental music, featuring sound generators, percussion and various homemade instruments. It was released in a cool black and white psych cover. (SR)

45: Leader Of The Band/You Came Up
With The Sun (Cobblestone Records CB 711) 1968

The Grayps started in 1965 out of Whetstone High School in Columbus, Ohio with members of The New Liberty Singers and The Sceptors. Mike Meyer left in September 1966, with Sterling Smith joining from The Lowbrows.

Strong vocals gave the band a good "folk-rock" quality. The band wrote a number of songs, but only one was released as a single, Leader Of The Band on a Buddah Records subsidiary.

The Grayps won the 1966 'Northland Battle Of The Bands' in Columbus, Ohio and in 1967 they backed up Sonny and Cher for four grandstand shows at the Ohio State Fair. They also opened for a number of concerts in central Ohio, including The Beach Boys (twice), The McCoys, The Byrds, Bobby Goldsboro and Paul Revere and The Raiders.

The band played a number of college dates in the late sixties, and was infused with more ambitious original music with the addition of Jon Townley on guitar, and Bill Grey on vocals in 1969. Dan Lawson also played sax and sang with the band in 1969, and would later surface in the band, Osiris.

The Grayps re-formed in the early seventies and enjoyed some success in the studio, releasing She Said She Gave Me Applause which got some airplay and an appearance on Cleveland television.

Sterling Smith later played with J.D. Blackfoot, Osiris and The Load. (VJ/SGgSmith)

The Gray Things (?NY)

45: Charity/Lovers Melody (Laurie 3367) 1966

The Gray Things are thought to be from New York, although Florida has also been suggested as a possible home for them.

This seems to have been their sole recording venture for Laurie. Charity can also be heard on Mindrocker, Vol. 3 (LP) or Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD). Seething vocals and tidy harmonies supplant a novel garage styled keyboard backing. (VJ/MW)

Great American Dream (?)

ALBUM: 1 HOME AND FREE (Audifex AX 7082 LP) 1975 SC

This album was sold via ads in 'Rolling Stone' as an advanced reviewer copy and issued on a mysterious Wisconsin label. The highlight is the prog-rock You Can Fly which has some pleasing flute and harpsichord interplay. Most of the remaining material is rock-soul or bluesy tunes. The material on side one is best but many tracks don't stand out and the whole album is under 30 minutes long. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) GREAT BEAR (Scepter SPS-585) 1971

Not a well-known album, but a pleasant collection of psychy keyboard-dominated MOR rock of which Cinderella is probably the finest moment. Another highlight is their hard-rock cover of Chuck Berry's Almost Grown. The songwriting on the album isn't bad but the lead singer, Michael Boback, has an annoying vibrato similar to Erik Brann's warblings on the two mid-seventies Iron Butterfly reunion albums for MCA.

One track was composed by Joseph Longeria who also recorded as Joseph.

This act should not be confused with the outfit that graces the Strangers In A Strange Land compilation, who in fact hailed from Delhi, India.... The Indian act won a place on one of two Simla Beat compilations, funded by an Indian Tobacco company. The best tracks from these were subsequently recompiled as Strangers From A Strange Land, and mistakenly sold by dealers as a U.S. compilation. (VJ/RBn)

45: I'll Keep It With Mine/My Lovin' Woman (Tonsil T-0001) 1971

NB: non-LP tracks.

The sleevenotes to this album tell us: 'Great Jones is an odd combination; a jazz-loving guitarist; a blues-freaking drummer; and an ex-folk singing bassist.' Well, the end result is a funk-blues album with at least three decent tracks. The first is opener Cripple Creek, with its bouncy bass notes and sharply accentuating drum beats. Superimposed onto this are Cadieux's catchy acoustic guitar riffs. The second is the title cut, a funky piano-driven number. Also of note is I Ain't Got Long, on which Cadieux contributes some delicate blues guitar which blends well with Tolmie's gutsy vocals. An average album, overall, though. The single cuts are non-album.

Their material includes two covers (Dr. John's United States of Mind, Sleepy John Estes' Leaving Trunk...) plus several good originals penned by Cadieux and Gutcheon. The album was produced by Joe Zagarino and Neville Gerson and recorded in Boston. (VJ/SR)

45s:	Someone To Love/Free Advice	(Northbeach 1001)	1965
	Sally Go Round The Roses/ Didn't Think So	(Columbia 44583)	1966

The Great Society was one of the very first San Francisco underground groups. They played at the first dance organised by The Family Dog at The Longshoreman's Hall in 1965. Thereafter, they gigged regularly at the Fillmore, the Avalon, the Matrix and Mother's. The nucleus of the group was Grace, with her unique vocals, her husband Darby and his brother Jerry. They recorded a single for Tom Donahue's Northbeach label Someone To Love. The first album recorded live at the Matrix is of particular interest in that it contained an early version of Darby's Somebody To Love and Grace's White Rabbit, which The Jefferson Airplane were later to transform into nationwide hits. However, the record company held back its release until after the group had split and Grace had become famous. In addition to White Rabbit, Grace also wrote three other songs on the album Didn't Think So, Often As I May and Father Bruce (a tribute to Lenny Bruce). However, the group never made it nationally and when the nucleus of the band resolved to set off for India to learn sitar music Grace was snapped up by The Airplane who then really began to develop. Her husband Jerry joined another San Francisco band, The Final Solution.

They also had two cuts, Free Advice and Somebody To Love on the 1968 compilation San Francisco Roots (LP).

Peter Van Gelder later played with Saddhu Brand.

Big Beat's Nuggets From The Golden State CD series has dug up many Great Society gems from the vaults - the Someone To Love CD has no less than seven tracks from an October 1965 audition session plus the first single coupling and three unreleased 1966 goodies (Born To Be Burned, Daydream Nightmare Love, Double Tryptamine Superautomatic Everlovin' Man, Father Bruce, Free Advice, Girl, Heads Up, Right To Me, Someone To Love, That's How It Is, Where and You Can't Cry). Our free advice is get it, and hear the cries of the San Francisco Sound being born.

Other retrospective compilation appearances have included: - Free Advice and Somebody To Love on Nuggets, Vol. 7: Early SFO (LP) and The Autumn Records Story (LP); White Rabbit on Psychedelic Dream (2-LP); Somebody To Love on Psychedelic Visions (CD) and Microdelia (CD); and Free Advice and Somebody To Love (live album version) on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). ALBUM:	1	GREAT WHITE CANE	(Lion LN-1005)	1972

American Rick James formed this band in early 1972 from the ashes of Heaven and Earth (Gerrard and Roth were also members). Thanks to his contacts in Los Angeles - Neil Young, Steve Stills (and Bruce Palmer), he managed to win a recording contract with MGM's subsidiary Lion Records.

The band recorded an album in Los Angeles in mid-'72 and then toured with B.B. King (playing around 15-20 state capitals). However, the group was beset with problems from the outset. The album, due to be released two weeks before each concert in the state capitals, was delayed because MGM faced a law suit from RCA. Apparently James had sold the rights (to some of the tracks) to RCA when Heaven and Earth recorded them the previous year. The album was released later in the year, by which point the band had effectively folded.

James, who left the band after a date at Massey Hall in Toronto, later formed a new group called The Stone City Band. The others meanwhile completed the tour without him. Gerrard subsequently joined Mainline's Bump 'N' Grind Revue tour. Hughes subsequently worked with David Bendeth, Wellbanks played with Shooter and Kojima sessioned for The Stampeders and later played with Chris De Burgh. (NW)

	I Can't Get Away/ An Experimented Terror	(Montel-Michelle 976)	1966
	Buy You A Chevrolet/ What Is Right	(Montel-Michelle 983)	1966

From Baton Rouge, Louisiana this band is best known for upbeat rock recordings like Blue Jean, Buy You A Chevrolet and Well Alright. The Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) compilation features their An Experimented Terror - a completely wacky recording more in the vein of Red Krayola at their most experimental. This could well have been recorded on acid. By contrast, their I'm A Boy is a pretty straight cover of The Who hit. They later changed their name to The Greek Fountain River Front Band.

Drummer Cyril Vetter is probably best remembered as co-writer (with Don Smith) of Double Shot (Of My Baby's Love). Covered by the Swingin' Medallions in late 1965, it was picked up by Smash and cracked the Top 20 in early 1966. A catchy soulful frat singalong, it became a club favourite covered by numerous other acts, including the K-Otics, Skip & The Creations, Soundsations, Spirits, Invaders, Basement Wall, and Night Riders. Vetter also got local rivals the Rogues a one-shot deal with Montel-Michelle and produced their single, which appeared in 1966 billed as by The Dry Gins.

Other compilation coverage has included their cover of Willie Dixon's Howlin For My Baby (The Bo-Hog Song) on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 14 - Howlin' For My Darlin' (LP & CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A)	TAKES REQUESTS	(Montel-Michelle LP-110)	1967

45:	High Heeled Sneakers/Warm Daddy's Choice	(Cyclin 0001)	1967

A big draw in Baton Rouge, Louisiana this was the later and expanded version of the Greek Fountains. Under leader Don Chesson, they'd moved away from the British influenced pop and beat material to southern-fried soul sounds, hence the change of name and the addition of a trio of "featured singers", including Luther Leonard (aka "The Dynamic Duke Royal") who was also in a Baton Rouge band called Blues, Inc..

The album is all covers, hence the title, except for Danny Cohen's What Is Right; a pair of Beatle numbers (I've Just Seen A Face, For No One), two from Lovin' Spoonful (Nashville Cats, Lovin' You), a bit of Motown (Reach Out I'll Be There, MyGirl), some Stax (Hummin'), and some evergreens - C.C.Rider, Have You Ever Had The Blues, Mustang Sally, and Alimony.

Duke Bardwell would replace Terry Bourdier in The Basement Wall. (MW/VJ)

45:	Big Dipper/All My Bells	(Atco 6833)	1971

From Dallas, Texas Green's first album, from 1969, sounds a bit like Buffalo Springfield with horns and good lead guitar work. There's some raw guitar, an effective rhythm section and quite an Anglophile influence. It's beginning to attract some attention. Two years later, a renewed line-up recorded a second album, which is considerably weaker. Most tracks were recorded live in the studio and are more like loose jams with stolen riffs and intrusive horns than real songs. The few good cuts are on side one: All My Bells, Teenage Women and Can You See Me, which are more elaborate and attractive than the rest of their material.

In 1974, Jay Pruitt worked with B.W Stevenson and in 1978 with Jules and The Polar Bear. John Martin is not the musician who began with Southwind. (SR/VJ)

Originally from Boston, Norman Greenbaum was first known as the leader of Dr. West's Medicine Show and Junk Band. He went solo and moved to San Francisco where he hit the big time with Spirit In The Sky in 1969. His three albums were produced by Erik Jacobsen (Lovin Spoonful, Sopwith Camel, Tim Hardin) and deserve to be heard: friendly vocals, well-structured songs with good lyrics, great guitar parts (courtesy of Russel DaShiell, who later played with Crowfoot and the Don Harrison Band) and solid rhythm section for a mix of "good-time music", jug band style and West Coast vibes, quite reminiscent of the Youngbloods production. California Earthquake, one of his best tracks, was only released as a single and announces the "Big One" with a devastating fuzz guitar solo and good lyrics ("My advice to you is to keep your feet off the ground. As long as you're flying, you won't tumble down"). Among his usual back-up group, Norman Mayell and William "Truckaway" Sievers were both former members of The Sopwith Camel. Several guests played on his albums: two Charlatans (Dan Hicks and Richard Olsen), Mark Naftalin (Butterfield Blues Band/Mother Earth), Ry Cooder, Cyrus Faryar (Modern Folk Quartet, Zodiac Cosmic Sounds), Jerry Yester. His last album, Petaluma, in 1972, has a great sleeve with an eight-page leaflet (with cartoons, kids, chicken, sheeps, goats and pig pictures!) and clearly announces that Greenbaum had decided to settle in Petaluma to pursue his life on the farm with his family (Grade A Barn, The Day The Well Went Dry, Dairy Queen...). The album is more acoustic than the two other ones.

Spirit In The Sky has been reissued and covered many times, including a U.K. hit for Dr. & The Medics, but Greenbaum apparently left the music business for good. Check out the 23-track collection of album cuts, singles tracks and rarities, The Best Of Norman Greenbaum - Spirit In The Sky and listen out for a 1968 rarity, Jigsaw. (SR/VJ)

45s:		(Don't' Give Me No) Friction/Superstition	(Mercury 72504) 1965
	α	Knock On My Door/Who Needs You	(Tower 237) 1966

NB: α issued in a picture sleeve, with the band looking like a greaser club band, but with green hair!

Originally based in Green Bay, Wisconsin the quartet headed to Los Angeles, like many other Badger state acts before them, in their search for success. They secured a contract with Mike Curb and produced two cool, punky pop-beat singles; neither hit the jackpot back then but both have proved to have enduring appeal to collectors and aficionados.

Friction was later given an R&B make-over by Australia's Missing Links, and their cover version is well worth searchin' out. The original is much more in a laid-back, pop vein. Another track Who Needs You is more up-tempo, sounding like a case of The Monkees meet the garage.

You can also find (Don't' Give Me No) Friction and Who Needs You on Pebbles, Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD); whilst Who Needs You also appears on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP); (Don't' Give Me No) Friction is also on Quagmire Volume 5 (CD); and Superstition can also be found on Teen Blast Volume #2 (CD). 45: Dialated Eyes/Like A Man (ABC Paramount 11225) 1969

From Cleveland, Ohio they were formerly called The City Squires. Apart from pulsating keyboard effects that means it's often tagged as 'psych', Dialated Eyes is a provocative folkie protest-rock song that targets the sins visited by drink-addicted parents on their offspring:-

"Drunken father beats his son for sipping at his beer,
Will this hypocritical society we fear,
Come to pass,
To pass...
another ice-cube for their glass,
And his mother with the dialated eyes."

We've Found A Love (PS) (D & H Productions 90872) 1969

This youthful band from Elkhart, Indiana featured a vocalist with an imploring (and irritating) tone, which probably guaranteed that he got his own way. Wait was recorded on a Universal Record Service custom label and is also featured on Teenage Shutdown Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP/CD). The follow-up features two more compositions by Barry Heflick; pedestrian brass-pop is backed by We've Found A Love, which would be excellent heavy garage with pumping organ and acid guitar, if only they'd dropped the awful parping brass section.

The band played in the '93 Reunion Jam Show with The Dukes, Tikis, etc. (PY/MW)

Another Griffin, whose only album was released on the small Romar label and produced by John D'Andrea and Bob Marcucci. Recorded in Los Angeles, it includes covers of Neil Young's Down By The River and Noah's World Band.

Duckworth was a competent guitarist but the group obviously doesn't have a precise style and navigates between blues-rock, Doobie Bros. style, to funk, psych and pop with strings and the album is clearly over-produced.

In Spite Of What's Going On is the strongest track but overall, the album is better avoided. One of their singles, Mississippi Lady, made some impression nationally. George Clinton, who played the keyboards, is not the Parliament/Funkadelic leader but a California musician who led Timber and is present on countless records. (SR/VJ)

This Charlotte, South Carolina outfit's debut appears to have been released on two different labels. Despite contributing tracks to the Michigan Mayhem compilations, they were not from Michigan, although their final single was recorded there in 1967; it wasn't released until 1968 after the band had split.

Catch A Ride is by far the poppier of their singles, whilst Keep Dreamin', is a really snarlin' throaty, punk screamer.

Compilation appearances have included: Catch A Ride on Michigan Mayhem, Vol. 1 (CD) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD); and Keep Dreamin' on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP) and Michigan Mayhem, Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45: And Don't Be Late/Way Down Deep (Vanguard 35104) 1970

Produced by Lewis Merenstein (Van Morrison, Chelsea etc.), Grinder's Switch was fronted by the New Yorker Garland Jeffreys, who recruited some experienced musicians to back him up: Sanford Konikoff (Gentle Soul, Bamboo, Delaney and Bonnie...), Stan Szelest (Ronnie Hawkins, Lonnie Mack), Bob Piazza (Ten Wheel Drive) plus Richard Davis, one of the best bass players on the New York scene.

Their only album is influenced greatly by The Band and several tracks (like Father, The Son And The Holy Ghost or Dear Jolly Jack) really sound like outtakes from Music From Big Pink. Overall the album is decent but not original enough to retain attention, Jeffrey's vocal style still owing too much to Mick Jagger.

In 1973, Garland Jeffreys would start a rather successful solo career and gain a small following in Europe, particularly in France. He's still occasionally recording. (SR)

Recorded in Cincinnati, Ohio their debut album was co-produced by Dave Matthews and Ron Lenhoff and was released on James Brown's People label. It's a superb psychedelic/progressive effort which is full of imagination and fresh ideas. Every track is excellent in its own right making it difficult to identify highlights, but Conclusions is a superb instrumental and Evidence For The Existance Of The Unconscious has fine keyboards and makes interesting use of echoed vocals and discordant guitars.

Grodeck Whipperjenny also appeared as the backing band on James Brown's Sho Is Funky Down Here album recorded at or right around the same time. They also backed Brown on a non-album single recorded at the same session which included the first version of Talkin Loud and Sayin Nothin. This single was later withdrawn.

The Secret Second Album is a limited edition (of 300) reissue of James Brown's Sho' Is Funky Down Here album under a different name. (VJ/MMn/MW/GSr/PW)

Originally known at The Hustlers this band changed their name to The Grodes one drunken night in Phoenix in 1965. They were one of Tucsons's finest in the mid-to-late sixties. Their first two singles were issued on a record label which their leader Manny Freiser formed with L.A. promotion man Mike Borchetta and a friend of his, actor Cass Martin. So they called it Tri-M (Manny, Mike, Martin) records. The first single climbed to No 32 on the local KTKT chart and from hereon KTKT DJ Don Gates became their manager, producer and mentor.

Love Is A Sad Song, a pop ballad, recorded at Audio Recorders, Phoenix was their biggest chart and sales success. Released in May 1966 it reached No 5 in the KTKT charts. However, The Grodes fell out with Don Gates when he announced that their version of Let's Talk About Girls which was actually written by Manny was by The Tongues Of Truth without consulting them about this change of name. They sacked him and the single reached No 37 in the KTKT charts.

Keith Craig came in on trombone for (It's True) What They Say About Love and later replaced Lust on keyboards, but this particular single made little impression. Give Me Some Time was their big production number, recorded over a period of three or four months - it was a Top 10 hit in Tucson. Their final single was recorded under the name Spring Fever with the band undecided whether to move to L.A. to advance their career or remain in Tucson. Around this time Patti McCarron, a girl singer, joined the band and she and Freiser left the band to head for L.A. in August 1968 where Patti signed for Liberty and released a single Love Theme From Romeo And Juliet. Manny signed to United Artists issuing a single On To LA/I Went To California (Barnaby ZS7 2044) which was recorded in 1969 but not released until 1971.

THE GRODECK WHIPPERJENNY - Self Titled LP.

In August 1970, Patti and Manny married. They also formed the duet Fire and Rain, recording an album for Mercury in 1973 and a single, Hello Stranger which reached No 100 in Billboard in May 1973. They also recorded a version of Born Free for MGM and an album for 20th Century which was never properly promoted.

The Voxx compilation contains all their singles except the instrumental version of Give Me Some Time and also has excellent liner notes on The Grodes' history written by Manny Freiser which this article is based on. It also includes a previously unreleased version of I Won't Be There which Manny had recorded in L.A. in 1964 with a different band which included Gary Paxton (gtr) and Mike Friedman (drms). It was produced by Jerry Kasenetz, who later produced a number of successful bubblegum acts such as Ohio Express and 1910 Fruitgum Company.

Dale Smith became the successful owner of a Tucson Construction Company, Rich Cota Robies now works as a credit executive with a San Diego hospital, Rick Lust went in the U.S. Air Force later becoming a commercial pilot and Keith Craig is a carpenter in Tucson. Manny Freiser's Let's Talk About Girls was later covered and made famous by The Chocolate Watchband.

Cry A Little Longer was also covered by Yard Trauma on their Music and Must've Been Something I Took Last Night albums.

Compilation appearances have included: Love Is A Sad Song on Love Is A Sad Song, Vol. 1 (LP); Let's Talk About Girls on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and This Ain't No Disco (Mordam promo CD); Cry A Little Longer on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD); Let's Talk About Girls and Cry A Little Longer on Trash Box (5-CD); and Alone In This World, Cry A Little Longer, Give Me Some Time, I Won't Be There, Let's Talk About Girls, Love Is A Sad Song, Sand, She's Got What It Takes, This Is Goodbye, Uh Huh, Girl, What They Say About Love and You Can't Come Back on Let's Talk About Girls! (CD). Grootna was the first group Marty Balin produced after he'd left Jefferson Airplane. The result was an excellent West Coast album, with strong instrumental parts and good vocals. Unfortunately, it was a total commercial failure.

Dewey Dagreaze was Greg Dewey, the former Mad River drummer. Greg Dewey, Vic Smith and Richard Sussman had all also played with Country Joe McDonald. Sussman had previously been in Elephant's Memory.

Slim Chance, whose real name is Austin deLone, later played with Eggs Over Easy, The Moonlighters, Commander Cody, Elvis Costello, The Fabulous Thunderbirds and many others.

Jack Bonus continued on as a producer and issued his own album on Grunt. Anna Rizzo, previously with Sky Blue, would later play and record with Michael Bloomfield, Country Joe McDonald and Kingfish. Kelly Bryan later played with Oasis and Jesse Colin Young. (SR/HS)

Land Of Lakes is an atmospheric punker; a bedrock of muted reverbed-fuzz and menacing bass line, dark lead vocals, lit up at intervals by piercing shards of guitar. Check it out on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD) and crank it up.

I Know Your Name Girl/I Never Really Knew (Scorpio 406) 1966

Looking back, Fantasy's Scorpio label managed to pick up quite a few of the "about to happen" bands on the San Francisco scene - notably The Grateful Dead and pre-Creedence Clearwater Revival Golliwogs. Amongst the 'also-rans' we find this Davis, California outfit whose inclusion is more for historical than musical reasons. Dave Damrell went on to Kak. Drummer Danny Mihm also played for Andrew Staples and for The Whistling Shrimp Blues Band before being persuaded by Cyril Jordan to join the Flamin' Groovies. Dick Peterson would of course go on to team up with Oxford Circle's Paul Whaley plus Leigh Stephens to become brainblasters Blue Cheer.

All four of the band's single cuts also appear on Big Beats' The Scorpio Records Story; although a different, fluteless version of I Never Really Knew is included rather than that which appears on the single. You'll also find I Know Your Name Girl on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (MW)

THE GROUP IMAGE - A Mouth In The Clouds LP.

This punk quintet came from New York and held a residency at Manhattan's Scene Club for a while. Primitive is a superb Stones-influenced number, slow in tempo but incredibly intense.

The Sundazed single makes available two unreleased raw blues-punk cuts from 1967. They were recorded by Neil Hopper, whose foresight and sense of history has preserved the legacy of several Californian sixties acts, e.g. the Kings Verses.

Compilation appearances have included: Primitive on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Born Bad (Songs The Cramps Taught Us); I'm A Hog For You on Pebbles Box (5-LP) Trash Box (5-CD), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 1: Jump, Jive & Harmonize (LP & CD) and Ear-Piercing Punk (LP); both I'm A Hog For You and Primitive on Ear-Piercing Punk (CD); and a previously unrelased track from 1967 Down In The Bottom has resurfaced on Garage Beat '66 4 (CD). The Groupies (?)

ALBUM: 1 THE GROUPIES (Earth Records ELPS-1000) 1969 -

Subtitled "The girls heard on this record report their actual life experiences, feelings and opinions within the pop music scene", this album is a documentary about the groupies, produced by Alan Lorber, the man behind the Bosstown sound (Chameleon Church, Puff, Ultimate Spinach) and Robert "Bobby" Callender. It doesn't contain music, only spoken vocals with some sound effects and came with an insert which is interesting for its glossary, with the definitions of "stoned", "out of it", "plaster casters" plus many other "in" or crude expressions. A hippie outfit from New Jersey and Manhattan, New York whose Hiya, a shorter version of an album track can be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 14 (LP). The high-pitched, often manic vocals make this song at least rather a novelty. At times it recalls Tim Buckley in his prime. Hiya is the outstanding track on an inconsistent album which has its moments. There is also some fine guitar work on Moonlight Dip and Aunt Ida and on Banana Split, which is quite trippy in places. The album is definitely worth a listen.

The album was produced by Vinny Testa, Shadow Morton (aka Shadow Mann) and John Linde and recorded in New York. All the tracks were penned by the group.

Unfortunately much of Group Therapy's material is of The Vanilla Fudge school - heavy soulful sludge. A typical example of this would be their cover of Ike and Tina Turner's River Deep.... Mountain High on their second album. The formula occasionally worked well, particularly on Can't Stop Lovin' You Baby, also from their second album. Collectors are beginning to show some interest in their albums but I wouldn't recommend them.

In 1975, Ray Kennedy formed KGB with Mike Bloomfield and Barry Goldberg. After this failed, he became a session background singer and released a decent solo album Ray Kennedy (CBS) in 1980.

The Group Therapy moniker was used by at least four bands in the sixties. (VJ)

45: Tomorrow Has Been Cancelled/
A Boy I Once Knew Well (Mainstream 685) 1968

The above psychedelic rock album is one of the better Mainstream issues. Side one opens with Hard Hard Year, full of pleasant vocal harmonies and melodic guitar work. Edge Of Time is an up-tempo number with great guitar work. Tomorrow Has Been Cancelled and A Boy I Once Knew Well both feature harmonised vocals and some great guitar. Side two relies more on covers. There's some great guitar playing in their version of Mister You're A Better Man Than I and in Other Side Of Life and they've an individual interpretation of Steve Still's Sit Down I Think I Love You.

An EP accompanying "Le Rock Psychedelique Vol. 1" book also features What Kind Of Life. (VJ/MW)

NB: (1) issued on CD (Parallel World CD-2) 1995 with six bonus tracks. (1) reissued on vinyl (Subliminal Sounds SUBLP231) 2007.

The album is a very rare and unusual psychedelic-folk album. Grudzien came from New York and some collectors rate his album, which incorporated bits of stolen classical, blue-grass and electronic experiments, very highly indeed. Grudzien grew up in the fifties listening to Hank Williams, Johnny Cash and other country music artists. In the sixites he bgan to write and record his own country styled tunes and was inspired by Bob Dylan. The Unicorn is a selection of lo-fi recordings made over several years. The songs cover religious visions and redemption, life's struggles, and tales of romance gone wrong. Grudzien's was gay (and 'came out' in the sixties) - brief references are made to this on the disc. The album has been reissued on CD by the Parallel World label with six bonus tracks and more recently by Subliminal Sounds. (VJ)

The songs are notably dealing with the groupies phenomenon and the original pressing came with a booklet "The Groupie Papers". The GTO's also appeared on one track on the Wild Man Fischer album and on the inner gatefold of Three Dog Night's Suitable For Framing.

Action!* a 2-CD collection (Break Away Records BREAK 015-16) which is presented with a 16-page booklet including biographies and pictures.

Elvis Presley once cited this Memphis-based act as his favourite local band which instantly led to a deal with the HBR label. They recorded quite extensively during 1965-66 and toured widely but success eluded them and plans for an album were scrapped.

Most of their self-penned material certainly appealed to their fellow garage bands if not the record buying public - Five Of Us' version of Hey You can be heard on Boulders, Vol. 8 (LP); The Moonrakers' cover of I Don't Believe on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP). Unfortunately the later material was not penned by the band and degenerated into bland pop, Crying All Over My Time for example is a rather wimpy sounding garage effort. Of their material worthy of note - I Don't Believe is a decent jangly folk-rock ditty; For My Own is Byrdsy garage-pop; and I Sit And Cry is excellent tough garage-beat similar to The Gants.

THE UNICORN

PETER GRUDZIEN - Album No. 1 (In Two Sides): The Unicorn LP.

Louis, who left the band after For My Own recalls:- "We were working with Phil Spector when our manager signed us with HBR... I grew up with Elvis; he used to call me 'Highschool'. We hung out on the movie set with him when we weren't working. He was a wonderful person, we had a lot of fun, I miss him. The Guilloteens were his favorite band at that time and he used to come to the Red Velvet Lounge to hear us play. He had a place there in the corner where he could sit unnoticed."

Hey You was also covered in 1981 by Jonny Sevin (Sounds Of Now eighties compilation).

Laddie Hutcherson still lives and performs in Memphis. After quitting the band in 1968 he played in several groups before going solo.

Louis Paul performed locally in clubs fronting his own band then returned to L.A. in 1970. He appeared on recordings by Three Dog Night, Blues Image and Bobby Hebb. From 1970 to 1977 he released at least nine solo singles and put out an eponymous album on the Enterprise label in 1972.

Paul's replacement Buddy DeLaney later released a solo single where he claimed writer credits for both sides, even though The Guilloteens' I Love That Girl was originally co-credited to him and Joe Davis. The flip, Girl, is a rework of another Guilloteens' song, Laddie Hutcherson's Hey You!.

For a more detailed history and solo discography of this respected and fondly-remembered band, seek out a copy of Ron Hall's book on the Memphis scene (from 1960 to 1975) 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door', published in 2001 by Shangri-La Projects (ISBN 0-9668575-1-8). The For My Own vinyl compilation includes both sides of all five of their singles and includes an informative insert. Alternatively the 20-track 2-CD set Action! Action! Action! contains the band's complete output, along with rare related singles and various side ventures by the band or various members. Disc one has their complete set of singles and disc two includes the complete single releases by pre-Guilloteens instrumental band The LeSabres, a rare 1966 local single release by the Memphis Marks feat Laddie Hutcherson plus an amazing single by hit making brother & sister duo Nino Tempo & April Stevens recorded with The Guilloteens on backing instrumental duties. The whole package is accompanied by a 16-page booklet complete with biographies and pictures.

Collector/researcher Mike Markesich retells the band's story on the Misty Lane retrospective which brings together their five singles with the Buddy DeLaney's Girl, a reworking of Hey You which he cheekily re-credited to himself.

Compilation coverage has included: - For My Own on Leaving It All Behind (LP) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); Wild Child on Mind Blowers (LP); Hey You on Diana's Rootin' Tootin' Wild Teenage Rock 'N' Roll Party! (LP), Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP), Shadows Falling (CD) and Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD); and I Don't Believe (Call On Me) on The Electric Coffee House (CD). An obscure St. Louis, Missouri outfit, who evolved out of Bob Kuban and The In-Men. Their Time/News single is interesting to psych-pop collectors - Time is similar to Brit-pop-psych with Turtles harmonies whilst News has a tougher edge with some gruff guitar and a pulsating beat. Unfortunately the Atco single saw them drift towards the Blood, Sweat and Tears school of soul-rock.

Ray Schulte was an early member of this band, though we don't know whether he played on any of the singles. He was of course later the leader of the excellent late-sixties combo Touch.

Time has resurfaced on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 8 (LP); whilst News has also been compiled on Brain Shadows, Vol. 11 (LP & CD). (MW/JGd)

From Las Vegas, New Mexico this Christian folk-rock group utilised acoustic guitars, stunning "angelic" female vocals, organ, bass and percussion. Their first album is more folk-rock than the second, which is more folk with some psych influences. The highpoints include The Answer and Lamb of God. Both albums share two songs, Have Faith and This Is A Man. Both albums blend organ, bass, drums and percussion behind the acoustic guitars. The Have Faith album includes covers of Into Your Hands, Hear, O Lord and Joy Is Like The Rain, all delivered with the group's characteristic strum. Let There Be Thunder is a vibrant Latin song. The album also features three instrumentals: Dock Of The Bay, Today and an unusual version of Greensleeves with nice psychy organ backing and flamenco-style guitar.

The magnum opus on The You-N-You album is generally considered to be the ethereal ballad The Answer on which the spooky background organ creates an eerie psych aura. The title track and Let's Sing To The Lord are more up-tempo, whilst slow cuts like Close To Me, Don't Say Love and their cover of The Damean's Man Of Mind, Man Of Soul are mellower. Other highlights include the four short liturgical refrains on side two.

In 1973, as Concern, with a new line-up and featuring electric guitar, they released a rare third album with some new versions of their old songs. This comes in a red cover with the title in white print. (SR/KSt/VJ)

From Pennsylvania, this obscure group is mainly notable for being the first group of Daryl Hall, who later found fame and fortune with Hall and Oates. Tim Moore became a successful songwriter, background vocalist and also had a solo (and rather mellow) career with five albums between 1974 and 1979. Sellers and Helmer both became session musicians, with Helmer playing with the late Laura Nyro.

ALBUM: 1(A) GUNS AND BUTTER (Cotillion SD-9901) 1972

This is an underrated progressive as opposed to garage or psychedelic album. An unusual combination of instruments works well with all tracks interesting and a couple particularly good - all were penned by the group. With a predominantly Jewish line-up the album has a hint of traditional Jewish music in their sound. It's closely followed by Lloyd Grossman, who co-produced the album and wrote the sleeve-notes.

NB: α got a UK release (United Artists UP 1160) 1966.

This mid-sixties outfit has been variously reported as coming from New York City and Los Angeles. Both sides of the first single are Eastern-influenced; the vocals are rather reminiscent of Kaleidoscope. The second single is rather more poppy - It Just Won't Be That Way is a cover of a Critters' song.

Erik Lindgren's liner notes for A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD) (which includes It Just Won't Be That Way), says that the band consisted of five music majors from the New York area, who recorded several tracks for the above album, but that United Artists pulled the plug, after the second single stiffed.

Thanks to Sundazed for listening to the plea in an earlier edition of this tome, The Gurus' unique cross-cultural blending of the vibrant and the exotic into a pot-pourri of psychedelic pop can be appreciated via the retrospective CD; it dusts off their singles, unearths the unreleased album, and adds a few bonus cuts. The package is completed by Jud Cost's unravelling of the band's story. Expectations fully met, this was definitely worth the wait. Unreservedly recommended.

Other compilation appearances have included: Everybody's Got To Be Alone Sometime on Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP); Come Girl on Incredible Sound Show Stories - A Trip On The Magic Flying Machine (LP); and Blue Snow Night on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (1) reissued on CD as Take A Picture Plus More Songs (Vivid Sound Corporation VSCD 2091) 2009.

Thoughts (CD) (RPM RPM507) 2002 is a unique collection of the demos Margo made for her publisher Dartmoor Music, mostly in the late 60's but also a couple from the 70's and most intriguingly her earliest song written in 1966 but recorded in 2000.

45: Spanky And Our Gang/Sunday Mornin (Mala 12002) 1968
Take A Picture/What Can I Give You? (Mala 12020) 1968

A soft-psych singer Margo Guryan wrote Sunday Mornin, a hit for Spanky and Our Gang. The non-album 'A' side was a "thank you" for recording her song. The Take A Picture album is a pop/psych effort with multi-layered vocal harmonies, orchestral arrangements and some fuzz guitar work.

Thoughts (CD) is a collection of previously unreleased recordings mostly from the late sixties but also a couple from the seventies and her very first song written in 1966 but recorded in 2000. (SR/DRr)

Son of the legendary Woodie Guthrie, Arlo appeared in 1967 with Alice's Restaurant Massacree, an 18-minute underground hit. His first album was well received, climbing to No. 17 in the Charts and a movie was later made out of the song themes. His following effort Arlo was live and is not recommended, although it also climbed to No. 107. Guthrie then teamed up with Lenny Waronker and Van Dyke Parks and Running Down The Road was recorded with two Byrds (Clarence White and Gene Parsons), Ry Cooder, Jim Gordon, James Burton, Jerry Scheff, John Pilla and Chris Ethridge. Essentially folk and country-rock oriented, it contains two songs of interest: the dope-smuggling anthem Coming In To Los Angeles and the strange title track with its chiming guitars recorded with lots of echo. Again, sales were quite good, reaching No. 54.

Arlo Guthrie performed at Woodstock and a live version of Coming In To Los Angeles can be found on the 'Woodstock' film and soundtrack. Still working with Cooder, Clarence White and various folk and country-rock musicians, his other albums are out of the scope of this book. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM:	1	DENNIS GUY	(Daybreak DR2008) 1972

Although some imaginative (or deaf) dealers describe this album as "folk/psych", it is in fact closer to the first few albums by Don McLean. Denny Guy was a rather mellow singer/songwriter who added some very light jazz touches to his material. The best tracks are Say You'll Be With Me and Hypersensitive Jester. Daybreak was a subsidiary of RCA. (SR)

In 1967 The George Washington Bridge was born out of a reorganisation of popular Phoenix, Arizona combo, The Exceptions, whose mainstays were Oberly and Witten. More often known simply as GWB, they were so credited on their debut, which coupled a pair of breezy pop originals. The July 1968 follow-up moved to a heavier sound, literally, with the acquisition of Alex Walters and his hefty Hammond. Manhattan is a reflective rock ballad, while on the flip they deliver a Fudge-like treatment of the Lerner-Loewe showtune. Gwydion (CA)

ALBUM:	1(A)	SINGS SONGS FOR THE OLD RELIGION (w/insert)	(Nemeton 101) 1975 R2

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (w/insert) (Psychedelic Archives) 1995. (1) also reissued on CD, together with his 1981 album The Faerie Shaman as The Music Of Gwydion 1998.

An Oakland, California act, whose acid-folk album, on which Gwydion is backed by the Wicca Blues Band, is notable for an outstanding cover photo and one great track called Sungod. Although it's not that expensive to obtain in the U.S.A., it seems to have been considered a mega-rarity in Europe, which resulted in its reissue.

The late Gwydion Pennderwen, is best known for his activist role in the neo-Pagan community. Pennderwen was a friend/disciple of the late Victor Anderson. Anderson was known as a high priest in the Pagan community; a proponent, of the Feri tradition of witchcraft. Gwydion actually considered himself a Druid and was a member of a latter day Druid sect the New and Reformed Order of the Golden Down.

So what about the guy's music? Interestingly, at least one dealer has compared it to The Incredible String Band, but this stuff is simply too weird for such a comparison. If you've ever spent an evening in an Irish bar, you've probably heard stuff that's similar to much of 1975's Gwydion Sings: Songs for the Old Religion. Exemplified by largely acoustic material such as Return Of The King, Harvest Dance and Can Ceridwen it was clear that Gwydion and his associates (listed as The California Wicca Blues Band), had a keen interest in English and Irish folk music. Propelled by Gywdion's decent voice (he sounds like he'd spent a great deal of time hanging around Irish bars), the album's 15 tracks are full of Celtic imagery and mysticism (tales of kings, damsels in distress, fairies, witches, etc.). Those themes were apparently in keeping with Gwydion's Pagan beliefs; the songs intended to honour Pagan days of worship, as well as reflections on seasonal rounds and love songs to Pagan Gods and Goddesses. Actually, the best track was the atypical The Sungod. Written by Dana Corby (damn

Gwydion sings:
SONGS for the
OLD RELIGION

GWYDION - Sings Songs For The Old Religion LP.

if she didn't sound like prime era Grace Slick), and backed by one of the few electric arrangements, the song sported a weird pseudo-Jefferson Airplane vibe. Great song! It's certainly different and has generated a cult following (guess there are lots of European Pagan's with high incomes), willing to pay some big bucks for an original copy.

Shortly after his first album was released, Gwydion visited Wales and Ireland. While in Ireland he had a strange premonition that left him so shaken, that upon returning to his native California, he quit his job, basically moving into seclusion on his Mendocino County farm. He spent the next four years in virtual seclusion, but starting in 1980 began making occasional concert appearances at various Pagan events and working in support of a reforestation project - Forever Forests.

In 1982 Gwydion recorded his sophomore album. Supported by the Sheila na Gig Pipes and Drums, The Faerie Shaman was far more traditional than the debut. Once again, the set was largely made up of acoustic folk material; most of it reflections of his Pagan beliefs. While the sound quality was better than the debut, it still left something to be desired. Unfortunately, shortly after the album was released, the 36-year-old Gwydion was killed in a car accident. (VJ/CF/SB)

This long-lived outfit evolved out of Minneapolis' Underbeats, who'd been wowing them in the Midwest since the early sixties. Given the prodigious output under their various monikers, latterly as American Gypsy and The James Walsh Gypsy Band, they must have enjoyed much success but have retained a relatively low profile in collectors' circles since, apart from entries in Tom Tourville's ground-breaking 'Minnesota Rocked' discography. They may have relocated to California at some point, since their early albums were recorded there. The first double album is full of originals, which are psychedelic in mood with West Coast jazz-rock influences and some southern rock tinges. One of the second album's highlights is Another Way, an Eastern-influenced jam which sounds not unlike early Santana - it's featured on the Journey To The East (LP) compilation.

The third album is more mainstream and not as good. It does consist entirely of originals, the better tracks being Facing Time, Young Gypsy, Antithesis and Money. Enrico Rosenbaum was the chief creative force behind Gypsy and sadly later committed suicide. James Walsh led several reformations in later years, and now works in a recording studio in Minneapolis doing independent production projects. Bill Lordan went on to work with Sly and The Family Stone, and later had a long-lasting relationship with Robin Trower, touring and recording with Trower for many years. (MW/VJ/RKg/BCy)

Rather than a group, this L.A. artist was the well-known Sunset Strip loony and 'Nature Boy', a (slightly) younger friend of Eden Ahbez and 'star' of 'Mondo Hollywood'.... He also made an album on Sidewalk and featured as a resident loony-about-Hollywood, living rough by the Hollywood Sign with the other Nature Boys. Boots was also a regular guest on Steve Allen's TV show, Steve used to make it a point to have local eccentrics on and one show featured Frank Zappa playing music on a bicycle frame way before he was famous. Boots was on his show a lot from the fifties onward.

At one time he lived in a tree in Topanga Park...

Nowadays Boots spends much time promoting a health bar and generally healthy vegetarian diet.... with the enthusiastic support of Kirk and Michael Douglas, no less! (SR/JFr)

Originally from Oklahoma but based in Los Angeles, the flip to this folk duo's single was covered by The Electric Prunes on their first single. It has since been covered by Vancouver's Fiends on their 1992 Zombie A Go Go (EP), and by Tim Gassen's Purple Merkins on the Dig It (EP). Rock 'n' Roll Gypsies was also covered by Hearts and Flowers, on BOTH their Capitol albums and latterly compiled on Nuggets, Vol. 10 (LP). You can also check out The Gypsy Trips' version on Soft Sounds..Presents He & She (CD). Teaming up with old friend and another Oklahoma emigre, Leon Russell - who now was working for the "Viva" label and adding J.J. Cale, you get The Leathercoated Minds' album.

In 1970, Roger Tillison made one good album, Roger Tillison's Album (Atco SD-355), strongly influenced by The Band and Dylan.

You can also find Ain't It Hard on Pebbles, Vol. 9: Southern California 2 (CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP). (MW/SR)

Bruce Haack (NY)

ALBUM: 1 THE ELECTRIC LUCIFER (Columbia CS-9991) 1970 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl in 2000. (1) reissued on CD (The Omni Recording Company OMNI 110) 2009 remastered and restored from the original tapes with a couple of bonus tracks - one of which is an extended interview with Haack.

An album of early electronic rock recorded with home made synthesizers, for fans of Beaver and Krause or Tonto's Expanding Head Band. The Electric Lucifer is not the same album as Mort Garson's Lucifer, although it's in the same style.

Born in a mining camp in the Canadian Rockies, Bruce Haack went to the University of Alberta where he majored in psychology and began playing piano on a semi-professional basis. He later moved to New York, wrote ballet music, Broadway and Off Broadway music, pop songs for Teresa Brewer, hundreds of commercials and invented the "dermi tron," an electronic device which allows the human body to be played as a musical device by means of skin contact...

Musically, much of Haack's output at the time focused on the didactic with a string of electronic children's records on the Dimension 5 label. In the era of anti-Vietnam sentiment Haack aligned the peace movement, skirting the metaphysical and the physical with Electric Lucifer, a rock concept album centred on a utopian energy or "power love" that would seemingly unite the world in the face of war. The album is highly-regarded by some, with its hymn-like songs with human or synthetic voices alternating with dense electronic soundscapes. 'Rolling Stone' rated it amongst its favourites of the year. The album's opener Electric To Me Turn is centered around the Adam I, a sort of rudimentary vocoder he assembled for 48 bucks with parts picked up on Canal Street in Lower Manhattan. The pulsating synthesizers must have sounded very original to fans at the time. The rest of the disc is very eclectic. One can see links between the electronics on Chant of the Unknown and The Residents, who emerged in the late seventies. Program Me, features thundering kettledrums and a robotic voice bleating, "my heart beats electrically", that pre-dates Gary Numan. By contrast Supernova recalls Terry Riley and War is in the mould of Wendy Carlos.

Haack has kept on recording all kinds of music, most of them beyond the scope of this book. He is seen as a pioneer of electronica. Electric Lucifer, Book 2 (QDK Media CD 037) 2004 featured recordings made back in 1978 that had not been aired until then. He died in 1988, aged 57, but the 2004 documentary 'Haack: the King of Techno' by film maker Philip Anagnos helped broadcast his legacy to a wider audience. (SR/VJ)

45: Searchin'/Radio (Kama Sutra 521) 1971

Brooklyn, New York was home to this early seventies band who had a decidedly sixties sound. The album's opening track Reachin' has a few searing guitar breaks. The songs (with the possible exception of And I Wonder with its haunting and psychedelic keyboard soloing) have a folky feel. Peace Has Come and Radio are more introspective and veers more towards an acoustic guitar sound. Some of the songs are marred by pretentious lyrics, though. One reviewer described their live sound as 'like an early sixties psychedelic band'.

Nuggets, Vol. 5: Pop Part III (LP) features Got A Gal Named Wilma, a melodic number off their album which features some nice laid-back guitar work. Still the band is worth investigating, but was sadly too short-lived. (VJ)

Here's an extremely strange album by Christian artists with an anti-drugs and alcohol message. One side is comprised of rather trippy folk songs with fuzz guitars, while the other is more in the country and western genre with steel guitar. This outfit issued many albums and singles but this release is sought-after by collectors for its outlandish cover, which features a spoon full of cooked up heroin, a bottle of Jack Daniels, a bag of weed and various pharmaceuticals.

	Banana Song/High Why And Die Company	(Philips 40603) 1969

The Hamilton Face Band's first album Kabbalat Shabbat, was a private pressing from 1968. It consists of a sabbath service composed by Steven Margoshes, featuring Cantor Robert Bloch and Kirsten Sorteberg on vocals, plus Rabbi Sanford Lowe presiding over the services. It was released by Temple Judea in Valley Stream, New York.

Produced by Anne Tansey and housed in a nice sleeve, their second album is a good mix of jazz, blues and psych. All the tracks are group compositions but with some assistance of Paul Wolfe, who was credited as their lyrics writer. The best cuts are High Why And Die Company, Speed Song and Slippery Sweet but the whole album is worth a listen.

Before the third album, Ruth Romanoff married Ian Underwood from The Mothers Of Invention and was credited as Ruth Underwood. Produced by Johanan Vigoda, all the tracks were once again composed by Margoshes, Seldin and Laks, but the result is not as interesting, although United States Atomic Energy Control Plant, Ghost Of A Highway Child and a new version of High Why And Die Company are worth a listen.

When the group broke up, Ruth Underwood went on to play with the Mothers (Of Invention) and became an important element of Frank Zappa's group in the early seventies. Steve Margoshes became a songwriter, notably in 1972 for the country-pop duet Hod and Marc. (VJ/MW/SR/MMs)

This Los Angeles band's finest moment was the non-album Invisible People. It has a catchy organ intro, vocals of some commercial potential and some fine fuzz-tone guitar work. It's flip side, Flash, is more laid-back.

Their album is viewed by some as orchestral mainstream pop and rather disappointing by comparison. Others, however, think it is absolutely incredible... It features original tunes along with covers by the likes of Lee Michaels (Streetcar) and Tim Buckley (Pleasant Street). One track, written by Buzz Clifford, I See I Am, was also recorded by The East Side Kids on their Tiger And The Lamb (LP), which Clifford produced and contributed his song Pigeon Of LA to. Another of Clifford's songs from the album, Now I Taste The Tears was covered by Beacon Street Union on their Clown Died In Marvin Gardens album. A third, Brother Speed, written by John Boylan, was also recorded by Appletree Theatre, of whom Boylan was also a member. All the Dot singles are taken from the album.

Buzz Clifford also recorded a solo version of I See I Am on his second solo album.

John Boylan went into management and later became a producer, with Linda Ronstadt and Russ Giguere (who covered his Brother Speed) among his credits.

Invisible People was also covered by The Slickee Boys in 1983.

ALBUM: 1(A) MUSIC TO EAT (2-LP) (Columbia G-30555) 1971

NB: (1) has been reissued on CD (Columbia/Legacy C2K 67483) 1996.

From Atlanta, this is a totally demented album which should appeal to fans of weird psychedelic groups. The Hampton Grease Band somehow managed to sign a contract with Columbia and released Music To Eat, a double album which seems to have had one of the worst sales in the Columbia history. It was "produced" by the group with David Baker and contains only seven long tracks: Halifax, Mario, Six, Evans, Lowton, Hey Old Lady and Hendon. Hampton screams, whispers, sings, a la Captain Beefheart or Far Cry, while Kelling and Phillips explore various styles of guitar, from jazz, blues and rock to oriental music and freak out experiences. The lyrics are really weird, even including the reading of the label of paint tin. The gatefold sleeve is strange too and mentions that "the people pictured here have complete control of the North American Continent at this very second"!

'Ptolemaic Terrascope' magazine would later release two live tracks by the band; Upper & Lower Dresden and Hendon on one of their free EPs, which came with Ptolemaic Terrascope #21.

Glenn Phillips went on to release several solo albums on his SnowStar label (Caroline/Virgin released some of them in England) and to play with the improvisation specialist Henry Kaiser, who often quotes him as a strong influence. The "Colonel" Bruce Hampton also had a fragmented solo career and is apparently still performing and recording. (SR)

45: Johnny Ander/Love Love Go Away (Bang 535) 1966

Singer Abigale Haness recorded this single as Gayle Hanness in 1966. Johnny Ander has reappeared on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 2 (CD) and Girls In The Garage, Vol. 7 (LP) (miscredited to Gale Haness); it's an excellent Jeff Barry production, very dramatic (in a Shangri-Las kind of way) about a teenaged boy who joins some hippies, smokes dope, then dies!

Abigale later resurfaced in Jo Mama. (JLh)

Lynn Haney (OH)

ALBUM: 1 REBIRTH (Tribute FR-2395-SM) 1972 SC

This female folk-rock singer came from Cleveland, Ohio. She was also the vocalist in the All Saved Freak Band. Her Rebirth album was essentially folk-beat with some psychy influences and effectively utilised harpsichord and flute. It came housed in a black and white sleeve. (SR)

	Faces/Bad Goodbye	(Monument 951) 1966
	Dream Baby/Let It Be Me	(Monument 983) 1966

One of Washington D.C.'s most popular and successful sixties bands, their story began with an act called The Reekers who were formed by guitarist Tom Guernsey in 1964. Following the release of their debut single - Don't Call Me Flyface/Grindin' (Ru-Jac 13) in early 1965, Bob Berberich was recruited on drums and The Reekers laid down early versions of What A Girl Can't Do and The Girl Who Faded Away. No single resulted.

After more personnel changes the band re-emerged as The Hangmen in April 1965, with vocalist Dave Ottley - a British ex-pat working as a hairdresser in DC. The band re-recorded the Reekers' tracks for their first single and What A Girl Can't Do is a classy girl-put-down belter. The single was a local hit, and an in-store appearance at the Giant Record Shop in Falls Church, nearly caused a riot. Billboard magazine reported the near riot in Feb '66, when 400 teenagers gathered to hear The Hangmen play at the store, with a further 1,500 packed outside the shop. The police had to disperse the crowd after 15 minutes, with traffic being disrupted in the street. The shop's owner told Billboard he'd sold 2,500 copies of What A Girl Can't Do.

The follow-up, the stunning Faces, is also a five-star mean'n'moody fuzz-rocker with Who power chords and obtuse lyrics - PLAY LOUD. This single featured new bassist Paul Dowell and Ottley moved on soon after its release to be replaced by Tony Taylor (ex-Roaches).

The third single was a taster for the album that appeared at the turn of the year. Bittersweet includes rather lame reworkings of What A Girl Can't Do and Faces and for fans of the first two garage-punk singles it may be a disappointment. It's good, but not that good, despite a five-minute-plus version of Gloria, and will appeal more to pop fans with tracks like the dreamy version of the Everly Brothers' Let It Be Me.

By the summer of '67 the band's direction shifted to psychedelia and their name changed to The Button. Daly and Dowell had been replaced by guitarist George Strunz and Alan Fowler, former bassist of the Mad Hatters. Founder Tom Guernsey left soon after and The Button relocated to Greenwich Village where they evolved into Graffiti.

When Berberich left The Button, he returned to DC. There he reunited with Dowell and Daly to form (Paul Dowell and) The Dolphin. Their line-up was completed by a young and talented guitarist called Nils Lofgren. Berberich also sat in with Puzzle for a while when their drummer was injured in a car accident.

In 1968, Tom Guernsey produced a single by The Piece Kor. He was also reunited with Reekers vocalist Joe Triplett, writing and producing a single for The Omegas. In the seventies he returned to performing with brother John in the band Claude Jones. Dave Ottley returned to the U.K. and is now a hairdresser in Barnet, London.

You can read all about the Hangmen in Bob Embrey's zine 'DC Monuments', issue #11.

Compilation appearances have included: What A Girl Can't Do and Faces (45 version) on Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP); What A Girl Can't Do on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD) and Signed, D.C. (LP); Faces (45 version) on Sixties Choice, Vol. 1 (LP) and 60's Choice Collection, Vol's 1 And 2 (CD); and The Girl Who Faded Away (acetate) on Garage Dreams Revisited, Vol. 1 (7"). This was a Fairfield, Connecticut outfit. Stacey was written and produced by Lou (L.T.) Castaldo; it's notable for referencing the many chemical substances available back in the day, which would not have helped get airplay - "I've heard of a high from dexadrine, but you've got a kick like a 20-mule-team". He went on to be a highschool English teacher !

Ha'Pennys was a prep-punk outfit from Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts. The album is pretty low key beat in style, comprising mostly British invasion covers (e.g. Day Tripper, Get Off Of My Cloud, Heart Full Of Soul, We Gotta Get Out Of This Place, You're A Better Man Than I) with one original, the title folk-rock cut. Like all the prep-rock albums, it's very rare. (VJ/MW)

A guy called Tommy Court was the brainchild behind the band. He wrote and produced all the songs. There's lots of synthesizer on the album. The better tracks are Positive People, which consists of lots of electronic acrobatics; In Flight, an exercise in cosmic electronics; A Long Time and Inside The Pyramid, both notable for electronic sound effects and, finally, 3-D Free, which stars with a kind of electronic freak-out and carries on in a similar mould pretty much throughout with some vocals at the end.

The group came from Michigan and was related to Phantom. (VJ/CF)

This is basically the second album by Christian folksinger Dave Bixby. Again the focus is on his 12-string guitar and lead vocals, but this album features full band backing. The album was sold exclusively at concerts in Michigan and Ohio. Mostly written around the same time as Ode to Quetzalcoatl, but it's a stronger album - both the material and singing is better and it benefits from the harmony vocals and fuller instrumentation. The recording took place in a professional studio in Grand Rapids, so the sound quality is improved over Bixby's solo effort. (VJ)

There's also a French EP with PS: If I Were A Carpenter/Hang On To A Dream/It'll Never Happen Again/Don't Make Promises (Verve Folkways 519 902) 1967.

In many ways rather a sad figure, Hardin was influential on many other performers throughout the era, although commercial success proved elusive. Born in Eugene, Oregon on 13th September 1940 and an ancestor of the notorious outlaw John Wesley Harding, he was discharged from the U.S. marines in 1961 and then embraced the early sixties Boston folk movement, singing in an emotive style that was more jazz and blues-based than folky.

Although he never achieved the kind of success he deserved, the strength of his songwriting is indisputable: If I Were A Carpenter was covered by Bobby Darin, and was a chart hit for Johnny Cash and The Four Tops. The song was also covered by American Blues, Shaggs, The Small Faces, Electronic Rubayyat, Velvet Night, Grant's Blueboys, Leon Russell and Look. Another Hardin composition Reason To Believe was also covered by Rod Stewart, Hearts and Flowers, Scott McKenzie and The Critters; Danville Dame was recorded by the Blues Project and Yellow Cab by Buzzy Linhardt.

His 1966 debut album contains some powerful compositions like How Long, Reason To Believe and How Can We Hang On To A Dream, which prosper from their sparse presentation. On other tracks Verve added strings without Hardin's knowledge but this blends in with rather than detracts from the emotionality of the material.

THIS IS TIM HARDIN
STEREO

TIM HARDIN - This Is... LP.

Hardin himself had a minor U.K. hit in January 1967 with Hang On To A Dream. This too was covered by many bands during the psychedelic era including: Art of Lovin', Gandalf, The Nice and The Alan Lorber Orchestra. It is somewhat ironic then that Hardin's only U.S. hit Simple Song Of Freedom was not self-penned - it was written by Bobby Darin.

Although released in 1967, the Atco album contains his first recordings from 1963/64: 10 folk-blues tracks; some originals (including one co-penned with Steve Weber from the Holy Modal Rounders), a cover of Fred Neil's Blues On The Ceiling and some traditional songs: Cocaine Bill, House Of The Rising Sun and Stagger Lee.

The back-up group on Tim Hardin 2 is uncredited and the album, produced by Koppelman and Rubin, contains If I Were A Carpenter, Lady Came From Baltimore as well as You Upset The Grace Of Living When You Lie.

Live In Concert and 4 were both recorded live at Town Hall in New York in April 1968 and use MacDonald, Bernhardt and Gomez, (three members of Jeremy and the Satyrs). Jacobsen again produced. Both records are good and contain mainly songs from the Atco and Verve studio albums.

Hardin then moved to Columbia for what is probably his most intimate album. Suite For Susan Moore And Damion - We Are - One, One, All In One is a concept album dedicated to his wife, Susan Moore (already pictured while pregnant on Tim Hardin 2 sleeve) and their son Damion. Produced by Gary Klein, its 10 songs are divided into four sections: 'Implication I', 'II', 'III' and 'End Of Implication' and the result must be heard for his inventive songwriting.

In 1974, Hardin moved to Britain and signed to GM to produce what would be his last album: Nine. Although he intended to live permanently in the U.K. at first, he returned to America where he lived in comparative obscurity until his death on 29th December 1980, from a drug overdose. Among his last projects was an attempt to start a duo with Tim Rose, which sadly came to nothing. His final recording session from December 1980 was issued on album as Unforgiven (San Francisco Sound SFS 10810) 1981.

Through The Years 1964-1966 (Rare & Unreleased Tracks) compiles material that had never appeared on vinyl before, mostly demos and other recordings that pre-dated his debut album. Tracks include She Ain't Home, You Say You Love Me and You Got A Reputation.

Compilation coverage has so far included: MGMs late sixties label-taster The Core Of Rock which features two of his classic originals If I Were A Carpenter and Reason To Believe. Reading Festival 1973 captures his performance of Hang Onto A Dream and Person To Person from that festival and you can also find some 1980 performances of Judge And Jury and Unforgiven on Matthew Katz's Then And Now, Vol. 1 (CD). Then And Now, Vol. 2 (CD) also includes Luna Cariba and Secret from the same performances. HARDWATER - Self Titled LP.

Produced by David Axelrod, their album is pleasant hard/soft West Coasty rock and folk-rock sounds with Crosby, Stills and Nash-like three-part harmonies. Whilst neither psych, garage nor hippie-rock it still merits a mention here for its laid-back feel and some fluid guitar-work. All tracks are group originals except City Sidewalks, Sanctuary and Good Ole Friends, which were written by Carter-Gilbert (John and Tim), creative source behind Denver's Rainy Daze. Good Luck is in fact a rip-off of the Beatles' Taxman.

Coincidentally the very same Carter-Gilbert tracks appear on the Yankee Dollar album. Is there another connection between these two outfits?

ALBUM: 1 THE MIRROR OF MY MADNESS
(Great Divide JA-1) 1976 SC-R1

Hardy was an important figure in New York's Greenwich Village in the seventies and eighties. The Roches play backing tracks on some of the tracks on this album, which was housed in a crude hand-decorated jacket. A later album is known to exist, The Hunter (Great Divide GDSR 1769) 1986. (VJ)

Arthur Lee Harper (?)

ALBUM:	1	LOVE IS THE REVOLUTION	(Nocturne 905) 1970 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Synton 9806) 1998. (1) reissued as a 2 on 1 CD (Papa's Choice 4002) 2002 along with Arthur's Dreams and Images.

Memories (RD Records 11) 2003 is a retrospective of updated and new recordings.

This is the same Arthur that recorded Dreams and Images. On this effort he's supported by his backing band Second Coming. There's some good gypsy violin moments and some good melodies on many tracks. Others are more mediocre. Allegedly less than 250 copies were pressed of this.

Arthur Lee Harper died in 2003. (VJ)

	Picture Me High (Picture Me Low)/ Where Is She	(World Pacific 77917) 1969

A psych-pop duet, nothing is known about them and their backing group. Their only album was produced by Ed Ver Schure and Ralph Murphy (who also wrote eight of the 12 tracks) and they were managed by William McEuen (who also managed Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Sunshine Company and Hourglass). The album is quite patchy and contains folk-pop (Hello Sleepy Sidewalks), rock (Love Machine, penned by Gordon and Griffin), and orchestrated pop (Here Comes Yesterday Again). One of the best tracks is The Dweller, with flute and guitars, composed by Marcellino and Larson. It is beginning to interest some collectors. (SR/MW)

There's also a rare French EP with PS: The 59th Street Bridge Song/Simon Smith/Come To The Sunshine/Debutant's Ball (Warner WEP 1454) 1967. Reissue 45s have included: 59th Street Bridge Song (Feelin' Groovy)/Anything Goes (Old Gold OG 9094) 1982.

Originating from a San Francisco surf band called the Tikis, Harpers Bizarre moved to Los Angeles to capitalize on the folk-rock boom. Their sound was called "California Sunshine Rock" by Lilian Roxon and it's basically a mix of folk and soft-rock with vocal harmonies. Their debut album was produced by Leon Russell and is a classic of its genre. On the next album, they had their biggest hit with a cover of Simon and Garfunkel's 59th St. Bridge Song (Feelin Groovy) and also did some revivals of oldies from Cole Porter and Glen Miller, with the help of Van Dyke Parks.

For The Secret Life, they were joined by Van Dyke Parks, Ron Elliot, (Beau Brummels) and Randy Newman. Despite its psych sleeve, the album hasn't aged well.

On 4, their last album produced by Lenny Waronker, their sound had hardened a bit with Ry Cooder on guitar and it contained covers of Witchi Tai To (Jim Pepper), Blackbird (Beatles) and Hard To Handle (Otis Redding) mixed with original material (notably Soft Sounding Music, with Cooder on bottleneck). I Love You Alice B.Toklas was the theme song for a Paul Mazurski movie starring Peter Sellers.

Ted Templeman went on to become the producer on Captain Beefheart's Clear Spot, as well as for the Doobie Brothers, Little Feat and Van Halen. John Peterson also drummed with the Beau Brummels.

Come To The Sunshine gave its title to Nuggets: Come To The Sunshine (CD) and a different version of I Love You Alice B.Toklas has resurfaced on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (VJ/SR/MMs)

(selected) 2(B) INDO-JAZZ FUSIONS (Atlantic SD 1482) 1967 SC

NB: (1) also released in France.

Born in Jamaica in 1928, Joe Harriott was a black jazzman, sax player and composer, who began his career in England. He got interested in Indian music and rhythms and moved to the USA in the sixties. After some albums on Jazzland and Capitol, he signed a contract with Atlantic to produce two superb examples of "West Meets East" collaborations, with their combination of Indian instruments (tabla, sitar, tamboura) with jazz rhythms. These albums will interest fans of Bill Plummer's Cosmic Brotherhood or Gabor Szabo.

Harriott died of cancer in 1973. (SR)

This Dayton, Ohio quintet entered the WONE-sponsored three-day 'Battle Of The Bands' in 1966 and came out as one of 12 winners who got to record one cut each at Mega-Sound Studios for the souvenir album WONE, The Dayton Scene (Prism PR-1966).

They chose to cover the obscure Invasion-infused I Know That I Love You by Indiana outfit The Rick Z Combo. Perhaps The Harrisons were at the Dayton gig in 1965 where that act had opened for The Strangeloves. Shortly after, Rick Z (better known as Rick Zehringer, later Derringer) signed with the Strangeloves' label Bang and hit the charts as The McCoys. (MW)

Bob Harrison (?)

ALBUM: 1 YELLOW MOON (Bob Co) 1975

ALBUM: 1 SHAUN HARRIS (Capitol ST-11168) 1973

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Rev-Ola/Cherry Red CRREV127) remastered and repackaged with liner notes including some contributions from Harris himself.

45: I'll Cry Out/? (Capitol 3697) 1973

Harris first emerged as guitarist and vocalist with the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band (WCPAEB) (1966-1968). Upon their demise he played on Bob Markley's 1969 solo album and then recorded the above solo album that spawned the single above. The album evoked a more conventional sound than the WCPAEB, who all appear on the record. It's full of Beach Boy-style harmonies and Burritoesque steel guitars, with the added melancholy of Harris' occasionally bleak lyric writing. Other musicians involved on the album include Muscle Shoalers' Larry Knechtel and Jim Gordon, and Beach Boy Bruce Johnston, whilst Shaun's dad, the renowned composer and conductor Roy Harris handled the orchestration. Stand-out tracks include I'll Cry Out and Canadian Ships. (VJ)

Tony Harris (?)

45s: Honey/Scorpio (Dee Gee 3002) 1965
Super Man/How Much Do I Love You (Dee Gee 3014) 1966

Another obscure artist, the first single has been described as a 'fast rock'n'roll/mid-sixties Dylan-ish' affair', but it's really Super Man which grabs the attention. A cool hero-worship ode to 'Superman' with good vocals and guitars.

Another single credited to Tony Harris and The Woodies: Poor Boy/Go Go Little Scrambler (Triumph 60) 1964, could possibly be by the same guy. (BM/MW)

The first solo album by the Grateful Dead drummer may also interest Bay Area fans. Backed by John Cipollina and David Freiberg (Quicksilver), Grace Slick and Paul Kantner (Jefferson Airplane), Terry Haggerty and Bill Champlin (Sons Of Champlin), Stephen Stills, Sam Andrew (Big Brother), Barry Melton (Country Joe), the Tower Of Power Horn section, Zakir Husin (Shanti) and Alla Rakha, and, of course, Jerry Garcia, Bob Weir and Phil Lesh from the 'Dead. Mickey Hart offers a mix of Indian invocations, rain sequences, Dead-like songs and loose improvisations with oustanding guitars and drums. The result has its moments (Deep, Wide, Frequent, Pump Song, Gran'ma's Cookies...). It made some impression in the Album Chart, too, climbing to No. 190 during a four-week stay.

Robert Hunter, Peter Monk and Bob Weir helped write some of the material and the album is housed in a splendid Mouse and Kelley sleeve.

Still with the Dead, Mickey Hart went on to release several albums of percussions and worked on soundtracks including work for 'Apocalypse Now'. (SR/VJ)

45: First Impressions/Talk About It (Verve Forecast KF 5086) 1968

Produced by Tom Wilson, these Japanese gentlemen put out a strange double album. The first two sides are fairly poppy but the last two sides each comprise one track - Twice Told Tales Of The Pomegranate Forest and Samurai Memories - where we get into heavily introverted mystical Eastern hippie rambling. A period piece, you'll either hate it or be wafted away by it. The single was culled from the album.

Hunters of Heaven has been compiled on Mystic Males (CD). (MW/SR/VJ)

45: Kingdom/One In The Spirit (Destiny 202) c1971

This Jesus-rock trio (and friends) recorded their album at Living Sound Arcadia, California in 1971. The music goes from hard wah-wah rock, via hippie-rock, to soft, acoustic folk sounds. Some may admire their open-faced and honest devotion, literally, to their beliefs but it does date the album somewhat.

There are some pleasing vocal harmonies, superb keyboards, plenty of good guitar and Eastern-style arrangements in places. Aside from a cover of One In Spirit all of the tracks are self-penned. (VJ/MW)

Tom Harvey (?)

45: It Happens/If You Loved Me (International Artists IA-102) 1966

On this single, Harvey sounds like an American incarnation of Engelbert Humperdinck interpreting (self-penned) country standards, but with the vocals out of key and with insipid pedal steel playing. It's a long way to the 'Elevators, indeed! (MK)

Jimmy Haskell is mostly remembered for his prolific career as an arranger and producer in the Hollywood studios. Housed in a poster cover with a map of the USA, this extremely strange concept album is about life in California after the "big one", with the Great Plains turned into a "Marijuana and Insect Corridor" and the Florida region as a desert. This album was recorded with the usual musicians working with Bill Szymczyk, including notably Joe Walsh on guitar. (SR/VJ)

NB: There's also one Italian 45 with a nice PS: The Every Step I Take/Fever (United Artists UA 3155) 1968.

A typical Long Island (New York) bar band, The Hassles was comparable to The Young Rascals and Illusion. Musically we're talking blue-eyed soul, heavy on the organ and on the second album they're trying to be psychedelic.

In 1970, Small and Billy Joel went on to form Attila, a totally unsuccessful duo who released one album on Epic (Epic 30030). Billy Joel, of course, went on to fame and fortune as a solo artist and Howard Blauvelt, who died in 1993, ended up in Ram Jam.

Their debut single, You've Got Me Hummin' charted at No. 112, also making the Cashbox and Record World Top 100s.

A third album of dubious origin, credited to Billy Joel and The Hassels (sic) was released during the eighties and contains tracks like Holy Moses, E.A.R., Rabbitt, Extra Extra, Enough Is Enough and Crossing The Door.

Night After Day can also be heard on In The Beginning (LP). (VJ/TTi/SR)

Harley Hatcher was an exploitation film composer and member of Mike Curb's gang. As an army buddy of Elvis he sang in ad-hoc groups with the King.

His The Chase Is On can be found on Angel Dust - Music For Movie Bikers (LP).

Hatcher also produced the American Revolution album. (VJ/MW)

45: I'll Give You Love/I Must Be In Love (Comet C-952) 1964

The Beatlesque I'll Give You Love is featured on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD) and Sixties Rebellion 16 (LP & CD), which reveals that this was the first foray for New York singer/songwriter Andy Rose into the new English Invasion style. He embraced it to the extent of borrowing a few bars from Can't Buy Me Love in his title refrain!

Prior to this he had been a doo-wop and harmony singer with solo singles on New York independent labels since the late fifties. (MW)

	Stop/Busy Signal	(Atco 45-6653) 1968

Jeanne Hatfield hailed from McAllen, Texas. She was a blues/folk singer. Her last two singles are considered "northern soul" and this is a pretty marginal entry.

Compilation appearances include: My Babe on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD), Texas Punk, Vol. 5 (LP) and The Heart Beats And Other Texas Girls Of The 60s (CD). (VJ/MW)

The Hatfields (IN)

Originally from Frankfort, Indiana where they were known in 1965 as Sherlock and the Homelies, they migrated up to Chicago and changed their name. They specialised in pounding punkers as is evidenced by Yes I Do and Kid From Cinncy.

Their second single has been seen fetching huge sums 30 years later!

Compilation appearances have included: The Kid From Cinncy on Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP); Yes I Do on Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP); and Lost In This World on Quagmire Volume 7 (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

HAYMARKET RIOT - LIve '67 LP.

45:	No Opportunity Necessary, No Experience Needed/ Three Days Eternity	(Verve Forecast 5068) 1968

One of the very few black progressive folk singers, Richie Havens wore beads, had a guru 'look' and was one of the first musicians to use an electric sitar. Born in Brooklyn in 1941, Havens began singing in the fifties, taught himself guitar and started playing the Greenwich Village coffee house circuit in 1962. He finally got a recording contract in 1967 and his Verve Forecast albums were recorded with an array of musicians including: members of Jeremy and The Satyrs (the whole group plays on Something Else Again), Harvey Brooks, Felix Pappalardi, Bruce Langhorne, Eric Weissberg, Stephen Stills and Skip Prokop. His rough voice was quite unusual at the time and he chose songs by Dylan, Lighfoot or Tuli Kupferberg (Fugs) to display its full range.

His records sold very well and Havens was invited to perform at Woodstock (Freedom can be found on the movie and soundtrack album). He was also able to launch his own label, Stormy Forest, on which he released his albums, plus those of Bob Brown and the Canadian folk trio Montreal. The two albums on Douglas contain early recordings, with overdubbed electric backing on Electric Havens and are not recommended.

1973's Portfolio contained three self-penned compositions; Dreaming My Life Away, I Know I Won't Be There and Woman.

Mixed Bag II included covers of Paul and Linda McCartney's Band On The Run, Bob Dylan's Sad Eyed Lady (Of The Lowlands) and Gene Vincent's Ooh Child and one Havens' original, Someone Suite.

The End Of The Beginning includes covers of Stewart/Gouldman's I'm Not In Love, Van Morrison's Wild Night and Dylan's I'm Not For You as well as another Havens' original I Was Educated By Myself.

Richie Havens kept on recording during the seventies and early eighties, but he was unable to revitalise his formula. His records always sounded too similar and he slowly vanished from the musical scene. He may be down but he's far from out and still releasing albums in the 21st century; such as Wishing Well in 2002, Grace Of The Sun in 2004 and Nobody Left To Crown in 2008. There are several compilations of his material, many of which are listed in the discography above.

He had versions of Just Like A Woman and Handsome Johnny on The Core Of Rock (LP) and Handsome Johnny re-emerged on The Core Of Rock Vol. 2 (LP).

In the nineties, the U.K. psychedelic outfit Praise Space Electric covered Freedom on their 2 Leaving Demons album. (SR/VJ)

This Haymarket Riot came from Monroe, Michigan. They formed in the mid-sixties and were originally known as The Avengers (didn't every town have one?), changing their name to Haymarket Riot in late 1967 and breaking up shortly after the record was issued in 1969. Jim Doe wrote Leaving whilst Dennis Morales wrote Sunny Day Song.

Leaving has subsequently been featured on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD), where it's stated that this is the Haymarket Riot who issued the single on Coconut Groove - can anyone else confirm this? You'll also find Nine O'clock on A Journey To Tyme Vol. 2 (LP). (SG/MW)

Haymarket Riot (OK)

45: Trip On Out/Something Else (Riot 101) 1968

This psychedelic six-piece from Enid, Oklahoma cut one excellent single. Trip On Out has resurfaced on many compilations (see below). Both sides of the single are also listed on Pebbles, Vol. 6 (CD), but only Trip On Out is included on the actual disc. The Pebbles liner notes, state that the single was recorded in Chicago, which is incorrect - it was recorded on a trip to Oklahoma City...

For the full low-down on the band seek out a copy of 'Lost & Found # 4' fanzine.

You can also check out Trip On Out on Pebbles, Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD), The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP), The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD), 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD) and Follow That Munster, Vol. 2 (LP); and Something Else on Pebbles, Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(C) LIVE '67 (RD Records RD 7) 2000

This Berkeley High band initially operated as The Livin' End (line-up 'A') on the Berkeley, California scene. With the arrival of Pete Barsotti, in spring 1966, they became The Haymarket Riot. Scott Donaldson joined from The Plague (Richmond's legendary punk quartet) to replace Batterman, who left to join The Answer at the end of 1966.

Their thrashy Who and Yardbirds-inspired punkers stretched into hard-but-fluid psychedelic-blues jams over the next year. They were captured for posterity in full flight at a gig in the social hall of the First Unitarian Church of Kensington (or FUCK for short!) on December 1st 1967, where they performed five numbers comparable to a rawer Quicksilver Messenger Service or Grateful Dead, who would have been sending similar vibrations back across the bay from The Fillmore. It is these recordings that are featured on the above live album. Around the time of this recording they changed their name, for the last time, to Lazarus. They would last until the end of 1969. Steve Nelson joined local rivals Purple Earthquake, with whom they'd often shared bills. Dave Carpender would play lead guitar for several years with Greg Kihn.

Nothing was released during their lifetime under any of their names. The limited edition album comes in a heavy laminated gatefold, fronted by the colourful psychedelic artwork of the band's drumhead. It contains a detailed band history by Alec Palao, from which the pertinent facts above have been extracted. (MW/CF)

John Kowalski and Bob Homa formed this band when the Chicago garage band The Real Things they were playing in broke up. They placed an ad in their college newspaper and two other Chicago newspapers and recruited Marc Swenson and tall blonde vocalist Gloria Lambert, who was in a band called Jordan, Damian and Samantha and was seeking a more electric band. They took their name from a statue to commemorate a labour riot in Haymarket Square in Chicago. They were soon playing at the city's premier venues like The Playboy Mansion and Electric Playground, as well as numerous teen clubs.

Their album is notable for some catchy drumming and Lambert's powerful vocals, although some of the songs are too long. It has much of the looseness and improvisation of the Bay Area Bands. The music on the album was used to accompany the original Baron and Bailey Light Circus at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago. Gloria Lambert's composition Phantasmagoria is perhaps the pick of the bunch. Despite its reissue, original copies remain sought-after. One cut from the album, Amapola appears on Psychedelic Patchwork (LP & CD). It's well worth seeking out a copy of the reissue.

The band did not release any singles. Marc and Gloria later married, had two sons and divorced.

The 1996 reissue (on CD & LP) has been digitally cleaned, but even better is the official CD release on Gear Fab with the story of the band told by John Kowalski. This has been briefly summarised here. (VJ/MW)

Bill Haymes (TX>MD)

ALBUMS: 1 I SHALL BE RELEASED (Resist BH-101) 197? R1
2 BILL HAYMES - USA (Resist NR-6340 LP) 197?

Raised on a small Missouri dairy farm, Bill Haymes was born into a musical family. His grandfather was a fiddle player, his uncle's guitar and banjo players. From these family musical sessions to high school rock and roll bands, Haymes practiced his instrumental and vocal techniques, and developed his ability to relate to audiences. He began performing in college and commercial coffeehouses whilst majoring in History at Rice University, Houston. He recorded I Shall Be Released in college. It included five cover versions and six original songs. After graduating from Rice, he moved to Maryland and continued playing the college coffeehouse circuit there, as well as in Texas and the Midwest. He recorded a second album in Baltimore, Maryland, Bill Haymes - USA, during a period in the seventies living on the East Coast. It featured many songs written about his experiences on the road - dealing with issues such as love, fidelity, wisdom, continuity and change. Soon after recording this album Haymes returned to Little Rock, Arkansas to live, near his childhood home.

In 1976 Haymes appeared at the Kerrville Folk Festival and was a New Folk winner there. In 1988, he produced his third full-length recording, Anima/Ocean. The guitar-based album had a strong South American influence. The album was part-funded by a Composer's Fellowship awarded to Bill by the Arkansas Arts Council in 1986. In 1993, he recorded his first compact disc Out Into The Light, which featured 12 original songs. It got played on a number of Midwest and East Coast radio stations, and was selected by Performing Songwriter Magazine as one of the their 'Top 12 Independent Recordings' of that year. Haymes relocated to Nashville, Tennessee and as well as performing there he still tours nationally. 45: Spoiler/Bruce's Twist (Polydor PD 2-14043) 1970

Here we have some real heavy dudes from New York City with some grungey vocals, a mean attitude and some wicked guitar - above-par hard-rock. Although outside the musical thrust of this book, they're worth a mention especially as a couple of tracks on their album were written by Larry West, formerly of the legendary Vagrants and younger brother of guitar colossus, Leslie 'Mountain' West.

Their album was produced by Shadow Morton, aka Shadow Mann. They contributed The Children Of Heaven to Up All Night (CD).

45: I Won't Come Back/One Against The World (H&H 200,891) 1966

This is a very rare and sought-after single from Boston. By way of tribute to this band and the New England garage-band sound, a nineties Italian retro-garage-psych group dubbed themselves Head & The Hares and released two albums and some singles, featuring many covers of sixties obscurities.

ALBUM: 1(A) HEAD OVER HEELS (Capitol ST-797) 1971 R1

A Michigan power trio, Head Over Heels' album is powerful and inventive - one of the best hard-rock albums on the label. Showcasing a line-up consisting of drummer John Bredeau, singer/guitarst Paul Frank and singer/bassist Michael Urso, the band only managed to release one instantly obscure album, but what an album! Produced by Dan Moore and Buzz Clifford and recorded at Detroit's Eastowne, 1971's Head Over Heels is simply great. Loud, tough, yet surprisingly accessible, material such as Road Runner and In My Woman showcased the trio's knack for melodic, but crunching guitar-rock. Frank and Urso had attractive voices and as we said before, they sure could generate some sound. Among the few missteps were some out of kilter harmony vocals (Question) and the bland power ballad Children Of The Mist (which was almost redeemed by Frank's nice guitar solo). Elsewhere, an extended cover of Willie Dixon's Red Rooster and the Frank-penned Circles were in-concert efforts that aptly showcased the band's impressive live chops.

Frank and Urso subsequently reappeared with the band Fresh Start. Urso was also a late-inning member of Detroit's Rare Earth (along with the Scorpion guitarist Ray Monette), playing on several of their albums in the mid-seventies. (VJ/MW/SB/CF)

From San Marcos, Texas originally, Roy Head relocated to Houston in 1964. His forte is soulful brassy pop-rock and he would be outside the boundaries of this book but for You're (Almost) Tuff, a great fuzz-rocker where Bo Diddley encounters Count Five's Psychotic Reaction. Many of his sixties releases were recorded with the Traits and are so credited.

He also recorded Easy Lovin' Girl (a Johnny Winter composition) with The Great Believers.

The Dismal Prisoner album contains covers of Van Morrison and John Lee Hooker tracks. After 1973 he became a country singer and his subsequent efforts aren't relevant to this book.

The above is a most unusual and underrated album with sound effects, fuzz guitar and creativity, which was produced and arranged by Milan. Side one, aside from an interesting version of Sunny, is notable for the intros to all its songs, whilst side two is memorable for the invigorating Prophecy and the cosmic ending to the final track Infinity. HEADSTONE - Still Looking LP.

The Headstones was probably the strongest act to record on the Pharaoh label, which was based in McAllen, Texas. Their first single was a local hit, combining the Beatlesque Wish You Were Mine with 24 Hours (Everyday) a pounding punk song with lots of fuzz, organ and fine vocals. Their follow-up did even better staying at No. 1 for two weeks running in McAllen.

A recommended and worthy CD retrospective The Headstones: 24 (Everyday) collects all four of their 45 sides and then explores the released, live and unreleased legacy of the related groups featuring the two leading lights in The Headstones - Dave Williams (Seompi, Remaining Few - n.b. not to be confused with the other Texas bands by this name) and Winston Logan (Oxford Circus, Watermusic). Spanning garage, psych, heavy and straight-ahead rock styles, the material ranges in sound and musical quality from average to very good.

Their material has also been compiled heavily including: Bad Day Blues on The Psychedelic Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP) and Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); Wish She Were Mine, 24 Hours (Everyday), Bad Day Blues and My Kind Of Girl on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD) and Texas Punk, Vol. 5 (LP); Wish She Were Mine and 24 Hours (Everyday) on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP); both 24 Hours (Everyday) and Bad Day Blues on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 8 (CD); 24 Hours (Everyday), Wish She Were Mine, Bad Day Blues and My Kind Of Girl on Headstones: 24 Hours (Everyday) (CD); and Bad Day Blues on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). The release comes with a detailed six page insert, rare pictures and a band history.

Five students from Longview High School formed this Texan garage-band in 1965. After honing their skills on the local circuit they recorded Exit 9, a superb slab of garage-psych, backed by an aggressive cover of the 13th Floor Elevators' classic. 500 copies were pressed on their own label and sold mainly at gigs. The Break-A-Way EP contains both sides and their full story alongside Longview rivals The Only Ones.

45: Cryin' Inside/Choo Choo Train (The Head Beats 2605) 1968

Cryin' Inside, an organ punker by a girl group from Lubbock, Texas was a Ronnie Weiss composition. According to Roy Ames, they made two singles at Robinhood Brians' studio in Tyler, and won first prize in Dick Clark's 'Battle Of The Bands' contest the same year (1968). The girls were due to receive $10,000 in prizes, a recording contract with ABC, and nationwide tour, however, as they were aged between 12-15 they were too young to go on the road unchaperoned and their mother/manager Mrs. Jeannie Saunders nixed the whole idea.

Compilation appearances have included: Choo Choo Train and Crying Inside on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection, Vol. 1 (3-CD); Choo Choo Train, Crying Inside, Little Latin Lupe Lu and Poor Side Of Town on Girls Of Texas '60s (LP & CD); Crying Inside on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 3 (LP); and Choo Choo Train, Crying Inside, Everywhere, Little Latin Lupe Lu, Satisfied and Poor Side Of Town on The Heart Beats And Other Texas Girls Of The 60s (CD). There's also a previously unreleased version of Little Latin Lupe Lu on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). (MW)

An excellent and still underrated group from Los Angeles, Hearts and Flowers produced two albums mixing folk-rock with Californian harmonies and country-folk.

Born in Waycross, Georgia Larry Murray moved to Los Angeles in the late fifties and joined the Scottsville Squirrel Barkers, one of the several Bluegrass groups playing the southern California circuit. The personnel of the Barkers fluctuated and included future Byrd Chris Hillman, Kenny Wertz and Bernie Leadon. The group disbanded in 1962 after releasing an album for the Crown label, Bluegrass Favorites, which is now extremely rare.

Murray temporarily retired from the music scene, became a TV actor and worked at the Troubadour Club in L.A. In 1965 he met a folk-rock duo formed of David Dawson and Rick Cunha and they started working together and playing live without a drummer. They secured a deal with Capitol and their first album was released in June 1967. Masterfully produced by Nick Venet (Fred Neil, Stone Poneys, Euphoria and Mad River), Now Is The Time For Hearts And Flowers is a real gem. The choice of material is outstanding, with excellent covers of Tim Hardin's Reason To Believe, Hoyt Axton's 10,000 Sunsets, Carole King's Road To Nowhere and Donovan's Try For The Sun, plus two songs of contemporary groups: Please, the Kaleidoscope song and Rock And Roll Gypsies by Gypsy Trips. Their original songs were penned by Murray, Cunha and Marty Cooper. The vocals are brilliant and Venet added some good production tricks, with some effects, violin and electric bass.

Capitol
Hearts and Flowers

HEARTS AND FLOWERS - Of Horses, Kids And Forgotten Women LP.

The sales were unfortunately extremely poor and Capitol decided to give them a push: two new members, Terry Paul and Dan Woody, were drafted to reinforce their live impact and a promotion campaign began at the end of 1967; with limited results.

Murray and Dawson started working on their second album. Cunha, Paul and Woody left and Bernie Leadon arrived. Of Horses, Kids and Forgotten Women was released in July 1968 and got the same results as the first album: critical acclaim but low sales. It notably contains She Sang Hymns Out Of Tune, a song originally recorded (but not released) by Jesse Lee Kincaid with the Rising Sons. Both albums will appeal to country-rock and rural folk-rock fans.

Due to their lack of success, the group disbanded and their records sank into obscurity before being rediscovered in the mid-eighties by Bam Caruso.

Larry Murray went on to record a good country folk-rock album, Sweet Country Suite (Verve Forecast FTS 3090) 1969, with backing by Swampwater, Paul Parrish, JD Souther and two Nitty Gritty Dirt Band members, Fadden and McEuen. He also worked with Kris Kristofferson and Jessi Colter in the early seventies. Rick Cunha would later work with Linda Ronstadt, have a career as a songwriter and session man and also released two decent country-rock albums: Cunha Songs (GRC GA 5004) 1973, with Dave Dawson and Moving Pictures (CBS) 1977.

The 2002 2-CD retrospective contains both albums plus 13 previously unreleased cuts.

You can also check out Rock 'N' Roll Gypsies on Nuggets, Vol. 10 (LP) and Rock A Delics (LP); and Tin Angel (Will You Ever Come Down) has resurfaced on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (SR/GGc)

This Texas outfit was most significant as a later outing for Gaylon Latimore who had earlier had a solo career as Gaylon Ladd and also played in The Dawgs, The Silvertones and Eastside Transfer.

Produced by Huey P. Meaux, the "Crazy Cajun", the Double Bayou album is really patchy: two excellent tracks, notably Bill The Black Militant with a fantastic guitar part and unusual lyrics, but also, alas, several insipid ballads and one of the worst songs you can imagine : Last Words on which Gaylon Latimore speaks to his recently deceased girlfriend. Brrrr! All the songs were written by Latimore and Christian.

Of the two Double Bayou singles, only Look Around Son, an awful ballad, can be found on the album.

A New York band, their album is overrated. Musically it's rather slow, pedestrian blues, rather than psychedelic. They do not appear to have released any singles. 45: Brand New Day/
So Long, Farewell, Goodbye (Ace Of Hearts 0453) 1972

The Ace of Hearts label was based in Nashville, Tennessee and all the songs on this album were written and arranged by the four band members. The title pretty much gives the game away and most of the tracks are dreamy organ fuzz-soft-psych with a progressive edge. Apart from the progressive instrumentation and jamming, much of the album sounds like a harmony folk-rock from 1969. However a few of the tracks venture into heavy rock. The song-writing is consistently good and there is excellent guitar/keyboard throughout. (CP)

Enrolled at the University of Oregon in Eugene, the band had an earlier release (as The Critters) on their own Design label, which was a small local hit on KGRL and led amongst other things to their opening for The Beach Boys. This brought them to Jerry Dennon's attention. By late 1967, the group had again changed their name - and this time their image - to become the bizarrely futuristic X-25, with a further single on Portland imprint NWI.

45:	It's Seventy-Four In San Francisco/ Mist Of Time	(Command 4121) 1969

The Hellers was a group of L.A. ad agency people who decided to make pop records. The three 10" albums were ventures by the Heller-Ferguson advertising agency to present a whole series of their radio ads in the form of concept albums about an ad man flaunting around with West Coast folkies and hippies - quite bizarre!

Singers, Talkers, Players, Swingers and Doers is a strange album with a mix of soft psych, moog tracks, sound effects, odd narration and children's voices. It is now sought-after by collectors of unusual items. The man behind the project is jingle writer Hugh Heller. This mysterious six-piece band used to play frequently at 'La Cave' club in Cleveland, performing in mime make-up and actually performing mime onstage between their songs. N.D. Smart, who was working with Kangaroo at the time, caught their act and ended up drumming for them on their first two albums, both of which are underrated gems.

The first album is full of catchy, appealing songs like It's A Monday Kind Of Tuesday and none of the songs are credited. With the second, their music has evolved and offered a superb mix of rock, folk, blues and jazz, with a good flute player. The lyrics are more concerned, like Anthem:

"They say I was born in the land of the free
But the home of the briefcase is all I see
With fine houses and highways we covered the land
But freedom's a fable if the conscience is banned"
"So I'm going to prison for what I believe
I'm going to prison so I can be free
I've got something I'll die for
What else can they do
I've got something to live for
What about you?"

The same themes are present in How Does It Feel To Be Free, I Ride To Nowhere and Dream Of Tomorrow. This time the songs are credited to P. Weston, W.S. Tongue, L. Tasse, M. Sagarese, R. Sedita and G. Geddes, so we can assume they are the musicians hiding under the masks. Both albums were produced by Lou Futterman who went on to work with Ted Nugent.

In 1969, N.D. Smart stopped working with the band, but he resumed in 1972 with Robert Sedita, George Geddes and Lawrence Tasse. This version of The Hello People also did some live work with Todd Rundgren who had used Smart on some of his early albums, including Runt. A couple of years later two further Hello People albums surfaced on ABC/Dunhill, both with Smart and both produced by Rundgren.

It has also been rumored that Danny Douma was also part of this enigmatic group, but his name doesn't appear on the 1968 Philips albums. Danny Douma later became the leader of the (Big) Wha-Koo (three albums on ABC and Epic between 1976-79) and also recorded a solo album Night Eyes (Asylum) in 1979 with Eric Clapton and Fleetwood Mac.

The Hello People also appeared on the The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour and The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson.

You'll also hear (As I Went Down To) Jerusalem and Mr. Truth Evading, Masquerading Man on Electric Food (LP). (VJ/SR/JO)

45s:	Keep In Touch/Runaway	(Decca 32783) 1971
	Good Time Music/Hold On Child	(Decca 32879) 1971

This hard-rocking Christian band was from California. Drummer McCracken, who had earlier played with The Evergreen Blueshoes later ended up with The Doobie Brothers.

Their debut album blended guitar, bass and drums in a format that ranged from rural-rock, folk-rock and pop. Side one is full of energy and fine vocals and the stronger of the two, but both are pretty good.

Second Coming is an album for heavy rock fans with lots of heavy fuzz and wah-wah guitar. The outstanding track is Do You Understand The Words? for its superb psychedelic guitar work and McCracken's heavy rock drumming. The remainder of the album, which contains all original compositions, is not up to that standard but contains some quite good heavy-rock numbers, particularly, All Day, Good Time Music and Hold On Child on side one. Surprisingly, they did not attain much commercial success and both their albums are now minor collectors' items.

Do You Understand The Words was compiled on Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). (VJ) help/second coming

HELP - Second Coming LP.

There's an unreleased Gene Clark song (Back Street Mirror), a cover of Tim Hardin's Reason To Believe, some arranged ballads, but also, and mainly, four really strange psychedelic ragas co-written by Roger McGuinn and Chris Hillman of The Byrds: Talkin L.A., Good King James, Anathea and the 6'30" War's Mystery. On all these tracks, the 12-string guitar of McGuinn sounds like a sitar and the Indian percussions (tamboura, tablas...) add to the weirdness of the lyrics. (SR)

45: All Of The Day/Is Love Real? (Cuca 6731) 1967

Jim Kirchstein's Cuca studio and label operation in Sauk City, Wisconsin was used by several bands from Michigan's Upper Peninsula, including The Fastells and Rob Kirk and The Word. Ontonagon's Henchmen VI made the trip in early 1967 and their enjoyable but derivative single appeared in March. Harmonious jangle'n'fuzz rocker All Of The Day is a thinly-disguised rework of the Nightcrawlers' Little Black Egg. For Is Love Real they hijacked the melody from the Monkees' Mary Mary, cranked up the moodiness, and hit the fuzz pedal.

Both sides have resurfaced on The Cuca Records Story 2: Garagemental (CD) and Is Love Real? is on Michigan Mayhem Vol.2 (CD), Badger Beat Chronicles (LP) and Garage Beat '66 4 (CD). (MW/GM)

45: Extension II/Forget About You (Two:Dot HRH-22670) 1970

NB: shown as by Nibbus. The A-side is non-LP.

This is a very obscure soft-psych album in the style of Yankee Dollar, released on the same label as Arthur (Gee) and The Ninth Amendment. Sue Akins is the band's main creative force and her vocals are superb. The guitar has a slight West Coast feel and some of the arrangements are mildly jazzy, although much of the better material has a folk-rock feel. There's even a jazzy instrumental track. (SR)

Although this brilliant psychedelic blues guitarist was born in Seattle, given that he was based in the U.K. for most of his career, his life and times are documented in the 'The Tapestry Of Delights Revisited'.

This album is a mellow, acoustic hippie-folk offering from Minnesota that contained a range of stringed instruments. It includes eight originals (one co-written with Michael Johnson - the album's producer), a Leo Kottke cover (Mona Ray) and the remaining track Give Me Time was penned by Ted Sherman who plays banjo, mandolin and salt box on the album. NB: double A-sided promo copies exist.

From Cleveland, Ohio Henry Tree's album veers towards the progressive, with a country influence on a couple of tracks. The long title track in particular has an unnerving intro and features some good guitar work. Another highlight is quite an impressive cover of Traffic's Dear Mr. Fantasy. An obscure Washington D.C. band, who's Things Won't Change has resurfaced on Signed, D.C. (LP). It's quite a strong song with effective vocals and some good fuzz guitar. I've also seen them quoted as a Chicago band, and Things Won't Change also resurfaced on Michigan Mixture, Vol. 11 (LP) and Gravel Volume 5 (CD). So, who knows?

There is also an Edgewood acetate with an unreleased cut, Till The Night Is Thru. (VJ/MW)

The origins of this band are open to debate. They've been reported as coming from Madison, Wisconsin and St Louis, Missouri.

ALBUM: 1(A) BACK HOME AT THE BREWERY
(Spirit Records 964 S-2003) 1973 R2

From East Lansing, Michigan; a live album recorded as a benefit for NORML! The band tends to prefer sweaty soulish/latin cover tunes (Them Changes, Dance To The Music, I Wanna Take You Higher), which is typical of the era (August 1972) although the lead guitar solos are bountiful and completely insane! All things considered, a pretty cool record that will send chills down the spine of any guitar fanatic. Rather tragic cover art, though...

The album was co-produced by Bob Baldori of The Woolies.

45: Big City Streets/Magic Man (Metromedia MM 120) 1969

From the East Coast, Carolyn Hester began her career in the early sixties as a traditional folk singer and was married briefly to Richard Farina. Around 1968, she formed the Carolyn Hester Coalition, who recorded two albums for Metromedia.

Both albums were produced by Dave Blume and recorded in New York. The first is fuzzed up folk/psych/rock, like a female folk/singer/songwriter meets Ill Wind. The best offering is the opening cut Magic Man which is mind-blowing fuzz psych at its best. It is hard to find weak tracks on this album. The sound is typified by an excellent laid-back fuzz guitar and political lyrics like in Half The World ("...Half of the world is starving, half of the world is overfed...!"). Other songs include Be Your Baby, the delightful Hey, Jay, the much recorded hippie anthem Let's Get Together, the political folk song Last Night I Had The Strangest Dream, The Journey and Buddha (Was Her Best Man) plus more. This is recommended for folk/psych fans. The entire group without Carolyn also showed up as the backing band in Twinn Connexion.

The rarer second album, Magazine, is another fine example of electric folk-rock with hippie values (the back cover shows the group doing peace signs beside Army tanks), which again should interest fans of Ill Wind and Jefferson Airplane. Hester's crystal clear voice is backed by good musicians and the songs reflect the period: Beadmaker (the tale of a young couple, one of whom may have broken with the past to create their own new way of life), Plant The Crops In The Garden (about the generation gap and featuring some appealing piano), Just Follow Me (described as "a simple formula for entering a world of new and enlightening experiences"), Calico Sky, etc. The album also contains ususual versions of Sittin On The Dock Of The Bay (a disenchanted wanderer reflects upon society's contradictions and basic inability to change), St. James Infirmary (the story of a freedom marcher's martyrdom told by his woman) and Swing Low Sweet Chariot (a Chicago demonstrator's lament). The opening cut, Rise Like Phoenix displays her vocals strengths to good effect, as does the beautiful Dedicated, a folk-pop song. The album is now a minor collector's item.

ALBUM: 1 CHILDHOOD DREAM (Ascension MLSP 3885) 197? R2

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Erebus 2020CD) 2009.

Paul Hibbets grew up in Rome, Georgia. His privately pressed album has some dreamy Christian folk/psych rock with fuzz and keyboards, although it strays a bit too far into AOR territory as times. There is a strong commercial feel on cuts like Glory Lady, Echoes and particularly The Doobie Brothers-influenced Manifestations. The stand-out track Love God's Little Children has some fine guitar licks and breaks. The playing has a high quality and consistency throughout and many rate this as one of the very best Christian rock albums. (VJ)

Trike and presented in a mini-card gatefold sleeve with inserts.

Just 100 copies of this album were pressed originally making it extremely rare. The band came from Evansville, Indiana and all except Prentice went on to play in B.F. Trike. Their album is full of variety with the most psychedelic track being Time And Changes. This has great vocals plus lots of fuzz and was later re-recorded by B.F. Trike. Mr Man is rather unusual, employing spoken lyrics over a piano/keyboard backing; Father Come With Me is a successful blend of droning keyboards and vocals and there are also a couple of laid-back melodic numbers in I Don't Believe and Judy, which open and close the album. Get to hear the album if you can but don't pay a fortune for a copy.

Mister Man has also resurfaced on Love, Peace And Poetry, Vol. 1 (LP & CD).

This group is unrelated to another Hickory Wind, a country-folk group who released albums on Flying Fish and Adelphi. (VJ/MW/SR/NK)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Gear Fab-Comet GFC-424) 2001. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-165) 2001.

Recorded in New York, this Philadelphia band's album consists of five Edgar Koshatka originals and a pretty woeful cover of Bob Dylan's Subterranean Homesick Blues. It was produced by Howard Massler. Although the material is rather weak, there's nothing wrong with the playing - lots of extended jams with some good guitar and organ interplay. The very short jazzy instrumental Circadian Rhythm isn't marred by the rather messy production which undermines the rest of the album.

They were another of those band's whose career was effectively ended by the theft of their equipment in March 1973. (VJ/MW)

Highway was a psychedelic hard-rock trio from Mankato, Minnesota. The album consists of long tight songs with great vocals and extended, flowing guitar leads on the better tracks - Look Away, Meadow and Tomorrow. Some of the other tracks are rather more nondescript. Their album originally had a pressing of 500 and Steve Murphy had earlier played with Minnesota's The Epicureans. Murphy incidentally is held in high esteem by Midwest aficionados. (CF/VJ/MW)

45: Mystery Rider/All I Need (To Have Is You) (RCA 74-0782) 1972

One of the best major-label heavy-rock albums of the era, produced by Bill Halverson (Blue Mountain Eagle, CS&N, Freddie King). The liner notes proclaim that "the group dedicates itself to the emission of the highest levels of energy rock". Their brilliant guitarist, Michael Stevens, composed the eight tracks (Lazy Woman, Promotion Man, Fifteen...) while Francisco sang and drummed.

Stevens was previously with The Boston Tea Party, and also played on Atlee Yeager's solo albums. A New York native, previously in Crowfoot and Atlee, Francisco was an active musician, drummer and singer. In 1973, he was with Ron Elliott (Beau Brummels) in Pan and, in 1977, formed The Big Wha-Koo (three albums on Epic and ABC). He has an extensive recording history lasting into the eighties. He must not be confused with another Don Francisco, a Christian singer/songwriter who released some albums during the seventies on NewPax, a label managed by Gary Paxton.

They have one track Fifteen on Up All Night (CD). (CF/SR)

Kenneth Higney (NY>NJ)

ALBUM: 1 ATTIC DEMONSTRATION (Kebrutney KBH-516) 1976 SC

45: I Wanna Be The King/Funky Kinky (Kebrutney) 197?

Originally from Manhattan, psychedelic-folk poet Kenneth Higney was based in Bayonne, New Jersey around the time of his album's release. Just 500 copies were pressed and the album is characterised by a stoned vocal style with acoustic backing and lots of effects. Some tracks like Rock Star also veer into heavy territory with its solid backbeat and fearsome distorted guitar. The atonal style of singing tends to be irritating, concealing what little melody there might be. An album you'll either love or hate!

Both sides of his post Attic Demonstration single were also featured on a CD, Single 'N' Independent which Higney put together on Kebrutney in 1994. The CD is a compilation of local unsigned acts. (MW)

NB: other LPs probably exist.

Hi Hopes (called High Hopes on the first album) were pupils at the Hope School For The Developmentally Disabled in Anaheim, California. Their charmingly bad albums are sought-after by collectors of the very strange.

Ability included their basement rock interpretations of four Creedence Clearwater Revival cuts and Wipeout. The title track sounds like a class sing-along and the rest of the album doesn't get any better!

Hi Hopes commences with a version of Everything Is Beautiful that sounds like The Chipmunks. The rest of the album is equally frightening. Covers include King Of The Road, Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head and Candy Man.

On Journey, Fly, Robin, Fly is an interesting track. There's a very slow version of Smoke Gets In Your Eyes, and other well known songs covered include God Bless America, If I Ruled The World and Tie A Yellow Ribbon.

The verdict on these albums? woeful! (VJ)

Diane Hildebrand (?)

ALBUM: 1 EARLY MORNING BLUES AND GREENS (Elektra EKS-74031) 1968

An obscure hippie-folk singer, her album contains tracks like The Reincarnation Of Emmalina Stearns or Given Time. Probably one of the rarest Elektra releases. It wasn't widely promoted either by the label or the artist. She is best remembered for the songs she wrote for The Monkees who covered the title song of this album. (SR)

Joel Scott Hill spent most of his boyhood in Texas, moving to San Diego with his family during the 1940s. He was a member of at least two bands that pre-date this book; The Rhythm Runners, and The Ramblers, a group that featured Junior Madeo, San Diego's first "rock" guitarslinger. Madeo had a profound influence on Hill, and all of his subsequent musical endeavours became vehicles for electric guitar improvisation, which was a rather provocative concept at the time (fully five years before the British invasion). Hill's own band focused largely on instrumental rock and blues, and they initially called themselves The Rebels. As this almost immediately became a problem in confusion with Duane Eddy's band, they changed their name to The Strangers when they signed to Titan Records in Los Angeles in 1959. Several of their early singles charted in southern California; the most successful being Caterpillar Crawl. During the first part of the 1960s, Hill also contributed to recordings as a session guitarist; in particular on hits by Kathy Young & The Innocents and Chris Montez.

Hill was a prominent and respected figure on the California rock scene for many years; one of, if not the first West Coast guitar hero and it became quite a badge of honour to be chosen as a member of his live band or to record with him. A quick check of his extensive (but only partial) personnel list reveals connections to scores of important rock bands, which was not an accident. He could be compared, perhaps to Frank Zappa in this respect. Hill performed and recorded steadily until two incidents (namely, a gunshot wound to the leg and a broken hand in a bar fight) forced him to retreat from the public eye and recuperate. He returned to form slowly, by all accounts - but it is widely acknowledged that his best work followed his convalescence.

L.A. Getaway was recorded over several months in 1970 with yet another very impressive line-up of pros guesting. A fine West Coast album with great vocals and bluesy guitars, it was not the success it should have been. Hill replaced Al Wilson in Canned Heat before L.A. Getaway was released, a move that certainly didn't endear him to Atlantic Records. The album sounds, 30 years later, like a California version of Derek and The Dominos - a more optimistic record but with that same relaxed, confident flow. It's worth seeking out. As it was clear that the band proper that recorded L.A. Getaway ('Jerome') was no more and therefore would not be touring in support of the album, Atlantic released it with no band name on it at all!

Joel Hill's tenure with Canned Heat encompassed only one studio album, Historical Figures And Ancient Heads (United Artists UAS 5557) 1972, which includes a dazzling remake of his 1959 single flip side Hill's Stomp. Infinitely more impressive, though, is the 1990 German-only double album Live At The Turku Rock Festival, recorded in concert in Finland in August 1971. This is probably the best example extant of the Joel Hill line-up of Canned Heat; he sings lead on a couple of tracks and the stereo mix separates his guitar from Vestine's by placing the two wide left and right. He also appears on the France-only Memphis Heat album, wherein Canned Heat back bluesman Memphis Slim. While this album did not show up in stores until 1975, it was recorded in 1971 (Barclay 80607). There's also Gates On The Heat, an album recorded with Clarence 'Gatemouth' Brown in the same series (Barclay 806030) 1975 which very likely includes Hill, but his participation is unconfirmed.

Hill's next project was a country-rock studio band called The Docker Hill Boys. It was his intention to assemble an album with this collection of studio pros, and although a considerable amount of energy was apparently invested in creating a follow-up to L.A. Getaway, a finished album was never released by Columbia. While The Docker Hill Boys project never came to fruition, it did convince Hill to pursue country-rock, which he accomplished by joining The Flying Burrito Brothers. He appears on several albums and toured internationally with the group. (CF)

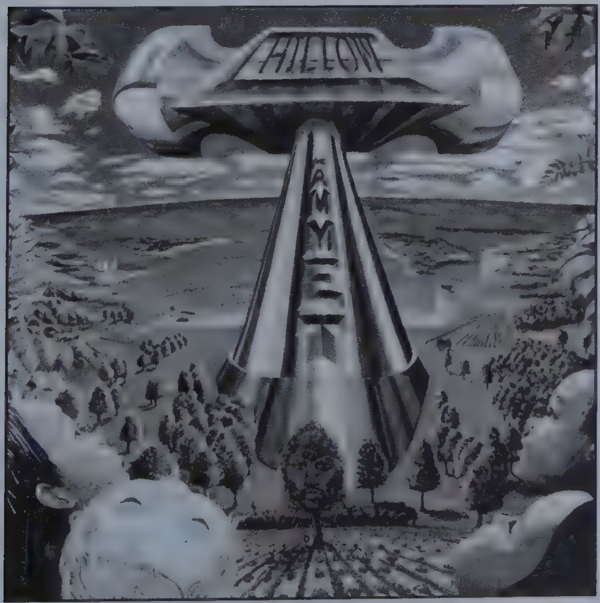
ALBUM: 1(A) HAMMER (House Of Fox HOF-LP-2) 1970 R1-R2

NB: (1) also issued as white label promo labelled 'mono' although it plays stereo and commands no additional value. (1) counterfeited as Hillow Hammit (L&BJ) 1978 R1-R2 in a newly designed cover and minus one cut (Funky Junky). (1) reissued on CD (Dodo Records DDR 510) 2001.

This album was produced by Lelan Rogers (of the International Artists label) and recorded in Memphis, Tennessee. The origins of the band have been the subject for speculation over the years. It was suggested that they were from Oklahoma, then Mark Opsasnich's book 'Capitol Rock' (a fine tome on the Washington D.C. scene) mooted that they were possibly from that region and included D.C. guitarist Pete "Peaches" Williams. Well, from the personnel and reproduced album sleeve notes on the Dodo reissue, the latter appears to be borne out. The notes were written by a Charlie Brown (DJ for WOL radio in Washington) who reports that he first encountered the band recording demos at a studio in Silver Springs, Maryland. He says he also suggested to their manager that they be called The D.C. Sanitation Department (?!).



HILLOW HAMMET - Hammer CD.

OK, that's sorted..... what about the music? Reputedly it's a "good hard-rock album with lots of acid guitar". It turns out to be decent hard-rock with occasional meandering leads, Hendrixisms and outbursts of wah-wah... but what hits you in the face is the gritty soulful vocals and a tough funky edge. Regrettably, the album closes with a seven-minute version of Oh Happy Day, the negro spiritual. That aside, there is certainly much to recommend here.

The bootleg repress on L&BJ is a very curious item. First of all, the band name is misspelled, a track is missing and the sound quality is miserable. It's yet another product of the Tennessee 'Album World' company that also did a hack reissue of another of Lelan Rogers' non-Texas productions, Elderberry Jak, as well as titles by The Yardbirds, Jefferson Airplane and a host of Johnny Kitchen-related records. The Crocket-Daniels composed It's A Man... was covered by Sweden's The Melvins in the same year, retitled The Man Down There ; their version is on Pebbles Vol. 26 (LP). It's A Man Down There also appears on Sir Doug Quintet's "Best Of" (LP/CD).

45: Come On Up/The Idols Of Your Mind (Tee Pee 75/76) 1968

This single features a decent cover of the Young Rascals' number with some great fuzz guitar. This Milwaukeee band spent a lot of time out of state, performing as far away as Florida, so Gary Myers had a job tracking them down for his second Badger state book, 'On That Wisconsin Beat'.

Compilation appearances have included: Idols Of Your Mind on Badger Beat Chronicles (LP) and Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD); and Come On Up on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP). (VJ/MW/GM)

45s: Things/Rich Man's Fable (Shamley 44006) 1968
Girl (I'm Waiting For You)/
I'm Flying Home (Shamley 44008) 1969

This brief Fankhauser project was based in Pismo Beach, California in 1968, after he and Dodd had earlier played with Fapardokly. In their time, H.M.S. Bounty often opened for Canned Heat, Electric Flag and the Paul Butterfield Blues Band. They split in early 1969 when Meyers and Dodd left.

This album, which was reissued in 1985 by Cherry Red's subsidiary Time Stood Still, is a melodic amalgam of both folk and acid-rock. The latter being represented by the paranoid Lost In The City and Drivin' Sideways (On A One Way Street) with the vocalist recounting a bad trip, and mystical numbers like Madame Silky and A Visit WIth Ashiya. The album is full of hooks, harmonies and sound effects that were typical of the period. The Time Stood Still re-issue includes an additional track, I'm Flying Home - the flip side from a 1969 single.

Fankhauser went on to form Mu, who also included Jeff Cotton, formerly of Captain Beefheart.

Fankhauser was one of the more interesting rock figures to emerge from Los Angeles in the sixties. Moving to the West Coast from his birthplace of Louisville, Kentucky he played with surfing outfits like The Sentinels and The Impacts (with Jack Jordan) and later with (Merrell and) The Exiles, prior to forming Fapardokly. Mu spent much of their time in Maui, Hawaii and was a pretty weird bunch. Fankhauser has also cut solo albums in 1976, 1983, and 1985, which are well worth investigation.

Fankhauser suffered a heart attack following a concert appearance in Pismo Beach, California in 1987 and for a while it was touch and go, but he did fully recover.

Compilation appearances have included: Things (Goin' Round In My Mind) and A Visit With Ashiya on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP); A Visit With Ashiya on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers (CD); Driving Sideways on Timemazine #3 (CD), which was given away free with the fanzine; and I'm Flying Home on Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD). 	Don't Put Me Down (censored)/ Don't Put Me Down (uncensored)	(Blue Saint 1001) 1966

NB: Both 45s contain the same music.

This band was previously known as The Montells, who were responsible for You Can't Make Me, one of the finest primal R'n'B singles, matching (if not out-doing) any early Pretty Things recording. From Miami, Florida this single under the H.M. Subjects moniker, includes two versions of The Pretties' classic, which was censored for the line '... When I LAID her on the ground'. The uncensored version can also be found on the Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP) compilation or you can check out the censored version on All Cops In Delerium - Good Roots (LP).

The recent retrospective album The Montells/The Evil (Corduroy CORD 027, Australia) 1997 contains all released plus some unreleased material, and so includes both versions of Don't Bring Me Down. This is highly recommended.

Jeff Allen also later played in Evil. (MW/VJ)

45s:	Daffodil Days/Sunny Day Girl	(Decca 32226) 1967
	Pretty Young Thing/Strawberry Children	(Decca 32270) 1968

This New York City band's music was essentially straight-forward sixties pop. Produced and arranged by Terry Philips, Jerry Vance and Jimmy Curtiss, their records stated that it was "vocals with instrumental accompaniment". They took their name from the JRR Tolkien stories but in fact never tried to incorporate them into their songs. Gini Eastwood was a studio singer and later worked with B.J. Thomas.

The first album is mainly notable for his pseudo "hip" liner notes ("Ain't in to know one bag I can ride the yellow submarine if I want to Hey, you know the inside to trip?) and the effects on the good opening track, Down To Middle Earth. Several songs have promising titles Let Me Run My Fingers Through Your Mind, Out Of My Mind) but are rather deceptive. No personnel or songwriters were credited.

HOBBITS - Men And Doors The Hobbits Communicate LP.

On Men And Doors, two female singers were added and the main characteristic is the constant use of a flamenco guitar played by Marius. Penned by Curtiss, Terry Philips and Marcia Hillman, the songs are a bit more elaborate, notably The Journey (co-written by Howie Sell) and Strawberry Children.

The third album was released on Jimmy Curtiss' label, Perception. Curtiss penned most of the songs but the album isn't very good and also clocks in with an extremely short playing time of 23 minutes!

Compilation appearances have included: Strawberry Children on Acid and Flowers (CD); Down To Middle Earth on Baubles (LP); I'm Just A Young Man on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 9 (CD) and Artificial Faces has a compilation named after it. (VJ/MW/SR)

Enchanting pop, most probably from California, for the flower generation during the 'Summer Of Love'. Perhaps because of confusion with the other Hobbits, this band changed their name to the equally Tolkienesque Magic Ring and tried again with Frodo Lives the following year on Smash. Unfortunately, there was another Magic Ring from Texas, so this lot slunk back down to Middle Earth. The single was produced by C. Aragon, D. Moore and Robyn. Frodo Lives was written by by M. 45:	Blues Theme/Loose Lip Sync Ship	(HBR 511) 1966

Loose Lip Sync Ship, was actually recorded by The Chocolate Watch Band, using The Hogs as a pseudonym for contract reasons. It's a catchy, but by no means outstanding, largely instrumental song which ends in complete mayhem. A novelty.

The German Frank Zappa fanzine/four-volume book "The Torchum Never Stops" maintains that - just maybe - the great man himself plays guitar on Loose Lip Sync Ship.

Compilation appearances have included: Loose Lip Sync Ship on Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); and Blues Theme on Angel Dust - Music For Movie Bikers (LP). Also of interest is Early Works '64 - '66 (CD) (Captain Trips) 1997 that contains surf and garage material from the 1964-66 era by The Fender IV and Sons Of Adam.

Chris Lockheed of Kak helped ex-Blue Cheer guitarist Randy Holden on the above album, which is an extension of the proto-metal direction he explored on side two of the third Blue Cheer album, New! Improved! Probably because Holden plays all the music himself, the album sounds rather one-dimensional and sparse. It certainly isn't the best record that he's played on, but it's by far the rarest, and is still highly sought-after. The stories which have circulated for years about it being withdrawn from the market immediately after release are probably accurate. It is still held in high regard by collectors of primitive heavy-rock and copies were changing hands for hundreds of dollars over 20 years ago. It includes an updated version of Fruit and Iceburgs (sic), which was originally one of his contributions to Blue Cheer's New! Improved!

Holden had earlier played with The Fender IV, Sons Of Adam, The Other Half and Blue Cheer. His early works have been compiled on the CD, Randy Holden Early Works '64-'66: The Fender IV, Sons Of Adam (Captain Trip Records) 1997. It includes both Sons Of Adam singles for Decca plus three previously unreleased cuts, Without Love, I Told You Once Before and You Make Me Feel Good. It also includes the two singles for Imperial by The Fender IV plus two previously unreleased tracks, Highway Surfer and Little Ollie.

ALBUM: 1(A) DANNY HOLIEN (Tumbleweed TWS-102) 1972

Danny Holien was previously the leader of The Shades and Midwest and his only solo album may interest some curious readers. Recorded in L.A. in August 1971 for a short-lived label by Bill Szymczyk (Joe Walsh, Eagles, Silk...), it came housed in a luxurious die-cut jacket with a 16-page songbook. The lyrics talk about ecology, urban loneliness and Eastern religions and the music is mainly comprised of melodic ballads (Colorado, Satsanga, Red Wing), mixed with some good rock tracks similar to James Gang (Lino The Wino, Wella Wella Isabella).

The same year, Holien, GaGa and Steve Swenson also played on the solo album of Dewey Terry, Chief (Tumbleweed TWS-104). (SR)

ALBUM: 1 CAT MIND (Mother 1050) 1972 SC

Recorded on a New Brunswick, New Jersey label and recorded in Bound Brook New Jersey, this album is beginning to attract some attention from collectors. No band members are listed except for writing credits (R. Holland, B Bishop, L. Alpaugh).

The album as a whole has a very melancholic feel alternating between mellow, acoustic cuts like Colours Of Sad and Make Me Flowers to folk-rock cuts like Cat Mind and the killer Indian Blues with raw vocals and acidy guitar. (SR/DG)

ALBUM: 1(A) SIDEWALKS TALKING (Ovation OVQD-1407) 1971 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2084) 2008.

This gentle soft-rock album spans many diverse influences from pop-psych, mystical mellow passages, some quasi-classical touches and some delightful ethereal flute, trance-like vocals and fuzz guitar. Also helping out on the album are Bobby Christian (perc), Pat Ferrara (gtr), Ross Salamoni (drms), Ron Steele (gtr) and Bob Surga (bs). A few other session musicians assist on individual tracks. The highlight is the opening cut, Talking To Myself, but there is much to appreciate on this largely undiscovered gem. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 HERE IN THE LAND OF VICTORY
(Pentagram P-1001) 1970 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Synton Archive Recordings 41441) 2005.

Probably from California, Rex Holman's Here In The Land Of Victory is a very good folk-psych album, similar to the better tracks on the Brent Titcomb album, and sounding a lot like Tim Buckley in parts. Holman has a mid-range quivery voice and the songs are all very fragile, floating acoustic numbers, with sitar, tablas and other exotic instrumentation scattered liberally throughout. The production credits "Schmitt-Douglas", and the album was recorded at Dimension Sounds, which may have been an L.A. Studio. The album cover is a very psychedelic montage featuring Holman super-imposed over scenes of down-and-out street people. Not as overwhelmingly gorgeous as the JK & Co cover, but similar. Holman was also a TV actor and appeared in some films too.

Holman also wrote Bizarrek Kind covered by Vision Of Sunshine. (SR/ESn)

Hard To Keep My Mind On You (Tower 392) 1967
So Close/Django And Friends (Polydor PD 214041) 1970

Based in San Francisco Jake Holmes released his first album in 1967. It's an extraordinary psychedelic folk-rock masterpiece, then described as "a songwriter, three guitars and a mirror". The guitars of Holmes, Ted Irwin and Rick Randall are the only backing of Holmes' voice and the 10 short tracks are outstanding, especially the original version of Dazed And Confused, which was later literally stolen by Led Zeppelin.

This album was produced by Maximillian Productions and Holmes wrote the creepy liner notes "Rick has two extra eyes. He can't word what he sees, but I hear what he sees when he plays".

The following albums are more folky or country and not as interesting. Letter To Katherine December is a jazzier album and Leaves Never Break that opens side two is the magnum opus - a great fuzz-psych folk number. His third album is weaker and veered towards a country-rock sound. So Close, So Very Far To Go was his most successful album commercially, climbing to No. 135 during its six week chart sojourn.

Ted Irwin would later play with Elliot Murphy, Roy Buchanan and various country singers.

Compilation appearances have included: Dazed And Confused on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP); Leaves Never Break on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 11 (LP) and Slowly Growing Insane (CD); Leaves Never Break and Genuine Imitation Life appeared on Underground (LP) back in 1969; and Dazed And Confused and Think I'm Being Bad on Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 3 (CD). There's also a CD compilation Collected Works (Void/Hallucinations HCD 03) 2001, which essentially combines their two albums on one CD.

The members of this group were all students at Regis High School in New York City. Their albums have a strong Christian theme. Indeed they were put out by the Paulist Press, a wing of the Missionary Society of St. Paul the Apostle in the state of New York. Their first album was essentially poppy, but all of the tracks were originals. Some of them were written by other class members. The second one may interest readers. The lyrics were full of religious propaganda but a few of the tracks like Magnificat 70 are instrumentally interesting. The title cut is an interesting folk-rocker and Know They're You is quite garagy. Overall, though, it's not recommended.

Dennis Blair also played in Justice who also featured Tom Viola. Dennis later became a stand-up comedian.

They also have two cuts; Know They're You and Jesus H. Clown on Resurrection - The Amplified Bible (CD). (VJ/NK/RB)

This was a short-lived Los Angeles group. Scheff had previously played with Ballroom, Goldenrod and Millennium as well as session work. He later played for TCB (an outfit comprised of some of L.A.'s top session men). Paul Williams, who'd previously auditioned unsuccessfully for The Monkees, went on to a prolific solo career in the 1970s and Mentor Williams, too, had a solo career and went into production work. The Holy Mackerel album, which paid some homage to the psychedelic music culture of the late sixties, is now a very minor collectable. Succulent soft-pop confectionery with phased vocals, this should appeal to lovers of Millennium, Sagittarius, Curt Boettcher, etc. The band broke up right after its release and Reprise didn't promote it at the time.

Scorpio Red has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 2 (CD) and Nuggets: Coem To The Sunshine (CD); and you'll also find Wildflowers appears on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 2 (CD) and Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD). (VJ)

45: Boobs A Lot/
Love Is The Closest Thing (Metromedia 223) 1971 103

Steve Weber and Peter Stampfel were in essence The Holy Modal Rounders. Born in Philadelphia in 1942 and raised in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, Weber's unique guitar style was an important aspect of their sound. Stampfel was born in Wauwatosa, Wisconsin in 1938. Prior to the Rounders, he had played fiddle in numerous other musical aggregations - such as MacGrundys Old Timey Wool Thumpers, The Strict Temperance String Band of Lower Delancey Street and The Temperal Worth High Steppers. In October 1962, whilst in New York, Stampfel played with Tiny Tim and Phil Ochs at a Greenwich Village Club called The Third Side. Stampfel and Weber met in New York in March 1963 and they started to gig as a duo at places like The Cafe Flamenco and The Playhouse Theatre under a series of bizarre names like the Total Quintessence Stomach Pumpers before choosing The Holy Modal Rounders. Their gigs were crazy and interesting. Their music, which included some original material, was a diverse collection of traditional and ethnic styles. They chose to record for Prestige in preference to Vanguard or Elektra (who were also interested) because Prestige's producer Paul Rothchild smoked dope!

THE HOLY MODAL ROUNDERS

THE HOLY MODAL ROUNDERS - Indian War Whoop LP.

Their first two albums for Prestige, which were later reissued by Fantasy, were a fine collection of their material at that time. The first, for example, included their own interpretations of traditional songs like Give The Fiddler A Dram and Cuckoo; innovative covers of Blues In A Bottle (originally recorded by Prince Albert Hunt's Texas Ramblers in the 1930's), and Charlie Poole's and The North Carolina's Ramblers' Hesitation Blues as well as Weber's rehash of Mr. Bass Mann, rewritten as Mr. Spaceman. Stampfel and Weber also appeared on the first Fugs albums - they knew Ed Sanders from Greenwich Village. Stampfel also contributed to many local magazines and fanzines throughout his career.

However, in 1967, Stampfel put together a new band The Moray Eels which included Shepard, Tyler and Antonia (a long time friend of his). Sam Shepard was arguably one of America's best post-war playwrights and was also a film star, appearing in 'The Right Stuff' and 'Jessica', for example. He also wrote the screenplay for 'Zabriskie Point'. Later in the same year, Stampfel also united with Weber to record Indian War Whoop. It's a weird acid-folk album with no gaps between tracks and is not that good. Tyler did not play on this album and Lee Crabtree came in on keyboards. The album blends originals like The IWW Song with traditional numbers like Bay Rum Blues.

Their 1968 album was made for Elektra in Los Angeles and included Californian bassist, John Wesley Annis. This, too, was a bit of a disaster and poorly produced. Indeed it took them a while to secure another recording contract, although eventually they wound up with Metromedia in 1971. The result Good Taste Is Timeless was a bit bland, although it had a few good cuts like Spring of '65 and Boobs A Lot. It was disastrously re-mixed in New York by a group of stoned hippies who had not noticed that one of their speakers was malfunctioning. Metromedia went bust and further line-up changes were made.

The line-up for their 1975 album was Stampfel, Weber, Robin Remailly, Luke Faust (ex-Insect Trust), Richard Tyler, Dave Reich and Karen Dalton. This album, which contained good material and was well-produced, is recommended. In fact the album had been recorded two years earlier, but its release was delayed.

In the period that followed Stampfel formed The Hoochie Koochie Dream Band and then, in late 1974, The Unholy Modal Rounders, who together with Michael Hurley and friends recorded the Have Moicy! album, which was one of their better efforts and superior to Last Round, which was actually recorded in 1976.

1978 brought forth a Stampfel-Weber acoustic reunion album, which is more in the style of their first two Prestige albums, whilst 1999's Too Much Fun included Dave Reich. Stampfel and Weber still gig occasionally, mainly in New York City.

The Holy Modal Rounders was one of rock's most diverse and experimental bands. Their recent Live In 1965 album captures them at the height of their prowess delivering their unique renditions of songs like Johnny Cash's Going To Memphis, Fishin' Blues and Flop Eared Mule. Bird Song Live 1971 was comprised of previously unreleased live recording from a radio broadcast that approached an hour in length.

Bird Song originally from their fourth album has subsequently resurfaced on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP). It was originally featured in the cult movie 'Easy Rider' and appeared on the soundtrack album. Other compilation appearances include: Werewolf on Hallucinations, Psychedelic Underground (LP).

Karen Dalton who played on their Alleged In Their Own Time album also released two solo albums in the late sixties/early seventies. (VJ/YI/KMy)

This short-lived quartet came from Memphis, Tennessee. All but Masters were members of Ronny and The Daytonas' touring band. They had a highly individualistic sound and are best known for Let It Out (Let It All Hang Out) which made No. 12 in the U.S. charts in the autumn of 1967.

The unreleased album from 1969 contains the tracks Let It Out, It's A Gas, I'm High and Man Man Man, plus a cover version of Gloria which turns into Eight Miles High before reverting back to Gloria again. All of these tracks also feature on their debut album, but it's not known if they are the same or different versions.

Hunter later died in 1976. Cunningham's brother, Bill, was a member of The Box Tops.

Compilation appearances have included: Let It Out (Let It All Hang Out) on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD). A later reworking of the track also appears on a compilation called Psychotic Reactions - Early American Rock Groups (Topline TOP 153) 1986. The Essential Pebbles Collection (2-CD) also contains a previously unreleased demo of Go Go Girl by the band. This band recorded in Houston although they originated from San Antonio in Texas. Musically they ranged from psychedelia to more progressive rock. Their first single was a strange rework of Willie Nelson's I Never Cared For You on the 'A' side. The third, particularly Sunrise, marked the pinnacle of their achievements in the arena of psychedelic rock. Their album is more rural-rock than psychedelic but it features some fine guitar work and is recommended. Christopher Cross, who achieved considerable success as a solo artist in the early eighties, had some involvement with their album. It is also rumoured that Van Wilkes also played on their singles.

Galen Niles was earlier a member of The Outcasts and played on their final scorching single, 1523 Blair. He also played as a session musician on Still In Love With You Baby (The Argyles) and Help I'm Lost (The Mind's Eye).

Compilation coverage has included: Dandelion Wine and Sunrise on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection, Vol. 1 (3-CD), Acid Visions, Vol. 2 (LP) and Filling The Gap (4-LP); and I Never Cared For You has resurfaced on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). (VJ/MW)

This group developed out of the Sound Of Celebration who met at the Good Samaritan United Methodist Church in Cupertino, California (Cupertino is adjacent to San Jose). They later took the name Homestead and Wolfe from the streets the church was situated on the corner of.

Their obscure West Coast album was recorded at Gold Star Studios in Hollywood. It includes some very big name session musicians too, including top drummer Hal Blaine, Al Casey, Ray Pohlman, Ben Benay, George Poole, Jaydee Maness, and Don Ralke. Some band members don't appear to have played on the album, which is a lovely melodic country-flavoured folk-rock offering in the mode of Neighb'rhood Childr'n and Yankee Dollar. The album's intention was to reflect the social issues of the late sixties and early seventies; hence the title Our Times. In JoAnne Avery they had a sweet soprano vocalist showcased on tracks like Love Comes Through My Door, If I Never Show (a song about a GI lost in Vietnam), and Do I Love You. Contrast this with Janice Grundy's well rounded alto tones evident on the laid-back opening cut Slow Down, See The Children Die (in memory of the clash of civilizations at Wounded Knee), and Your Freedom's In Question (which was penned in the Watergate years prior to Nixon's resignation). Their vocal diversity is further enhanced by Brian Grundy's vocals on two other tracks: King Of The Mountain and Roll On, Tumbleweed (which is about the conflict between Arabs and Jews in the Middle East). B-J Avery was JoAnne's younger sister. She was a late comer to the group and filled in wherever needed.

A few of the bonus tracks on the CD reissue are worthy of mention. Beat Of The Drum is a very catchy song. Ernie Bringas wrote the lyrics originally about the Vietnam War but then changed them to honour their session drummer Hal Blaine. The CD also features an instrumental version of this song. Brian Grundy handles vocals on this one. Mary Jane (a song about the problem of the nation's drug culture) showcases JoAnne Avery's exquisite vocals again. There's also an alternate mix of See The Children Die. Hopefully the reissue is winning them some of the recognition they deserved. (VJ)

This was initially a studio-only project in Memphis, comprising Ron Jordan (ex-Ronnie and The Devilles), the ubiquitous Jim Dickinson, plus three former members of Lawson and Four More (Lee, Gaston and Donati). Warm City Baby, a Ron Jordan original, is pleasantly laid-back mid-tempo pop with a trumpet solo, backed by folkie-pop. OUR TIMES

HOMESTEAD & WOLFE - Our Times LP.

A communal group from the hills of Laguna Beach, California, Honk's first album was specially written to be the soundtrack of a surf movie 'Five Summer Stories', the poster for which was designed by Rick Griffin. The music is a mix of psych-rock, surf music and seventies rock, with some good tracks. The other albums are in a more mainstream California rock style. When the group disbanded, their leader and main songwriter, Richard Stekol, formed the Funky Kings with Jack Tempchin, Jules Shear and Greg Leisz. They recorded one album for Arista in 1976. The rest of the group went on to back Bert Jansch on his 1975 album Santa Barbara Honeymoon. In 1976, Whaley and Imboden formed La Seine (one album on Arista) with Mark Creamer (ex-Armageddon). Later, Steve Wood and Tris Imboden backed Kenny Loggins and became session men. (SR)

ALBUMS: (up to 1973)	1(A)	RACK JOBBERS RULE	(Capitol ST-842) 1971 SC
	2(A)	WHAT THE KIDS WANT	(Blue Thumb BTS-57) 1973

NB: (2) also released by Vogue in France.

From the San Francisco Bay Area, they were previously known as Joe Crane And His Hoodoo Rhythm Devils, who issued a rare EP. See their entry for more details. They shortened their name to The Hoodoo Rhythm Devils in 1971 when Roger Clark joined the group. Their first album is quite good and contains Black Cadillac, Black Widow, Snake Doctor and Hoodoo Beat. On the second, they were reinforced by Martin Fierro (from Sir Douglas Quintet and Mother Earth) and Chester Crill (aka Max Buda, from Kaleidoscope).

They released several other albums during the seventies, but went increasingly mellow and country-pop oriented.

In 1980, Joe Crane died of leukaemia aged just 34. (SR/CF)

	Love Theme In E Major/Homes	(Uni 55077) 1968
	In The Beginning/Show You The Way	(Uni 55149) 1969

A Los Angeles band The Hook was formed by Bobby Arlin after he quit The Leaves. The first album is hard-rock with psychedelic undertones. Tracks like Plug Your Head In have some great wah-wah guitar and suitably druggy lyrics and Dimples sports a wild guitar solo. The second album is the more structured of the two - both are worth investigating, and now minor collectors' items.

Provisor had earlier been a solo artist and later went on to play with The Grassroots. Lee "Buddy" Sklar became a renowned session man and played with Jackson Browne, James Taylor and many others. Bobby Arlin later reappeared in 1973 with Wonderlick and Loyola turned up on the rare Cosmic Travelers album in 1972.

You'll also find In The Beginning on Psychedelic Perceptions (CD); Dimples on White Lace & Strange (CD); and There's Magic In The Air on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

(2) was recorded early in 1974. Original pressing has thick sleeve, later counterfeited in Europe (Hadan) circa 1990. (2) reissued on vinyl (On Records ONREC 40725HLP) 2009. (3) was a cassette only, private release.

D.R. Hooker was based in Connecticut. For some, The Truth is one of the real 'treasures' of the early seventies private press scene. Pretty much devoid of commercial aspirations, it's particularly notable for its heavier cuts like I'm Leaving You and the druggy The Bible. The album closes with a message played backwards: "Life is a mystery of course it's true. Look for the answer, recorded clues".

Armageddon, which did not appear until 1979, was recorded with an entirely different line-up in 1974. There are great moments on this album, although it lacks the intimacy of their debut. Hooker's voice has an unpolished quality that seems somewhat awkward when his band moves into progressive rock territory on this second album. The debut is a more convincing work.

Forge Your Own Chains has been compiled on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP). (CF)

45: No Silver Bird/The Warmth Of Love (Lynette 551) 1968

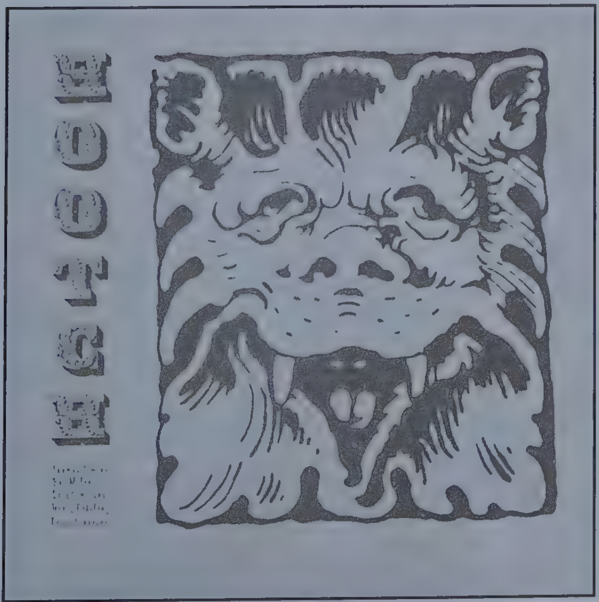
From Albuquerque, New Mexico their single was recorded in Clovis, New Mexico in the same studio as used by Buddy Holly. No Silver Bird is a great trippy song with its swirling sound effects and great lyrics:-

"Go and get ready to fly
Lock all the doors as if to hide
Don't worry about faces inside
Just come with me and hide!"

The single lists an address in Mississippi, which has led to speculation about the bands true location. It was produced by Tom Bee who was responsible for nuggets like I Wanna Come Back (From The World Of LSD) by another New Mexico outfit Fe Fi Four Plus 2 and who later played/produced Xit. Tom Bee was based in Laguna-Acoma Pueblo, New Mexico at the time. The same track also appeared on the Magic Sand's album on Uni under a different title Get Ready To Fly.

The band formed at junior high school circa 1962-63. Don Kinney: - "Martin had a Silvertone guitar and I had a Fender duo-sonic. We found a drummer in our junior high school, Doug Borthwick who was truly exceptional. A guy down the street, Charlie Pineda, was on his way to being a classical pianist and we snagged him to play electric piano, but he had a strong family and was persuaded not to get to involved. I started to play bass because we needed one and I thought Martin could do a better job on guitar, particularly with the lead parts."

"In the early years we called ourselves The Court Jesters and played at a lot of teen clubs, street dances etc., practicing in my garage and Doug's cellar. The first song we worked on was Dream by The Everly Bros, but we progressed onto G.T.O. by Ronny and The Daytonas, Hang On Sloopy, Louie-Louie... I'm sure you know the progression..."



HOOTCH - Self Titled LP.

"The name change to Hooterville Trolley came about as a round-about word play with Tunerville Trolley, by The Electric Prunes. At the time we were doing covers of The Yardbirds, Cream, Hendrix, CCR and Buffalo Springfield. We would improvise on tracks like Season Of The Witch "Super Session" style, Toad "Cream" style and Summertime Blues "Blue Cheer" style, and we got to open for Buffalo Springfield, Eric Burdon and The Animals, Youngbloods, Three Dog Night plus a couple more. The band also toured the Southwest into Colorado and Oklahoma."

"We met Tommy Bee aka. Tom Benevidez through our first manager Chris Arlith. Tommy was working with the Lincoln St. Exit and pushing the Native American aspect to sell them. He also managed another good band led by Mike Fleming but I can't remember their name... (*)"

"The song No Silver Bird (written by Ernie Phillips - a teacher at the time) was not really our style. It was recorded at Norman Petty Studios, Clovis New Mexico early one morning. Martin sang and used a fuzz-tone on his telecaster. Bill played his Farfisa keyboard, Doug played a studio set of drums and I played the only bass line I could make fit, a slowed down Kinks' You Really Got Me. Norman Petty had just bought a string machine and was itchin' to try it out. With that quality of production work, just imagine if we had a tune with substance."

"Over a four year span, we also had two vocalists, Mike Melloy and Larry Leyba. Bill Chriest took over keyboards in 1967 and we also added a rhythm guitarist, Wayne Gallio, who played a Gretsch 'Country Gentleman' guitar."

"Doug, Martin and I continued to perform as a three-piece for a few years as 'Trolley', having dropped the corny 'Hooterville' because the 'Green Acres' T.V. show was set in Hooterville. As the three-piece we started doing acid-rock stuff, complete with light show."

"Wayne Gallio died in a car wreck in a snowstorm on Route '66. He was a truly wonderful person. Doug Borthwick too died in a motorcycle wreck and Larry Leyba is also no longer with us. Bill Chriest, (pronounced 'crist') nowadays builds homes in and around New Mexico. Charlie Pineda, our early pianist is living in Santa Fe, New Mexico working in a computer consulting business. Martin Nassif, sadly developed M.S. about 10 years ago and is physically incapacitated. Mike Melloy I think moved away and I have cheerfully survived. Life today is Good - I still play guitar 2-3 times weekly.

Compilation appearances include: No Silver Bird on Lycergic Soap (LP), Magic Carpet Ride (LP), Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 15: Apple-Glass Cyndrome (LP & CD), Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) and Get Ready To Fly (CD). The track was also covered by The Creation (not the UK bunch) on a single released on the Centurion label, which later resurfaced on the Brainshadows, Vol. 1 compilation.

NB: (*) Could be Rabbit Mackay and The Somis Rhythm Band. (MW/CF/DKy)

Hoover (?)

ALBUM: 1 HOOVER (Epic BN 26537) 1970

Hoover was a good loner folk-rock singer/songwriter; his music has that late sixties psych infused folk-rock vibe. All the songs are originals credited to 'W. Hoover'; and it includes includes the theme from the film 'Tick Tick Tick (Set Yourself Free)'. (SR/NK)

A hippie-style quintet from Minneapolis recorded this single that now interests some collectors. The flip can also be found on the Changes compilation of Minnesota bands, along with a track called One Man. This latter track turns out to be by a different Hope, from Wisconsin. Both sides of the single also appear on Arf! Arf!'s essential CD The Scotty Story and Of Times You Can See has been compiled on Changes (LP). Of Times.. is particularly poignant and dramatic - not one for the depressed. (VJ/MW)

45s:	Where Do You Want To Go/One Man	(Coulee 134) 1970
	Where Do You Want To Go/Little Things	(A&M 1355) 1972

A different group from Lacrosse, Wisconsin they evolved out of the Jesters III. Following an ill-fated 1970 single for the small Peace label, in 1972 Hope found themselves signed to Herb Alpert's A&M Records. Produced by Jack Richardson (of Alice Cooper and Guess Who fame), four of the five members contributed material the quintet's self-titled debut and all five provided vocals. Songs such as Where Do You Want To Go, One Man and Find Him are pseudo-Christian efforts. All five contribute to the lyrics, which suffer from weak vocals, pedestrian lyrics and plodding arrangements. The album was originally released with a gatefold sleeve. Stock copies seem to be rarer than promos, suggesting the record was quickly withdrawn. One Man was written by organist Boyd Sibley, and the track appears on their 1972 album, which was recorded in Toronto, Canada. Many other musicians, including bassist Russ Savakus, assisted on the album, which is truly unremarkable.

You can also hear One Man on the Changes (LP) compilation of Minnesota bands, miscredited as an unreleased track by the Minneapolis Hope. (VJ/MW)

Recording in Florida, Hopney was the stage name for Patrick Hearns of Newburgh, New Yorks' Sapians. After Hopney relocated to Florida, he recorded these three albums, which are characterised by excellent guitar work and are now rare and sought-after.

The first two albums consist entirely of cover versions, while the third features some original material. The third album was produced by Mike Pinera (ex-Fanz/Blues Image/Iron Butterfly/Ramatam). Not really psychedelic, but side one is excellent (especially Long Ago And Far Away), whilst side two is less interesting.

Before these albums Pat worked for a number of years as a half of a duo, Hopney & Phineas (Dali), who released at least one single called Acapulco Gold. (SR/KMn/EDMoulin/SMy)

	When I Get Home/So Hard	(Laurie 3439) 1968

Hoppi and The Beau Heems was a short-lived Tampa, Florida act. Catchy no-frills pop-punk is their style with strong, sometimes raucous, vocals. The non-compiled So Hard is light keyboard-driven pop-beat.

Compilation appearances have included: I Missed My Cloud on Mindrocker Vol. 12 (LP), Glimpses, Vol. 2 (LP) and Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and When I Get Home on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP & CD). (VJ/MW)

	2	INSIDE	(Epic XSB 139721) 1971

Born in New York in 1930, Paul Horn is primarily a jazz flautist and sax player. After graduating from the Manhattan School Of Music, he moved to California in the late fifties where he worked with Chico Hamilton and did a lot of studio sessions. In the mid-sixties, like several other Californian jazz musicians (Charles Lloyd, Gabor Szabo, Bill Plummer), he discovered Indian music and began recording albums with sitars, tambouras and tablas. His albums should interest fans of groups like The Cosmic Brotherhood or Oregon, mixing sitar sounds with jazz and meditative music.

Paul Horn also played with Gentle Soul and Lynn Blessing (he produced his only album) and recorded with Ravi Shankar. (SR)

45s:
	Class Of '69/Country Boy	(White Whale 301) 1969
	Freight Train/Freight Train (mono)	(White Whale 320) 1969

The Carter-Gilbert team, John and Tim, who were also responsible for the Rainy Daze, and later as songwriters covered by the likes of Strawberry Alarm Clock, Hardwater and Yankee Dollar, produced and wrote 10 of the 11 tracks on this fine West Coast album. There are beautiful vocal harmonies, biting electric guitar and swirling keyboards on many of these countryish tracks. Class Of '69 is a raucous rocker, Asia Minor and Wind have good guitar parts, some other tracks are more country-rock oriented. The singles were taken from the album, which is very rare now.

Matt Kelly, who was a talented harmonica and guitar player, later joined Gospel Oak in 1970 and then guested on several Grateful Dead albums after 1973. In 1975, back with Herold and Torbert, they formed Kingfish with Bob Weir (Grateful Dead), who included some Horses songs (Asia Minor, Overnight Bag) on their first albums. Kelly also released a solo album A Wing And A Prayer (Relix RRLP2010) 1985 and another in 2000. Dave Torbert sadly died in 1982.

The CD reissue tells the story from the viewpoint and recollections of Dave Diamond, of Diamond Mine fame. A strong Rainy Daze connection and passing encounters with the Strawberry Alarm Clock and the Astronauts' Richard Fifield crop up on the tortuous route that led to the band auditioning to be a vehicle for Carter-Gilbert material. 45: Another Smile/Way To Get To You (Ardent ADA 2905) 1973

A rock duet from Memphis, Tennessee The Hot Dogs' debut album was produced and co-written by Terry Manning, who also played the lead guitar parts. The musicians of Cargoe provided some background vocals. Their music ranged between rock similar to James Gang, melodic pop-rock and prog-rock, with guitar and keyboards interlaced, but the overall result is far from being memorable.

Another Smile is dreamily acoustic and lazy, including a reasonable cello arrangement. On the flip the melody is much better and a guitar solo is substituted for the cellos.

Their much rarer second album on the Guinness label has a harder-edged sound.

Jack Holder and Greg Reding would later play with Black Oak Arkansas. (SR/MK)

California outfit Hot Poop was definitely wacky'n'weird. Imagine an album of instrumentals varying from cheesy organ fuzzouts, frat-rock to rinky-dink rock 'n' roll Jerry Lee Lewis style. Now top'em off with a truly demented vocalist who sounds more like a crazy cartoon character (Bugs Bunny crossed with a psychotic sheep!). Goofy-rock we'll have to call it - with tracks like Wing Wang, Dance To The War, I Always Play With My Food and Screamin' and rarely intelligible lyrics. On the psychedelic fringe, though it's more brain-scrambling than mind-expanding! Just 500 copies were pressed. (MW)

In the beginning of 1967, Gregg and Duane Allman, then with the Allman Joys, gigged at a Pensacola club. The other resident band was the Five Minutes whose members included Sandlin, McKinney and Hornsby. These five musicians shared a love for hard-rocking English acts (mainly 'Stones and Yardbirds) and for R&B. They relocated to Decatur, Alabama and, after trying out different names, settled on the Allman-Act.

POWER OF LOVE
A CLASSIC ALBUM REISSUE WITH PREVIOUSLY UNRELEASED BONUS TRACKS

THE HOUR GLASS - Power Of Love CD.

Their break came when Bill McEuen, manager of the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, caught their show in St. Louis and persuaded them to move to Los Angeles. Producer Dallas Smith signed them to Liberty Records, the label who had also taken two of McEuen's other clients: Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and the Sunshine Company. Since there were already several groups with almost similar names, the Allman-Act became The Hour Glass.

The five men then realized that the fledgling Liberty label wanted to use session musicians and songwriters' songs instead of the relying on the band's talent alone. They tried to fight the process but won only a few concessions. The resulting album is, unsurprisingly, not really convincing and contains mainly pleasant pop-rock songs, the exceptions being the more electric tracks: Got To Get Away (the only Gregg original, already recorded with the Allman Joys), Jackson Browne's Cast Off All My Fears and Ed Cobb's Heartbeat. Duane Allman's guitar can be heard from time to time only. The album and the singles were a total commercial failure and McKinney left to be replaced by another former Five Minutes alumnus, Jesse Williard (Pete) Carr.

The group then demanded artistic freedom from Liberty and The Hour Glass was allowed to choose its own material, and Dallas Smith remained as their producer. Released in March 1968, Power Of Love, their second album, was a vast improvement on its predecessor, being much bluesier, with seven Gregg Allman songs, a Solomon Burke song, two Eddie Hinton/Marlin Greene tracks (Down in Texas and Home For The Summer), one Penn/Oldham cover (the title track) and a really weird instrumental version of Beatles' Norwegian Wood, beginning with Duane's electric sitar before degenerating into a kind of raga rock. The sales were low once again.

The Hour Glass were then playing live a lot, being booked every month at the Whisky A Go-Go and sometimes at the Fillmore West, including three nights with Buffalo Springfield, indeed Neil Young and Steve Stills wrote the enthusiastic liner notes for Power Of Love. They developed a strong reputation as a solid driving blues-rock outfit, but they were really unhappy with their records. With $500 from a gig, they finally rented Rick Hall's Studio in Muscle Shoals and cut some tracks on their own in April 1968 (one of these tunes BB King Medley is included on Duane Allman Anthology). The group returned to California with their tapes but Al Bennett at Liberty vetoed their release. They played some southern gigs and eventually just drifted apart.

Gregg was then forced to finish out the contract with Liberty and had to record, using session musicians, a pop-oriented solo album which was shelved (the recorded tracks are the bonus on the CD reissues).

After this unsuccessful Los Angeles period, all the musicians would return to the Alabama/Georgia/Florida area, where they were instrumental in the creation of Southern Rock in the early seventies. Duane would first go to the famed Muscle Shoals and Criteria Studios to do sessions with soul and rock acts before forming the Allman Brothers Band with Gregg in 1969. He also was in Derek and the Dominos with Eric Clapton. One of the best slide guitar players ever, he sadly died in 1971 in a motorcycle accident. His brother is still touring with a new version of the Allman Brothers Band.

Johnny Sandlin, Paul Hornsby and Pete Carr are credited as producers, session players or group members with countless bands (Charlie Daniels, Wet Willie, Marshall Tucker, Sailcat, Cowboy etc.).

Southbound - The Liberty Recordings gives an airing to a number of other tracks they recorded at the time, which remained unissued until this release.

45: Scars/Second Best (Murbo 1017) 1967

The trio above are credited on the single and in 1969 they resurfaced on the Head Shop album, so perhaps this was an earlier incarnation of that band. Acquisition of the single would inevitably be disappointing given the choking descriptions and asking prices by specialist dealers over the years - especially when having finally obtained a copy both sides turn up on Strange Things' Garagelands, Vol. 2 (LP) not long after!! Nevertheless this obscure New York City combo turn in two fine moody poppy psych-punkers; Scars is slightly marred by some chirping female backing vocals, but the 'B' side makes up for that with a hypnotic beat and some fine yet understated distorted fuzz.

You can also find Scars and Second Best on Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD), Garagelands 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box). (MW)

45: Schaeffers Field/Long Way Back Home (Cheese 69) 1968

Well over a thousand garage and psych compilations have appeared since Nuggets in 1972. Those who thought that compilers would have been scraping the bottom of the proverbial barrel long ago, or just recycling old favourites, can rejoice; here's a previously unheralded single which proves that there are yet more precious gems to dig (and to dig up).

Believed to have emanated from the Nashville area in the spring of 1968, Schaeffers Field is garage-pop which turns into a fine fuzz-stomper. However, the killer cut is Long Way Back Home. From the introductory burst of pulsating Prunes-like fuzz-saw, on offer is just under four minutes of pure garage-psych bliss, guaranteed to blow your mind.

Cosmic lyrics delivered with attitude, stoned harmonies, fuzzed-out guitars, Doorsian keyboard doodlings, and an amazing tripped-out break, this has it all and on a scale of 10 rates at least 11. Kudos aplenty to this mystery band, songwriter Happy Vaughn, and to Brent Hosier's Aliens Psychos & Wild Things Volume Fore (CD) for showcasing it to a wider audience in 2007. (MW)

George Edwards, an ex-folk troubadour who had cut a solo single for Dunwich, Norwegian Wood/Never Mind, I'm Freezing, and a raw cover of Bob Dylan's Quit Your Low Down Ways, that remained unreleased until its inclusion on Happy Tiger's Early Chicago (LP) compilation in 1971, was working as in-house session vocalist with Dunwich when this Chicago-based outfit was first assembled. Aside from David Michaels, the other three members of the band were borrowed from another Chicago outfit, The Rovin' Kind. The name H.P. Lovecraft was appropriated from the deceased fantasy horror writer. This initial line-up (February 1967) was responsible for the first single, although the flip side was a George Edwards solo outtake from the previous year. The group came together as a stable entity in the spring of 1967 (line-up B), although Tom Skidmore soon made way for Jerry McGeorge, who'd previously played with The Shadows Of Knight and Dalek/Engham: The Blackstones. Joe Kelly (also of The Shadows Of Knight) was also briefly in the band when Tony Cavallari was absent for a while in late 1967.

The vocal combination of the folkie Edwards and Michaels, a classically-trained singer, gave the band a unique and distinctive vocal sound effectively supplemented by Michael's powerful keyboard-playing. Their debut album is one of great variety. The stand-out track was The White Ship and this is the song with which the group are most usually associated. Making use of an 1811 ship's bell, sombre harmonies, reeds, feedback and some baroque harpsichord pieces, it conjured up a hallucinogenic atmosphere ideally suited to the times. Also of note were an excellent upbeat version of Dino Valente's hippie anthem Let's Get Together, That's The Bag I'm In, which had its roots in the garage; Wayfaring Stranger, a folk-based number and the dopey, sleepy number, I've Been Wrong Before, which gave a clear indication of the direction they would follow on their second album.

In the spring of 1968 they relocated to Marin County in northern California, having already briefly toured the West Coast. They became a frequent attraction at the nearby San Francisco ballrooms playing alongside most of the top Bay Area bands. Jerry McGeorge wanted to stay in Chicago and was replaced by Jeff Boyan, previously with Hezekiah and before that Saturday's Children. Not only was Boyan a talented guitarist, he possessed a distinctive lead voice, too.

Later that year the group moved on again to Los Angeles where they recorded a second album which contained many fine moments. The sleepiness of the tracks like Spin, Spin, Spin, Electrallentando and Mobius Trip was reminiscent of the second side of the first It's A Beautiful Day album. There was a fine version of High Flying Bird, a song recorded by many West Coast groups; At The Mountains Of Madness, which captured the group's vocal harmonies at their finest, and Blue Jack Of Diamonds, which had an unusual chiming intro. This is reputedly the first major label album where all those involved in the recording were high on acid!

H.P. Lovecraft effectively dissolved in 1969. Their first single got a further airing on the Electric Food (LP) compilation a couple of years later. A new line-up of Edwards, Tegza, Marty Grebb (ex-Buckinghams and Exceptions), Michael Been (ex-Troys) and Jim Dolinger (ex-Aorta and Exceptions) signed with Reprise in 1970 calling themselves Lovecraft. Edwards departed before they recorded a rockier album and single the following year and soon Lovecraft were no more. Tegza later joined Bangor Flying Circus, but he reformed Lovecraft with an entirely new line-up in 1975 and a disappointing further album and two singles were released which attracted little attention.

Those first two H.P. Lovecraft albums remain rather special and Edsel's 1988 vinyl release and subsequent CD releases on Britonic and Collectors Choice compile both along with additional tracks. Similarly, the live release, from a concert at San Francisco's Fillmore in May 1968, captures the band in their prime.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Ban Roll Deodorant On Radio Spot on Oh Yeah! The Best Of Dunwich Records (CD) and If You're Ready - The Best Of Dunwich... Vol. 2 (CD); I've Been Wrong Before on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD) and Country Boy and Bleeker Street on Microdelia (CD). (VJ)

45: Cool Breeze/Sing La La (Aesop's Label 6045) 1965

In 1964, in the St. Louis Park suburb of Minneapolis, pianist Toberman started his own group and determined to perform his own songs rather than cover standards and current hits. In early 1965, they recorded the instrumental Cool Breeze, which was aimed specifically at radio stations to play in their top-of-the-hour pre-news slot. It garnered good play on local stations and by the summer had picked up interest in Los Angeles. Toberman came unstuck when his partner blew the money he'd given him to press up 1,000 copies for the West Coast distributor. When he finally got copies out to L.A. the interest and impetus had been lost.

That incident signalled the start of the end for the group although the group returned to the studio in the fall of 1965. Both sessions are unearthed on the CD. Not standard garage fare by any means, it's an odd blend of instrumental and frat-rock sounds that will not appeal to fuzz'n'farfisa purists. Toberman's next outlet, strangely not mentioned on this CD, was the equally off-beat Blue Sandelwood Soap.

Cool Breeze reappeared in 1967 on the rare Minneapolis compilation album, Money Music and the previously unreleased I Fell In Love has been compiled on The Big Itch Vol. 7 (CD). (MW)

Eyes Of Blue/What A Day (Line 5 L-5002) c1969

What a great name for this Beaufort, North Carolina outfit. Soft-rock is the predominant style and the third single label depicts the front and rear view of a very hairy hippie's head, just so you know where they were coming from. What A Day is very much in that mellow genre and is the best cut by far.

The label on the debut single lacks the hippie head and the titles were flipped when it was picked up by Scepter. (MW/JLh)

The band comprised Bill Hudson (born William Salerno on 17 October 1949); Brett Hudson (born Brett Salerno on 18 January 1953) and Mark Hudson (born Mark Salerno on 23 August 1951). They grew up in a musical family in the suburbs of Portland, Oregon. Bill and Brett played together in their own high school band and Mark saw the Beatles play in 1965 in their hometown and decided he wanted a piece of the action too. In the mid-sixties they formed a band called My Sirs which competed in and won a number of 'Battle of the Band' contests. They were enlisted by Chrysler to do a promotional tour and asked to rename after a Chrysler car model so they called themselves The New Yorkers. The group toured the country for Chrysler promotions and recorded two singles for Scepter Records in 1967; When I'm Gone, which was a small regional hit and Mr. Kirby, which was quite commercial and got them some national attention. They then switched to Decca and released a cover of Harry Nilsson's I Guess The Lord Must Be In New York City in 1969. When it did not sell well, they relocated to New York, but Decca dropped them anyway. Within a year they had returned to Portland where they resumed gigging locally. They changed name to Everyday Hudson and then to Hudson. As Hudson they released Love Is The Word (Decca 32634).

THE HUMAN BEINZ & THE MAMMALS

THE HUMAN BEINZ / MAMMALS - Split LP.

Fresh with a new name they moved again, this time to Los Angeles, where they initially did vocal session work for Kenny Rogers, among others. At the same time the band switched surnames from Salerno to Hudson and recorded their eponymous debut for Playboy Records. Two years later, they changed name again to The Hudson Brothers and recorded Hollywood Situation for the Casablanca label. Their breezy pop style attracted considerable radio airplay and the melodic So You Are A Star gave them a Top 30 hit.

Their follow-up album, Totally Out Of Control was recorded for Elton John's Rocket label in France and England rather than Los Angeles. It showed in the music as the sunny California sound was ditched for a much more Anglophile sound. This Beatles-influenced album, which was produced by Bernie Taupin, is full of melodies, harmonies and hooks and fans of Abbey Road era Beatles should definitely check it out. Still, its lack of a track with the same radio potential as So You Are A Star meant their music career did not advance.

The brothers were expanding their horizons beyond music and secured their own very short-lived variety show on CBS 'The Hudson Brothers Show'. By most accounts it was pretty dire; they performed mediocre sketch comedy, and sang and danced. It actually did them more damage than good in the medium to long-term as they weren't regarded as serious comedians by the TV networks who thought they were a rock band, while the rock business didn't consider them a serious rock band because of the TV show. Still when 'The Hudson Brothers Show' finished, they were offered the chance, which they took, to host a weekly Saturday morning kid's show. 'The Hudson Brothers Razzle Dazzle Show' ran September 1974 until August 1975.

They made another Taupin-produced album Ba-Fa in 1976. This contained glorious pop tracks like Spinning The Wheel (With The Girl You Love) and Oh Gabriel, which could have, in different circumstances, made them mainstream pop stars. It also spawned another Top 30 hit with the happy-go-lucky Rendezvous that was co-written by Beach Boys member Bruce Johnston.

In 1976, Bill Hudson married actress Goldie Hawn. Though they later divorced, their two children, Kate and Oliver, became prominent Hollywood actors. They continued beyond the time-span of this book. In the late seventies, they toured as a teen pop attraction and then returned to TV. In 1978, they made two dozen episodes of a British-made sketch comedy show called 'Bonkers'. Music became secondary to their TV/acting career now and their 1978 album for Arista The Truth About Us was mostly comprised of cover versions and passed largely unnoticed. They put out a final album Damn Those Kids, on Elektra in 1980 and formally disbanded in 1982.

All three brothers went onto successful roles in the entertainment industry. After divorcing Goldie Hawn, Bill married 'Laverne & Shirley' actress Cindy Williams and the couple owned a successful production company until their divorce in 2000. Mark became a sought-after music producer and songwriter. He worked with Ringo Starr and another group of three

Under the guidance of their producer Alex "Lez" De Azevedo, they developed into a fine psychedelic pop group with a sense of humour. This debut split album with The Mammals was released on Gateway to cash in on their hit single Nobody But Me. It compiles their pre-album singles, garage renditions of Pied Piper, My Generation, Gloria and The Times Are Changing, together with a previously unreleased early version of Nobody But Me. The Mammals played what can best be termed brass-soul..

Human Beinz's second album contained one of the all-time punk classics, Nobody But Me and the third album Evolution is also recommended - consisting of anglophile pop, weird psychedelic ballads and some great psychedelia - inconsistent in places but good overall. There's some great fuzz guitar and harmony-laced songs on the album including I've Got To Keep On Pushing (which was covered by psych band Plan 9 in the eighties) and April The 15th which sees the band demolish a piano with an axe! The reissue on Fallout contains two bonus tracks comprising their ultra-rare final Japanese-only single.

They also cut a very rare live album Live In Japan 1968, which is probably mainly of interest to completists. It was later reissued together with six bonus "rare studio outtakes"; five of which turn out to be from their Gateway album plus Evil Hearted You, from their debut single. A welcome release nonetheless. The CD version includes also includes their last Capitol single.

Somewhat temptingly, a couple of full live sets from 1967 still exist and are said to show the band at their best, with a mixture of Stones/Byrds covers and the usual dance standards of the time.

45s:	Knock Knock (Who's There)/ Tiptoe Through The Tulips With Me	(Liberty 55968) 1967
	Lorna/Eternal Prison	(New World 2004) 1968

They hailed from Simi Valley in California and were originally called The Innocents. A demo of Knock Knock, recorded in 1966 at Golden State Recorders in San Francisco, led to a deal with Liberty where they re-recorded the song. A classic punker with a tight menacing feel, the single nevertheless failed to sell, and they were dropped leaving their proposed second single stranded at the acetate stage... They did later release another single on the New World label, the flip to which, Eternal Prison, is haunting soft garagy-psych.

The band have been well compiled: The demo version of Knock Knock (Who's There) can be found on the Good Things Are Happening (CD), whilst the "Liberty" version is included on Pebbles, Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP) and Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD); and Eternal Prison is also on Acid Dreams, Vol. 2 (LP), Prisoners Of The Beat (LP), Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and *Where The Action Is! 	Optical Sound/Calm Me Down	(Accent 1226) 1966

NB: There's Love At Psychedelic Velocity (Collectables COL-0588) 1994, which compiles their singles, demos and four Jim Quarles solo cuts. Check out Your Mind Works In Reverse (Collectables COL-0713) 1998 which includes rare tracks from The Human Expression and also other groups such as Mechanical Switch, Children Of The Mushroom (WOW!), The Rubber Band and The Front Page News all of which are remixed from the master tapes in stunning quality. Innovative, informative and impressive stuff with full sleeve notes!!

Hailing from Westminster and Tustin, California this psychedelic punk band was formed early in 1966 and played around the L.A. area, at clubs such as Gazzari's and USO clubs. An acetate Readin' Your Will/Everynight cut in the summer of 1966 got them a deal with Accent, who released two awesome acid-punk singles in the shape of Love At Psychedelic Velocity and Optical Sound. Both singles were mixed by Wally Heider who also worked for the Grateful Dead, and are now extremely sought-after and impossibly hard to find.

After Optical Sound proved too far-out for the Charts, the band's manager offered them the opportunity to record two tracks by what he described as "an up-and coming songwriter". The first demo Sweet Child Of Nothingness would become their third single, and the other track was turned down because Jim Quarles' didn't think lyrics like "Get your motor running/Head out on the highway" were any good. The song was of course Mars Bonfire's Born To Be Wild which Steppenwolf would later cover!!

By the time the Sweet Child Of Nothingness/I Don't Need Nobody single was recorded, both Jim Quarles and Martin Eshleman had left the band.

Both their first two singles Love At Psychedelic Velocity and Optical Sound are worthy of investigation and all their released material has now appeared on compilations. Even better, however, is the Collectables CD release Love At Psychedelic Velocity, which compiles all the band's singles, plus demos and four post-Human Expression solo tracks cut by Jim Quarles. The CD also includes excellent liner notes, from which this entry has largely been taken, and is recommended to fans of the band.

Jim Quarles is still active in the music business, working in a studio as a technical engineer, and writing and recording songs.

Your Mind Works In Reverse is an interesting release that features rare tracks from The Human Expression as well as Mechanical Switch, Children Of The Mushroom, The Rubber Band and The Front Page News all remixed from the master tapes. The package is presented with full sleeve notes.

Compilation appearances have also included: Optical Sound on Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP), Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Psychedelic Disaster Whirl (LP), and Nuggets Box (4-CD); Love At Psychedelic Velocity on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD) and Best of Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP & CD); Calm Me Down and Optical Sound on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 6 (CD); Everynight and Readin' Your Will on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD); Who Is Burning? (previously unreleased) on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD); Calm Me Down, Optical Sound and Your Mind Works In Reverse (all previously unreleased demo versions) on The Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups - Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD); Calm Me Down on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP); Every Night on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP) and Love At Psychedelic Velocity on Garage Beat '66 7 (CD); and the previously unreleased Readin' Your Will and Optical Sound on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). 45: Warning/Take A Taxi (Audition 6109) 1966

A typical garage-punk outfit, The Humans had a really throaty vocalist. The cool looking six-piece formed whilst the members were in high school in Albion, New York in the summer of 1964. They toured pretty extensively and got to open for the likes of The Animals, The Hollies, The Standells and The Stones and in the summer of 1966, opened for Mitch Ryder at the Rheingold Festival in Central Park.

ALBUM: 1(A) THE HUMAN ZOO (Accent ACS 5055) 1969 R2

This California band's album is extremely mediocre. The haunting finale, The Time Was Over is the best track. Despite my lack of enthusiasm, I must admit it's now a collectors' item.

The album fails because they're not sure what bag they're in. First there's some bits of good acid-guitar, some heavyish mainstream rock, but then some funk and the Blood, Sweat and Tears-like horns on top of some dirgeful material doesn't help. (VJ)

Originally from Grand Rapids, Michigan this guy was vocalist with The Ju Ju's. His first single, Fine Day, was his own composition and can be heard on both Magic Carpet Ride (LP) and Project Blue, Vol. 1 (LP). Although not a particularly strong song it does give another airing to his vocal talents. 45: Careless Love/
Then I'll Be Sure, Sure Of Your Love (Jerand 401) 1966

From the Buffalo, New York area, The Impacts were already known across the Midwest and Canada. Their record company decided that they needed a gimmick. In the decidedly non-PC sixties, 350lb singer Chuck Tormino was it... and Humphrey and The Palookas was the end product (in modern parlance a palooka is someone who is, er, "athletically challenged"). The resultant single did surprisingly well in Boston and north of the border so off they sallied to promote it. The plan was that they would tour Japan, tied in with a mobile home show (you can think up your own jokes). If you suspect this is all a total fabricaton, check out the liners of Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD), which features Careless Love. (MW)

NB: α is non-LP versions. β shown as by The Touch. Both tracks figure on the Strictly From album, the 'B' side being re-titled, but the 45 versions are very different. χ same versions as on the Strictly From album.

Hunger! originated in Portland, Oregon but by 1968 they were based in Los Angeles, California and it was there that they issued their three singles and album on Public! Records. All of them are now rare collectors' items.

Hunger! had a quintessentially sixties sound, and their recordings are recommended to readers of this book. Overall, their Strictly From album falls a bit short of its reputation, it being an early 'known' collectable from the West Coast rock scene fetching serous money even in the seventies. In retrospect, it's clear that the band wasn't quite ready to record. The album has an unfinished feel to it, punctuated by the inclusion of two versions of the same song, and several that, quite frankly, last longer than they should. One gets the impression that these shortcomings were necessary to flesh out the album's running time.

The reality of these observations comes into focus upon hearing the re-recorded/alternate version of the album which turned up in 1995. According to members of the band, Strawberry Alarm Clock guitarist Ed King volunteered to re-arrange some of the material and contribute his lead guitar in the preparation of a new master. The results were truly stunning, and the remastered Hunger! album was immediately put into production and scheduled for release... but halted after only a handful of vinyl test pressings were made. This is the album reissued on the Void label, licensed from the band, which is highly recommended. King's influence is most obvious on the opening track, Colors - transformed from a bouncy pop song (2'00") on the Strictly From Hunger album to a wicked hard-rocker similar to Steppenwolf with amazing dual lead guitar parts (now stretching to 3'35"). Portland '69 follows, this time radically remixed (i.e., it's the same recording, but hardly recognisable!) and what is a rather laboured instrumental on the Strictly From Hunger album is now a brutal tour-de-force that builds to an incredible intensity. The remaining tracks are remade and/or remodelled as well, rendering the released version obsolete. Really, this is the Hunger! album to have and had it been issued at the time, the band may well have survived into the seventies.

Bill Daffern left the band in 1969, which may be the reason the remastered album wasn't released - his distinctive lead vocals (heard on She Let Him Continue and No Shame) were part of the Hunger! sound from day one. He was replaced on drums by Gene Gunnels of the Strawberry Alarm Clock, and this final line-up played a few gigs before the band split for good.

Daffern pursued a career in rock for several years after leaving Hunger! He was next heard playing drums in Truk, and was lead vocalist on the final Captain Beyond album Dawn Explosion (Warner Bros. BS-3047) 1977.

Workshop was later covered by U.K. psych band Glass Keys (on Rubble 9 (LP)).

Compilation appearances have included: Colors on Love, Peace And Poetry, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP); Workshop on Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD), Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP), Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP), Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD) and Glimpses, Vol. 3 (LP); Mind Machine on The Seventh Son (LP); and an alternative version of Open Your Eyes on Timemazine #3 (CD) free with the fanzine. 45: Half Your Life/Comin' Round (Paris Tower PT-127) 1967

The Hungri I's were a garage band from Daytona Beach, Florida. Formed in the spring of 1965, they named themselves after the famous San Francisco Folk nightclub. They performed mainly in Daytona Beach, as a house-band at the now defunct but world-famous Beachcomber Nightclub and at the equally renowned Surf Bar. Their only other Florida forays were to Titusville (The Vanguard Club) and Orlando, where they put down some demo songs at Eric Schabacker's Bee Jay Studio. These appeared on the Bee Jay Demo albums (one was a cover of Hold On I'm Coming on Bee Jay Demo Vol. 2).

During the summer of 1967 they visited producer Robert Quimby in nearby Ormond Beach and cut a metal acetate of Half Your Life, written by Neil Haney, backed with the standard How Come My Dog Don't Bark? (When You Come Around). In late 1967, Gil Cabot offered to make them famous if they paid to have Half Your Life released on his Tampa-based Paris Tower label. All that happened (as with all Paris Tower releases) was that 500 copies were shipped to them (to distribute themselves) ... and that was it!

So, off they went on a winter tour of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Indiana to promote the single. They performed many Hendrix tunes which were unknown to many of the teens who came to see them but they were well received. Since they were from sunny Florida and the World's Most Famous Beach, the band thought it'd be cool to take a publicity photo in the snow whilst they were there - however it was the band that melted on their return home in the spring of 1968. Haney joined The 2/3rds; Dresser and Citrullo were soon to follow; and they were reunited with Drake in 1969 when The 2/3rds became The Third Condition.

Half Your Life gets a new life on Psychedelic States: Florida, Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/KCs)

The liner notes of this scarce album indicate that "His songs embrace the folk style of the hill country music, but his lyrics are relevant to things that affect us all. He writes of love, war, pollution..." and adds "Regardless of where you might meet Tom, be it in a bar, church, in a concert hall or just sitting on a street corner playing his guitar, put out your hand and say Hi. He is your friend and brother". The songs include The Environmentalist, To Fight A War, Brown Skin Girl, Potomac River Song and the title track. (SR)

45: Winning Ticket/Destination Lonely (Rock N' Jazz 8668) 1966

Hailing from Arlington Heights, Illinois and often appearing in animal skins with bleached white hair this mob produced one of the best garage singles to come from the Midwest. Destination Lonely is particularly notable for its powerful vocals and driving guitar.

Robert Dempsey took guitar lessons from Ted Nugent, who was also from Arlington Heights. He apparently helped his student by writing some of the guitar solos for the single.

They later changed name to Greenwood County Farm and released a single for Ampex.

The Huns who put out an EP Fun With The Huns (False Hopes SS-32402-1) in 1977 is actually The Boyz (from Chicago).

45: Shakedown/You Know (Pyramid 6-6646) 1966

The sole release by this Concord, North Carolina band appeared in the summer of '66. Shakedown was their attempt at a Stones' sound but, like many Carolina bands, they'd not acquired a fuzz pedal so the results are more 1965 than 1966. Check it out on Back From The Grave Vol. 4 (LP) and Back From The Grave Vol. 2 (CD); the high-pitched screams and yelps bear witness to their enthusiasm and youthfulness. Tim Warren's liners reveal that they appeared on local TV show "Kilgo's Kanteen" and that neighbourhood rivals included The Phantom Raiders, The Spades, and The Tamrons. The flip, You Know, is a sparse Beatlesque charmer, featured on Grains Of Time (CD). (MW/VJ)

NB: not all copies came with the picture sleeve.

This Ithaca, New York outfit started out in 1964 as Attila & The Huns. No singles were released but in 1965 they recorded several tracks for a TV show. Four cuts survived on a dodgy tape (with skids and drop-outs) and make up the lo-fi Moxie EP, with pics and notes from Rich La Bonte. Laced throughout with cool Farfisa vibes, there is the Kinks-like I've Got You On My Mind, the sneering I Gotta Move, jaunty thumper Long Way Around, and haunting garage-ballad The World You Cannot Hide From. This strange folksinger was closely associated with The Holy Modal Rounders and The Youngbloods. Born in 1941, he spent a part of his teenage years travelling in the South with Robin Remailly. His first album was released in 1965 and contains his classic Werewolf.

The second and third albums were produced by The Youngbloods' Jesse Colin Young and Banana on their Raccoon label. Both albums are excellent, with very unusual lyrics but both are hard to find now. In 1975, he teamed up with Peter Stampfel and various other folk musicians to record Have Moicy!. The album has a folky guitar feel with some witty compositions about a bizarre collection of topics (Robbin' Banks is about an armed robbery), the wonders of food and the digestive system (Slurf Song), romance blooms in both Europe and rural America (Midnight In Paris, and Griselda), and fast food disappearances and thoughts on mortality (What Made My Hamburger Disappear).

He kept on recording for Rounder and is still active on the music scene. Hurley is also a noted cartoonist, his main character being "Snocko", a strange "human dog". He drew most of his record sleeves, as well as the cover art for the Holy Modal Rounders album Good Time Is Tasteless. (SR)

North Miami, Florida was where these Hustlers operated. If You Try is a great punker with a powerful swagger that comes on initially like a fuzzed Byrds - crank this one up on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD) - especially for the superb solo and Beatlesque harmonies. Jeff Lemlich, Mr. Florida, dug up their story and personnel for the liner notes.

My Mind's Made Up, composed by John McNicol, pops up again on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD) - it's a bouncey Beatlesque fuzz-popper. The accompanying booklet contains the story behind this track and the band as told by member Bob Leavitt. In April 1969 they put out a final single, billed as The Dard.

Check out Hustlers (CD) which includes previously unreleased versions of If You Try and My Mind's Made Up as well as over a dozen previously unreleased tracks and outtakes from the 1964-1968 period.

Leavitt also co-wrote You Can't Make Me for the Montells. (MW/RM/VJ)

THE HUSTLERS (FL) - Self Titled CD.

This Hustlers, from Granville College in Denison, Ohio was a frat-rock/garage band. On offer are four clean-cut guys in suits playing straight forward R&B standards including Carol, I Should Have Known Better, Tell Me Why, Tossin' And Turnin', Searchin', Route 66, You Can't Do That, Good, Good Lovin', and an instrumental version of If I Fell plus two neat ballads I Can't Wait To Have You Meet My Baby and the downer vibed Tragedy. No fuzz fest here, but there is some good guitar work and thumbs up for the fresh amateurish "were gonna make it" garage charm, which seems to keep these albums collectable. This is for fratheads and garage beat-completists, only. (CP)

And Movers (Of The World) Part II (Tom.Cat WB-474/5) 1967

Believed to be a Pennsylvania outfit, this particular single is overegged by dealers as 'garage mod psych', but it's actually one of those soulful club belters with 'heavy' pretensions and constipated vocals. It may appeal to mod or freakbeat collectors but it will leave garage-niks cold while psych-heads will not get the slightest whiff of a high. (MW)

The above were some of Danny Hutton's early solo efforts. He may have also been involved with The Bats, before joining Cory Wells and The Enemys, and subsequently Three Dog Night with Cory Wells and Chuck Negron.

Roses and Rainbows has been compiled on Even More Nuggets (CD) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (MW/TTi)

The Visionary Experience, Vol 2 was part of a series of albums released posthumously by his widow Laura. His thoughts on LSD and mescaline are documented on part of side one. It was the second and final volume in a projected series of audio recordings dealing with the human predicament. Speaking Personally includes a six-minute section of a London-based 1961 interview where he praises LSD and mescaline. These two records have been isolated because they documented his thoughts on hallucinogenic drugs, although he made several other audio recordings addressing issues of literature and philosophy. Laura Huxley was an author and philosopher who married the famous and influential writer Aldous Huxley in 1956 and remained with him until his death seven years later. This is a very meditative spoken word album with two side-long tracks: Your Favorite Flower and Rainbow Walk. Prepare your incense vase! (SR)

NB: (1) CD retrospective which features The Hydraulic Raisins, The Rhythm Surfers and The Spectrums.

45: Tragedy In Liverpool/The End (Spectrum 5001) 196?

Prior to joining The Hydraulic Raisins, Dan Braymer had drummed for the Ella Jones Varsity Show, the Teen Charmers (an all-girl accordion band!), and several incarnations of bands fronted by Del Pierce, including The Knockouts, The Masked Marvels, and The Squares. In 1963, he hooked up with the Rhythm Surfers, an instrumental surf band that released 502/Big City Surfer on Daytona Records (D-6301).

Soon afterwards, Braymer formed the Spectrums, another instrumental band whose recordings have survived but were never officially released. Then, after the break-up of the Spectrums, Dan answered an ad for a local group based in Baldwin Park, California. After rejecting the name Hydraulic Kumquats(!), Braymer, Barnes, Oxenham and Gerodini decided on The Hydraulic Raisins.

The Hydraulic Raisins based themselves in West Covina, California and released one single on Spectrum Records (a label financed by Braymer's mother): Tragedy In Liverpool/The End. Tragedy... was yet another instrumental, whilst The End was folk-rock.

Since the band always taped their rehearsals, several recordings remained in the can. Now all but one of these, First Encounter, has been included on the Bacchus Archives CD. Two of the tracks, Travel The World and Mountain Dew were both used by the band as demos. In addition there's two group originals:- Smog Song (a clone of Barry McGuire's Eve Of Destruction delivered in a similar manner to the original) and Baby Boy; plus a version of The Rumblers' I Don't Need You No More, which was recorded with some serious attitude.

The complete Hydraulic Raisins/Rhythm Surfers/Spectrums story, of which the above is a summary, can be found in the liner notes to the Bacchus Archives CD. (MDo)

CD: 1 PSYCHEDELIC MOODS, PART 4: THE FINAL ACT
(Collectables COL-CD-0653) 1995

NB: (1) is a retrospective, which also includes material by The Deep.

From upstate New York, they resided in Greenwich Village for part of 1967. On 24th April 1967, they entered the Mercury Sound Studios to cut six mind-expanding psychedelic numbers written by Deep members Mark Barkin and D. Blackhurst. None of the band members were more than 19 and they were heavily into acid. The six tracks:- The House of Yesterday, Id, Hydro-Pyro, Purple Floating, Snow Petals and Little Tin Soldier - sound like the Deep album and you'll find them all on Psychedelic Moods - Part Two (LP & CD). Remixed versions of the above tracks plus Man Who Shot Your Mother have been compiled on the above CD.

Hydro Pyro and Id can also be found on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 4 (CD). (MW/VJ)

Hye Stars (WI/IL)

ALBUM:	1	70-74	(No label) 1974 R1

This is an obscure private pressing from Chicago, Illinois that was recorded by a group of counsellors from an Armenian summer camp! The album features the various cover songs they played from 1970-74 at the Wisconsin camp including 25 Or 6 To 4, Blue Suede Shoes, Color My World, Cold Turkey, Gimme Some Truth and Whole Lotta Love. There are some nutty fuzz guitar lead solos on the disc, but they're not enough to recommend the album, which fetches silly money at auction. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	BOOTLEG MUSIC	(SSS International SSS-22) 1971

Despite the colourful cover, this album has predominantly an early seventies rock sound. Its finest cuts include Canadian Exodus which starts abrasively but slows down and features some nice, mellow guitar playing and Cellophane Lady, which has some sixties style fuzz guitar. It was produced by Ewbank and Poner.

H.Y. Sledge came from Valparaiso, Florida. Jan Pulver had previously played in Those Five, and Monte Yoho and Billy Jones were also members of The Outlaws.

Cellophane Lady and Nowhere To Go were featured on a 1971 EP sampler, Special Bonus Single (SSS-PB-1). (VJ/MW/SMR)

45s:	Come With Me/I Know	(United Artists 50147) 1967
	I Put A Spell On You/ Summertime (Variations)	(Tipton 100) 1968

A little behind the times down in Amarillo, Texas - their first single contains two fine chunky beat-punkers that have 1965 written across 'em. I Put A Spell... takes on a Doug Ingle and Iron Butterfly sound, with shades of light and heavy, doomy cathedral organ sounds and deep booming vocal. Summertime has a lighter jazzy feel (imagine Zombies meeting Vanilla Fudge). The band may have evolved out of The Hysterical Society Boys who issued another single: - Funny Face/I Got Shot (EBR 620001) 1962?

You can also check out I Know on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD) and Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 8 (LP); and Come With Me has been compiled on Basementville! U.S.A. (LP). (MW)

45s:	That's All She Wrote/Won't Get Far	(Tottenham 500) 1965
	Why Should You Treat Me This Way/ Everything's There	(Bing B-303) 1965

A typical period punk band Hysterics came from the San Bernardino/ Riverside area of California. Their finest moment was Everything's There. The lyrics were typical of the period - about the vocalist's infatuation with his girlfriend who's left him for another man.

The band also issued at least one single as The Love Ins, which coupled two of the above tracks: Everything's There and That's All She Wrote. The latter track has also been covered by Italy's Others on their 1995 EP Going Around With... .

Compilation appearances have included: Everything's There on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD) and *Where The Action Is! ALBUM: 1(A) MELTING YOUR MIND (Bonny Records 1211 L) 1972 R2

Ice was an Illinois band. Most of the members had been playing together in bands for several years; Bakalar and Kerestes since March 1965.

Ice formed in October 1971. The band played local clubs and dances and was a popular live attraction for about a year. In March 1972, they recorded the tracks for their album at a local studio.

The Melting Your Mind album is a patchy affair, suffering mainly from poor material that does not serve to highlight the band's ability. The opening track, Daughter Of Venus is probably the record's most impressive piece, being the closest approximation of a vehicle for Young's female vocals. Most readers of this book will likely prefer Five Card Draw however, a loud bluesy jam that sounds like Farm. A couple of cuts are downright poor, with In My Oldsmobile leading the way. Sadly, no minds were melted by this album. (CF)

45s:
	Short Circuit/Boil The Kettle, Mother	(RCA 47-9136) 1967
	Wild Times/The Rake	(RCA 47-9195) 1967

NB: Both 45s are taken from the album.

This is a Beatles-influenced album by a Hollywood band. The title track is a strange voyage into the mysticism of Eastern-influenced music, which is not wholly successful. It does contain one outstanding cut, though, Boil The Kettle, Mother, which features some fine fuzztone guitar work and demented vocal style and lyrics, making it one of the classic psychedelic punk recordings.

Strangely, three versions of tracks from the Inner Sounds album: Wild Times, Don't Think Twice and Boil The Kettle turn up on the exploito-psych album Give Me Some Lovin' by The Projection Company (Custom CS 1113) 1967. The Id-entical (sic) first two also reappear as by The Associated Soul Group on the Top Hits Of Today album from 1968. They sound close enough to the originals at times, especially Don't Think Twice, to make one wonder whether The Id were behind these and perhaps other exploito tracks/albums credited to faceless (Id-less?) or fictitious groups.

Guitarist Jerry Cole had been in the Champs for a couple of years (he joined them in 1961) and also had several solo releases as well as session work. The bonus tracks on the World Of Sound reissues are from the Projection Company album Give Me Some Lovin', which features some of The Id's backing tracks.

Since this entry appeared, Sundazed put out a retospective compilation on The Animated Egg and it turns out that our detective work was on the right trail - guitarist Jerry Cole WAS the main creator behind this outfit and many of those exploito albums after all.

Their magnum opus Boil The Kettle, Mother has been liberally compiled on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD), Mind Blowers (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP) and Psychedelic Patchwork Vol. 1 (LP & CD); the 45 version of The Rake can be heard on A Heavy Dose of Lyte Psych (CD) and the album version of The Rake has re-emerged on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD). (MW/VJ/GM)

ERE ARE WE GOING ID

ID - Where Are We Going LP.

The great commercial success as a top notch horn-rock outfit and Peterik's subsequent career as soloist and front-man of Survivor, have meant that the early period of this Chicago outfit has been overlooked, so here's a brief rundown on the pre-Warner Bros releases.

Originally known as Shon Dels Unlimited, and briefly The Shondels, they quickly became one of Chicago's top teen bands. Nearly all their material was group originals written by Peterik. Their style for this period was a vibrant blend of Invasion-influenced beat and mod sounds, brimming with melodic hooks, ringing guitars and commercial appeal but with strong vocals and harmonies and a tough edge - the result is some classic mid-sixties garagy pop.

The pre-Parrot releases are extremely hard to find these days but you can't go far wrong with the first three Parrot singles. I'll Keep Searching, is great moody teenbeat not unlike The Knaves' The Girl I Threw Away. The classic Rollercoaster is a stunning Who-style mod-pop-punker and the mod theme continues with an excellent cover of the Small Faces' hit Sha La La La Lee. All the flips on these are decent beat-garage-pop too.

The next single brings early signs of change - Give Your Mind Wings is a smooth beat-ballad and My Foolish Pride has the first influx of brass (though it's still good pop). Hole In My Soul is upbeat brassy pop but Girls Don't Grow On Trees returns to form - a fine 'Raiders-cum-Monkees style pop-punker. The transitional Kapp single features the soft ballad Nobody Loves Me, which would not be out of place on an Association album, even with the brass. The flip side Strawberry Sunday is more interesting - their sole attempt at a heavy psych-pop sound with distorted guitar, which comes off okay.

After that, well... to each his own and it's well documented elsewhere... check out "An American Rock History Vol. 3: Chicago and Illinois" for starters.

The Sundazed picture sleeve single dusts off an unreleased track from 1967 and an "Ides one-take wonder" from 1968 with notes and memories from Jim Peterik.

The 14-track Ideology album gathers the Parrot singles tracks with the '65 Shon Dels Unlimited debut and The Shondels' acetate. The CD version adds the two unreleased tracks featured on the Sundazed single and stereo versions of Hole In My Soul and Girls Don't Grow On Trees.

Compilation appearances have included: I'll Keep Searching on Pebbles, Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD); Roller Coaster on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP) and I'll Keep Searchin' and Girls Don't Grow On Trees on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (MW/TTi)

NB: 'B' side as Ken Kerr (with The Idols).

This was an obscure New England outfit. Aram Heller describes True Luv... as "an excellent moody garage ballad" in his New England discography 'Till The Stroke Of Dawn'. The flip, Haunted House, with howls and manic vocals throughout, is simply demented.

Aram notes that this is not the Idols from Rhode Island who issued two singles (on Dot and EZ) in the early sixties.

You can also find True Luv Gone Astray on New England Teen Scene (CD), New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP) and Sigh Cry Die (CD); and Haunted House on Sick And Tired (LP), The Big Itch Vol. 7 (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/AH)

This was an ambitious and professional private pressing by a local Maryland group who recorded the album in genuine Quadrophonic sound at a studio in Nashville. The band play a highly competent FM-rock style, it reminds me of the Big Lost Rainbow album from the same area, only considerably more dynamic. The album was picked up by United Artists and saw an "official" release in 1977, along with a single. (CF)

An Elevators - inspired outfit from Baytown, Texas whose stage act often featured a live Iguana! Their most well-known song I Can Only Give You Everything was one of the best psychedelic tracks to come out of the State and has subsequently been well covered on compilations.

Melinger later played with Endle St. Cloud.

45: Mona/I Don't Know Why (Forte/Cosa Grande 201) 1965

Formative Michigan garage outfit whence Iggy got his moniker before going on to cult status with The Stooges. Formed by Iggy and Jim McLaughlin whilst in the 9th grade at school in Ann Arbor, Michigan they played their first gig in 1963 at a school dance. Within a few months Don Swickerath and Nick Kolokithas were recruited, and The Iguanas began building up a local following, playing at frat parties, high school dances and teen clubs.

In the summer of 1965 they became house band at the Club Ponytail in Harbor Springs, playing their own sets and also backing other acts - sharing the stage with the likes of The Kingsmen, The Guess Who, The Shangri-Las, Bobby Goldsboro, The Four Tops, The Reflections and others. The same year, they also went into United Sound Recording Studio and put three tracks down onto tape: Mona - their trademark and signature of live gigs, plus two band compositions, I Don't Know Why and Again And Again. The band released two of these on their own Forte label, and Mona received airplay in the Detroit/Ann Arbor region.

The following year Iggy left to join the Prime Movers and The Iguanas continued with a new drummer, playing clubs around Boston and New York. Columbia expressed an interest in the band, but when that failed to come to fruition they went their separate ways in 1967.

The Jumpin With The Iguanas CD retrospective, contains the three cuts recorded at the winter '64/spring '65 session at United Sound, plus material from a 1963 acetate (recorded by line-up 'A'), and 1964 rehearsals. Complete with photos, memorabilia, and sleeve-notes by Jim McLaughlin. For vinyl fans, there's also a similar collection on Norton.

Compilation appearances have included: Mona and I Don't Know Why on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 3 (LP); Mona on Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP); and Again And Again (previously unreleased) on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 19 (LP). (MW)

		Diana/This Is What I Was Made For	(Dunhill D-4056) 1966

NB: α released in the UK (RCA Victor RCA 1484) in 1965.

This was a Mexican quartet who came to the attention of songwriters P.F. Sloan and Steve Barri in the first days of Dunhill Records. Used as a vehicle for the duo's early forays into commercial folk-rock, the band also recorded covers of the Beatles' Michelle and Paul Anka's Diana. According to Sloan's biography they could barely speak English and learnt to sing the lyrics phonetically. They do a surprisingly good job. Some of the tracks were also recorded in their native tongue, presumably for their home market.

They were not, as previously reported, a group called the Matadors who recorded with Jan & Dean (and were later known as Vic, Tony & Manuel, and then The Sinners).

This Is What I Was Made For is on Penny Arcade: Dunhill Folk Rock Vol. 2 (LP)... but, hands up anyone who spotted the deliberate error, they featured the Spanish version by mistake (mind you, it sounds just as great). More recently the English language version has graced The Electric Coffee House (CD). (MW/SR/VJ)

THE IGUANAS - Jumpin' With... CD.

This Chicago-based quintet was formed in February 1968 by Paul Cotton and featured colleague Mike Anthony, whom Cotton had played with in another significant Chicago outfit, The Rovin' Kind, and Kal David, another important Chicago musician, after his spell in H.P. Lovecraft. The songs on their albums ranged from hard-rock to more mainstream rock with country influences and from blues towards folk-rock, very often with psychedelic references and some fine fuzz guitars.

The first album met with some commercial success, peaking at No 144 in the Album Charts during 1969. Duet failed to consolidate on this and the band, by now based in California, went their separate ways in late 1971.

David went on to play for Fabulous Rhinestones and Cotton to Poco, who were to become flagbearers for the country-rock movement. Earlier Fred Page had left for California where he played for various L.A.-based bands. (GG/VJ)

45: City Of People/Wait Till The Summer (Michelle 001-XX) 1966

Here's a four-piece from the St. Clair Shores district of Detroit, Michigan. They started out as a frat band in 1964, but the following year got into the garage sound influenced by the likes of The Stones, The Pretty Things etc. They also got to appear on 'Milky's Party Time'- a TV show for kids. City Of People is a fine example of the garage genre - with great lyrics, good vocals and some catchy tinny guitar.

Younger brother Chris Strasz was in Attack, who put out a rare heavy single in the late sixties - School Daze Dream (Fuzzwart 513). City Of People was covered in 1984 by Yard Trauma (on their Yard Trauma and Music albums) and in 1986 by The Creeps (Enjoy The Creeps LP).

Compilation appearances have included: Wait Till The Summer on Love Is A Sad Song, Vol. 1 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 5: Nobody To Love (LP & CD); and City Of People on Michigan Mayhem, Vol. 1 (CD), Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD), Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Glimpses, Vol. 1 (LP). ILLUSION (HI) - Self Titled LP.

The debut single by this Palatka, Florida outfit made enough noise locally to be picked up for national release by Columbia. It should have been a smash. Written by all four members, I Know is superb, catchy, Raiders-like pop-punk, punctuated with exhortations of "hey hey hey hey" and cool keyboard phrases. It remains popular decades later; check it out on The Midwest vs. The Rest (LP), Pebbles Vol. 11 (LP), and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol.1 (CD). The flip is a charming harmony beat-ballad, penned by keyboard player Rob Gardner.

The band appeared on a local Jacksonville TV Show called 'Let's Go' to promote the single in the summer of 1966. What happened subsequently has been lost in the mists of time and, after such promise, it's a shame that this appears to have been the band's first and last shot. One hopes that drummer Tim Touchton is not the Timmy Touchton who was making syncopated noises behind Donna Summer and other disco/Euro-pop outfits 20 years later. (VJ/MW)

		Rain, Shine, Or Snow/ Shadows Of You	(Chantain L-193-1/2) 1967

Yet another Illusions, who produced an above-average garage-beat ballad and an excellent garage folk-rocker on the Chantain single. Shadows Of You has resurfaced on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2LP/CD) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). Drummer Paul Morrow got in touch to reveal more about this high school band from Birmingham, Alabama ...

"We all went to different high schools and were approximately the same age (b.1949-1950). The band was actually known locally as "The Fantastic Illusions" but the adjective was dropped on the single. We were together for approximately 2½ years from the 10th to the 12th grades in high school (1965-1967)."

Their debut single was Double Shot (of My Baby's Love). "Yes, the same song by the locally popular Swingin' Medallions. They played so much in Birmingham and the song was so popular that we cut it first or at least at about the same time as the K-Otics. Since Jim Posey's mom footed the bill, only his name is on the single (much to the dismay of the rest of us!). It was just beginning to climb the local charts when the local, powerful DJ, Jim Roddy (Roddey?) of WSGN, who had been playing it dumped it immediately when the Medallions came out with their version.

"Four out of five of us eventually moved to Nashville, Tennessee (I don't know what happened to Jim Posey). David Gillon has had success as a songwriter of primarily country songs. Joe Dougherty is a successful businessman and owns Bean Central, a wholesale/retail coffee shop. Robert Thames, guitarist extraordinaire, continues as a songwriter and a guitarist in the studio and on the road (e.g. Donna Fargo band). I became an attorney and still play drums for fun occasionally.

"The Jerks were a very good local group from the Birmingham area and one of our chief friendly rivals. Other good B'ham groups that put out records were: The Ramblers (drummer Johnny Robinson still gets this group together for occasional gigs in B'ham); (yet another) Tikis; and (yet another) Ramrods." 	In My Dark World/Walkin' And Singin'	(ABC 11107) 1968
	In My Dark World/High Flying Bird	(ABC 11107) 1968

Originally known as The Prophets, with a singer called Judy Bradbury, this band was originally from Wellesley, Massachusetts but based themselves in Boston. In autumn 1966 a local studio owner produced a cheap demo for them and they became a popular attraction at Boston's leading psychedelic club, The Boston Tea Party (this was New England's equivalent to San Francisco's Fillmore and Avalon).

In mid-1967 they headed to New York and recorded tracks at Capitol with ex-Journeyman Dick Weissman handling production and on the strength of these they were offered a contract that was later withdrawn because of a drug bust. They then signed to the William Morris Talent Agency and gigged extensively (including a trek to California) and they arranged for talented producer Tom Wilson to hear their demos. He signed Ill Wind to his production company Rasputin and got them a record deal with ABC. Clearly, a hippie as opposed to a punk band, their album is a fine one, with their sound moulded by Conny Devanney's crystal clear vocals. On tracks like Dark World her voice is beautiful, while on others, notably the widely recorded High Flying Bird, Hung Up Chick and Walkin' And Singin', it blends in beautifully with that of her male counterpart, Richard Griggs. Also of note is the unusual People Of The Night and the sleepy Full Cycle. This album is strongly recommended if you ever come across it.

The original album had an incorrect song order listed on the back cover. The second song on side one was wrongly listed as Sleep rather than People Of The Night. Similarly Sleep was wrongly listed as People Of The Night. The bonus tracks on the Afterglow and Akarma reissues are from demos for the album and these too miscredit the demo version of People Of The Night as Sleep. The majority of original copies of the album were also subject to a mastering fault on High Flying Bird, which also appears on both the 'counterfeit' and the 'legit' reissues.

In mid-1968 Carey Mann left the band. His replacement was bassist/vocalist Michael Walsh. This new line-up recorded five songs in four-track recording studio that Ken Frankel had constructed in the basement of one of the dormitories where the band was living. The band split the following year when Frankel (who'd married the band's first singer Judy Bradbury) moved to Marin County in California. Then, in 1970, they reformed with all their original members (except Frankel), including Carey on lead guitar and organ. A few months later, Carey quit again (he went on to play with Dirty John's Hot Dog Stand) and was replaced by Walter Bjorkman. The band existed in this form, mostly playing covers, for almost a year. Then Richard Griggs left in 1971 and was eventually replaced by Bryant Thayer on piano. This final line-up gigged a lot, but finally split up for good in 1973.

Ken Frankel became a real estate entrepreneur in northern California, where he owned and ran a major music venue, The Cotali Cabaret in the eighties. He also formed a classical group, The Electric Guitar Quartet. He still performs in Marin County, where he undertakes psychology research. Carey Mann developed a successful career in computer technology and still plays professionally in Massachusetts, where he lives. Conny Devanney ran a booking agency and played in various Dixieland and jazz bands as well as fronting her own band, which she still performs with. David Kinsman played with John Lincoln Wright & The Sourmash Boys in 1974, but then quit the music business in 1975 to run a successful bicycle parts company, although he is now retired. Richard Griggs worked extensively as a musician and intermedia artist but died in 2005. Michael Walsh remained active in the music business for over 30 years playing with many notable performers. Judy Bradbury and Ken Frankel had an amicable divorce in 1989 and Judy became a singer and collector of Jewish Sephardic music prior to her death in 2008.

The 2-LP/2-CD set issued by Sunbeam in 2009 includes an extra disc featuring 1966 demos that are in the folk-rock mould, a 1967 for Capitol which many consider to be better than the album, plus live and rehearsal recordings from 1968.

Compilation coverage has included: Full Cycle on Baubles (LP); and In My Dark World and High Flyin' Bird on The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD). (VJ/SR/RZ)

This was the final fling for Santa Ana's Chantays, of Pipeline fame. By 1965, surf bands were being wiped out by the English Invasion. In February 1965, they re-branded themselves as The Leaping Ferns and released a single on a small label but it sank without trace. Mind you, they still had enough reputation to be given another chance, or two, by a national label. Rechristened The Ill Winds, they took to their new garagy folk-rock sound with some aplomb yet were unable to achieve previous levels of success. Nothing further was heard from them until the advent of the oldies circuit tours some decades later.

Ilmo Smokehouse was formed in 1969 by the Tieken brothers from Quincy, Illinois. They'd previously been in the long-lived Freddy Tieken and The Rockers who'd been going at it since the late fifties. As The Gonn disintegrated in 1968, first Slink Rand and then Craig Moore joined 'The Rockers. Craig: - "Fred changed the name to The American Music Band, stealing it sort of from The Electric Flag. We played EVERYWHERE... Then when the horn guys all quit, we became Ilmo Smokehouse, heavy as hell, anti-war, pro-drug hippie all the way. When that eventually ended Slink, Dennis and I became 'Smokehouse' as a really heavy progressive trio. Later on we had Micki Free on guitar (later with L.A. soul group Shalamar). We wore glitter and make-up before Kiss, but they made it we didn't. It's all nuts, convoluted, insane, I can't believe I did all of this crap!"

Their album was recorded in Memphis at 'Beautiful Sound' Studio, owned by Dan Penn of Box Tops fame (as a songwriter producer). He engineered part of the session, with his partner Jim Johnson. (MW/CMe)

This Rainier, Oregon band produced some enjoyable tunes - more pop than punk but with that solid Pacific Northwest beat. Baldwin and White had previously been with The Chessmen and this outfit would change its name to Impact Express after the second single.

Compilation appearances have included: Green Green Field on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 16 (LP & CD); Don't You Dare on Tymes Gone By (LP) and Class Of '66! (LP); Green Green Field and Don't You Dare on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 2 (LP) and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD). (MW)

A Milwaukee, Wisconsin act who formed in 1962. They took their name from Schiller's '58 Impala, unaware of other Impalas that were around. Their debut single was produced by Sam McClure of The Legends. Spoonful - a raw bluesy workout with a good snotty vocal has resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP).

Moretti had left by the time this was recorded but would reform The Impalas in the seventies and release two singles. He moved to Florida in the eighties but was still returning for band reunions years later.

Phil Shields was also in The Picture. (MW/GM)

(1) has been reissued on CD. As Los Impala, they also had a Spanish only release: Estos Son (Marter M 30-056) 1968 R1 and an Argentinian LP The Impala And Their Music (Quinto Q 10.005) 1966.

EP:	1	CADA VEZ + 3	(Sono Play SBP 10004) 1966

NB: (1) Spanish only release as Los Impalas.

Originally from Venezuela, where they were known as Los Impala, this group relocated to Madrid, Spain in 1965. After a few months, their singer Henry Stephens left to pursue a solo career, recording an EP as Lord Henry Con Los Impala.

After a few years the band moved to Chicago, releasing their Impala Syndrome album which is well worth checking out. An effective blend of melodic, laid-back songs (Love Grows A Flower, Land Of No Time and the superb Eastern-influenced finale, Run (Don't Look Behind)) combined with fuzz guitar numbers like Too Much Time and Let Them Try. New Love Time is also rather catchy but Leave, Eve sounds unashamedly like The Rascals' Its Wonderful.

The band recorded other EPs and singles as Los Impala, not shown in the above discography. (VJ/CF/ML/MGi)

A bunch of guys from Connecticut recorded this album of good-timey folk-blues-hippie-rock and plain wackiness. This is one for those who got lost on their way to Woodstock but still had a great trip.

The band was led by Bill Comeau, who wrote most of their songs and also had a solo career.

45: Baby, I Love You/
Brother, Where Are You (All-American 5718) 1968

NB: the same number was used for a release credited to Big Brother, ESP/Brother, Where Are You.

Although Indescribably Delicious was a real band, their history and 'album' has been the subject of much speculation, with claims to be either a Strawberry Alarm Clock offshoot and/or to feature members of All-American label-mates Big Brother (w/Ernie Joseph). The truth, however, is even stranger than fiction.

The band formed in 1965 in Torrance, California when Jim Conroy and Bruce Turner of garage band The Bountymen got invited to jam with another local band called Darkwaters. At some point in the jam, Jim and Bruce played with Darkwaters' bassist and drummer, Mark Cohen and Steve Senchia. Jim: - "For the first time we all felt something magic and the next day quit our bands to form a new one. For a few weeks we didn't have a name, and then a friend suggested Indescribably Delicious and we went for it. Everyone ended up calling us the I.D. but Indescribably Delicious it was."

"From the start the band had an impact, our first gig was a battle of the bands which we won and our reputation grew quickly, to the point where we were soon the most popular band in our area. If there was a dance and the I.D. played it was packed. We then started to travel outside our area and usually got the same reaction. There was just something about the chemistry of the five of us together that created excitement. We couldn't even go to the local shopping malls because the girls would scream and chase us. It was our own mini-mania scene. Our manager, Ray Torrence, was just a kid down the block but one day we were approached by a guy named Gary Solomon (aka Gary Solo) who had Hollywood connections and we decided to go with him."

"He was kind of a shyster but he got us good gigs all over and made us polish up the act. We ended up being a well-oiled machine sometimes playing three different places in one night with our roadcrew going ahead of us to set up the next gig. The band performed with a light show with strobes and we put on a real show that most bands didn't have. Imagine a cross between James Brown and the Who. We played the Casey Kasem dances, traveled to Las Vegas and San Diego, opening for: The Seeds, Music Machine, Thee Midniters, Jimmy Reed, Steppenwolf, Buffalo Springfield, The Turtles and The Yardbirds. When we played in our hometown there were riots and we had to have police escorts a couple of times. At the time Bruce and I were 18, Art was 17 and Steve and Marc were 16."

"Then Gary told us we were going to record for Bill Holmes' All-American Records, the Strawberry Alarm Clock label. We went to Hollywood and recorded Brother Where Are You, Baby I Love You, and The Kids Are Allright. We were so green and naive and they didn't even let us in the mixdown session."

"Then came the single that paired Brother, Where Are You and Baby I Love You. We never even met Bill Holmes or had a contract when they started playing Brother on KRLA a bit. By the way, that silly noise at the end of Brother was not our idea. Anyway it didn't become a hit but I got to hear myself on L.A.'s biggest radio station. We continued playing and our musicianship got better, but times were a-changin quickly."

"Sometime afterwards I was asked to come up to Hollywood and sing on a demo that the lead singer of the Strawberry Alarm Clock and Gary Solo were making. I agreed to do it even though I didn't think the songs were very good, as I saw it as a chance to get some more recording experience. Bill Holmes had nothing to do with writing those songs, although he's credited as such on the Akarma release. Afterwards they made a small test pressing of the tunes and also put the three I.D. tunes on it. They gave me two of the test pressings, which I played for the guys and we all thought it was pretty funny. The tunes were bad, the playing was bad, and my singing was done in one pass, take it or leave it. I didn't really know the songs very well at all. The test pressing was jokingly called 'the Conroy' and we never listened to it again."

"About a year after we had done our recording Bruce Turner got the call to be the lead guitar player for the Strawberry Alarm Clock and decided to take it. At the time The Strawberry Alarm Clock had split in two and Bill Holmes had the lead singer with one band and the other members had another. Bruce joined the one with Bill Holmes and the lead singer which lasted about six months when the two factions sued each other and ended up in the courts for the next 15 years. So, that's what happened to the Strawberry Alarm Clock and I'm sure Bill Holmes had a lot to do with that. As for the I.D., after Bruce left we broke up and that was that. It was the fall of 1968."

So, the Indescribably Delicious 'album', isn't quite what quite what it's been rumoured to be over the last few years.

The two reissues feature the same tracks, although Work Song and No Time To Answer on the 'Fanny' release are titled It's Been A Hard Hard Day and The World Is Ended Right Now on the Akarma version. The music is a mixed bag, from melodic psych-pop (Big Ben, Is It Love, The World Is Ended Right Now) which will certainly appeal to fans of Strawberry Alarm Clock, through to heavy fuzz, psychy pop-rock with occasionally soulful vocals (It's Been A Hard Hard Day, Take Me For One Last Ride) and onto full-blown brassy soul-pop (Jerry Ragavoy's Baby I Love You).

Incidentally, Greg Munford, who was also on the "Conroy" session does get a backing vocals credit on Ernie Joseph's Akarma album An All American Emperor, and also gets writer credits on a couple of tracks. The mystery is not quite complete however, as Brother, Where Are You (which we now know as being by the real Indescribably Delicious) also crops up as the Big Brother single (All-American 5718-AA), and is the EXACT same track right down to the spacey outro...

Today, Jim Conroy is still a musician and has two recent CD releases of his own: - "I mostly play Jazz now and am still passionate about making music and hope to be for the rest of my life. Bruce and Mark are also still both musicians and we talk frequently."

As for the reissues, the band is still waiting for any kind or royalty or contract from Bill Holmes... (MW/VJ/JCy)

ALBUMS: 1(A) INDEX (DC Records no #) 1967 R5
2(B) INDEX (DC Records 4736) 1968 R6

NB: (1) black label. (2) red label. (1) reissued in a new sleeve (Voxx 200.023) 1983. (2) reissued on Sears (GRF 71413) 1991 with a different sleeve. (1) and (2) reissued on CD as Index Anthology 1967-68 (Top Jimmy Productions 1995) 1995 together with nine previously unreleased tracks recorded in 1969.

Originals of this Grosse Pointe, Michigan band's albums are extremely rare. Their first discordant acid-soaked folk album is well worth a listen. It opens with the band's own version of the Byrds', Eight Miles High, includes some interesting echo fuzztone guitar work on Turquoise Feline, their own arrangements of the traditional song John Riley and You Keep Me Hanging On, and three fuzztone instrumentals, Shock Wave, Feedback and Israeli Blues.

Their second album on the DC label, is musically very different to their first. They were obviously quite into the early (pre-disco) Bee Gees because it included covers of I Can't See Nobody and New York Mining Disaster 1941, as well as a rehash of The Byrds' classic Eight Miles High and Cream's Spoonful.

When Tom Ballew joined the band, Gary Francis switched from bass to guitar - this expanded line-up also recorded the bonus material included on the Anthology retrospective CD, which dates from 1969. The CD was produced and compiled by Jim Valice. (VJ/MW)

CDR: 1(B) THE LOST ALBUM (No label) 2005

Originally from Seattle and known as West Coast Natural Gas, they relocated to San Francisco in 1968. It's a great pity that they did not release an album since their four tracks, Hashish, Water Or Wine, Beyond This Place and Two's A Pair on the San Francisco Sound: Fifth Pipedream Vol. 1 (LP) are arguably the best in that collection. They are well worth investigating and if you can't obtain a copy of that album, there are plenty of compilations featuring one or more of the tracks. They do not appear to have released any singles, although they did make other recordings, including a single as West Coast Natural Gas.

Indian Puddin' and Pipe was one of several bands managed by Matthew Katz, along with Moby Grape, It's A Beautiful Day, Tripsichord (Music Box) and others. Due to the nature of his contracts with these bands, he was able to operate different versions of each, and it was therefore possible for three different audiences to watch "Moby Grape" playing live in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle on the same night if he so wished!

The band that recorded the tracks on the San Francisco Sound: Fifth Pipedream Vol. 1 (LP) various artists compilation, weren't in fact the "original" Indian Puddin' and Pipe, but today they are thought of as the definitive band due to the above album. In fact, whilst they were still known as West Coast Natural Gas, they played a gig in Seattle with the "original" Indian Puddin' and Pipe before the original band split-up with Katz and became Easy Chair. Reputedly, there was a third L.A. version of the band, put together by Katz to play gigs down South.

After their demise, Lydia Mareno went on to play with Stoneground and Craig and Mack later played with Pipe. Jeff LaBrache had earlier played with The City Limits and Rocky and His Friends.

In 2005 Pat Craig unearthed some lost tapes and released a CDR, The Lost Album, comprising six tracks - Morning Delight, A Penny, Shadowlarks, Mr.Blue, Spirit, and Planetary Road. These were recorded at Coast Recorders in 1969 by the musicians listed as line-up 'B'; they included Paul Trousdale, previously with the excellent Brave New World.

Compilation appearances have included: Two's A Pair, Beyond This Place, Hashish and Water Or Wine on San Francisco Sound: Fifth Pipedream Vol 1. (LP & CD); Hashish on The Magic Cube (Flexi & CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Acid Dreams Testament (CD); and Water Or Wine on Gathering Of The Tribe (LP). Recently Matthew Katz's Then And Now, Vol. 1 (CD) has compiled Planetary Road and Vol. 2 includes Shadowlarks. These two tracks were previously unreleased. (VJ/CF/JLb/MW)

CD-R: 1 EUPHORIAN RAILWAY (Hamana 1965) 200?

NB: (1) contains 1965-1968 studio recordings.

EP: 1 JOHNNY FARFISA'S GREATEST HITS (PS) (Moxie M 1028) 1979

NB: (1) features Sky Is Falling/Satisfaction/She's Gone Away/Monkey On My Back.

From New Rochelle, New York this band featured keyboard player Andy Cahan, who used the stage name Johnny Farfisa. The band's sound is solid frat/garage with reedy keyboards. The Moxie EP includes the moody, introverted Monkey On My Back with wailing harmonica and She's Gone Away, a dynamic fuzzy punk instrumental.

A CD-R entitled Euphorian Railway is available from Andy Cahan's website; actually it's a retrospective comprising 20 tracks recorded between 1965-1968. It includes the titles on the Moxie EP except for Satisfaction, although the version of She's Gone Away on the CD-R features vocals. It is an amazing collection of mature and often complex, keyboard-led, garagy-pop-rock - a couple of tracks are almost proto-prog with their totally uncommercial shifts of moods and movements. The only drawback is the ancient stereo separation of the vocals from the music.

After moving to southern California, Cahan enjoyed success with The Turtles, Flo & Eddie, and Frank Zappa connections.

You can hear sound clips and order the CD-R on Andy's website: http://www.allentertainment.net/index.html

Compilation appearances include: She's Gone Away (unreleased 1966 version) on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2-LP/CD); and Monkey On My Back on Ya Gotta Have Moxie Vol. 2 (2-CD). (MW/RM/CF)

ALBUM: 1(B) INFLUENCE (ABC ABCS-630) 1968 SC

Formed as a quartet in late 1966, this act has an interesting and almost global pedigree. English-born singer Andrew Keiler moved firstly to South Africa in 1964 and together with Irish-born guitarist Louis Campbell McKelvey played in the Johannesburg R&B outfit The Upsetters. McKelvey left this act in late 1965, to join The A-Cads, although he was too late to appear on their album, despite being pictured on the sleeve. Andrew Keiler too left The Upsetters, recording a solo album in late 1965 before moving to Montreal in late 1966, along with McKelvey and fellow A-cad, Hank Squires.

In Canada, Squires moved into production working with The Haunted, amongst others, and McKelvey briefly played with Les Sinners and Our Generation before reuniting with Keiler in Influence. Czech-born bass player Geisinger came in from the Soul Mates and English-born drummer Dave Wynne was recruited from The Haunted.

To complete the line-up, two other former Soul Mates, Rossi and Island joined after playing on a Wilson Pickett tour in June 1967. The band then relocated to the US...

David Wynne recalls: - "We played Montreal in the spring of '67, then went to Toronto Village and played one of the clubs there until September when we went to New York and cut the album with ABC. McKelvey was involved in production. Afterwards we were offered another deal by Columbia which was turned down by the band, and at that point I left and went back to Canada and school. You were right about the album, but it may have had a little impact. Our publicist at ABC was dating Peter Townshend and reportedly he liked the opera idea. As musicians and artists the Influence really outclassed anything else around - Walter Rossi as I said was a superb guitarist. You should have heard us live..."

"The entire band except me had done hard time with mature audiences. Not many Canadian musicians had had the experience of recording in or touring the U.S. as Wally, Jack and Bobo had with Wilson Pickett. They were also all seasoned musicians. (I heard, from Buddy Miles I think, that Steve Cropper had said he thought Wally the better guitarist). It was also innovative and had confidence that it was cutting edge and could compete on any stage. Toronto Village in summer 1967 was great - lots of talent and a real buzz. The imbalance in the band was that we had two front men, Bobo and Andy, and while it was never pushed I think after I left that it became an issue - I bridged both sides and may have helped keep some of it together. At the time there seemed enough room for everyone, but it was really an amalgam of two bands in one - the Wally, Jack, Bobo and Louis and Andy. Yum Yum who replaced me was definitely associated with the former group. I had started the band with Louis, but felt much more at home musically with Wally, Jack and Bobo. I was not a fan of British drummers (Baker, Moon) but American black funk and jazz drummers. I think I mentioned the time at the Barrel, where watching and talking to Rashid Ali (Coltrane's second drummer with Elvin Jones) and hearing new wave drumming was a priceless clinic..."

Their album makes it easy to understand why they chose their name, as it is more or less a hodgepodge of styles without much consistency. Many satirical elements betray the strong influence of Zappa, on whom they clearly lean too heavily. Nevertheless their love of discordant riffs and 'wrong' modulations works brilliantly on at least two tracks: We Are Here, a sour masterpiece on lost love and Natural Impulse. Lyrically Zappa is omnipresent as becomes hearable in the choice of admittedly transitional subject-matter such as sodomy (on County Fair) and the longing of the gentry to mingle with the peasants (on Sir Archibald). Parodies on The Marcels, Little Richard and the hippie-movement in general sound dated, although they probably were modern in 1968. Worth trying, but don't pay too much.

After Influence broke up, McKelvey and Geisinger played in the Canadian band Milkwood. Geisinger later left Milkwood for Luke and The Apostles. Rossi meanwhile, played with The Buddy Miles Express briefly before joining Geisinger in Luke and The Apostles.

Walter Rossi later played with Charlee, Moonquake and Bombers. Jack Geisinger also later played with Moonquake, Rockers and Crescent Street Singers. Bob Parkin committed suicide in 1970.

Walter Rossi is also rumoured to have played with Thee Muffins and may appear on their album. (NW/MK/VJ/TLw)

45s:	Mind Disaster/It's Not Easy	(BFD 0036) 1966
	You Been A Long Time Comin'/I Once Asked	(BFD 2022) 1967

This five-piece formed out of the remnants of two earlier Missoula, Montana bands The Chosen Few and Mojo's Mark IV. They cut their debut single in Butte, Montana in 1966 and then relocated to San Francisco in 1967, where they played at the legendary Avalon Ballroom among other places. Mind Disaster, was quite an appealing psychedelic pop single and can now be heard on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP). It also got a further airing, along with a post Initial Shock recording featuring Wallace and Crowe, You Been A Long Time Comin', on the California Halloween (LP). You can also check out You Been A Long Time Comin' on Quagmire Volume 6 (CD).

Mojo Collins later fronted Sawbuck.

Wallace and Crowe later played together in Yellowstone, and also The Invaders, who issued one single Long Time Comin'/Could You Would You on an indie label in 1977. Another Invaders track was featured on the Bomp compilation Waves, and the pair also backed Gerrie Roslie on the Sinderella project for Bomp under The Sonics moniker. They also later did demo an album for Randy Bachman that went unissued. (VJ)

45s:	Daily News/Everytime	(RCA Victor 47-9713) 1968
	That Was Just His Thing/ The Cobweb Threads Of Autumn	(RCA 74-0229) 1969

Thought to be from New England, their first coupling (written by S. Burnett and produced by Pierre G. Maheu) is good rousing acoustic-harmony-folk-pop backed by hush-voiced vaudeville-style pap, sadly a-la-mode at that time. The second single features a doomy, quasi-religious That Was Just His Thing with whipping fuzztone and a sombre multi-voiced chorus. The Cobweb Threads Of Autumn is totally different: strong melodic baroque pop with harpsichord, a middle eight with string quartet and elaborate and tricky contrapuntal harmonies. Excellent.

That Was Just His Thing has been on A Fistful Of Fuzz (CD). (MK/MW)

	Local Town Drunk/You Tell Lies	(Columbia 44032) 1967

From Long Branch in New Jersey, this outfit gained a contract with Columbia by virtue of winning a 'Battle Of The Bands' competition in 1966. An earlier single included an "inept teen-frat dance" number, Do The Scissors. When Local Town Drunk, (a novelty song) flopped, they were dropped from the label. The flip, You Tell Lies was a much stronger track penned by their guitarist Ron Flannery.

The band also recorded some other tracks that were unreleased at the time. Of these More Than I Have, is the highlight featuring some good guitar work and drumming. There's a psychedelic edge to Fakirs & Thieves. There's also an acetate credited to the Electric Carnival with Fakirs And Thieves and More Than I Have on it that is known to exist.

Compilation appearances have included: More Than I Have and Fakirs And Thieves on Pebbles Box (5-LP) and Trash Box (5-LP); More Than I Have on Pebbles, Vol. 22 (LP) and The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD); and You Tell Lies on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP). This Inn Crowd from Baton Rouge, Louisiana was latterly known as "Ye Olde Inn Crowd" and had a penchant for Invasion flavoured folk-rockers with cool harmonies. Their debut couples a lightweight cover of Curtis Mayfield's You Must Believe Me with a yearning, Searchers-inspired beat-ballad. The catchy up-tempo folk-punker Go Away is probably their finest moment and has reappeared on Wyld Sydes Volume 7 (CD).

The album dates from the early seventies and features a completely different line-up. It covers period classics with a prominent Hammond organ. Hal Ellis went onto bigger things as guitarist for John Fred & His Playboy Band. (MW/AB/VJ)

Recorded in Hollywood, a pop-psych trio (two girls, one man) with songs like Get Aboard A Dream, In Sequence, I Go To Life, The Touch, Within You and Inner Dialogue. Marshalltown, Iowa was home to this five-piece who released two singles on ssExx and featured on the Crown Production Sampler - a booking agency record EP from 1967 playing an extract of Hold On To Him. They should not be confused with the Innerlite featured on the Strangers From A Strange Land (LP) compilation, who were in fact from Bombay, India... The Indian act was in fact featured on Simla Beat '70, the first of two rare compilations funded by the Simla Tobacco Company in 1970 and 1971. Subsequently the better tracks were combined onto Strangers From A Strange Land (LP) and mistakenly sold by dealers as being of U.S. origin.

Tabula Rasa and All The Way In, composed by Dave Robinette and Don Sullivan, are heavy freaky guitar instrumentals - check 'em out on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz Vol. 2 (CD) and Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz Vol. 1 (CD) respectively. Hold On To Him is a cover of a Ritchie Cordell/ Sal Trimachi pop song and is dispensable. Heartaches And Headaches can also be heard on Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP). Brash pop-beat with a cheesed-off attitude towards the fairer sex, as you might guess from the title. I Can Make It Without You, a powerful DC5-type stomper with similar sentiments, can also be heard on Lost Generation, Vol. 1 (LP). Your Time's... is fratty upbeat fuzz-pop but lacking the bite of its predecessors and Things Ain't The Same certainly ain't, being a comparatively toothless pedestrian effort.

The Insect Trust was an interesting group whose sound was based around the vocals of Nancy Jeffries. Jeffries and Barth had earlier played with Peter Stampfel (see Holy Modal Rounders) in an outfit called The Swamp Lillies. The band took its name from a newspaper called The Insect Trust Times, founded by Bill Levy, the original editor of International Times in England.

The Insect Trust spent time in Memphis but relocated to Hoboken, New Jersey and in April 1968 landed a recording contract with Capitol.

The Insect Trust The Insect Trust The Insect

THE INSECT TRUST - Self Titled LP.

Their debut album was an amalgam of various strands of country music and most of the material was written by the band. They utilised a wide range of woodwind and stringed instruments. Their style was varied, ranging from the bluesy Special Rider Blues through the string instrumental Foggy Bridge Riverfly, to the harmonious Been Here And Gone So Soon and Going Home. Also of interest is the unusual instrumentation of another track Mountain Song.

In 1970, the band emerged on a different label, with their follow-up Hoboken Saturday Night. This continued their experimentation and included the unusual, brassy Somedays, successful ballads like Our Sister The Sun and The Eyes Of A New York Woman, the big band sound of Reciprocity, strange woodwind accompaniment of Now Then Sweet Man, strange attempts to merge stringed and woodwind backing in Glade Song and ends with a brassy instrumental jam, Ducks. Guests on the album include the well-known jazz musicians Elvin Jones, Bernard Purdie and Hugh McCracken.

The previous year, Trevor Koehler had also played on a couple of tracks on Octopus' sole album.

After the demise of The Insect Trust, Bob Palmer became a journalist. Sadly, Trevor Koehler later committed suicide.

"Who?" you might well ask. Unless you lived and attended local gigs in the San Bernardino area in the late sixties or early seventies, it's most unlikely that you've come across, let alone heard, anything by Instant Orange and their offshoots.

Only 30 years after their final recordings did the collector community became aware of one of sixties rock's best kept secrets. The band had lived completely on their own terms, releasing their recordings only in the local community and restricting pressings to 100 copies. No surprise that they stayed under the radar of all but the keenest collectors of the obscure.

The discography and personnel have been gleaned from the detailed liners and insert on the 2-LP retrospective, which gathers all those listed. A pat on the back to all concerned. Enough people dug the limited edition vinyl package to warrant a release on CD, so the band's legacy of DIY underground folk-rock may gain wider appreciation and perhaps inspire a new generation of independent musical minds.

On offer is 12-string Rickenbacker guitar-led rock with experimental bits and loops, electronic oscillators, backward tapes, fine electric guitars and piano bits and powerful lyrics in a strong folk-rock format. The singles and EPs are compiled on the second album of the Shadoks' double set, which was released in a limited edition of 450 numbered copies, which was presented in a heavy gatefold sleeve with an insert.

45: Unabridged, Unadulterated, Unextraordinary, Ordinary, Mediocre Unoriginality Blues/
Please Try And Understand (Impression 107) 1966

Unabridged.. is a tongue-in-cheek dig at Bob Dylan by a Redlands, California band who had just put out the previous single on the Impression label as The C-Minors - Don't Go/Just A Little Feeling (Impression 106) 1966. Both names were aliases for The Mark Five, who would shortly become Peppermint Trolley Co. The track has reappeared on Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 7 (LP/CD) and both sides feature on the Peppermint Trolley Co. retrospective CD, Beautiful Sun. (MW)

Internal Canitery Sin (OH)

This Circleville, Ohio band didn't release any singles in their own right but their cover of Hendrix' Purple Haze made it onto the Hillside '67 (7" EP). The other bands featured were The Gears, Emeralds and Dedicated Followers.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included Purple Haze on Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Relics, Vol. 2 (LP). (MW/GGI)

	Blue Eyes/Luxury Liner	(LHI 1205) 1968
	I Must Be Somebody Else/Miller's Cave	(LHI 1217) 1968

One of the very first groups to try to combine rock with country music, the International Submarine Band is now mostly remembered for being Gram Parsons' first significant group. He, of course, would later join The Byrds and form the Flying Burrito Brothers.

Formed in 1967, after two flop singles, the group (Parsons, Dunlop, Gauvin and Nuese) moved from New York to California responding to an offer of the actor Brandon deWilde to get them some film work. The ISB did appear in the film "The Trip" with Peter Fonda but their music was erased and replaced by the Electric Flag. The group also recorded an entire album of Beatlesque material at Gold Star Studios in Hollywood but the tapes, given to deWilde for safekeeping, disappeared.

In late spring 1967, after a discussion over the direction the band was taking, Dunlop and Gauvin left the group and moved to Boston. Ian Dunlop would later record some solo records for small labels. Having decided to play with a country music sound, Parsons recruited a new drummer, Jon Corneal and, together with Nuese and a temporary bassist, auditioned successfully for Lee Hazlewood's label, LHI. Produced by Suzi Jane Hokum, the sessions began with the help of a new bassist, Chris Ethridge and a new singer/guitarist, Bob Buchanan. Two well-known country musicians, Maness and Ball, also helped the group. The album was finished in Christmas 1967 but in February 1968, Parsons joined The Byrds. The album, Safe At Home, was released in late spring 1968.

Without a real group to promote it (the remaining members tried to find a suitable replacement for Parsons, but were unable to!) and country-rock not being the hottest thing in 1968, the album logically flopped. It's however an interesting album if you are a fan of early country-rock, with good vocals and a fresh sound displayed on several Parsons' compositions and covers of songs by Merle Haggard, Johnny Cash and Big Boy Crudup.

After The Byrds, the Flying Burrito Brothers and two solo albums, Gram Parsons died in 1973. His body was stolen by his manager Philip Kaufman and burned in the desert near the Joshua Tree... He is now revered as a kind of "country-rock icon" by many rock and country musicians. Among the other ISB members, John Corneal would also play for a short period with The Byrds and not surprisingly would team up again with Parsons and Ethridge in the Flying Burrito Brothers. He also drummed with Dillard and Clark and on the first album by Warren Zevon. Chris Ethridge went on to play with Joel Scott Hill and became a successful studio musician. Bob Buchanan and John Nuese apparently stopped recording.

The Magnum CD features a good history of the group written by Sid Griffin. that we've used for this entry. The Sundazed reissue is also recommended.

Sum Up Broke has been compiled on California Acid Folk (LP). (SR/VJ)

45:	I've Got Something To Say/The Trip (PS)	(Eastwood 1213) 1967

This garage quintet formed in July 1965 in Akron, Ohio. I've Got Something To Say is a typical girl put-down song with some effective farfisa organ, whilst the flip is a fuzzy instrumental. The single came with a picture sleeve and had two pressings - the first being mismastered with the effect that the drums and backing vocals are outta sync!

I've Got Something To Say has also resurfaced on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP) and you'll also find The Trip on You're Playing With Fire and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/GGI/MW)

From Houston, Texas The Interns, according to Roy Ames, were a bunch of medical students who used to like to play R&B covers and other favourites at clubs and frat parties.

Sally Met Molly can also be found on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD). (VJ)

This may have been a test pressing as the record has blank white labels. It was issued in two different covers; one plain white with a rubber stamp showing the name of the artist and the album title, the other cover had a paste-on slick and did not mention the album title. Both versions had an insert with the lyrics and credits. Intondi was part of New York's Greenwich Village folk scene and on offer is a range of different folk styles, including jazzy and downer. 	Then I'd Know/My Name	(Moxie MRC 101) 1964
	Now She's Gone/Why Me?	(Moxie MRC 104) 1964

The Intruders started out playing surf instruments around Tucson, Arizona in 1963 but when The Beatles became popular they added Larry Cox on vocals. In 1964 they won a recording session having won a local 'Battle Of The Bands' competition. What they expected to be a real studio turned out to be the guy's living room! The Gallant single was the result and their manager Dan Peters issued two others on his Moxie label. In late 1964/early 1965, the success of a black Detroit outfit called The Intruders led them to change their name to Quinstrells. Later still they became The Beloved Ones and The Dearly Beloved. The Dearly Beloved (Voxx 200.018) 1984 compilation includes Every Time It's You and Why Me? which featured some ripping fuzz guitar.

You can also hear Every Time It's You and Why Me on Let's Talk About Girls! (CD). (VJ)

A welcome reissue of this mythical album that most of us could never possibly afford on the rare occasion that an original copy might surface - a total eclipse is a more frequent event. Inevitably therefore, there is bound to be some disappointment, confirmed by the original liner notes describing their style accurately as 'rock and soul'. Hailing from Charlottesville, to the northwest of Richmond, Virginia, this outfit presents 10 competent covers plus two originals that encompass frat-rock, brassy soul sounds, soppy ballads and some decent garage nuggets. One of those originals, Have You Ever, can also be sampled on Project Blue, Vol. 3 (LP). (MW)

45: She's A Tiger/Honda Come Back (Suncrest 3344) 1965

NB: the band is credited on the 45 label as The Invaders of Burdine's Combo Castle.

Miami's Invaders had already written and recorded two originals at Criteria studios when they entered, and won, the Burdine's Combo Castle 'Battle Of The Bands' in 1965. However the prize of a single release came with a catch - the songs would have to be changed to suit the sponsors, Honda. And so it was that She'll Come Back became Honda Come Back and Never Said Goodbye became She's A Tiger (rewritten to appeal to WQAM "Tiger Radio"). The original versions were never released, nor were two other songs that made it onto acetate, Little Things You Do (an original) and a cover of of Keep A Knockin'.

She's A Tiger rocks and roars on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD).

Goodson would join The Echoes Of Carnaby Street where he was reunited with an original member of The Invaders, Kenny Ahern. Haas joined Sounds Unlimited and went on to become a respected nutrition doctor and author, with the best-seller "Eat To Win"... and of a biography of Cher (?!). (JLh/MW)

THE INVICTAS - À Go-Go LP.

The original line-up ('A') lasted about a year; thereafter it was very fluid. Peranich, Gruender and Jablonski would form Raw Meat and recorded a single in the early seventies - Standby Girl/Out In The Country (Blue Hour 12661). Pedersen would later work with Charlie Musselwhite. Drummer Bruce Cole played in several Milwaukee acts in the sixties starting with the Grand Prix's in 1963, then The Triumphs (1963), Van-Tels (1964), Savoys (1965), Ricochettes (c1966), and The Invasion (c1967-8).

	Sing For You/R.I.P.	(M.O.C. 678) 1970
	Within These Precincts/Love Come Wicked	(Hi 2200) 1971

This El Paso, Texas quartet had just been picked up by hometown label Suemi when owner-producers Kenny Smith and Bill Taylor secured a contract with Hi Records. The pair decided to relocate to Memphis and took many of their acts with them, including Lode Star and Iota.

This explains why their singles appeared on Memphis-based labels. Both have been unearthed, along with six unreleased tracks from Kenny Smith's archives, on the welcome Rockadelic retrospective album, which comes with two inserts featuring photos and a history of the band and the Suemi label. No composer credits are given; perhaps it was assumed that all are group originals. The single sides are, but there is definitely one cover - Glympses was written by Pat Blanks, which first appeared on the Suemi sampler I Love You Gorgo (LP) by the aforementioned Lode Star.

IOTA - Self Titled LP.

Iota should appeal to fans of late sixties/early seventies rock - atmospheric keyboards with fluid guitar passages or searing solos in blues-rock, acid-rock, prog-rock, or hard-edged funk-rock settings. The debut Sing For You is pumping, commercial hard-rock. Carl Neer's lyrics are deeply intense and reach a poignant peak with the orchestrated and doom-laden Within These Precincts. Surely their finest moment, this has reappeared on Psychedelic Unknowns Vol. 11 (LP) and Slowly Growing Insane (CD). According to the liners it was this intensity that resulted in a lack of support and airplay on Memphis radio stations, and Iota disbanded in 1972. Some compare them to bands like Banchee, Mad River and Peacepipe. (MW/VJ)

Until then it had caused much confusion by appearing on Pebbles Vol. 22 (LP), but listed as A Matter Of Fact by The Dominos; after much investigation and scratching of heads, it turned out to be nothing more than a compiler cock-up - there is/was no connection at all between the songs or the artists. This band originated in San Diego and evolved out of Jeri & The Jeritones and The Palace Pages in mid-1966. Their line-up went through a number of changes with former Roosters member Pinney and ex-Abstracts member Willis leaving in late 1966, being replaced by Penrod and Morse from The Legends.

After their first album was recorded Danny Weis left in August 1967, to form Nirvana, which never got off the ground. He then auditioned for Elektra's Project Supergroup. Penrod and DeLoach left the following month. Penrod briefly gigged with Blues Messenger alongside Willis and Pinney before re-joining Weis in Project Supergroup. DeLoach formed The Grapes of Wrath with Don MacAllister and Craig Tarwater from The Daily Flash and Ron Woods from The Dynamics. With John Day from The Poor they recorded as Two Guitars, Piano, Drums and Darryl for Atlantic Records. Pinney, Willis, Morse and DeLoach all later played in various line-ups of Glory; whilst 'Project Supergroup' became Rhinoceros in February 1968.

Iron Butterfly's second and most successful album, In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida, was recorded by Brann, Dorman, Bushy (ex-Voxmen) and Ingle. This remained near the top of the U.S. album charts for over two years and is generally thought to be the first album to go platinum. The title track, a 17-minute composition of Doug Ingle's, comprised the whole of one side. Although the lyrics of the remaining tracks like Flowers and Beads and Termination sound dated today, they also accounted for the album's enormous popularity in the flower-power era. Ingle's organ work (his father had been a church organist which accounted for the classical influence in his writing), is always to the fore. This gave the group a similar sound to The Doors and his classical influence is particularly evident in My Mirage.

The album's phenomenal success proved too much for the group to live up to. In December 1969 Brann was replaced by twin guitarists Mike Pinera (ex-Blues Image) and Larry Reinhardt (a former associate of Duane Allman). This new line-up recorded the live album and Metamorphosis but was unable to arrest the group's decline. They eventually dissolved on a farewell tour in 1971. Like so many other West Coast groups, they were to reform to cut two unsuccessful albums Scorching Beauty and Sun And Steel in 1975. Scorching Beauty is average mid-seventies hard-rock; the only memorable track is High On A Mountain Top, written and sung by Kramer, where he does a good impression of Ingle's vocal style. The first 1975 single on MCA is taken from the album. Braunn (that's how it's spelt on the cover to Scorching Beauty) subsequently toured with Flintwhistle alongside former members Penrod and DeLoach.

Possession was included on The Age Of Atlantic (LP) compilation and both sides of their first single appeared on the Savage Seven soundtrack (LP).

As part of the promotion for Metamorphosis, a rarely-seen radio interview album was issued in a plain cover with title stamp - Iron Butterfly Interview with Mitch Reed (Atco PR-A-161)1970.

Mike Pinera went on to Ramatam, New Cactus Band and Thee Image.

Compilation appearances have included: In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida on Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP) and Psychedelic Visions (CD); Evil Temptation on Garagelands, Vol. 2 (CD); Slower Than Guns on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 8 (CD); Gentle As It May Seem on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); To Be Alive and I Can't Help But Deceive You L. G. on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box) and there's also a seventies re-recording of In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida on Psychotic Reactions (LP) (Topline). (VJ/NW/MW/RMe/CF)

45s: Feelin' Bad/My Generation (Marbell 1001) 1966
Hold On I'm Coming (one sided acetate) 1967

This Philadelphia-based outfit was formed in late 1965 by Tom Cullen and Mike Campbell, who were classmates at the Father Judge High School in the Mayfair area of town. They were originally known as the 5 Shades but soon changed name to The Iron Gate. They set out playing hard-edged blues-based music very much in the mould of British invasion bands like The Yardbirds, The Rolling Stones and The Animals. In November 1966 they were runners up to The Scholars in the P.A.L. 'Battle Of The Bands'. In December 1966 they recorded their single and two unreleased tracks: - Spoonful and Hit The Road Jack. Only 500 copies of the single were pressed for sale at their gigs. Feelin' Bad, essentially consisted of a 'I Want My Baby Back' groan. The acetate is reputed to be of poor sound quality. When they graduated from High School in 1968 the band fell apart, although Tom Cullen and Mike Campbell performed together in several blues bands up to 1971. More recently Tom Cullen has become co-founder and director of The Bucks County Blues Society and a radio show presenter in Warminster, Pennsylvania.

Feelin' Bad has been compiled on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 1 (7"), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 6: I'm Down Today (LP & CD) and Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ)

45: Get Ready/You Must Believe In Me (Mobie 3429) 1968

A Rockford, Illinois group The Iron Gate evolved out of The Cavemen. The titles indicate a strong soul influence and the band utilised strong harmony vocals. Their rendition of Get Ready became a big seller in the Midwest, outselling another version by local rivals the Missing Links. It got played on all the top Chicago Radio Stations and garnered acclaim in Billboard.

After touring nationally, Mercury Records began to show interest as Karl Kennington explains: - "Mercury set a meeting with us and our Record Manager to buy our contract from Mobie and sign us up. But, when they found out that two of us were at draft age the deal was put on hold. I was drafted six months later and our lead guitarist, Frank Bennett, only four months later. We were set to release our first original single Love Has Gone backed with a live version of Fever, but Uncle Sam stepped in and that was the end of the first Rockford group that could have made it." One of the leading second-generation San Francisco bands, this group's music was dominated by the excellent violin playing of classically-tutored La Flamme, who also produced their records. Bill Gregory had earlier played in New Orleans band Nectar. Their debut album made an enormous impact and contained the stand-out song White Bird. This was one of the classic albums of the era and the twin vocals of La Flamme and Pattie Santos blended together beautifully on tracks like White Bird, Hot Summer Day and Girl With No Eyes. Side two is dominated by the sleepy, drug-influenced Bulgaria and the Eastern-influenced Bombay Calling, it is slightly marred, however, by a rather tedious drum solo on the final track Time Is.

Linda La Flamme then left the band and Fred Webb was also introduced on keyboards for the follow-up Marrying Maiden. Jerry Garcia guested on this record, too, playing banjo and pedal steel guitar. Although inferior to their debut effort, this album contained some fine tracks too, Don And Dewey and Hoedown were effective instrumentals, whilst the laid-back harmonies of the first album were in evidence on The Dolphins, Essence of Now, Let A Woman Flow and Do You Remember The Sun? However, the third album Choice Quality Stuff marked a clear downward turn. The laid-back mysticism of their earlier songs had been replaced by a rather unimaginative 'good time' sound. The album had its moments, however - The Grand Camel Suite was a competent instrumental - but overall it was enormously disappointing. The live album was unable to reverse this trend and further personnel changes reduced the band to a mere shadow of its former self.

It's A Beautiful Day reformed for a performance at the Fillmore Auditorium in San Francisco on 29th November 1997. The line-up consisted of original members David LaFlamme, Mitch Holman, Val Fuentes and Hal Wagenet, plus long-time vocalist Linda Baker LaFlamme and new keyboardist Larry Blachshere.

Two tracks, Bulgaria and Aquarian Dream appeared on the San Francisco Sound: Fifth Pipedream Vol. 1 (LP), which was very rare prior to its reissue a few years back. More recently, Matthew Katz's Then And Now, Vol. 1 (LP) includes Girl With No Eyes, The Dolphins and a 1980 tribute to John Lennon entitled John. Then And Now, Vol. 2 (LP) also contains Aquarian Dream and Wasted Union Blues; and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 5 (CD) includes Aquarian Dream. Their finest moment White Bird shines through on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). (VJ/PB)

This Cincinnati, Ohio group was actually called Them and continued to perform as such, but they chose to issue their second single under different names to prevent confusion or legal hassles when the Belfast U.K. bunch appeared on the scene. It was issued first as by It's Them and then as by Tthheemm.

Baby I Still Want Your Lovin' is British invasion styled, gritty, bluesy R&B, very much in the mould of The Animals.

Baby (I Still Want Your Lovin') has resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP); and Don't Look Now is also on Ho-Dad Hootenanny (LP). (GGI/MW/VJ)

Ivan and The Sabers was formed in the early sixties by Browne & Butler from Centerville, Ohio. Their debut single is decent Invasion-inspired beat; the follow-up is garagier.

Around 1966, Browne left to join Tony & The Bandits, who had just lost their leader and singer Tony Brazis. It was a good move; by 1967 Browne plus the Bandits were rechristened The Lemon Pipers and went on to considerable commercial success. Ron Littrel from The Driving Winds was Browne's replacement and, to complete a three-way game of musical chairs, Tony Brazis replaced Littrel to create The Chosen Lot.

Despite the departure of "Ivan", this band kept their name for three further singles on Cincinnati's Counterpart label; although in 1969 they did employ an alias, Sixth Day Creation, for a fuzz-pop single on Laurie. (MW/George Gell/Michael Banks)

Born in Boston in September 1946, Peter Ivers was a multi-talented artist: singer/songwriter, yoga master, actor, theatre writer, experimental video director... A Harvard graduate, he began playing in the late sixties with the Street Choir which was part of "Boston's new sound". His first album Knight Of The Blue Communion is one of the strangest records of this period and can only be compared to the United States Of America for mixing classical and rock instruments with electronic sounds (provided by an "intermodulator"), free jazz and classical singing (Yolande Bavan was a opera singer). The lyrics written by Timothy Mayer (future Associate Director of the American National Theater) have a strong religious content (Gentle Jesus, Confession, Lord God Love, Dark Illumination...) and the result is really "something else". The album was produced by Sandy Linzer.

IT'S A BEAUTIFUL DAY - At Carnegie Hall LP.

PETER IVERS - Knight Of The Blue Communion LP.

Still with the same producer, his next project, Take It Out On Me, was recorded in 1971 although Epic shelved it and only a single was released. In the mid-nineties, One Way tried to license all the Epic recordings for a CD but this was rejected by Sony.

The second album from 1974, Terminal Love was totally different but is equally as interesting: high-pitched voices, unusual song structures and lyrics (Holding The Cobra, Alpha Centauri, Felladaddio...). The album was co-produced by Ivers and the free jazz bass player Buell Neidlinger. Elliot Ingber (ex-Fraternity of Man, Zappa, Beefheart) plays on some tracks.

The 1976 album was produced by Gary Wright (ex-Spooky Tooth) and is not as interesting.

Later Ivers wrote In Heaven, the theme of David Lynch's "Eraserhead". A final single was released in 1980, with Richard Greene (ex-Seatrain) and Falconer (Rod Taylor). He also performed with John Cale and created the New Wave Theater. He was murdered in 1983.

Take It Out On Me was recorded privately in 1971. Ivers made five acetates and gave one to a friend who owned a record store. He's now relocated that copy - hence this release. It showcases his music, lyrics and harmonica. The vocals are provided by the Indian-born singer/actress Asha Puthi. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) IVORY (Tetragrammaton T-104) 1968 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-182) 2002.

This California trio had a sound similar to Jefferson Airplane (not surprising considering their producer was Al Schmitt, the Airplane producer) with powerful female vocals by Chris Christman. An excellent example of the American tough psychedelic sound with some great fuzz guitar/organ interplay on the best track Silver Rains and also on A Thought and the final cut Grey November. All their material was written by Chris Christman and Kenny Thomure, Mike McCauley being also credited for Silver Rains and Wark on Last Laugh. None of the group members appear to have played in any documented group before or after Ivory. This album is recommended.

Ken Thomure and Mike McCauley grew up together and played together in Boron, California (which is about 90 minutes from L.A.). After high school the duo decided to go to Hollywood and form a band there. They bumped into Christman, who lived in Westchester, on Sunset Strip. They started out by playing small clubs then graduated to out-of-town gigs and set up a production company. Next they acquired manager Tony Christian, who got them auditions and a recording contract. After the album was recorded they got bigger gigs, a TV appearance on the 'Tonight Show' and went on their first tour in Colorado. On their return to L.A., McCauley was drafted and sent to Vietnam where he was wounded and the band never recovered.

Silver Rains can also be found on Journey To The East (LP).

There was also another act by the same name who had a self-titled album (Playboy 115) in 1973. We had this listed as a reissue of the above album, but this is incorrect, the music is by a completely different group. (TA/EM/MW/SR/VJ)

Californian folk-rock singer/songwriter John Roman Jackson's album has some country influences and an electric backing (drums, bass, guitar, occasional organ and harmonica) and, on two tracks, female background vocals. Some tracks are quite good, notably Rosemary, Mary's Garden and Sometimes, but the record suffers from the muddy production of Ernie Freeman and poor drumming. The album was recorded at the Gold Star Studios.

45: What Can I Do?/Not This Time (Paris Tower PT-125) 1967

Lakeland, Florida was home to this septet, who laid down two highly-rated folk-punkers from the pen of George Stewart. They are highly-rated by compilers: both sides adorn Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 9: Teen Jangler Blowout! (LP & CD); What Can I Do? is on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP); and the pumping Not This Time is on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 1 (CD). Bob Jacobs (?)

ALBUM: 1 RAY BRADBURY'S DARK CARNIVAL (w/insert)
(Tower ST-5172) 1969 SC

This is an unusual album on which the short stories from Ray Bradbury's 'The October Country' are turned to music. The end result was a mixture of pop songs and more baroque material with passages of fuzz guitar. The addition of sound effects gives the album an eerie atmosphere in places. The band is listed simply as "The Autumn People", but it has not been confirmed whether they are the Arizona band who issued an album in the mid-seventies. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) JACOBS CREEK (Columbia CS-9829) 1969 SC

NB: (1) issued with lyric sheet.

Patient listeners will be rewarded with three quite stunning tracks closing side one of the album. Sadly, the remainder is merely well-played country-ish rock with some religious lyrics and horns.

The Van Eaton brothers made solo albums and guested on many other artists records, including solo Beatles projects. Steve Burgh worked prolifically as a studio musician through the seventies and can be found on albums by Billy Joel, Richie Havens, David Bromberg, Judy Collins and many others. (CF/SR)

No surprise that they've been well compiled: - Confined Congregation on the cassette-only Best Of Michigan Rock Groups, Vol. 2 and Destination Frantic! (LP & CD); Please Come Back is on Midnight To Sixty-Six (LP); Surface World on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 5 (LP & CD); and Confined Congregation, Please Come Back, Surface World and We Got Something Going all figure on *Scream Loud!!! The Jades (TX, Dallas)

ALBUMS:	1	SO TOUGH	(Ching 69) 1964 R2
	2	LIVE AT DISC A GOGO	(Jarrett 21517) 1965 R2

From Dallas, Texas their debut album So Tough is said to contain one original (the title cut) and a number of fifties and early sixties covers, but we've been unable to verify its existence so far. The live album combined early sixties rock with mid-sixties punk and playing R&B and British Invasion covers. It included an unusual arrangement of The Animals' House Of The Rising Sun with changed lyrics. (VJ)

From Bloomington, Minnesota The Jades' Blue Black Hair was a fifties-inspired rocker issued on Gaity in very limited quantities. It was almost immediately picked up by Oxboro and became something of a local hit. Their second single is another great rocker.

The instrumental Surfin' Crow can also be found on Strummin Mental, Vol. 5 (LP). (BM/MW)

	β	Little Girl/Mercy, Mercy	(Emcee 012/3) 1966

NB: α shown as by The Jades. β originally released as by Jade Of Stone with a later pressing as The Jades Of Fort Worth.

This raw punk outfit from Fort Worth was a popular local attraction in their day. Sometimes known as The Jades Of Fort Worth, their second single and later pressings of the third one were released under that name. Their third single was originally credited to Jades Of Stone. They specialised in cover versions, which they delivered in their own fiery style. On I'm Alright Gary Carpenter set a Rolling Stones song to new lyrics and the formula worked - they enjoyed a local hit. Next up was a Small Faces song and for their third and final effort they chose a Van Morrison composition. They finally called it a day in 1969, by which time only Carpenter and McCool remained from their original line-up. For the first half of the seventies Carpenter played in a showband called Colossus, and later he recorded an album which he decided not to release. After a spell as a DJ in Fort Worth he was last heard of managing the Sound Idea stereo store in Camp Bowie.

The most comprehensive guide to their material can be found on their retrospective album.

Compilation appearances have included: I'm All Right on Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP) and Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP); Sha La La La Lee, Don't Bring Me Down and Little Girl on 20 Great Hits Of The 60's (LP); I'm Alright, Little Girl, Don't Bring Me Down and Mercy Mercy on The Fort Worth Teen Scene - The Major Bill Tapes Vol. 2 (LP); Little Girl on We Have Come For Your Children (cassette and LP); Little Girl on *The Fort Worth Teen Scene! NB: α shown as by The Off-Set.

From Brooklyn, New York, this band evolved out of The Jaguars who formed in 1963 and included Art Steinman and Harley Wishner. Probably the first band to use the Jagged Edge moniker, their first single was promoted heavily at DJ hops in the tri-state area, resulting in a hit in Buffalo and a piece in the June 1966 edition of "16" magazine.

By the time their second single was released, another Jagged Edge had appeared on the scene with a single. A threatened law suit resulted in the Brooklyn act changing their name to The Off-set, but their second single wasn't as well promoted and subsequently didn't sell as well. They broke-up soon after.

Art Steinman continued to play music professionally and was signed to Atlantic after Ahmet Ertegun saw him and Wilbert Harrison perform at The Filmore East on Feb 9th 1970. No releases were forthcoming, although tapes are known to exist - indeed as are rehearsal tapes of Jagged Edge and the pre-Jagged Edge, Jaguars.

Of the unreleased demos: Lies I Spoke is the most promising - dramatic but fragmented pop-punk with psychy effects and raga-esque break; Look In Her Eyes is a strong and moody folk-rocker; Reflection and Stop Feeling Sorry For Yourself present the band's poppy side with the former winning out for the sweet harmonies which bring to mind Curt Boettcher confectionery.

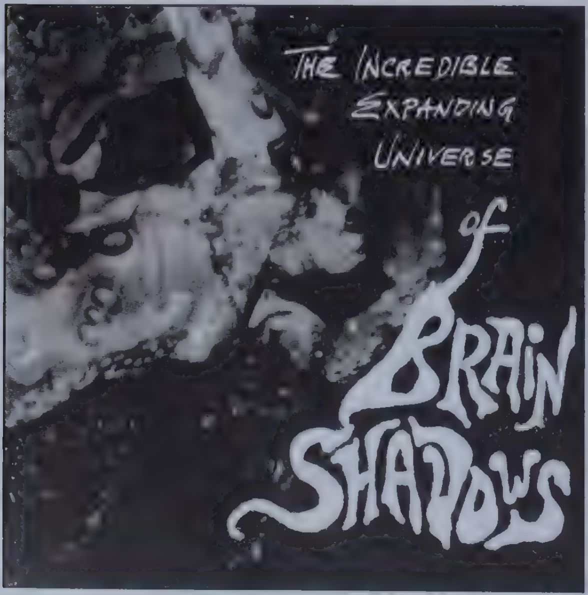
Art Steinman: "One of the two managers of our group was Eric Van Lustbader (aka Eric Lustbader), who is the successful author of Ninja books and other thrillers. We played some WMCA Good Guy shows at tri-state high schools to promote our singles and appeared with and backed up some of the leading bands of the mid-sixties - Question Mark and the Mysterians, Music Machine, Critters, Percy Sledge, Brian Hyland, The Association and The Left Banke to name a few."

Currently Art works for Lucent Technologies; Drew is a consultant for a software company in New Jersey and continues to write music; Elliot has his own high-end audio/video installation company in Manhattan; Harley is an urologist living in Van Nuys, California and Kenny Bennett works for the US post office in Brooklyn, New York.

As to one obvious factoid question - was Elliot Ingber the same guy who was with Frank Zappa and the Mothers Of Invention, then Fraternity Of Man, before becoming Winged Eel Fingerling in Captain Beefheart's band? Art replies - "It is an amazing coincidence in names, but I am quite certain that he was not the famous musician who performed with Beefheart and Zappa. I don't think our Elliot Ingber had a musical career beyond the Jagged Edge."



BRAIN SHADOWS VOL. 1 (Comp CD) including Jagged Edge.

Art also played in another Brooklyn act 'Southern Socket' with The Keepers' member Barry Drimmer.

A retrospective LP/CD, A Change Is Gonna Come was released in 2008. The CD contains both sides of the band's all-time garage classic debut single, You Can't Keep A Good Man Down and both sides of their second single release A Change Is Gonna Come recorded under the moniker Off-Set. Additionally there are two alternate takes of single tracks and four completely unreleased 1965/66 recordings such as the dramatic psych/punker Lies I Spoke complete with psychy effects and a raga-esque break; the strong moody folk-rocker Look In Her Eyes as well as two poppier tracks; Reflections and Stop Feeling Sorry For Yourself. All the tracks have been painstakingly remastered and the CD comes with an eight-page booklet featuring rare pictures and the band's complete and detailed history courtesy of former members Art Steinman and Harley Wishner.

Compilation appearances include: You Can't Keep A Good Man Down on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP), Vile Vinyl (CD), Gone, Vol. 2 (LP), Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box) and Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD); How She's Hurtin' Me on From The New World (LP); and Xanthia (Lisa) on Brainshadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). From the Pittsburgh area, this band lasted into the seventies. Following a respelling to Jaggerz, they achieved a Top 5 U.S. hit with The Rapper in 1970 and released several singles for Kama Sutra.

According to two band members the first single listed above, Feel So Good, is by a different band. This features a Kinks-esque riff with great harmony vocals and a super-cool guitar break. It has also resurfaced on Psychotic Reactions (LP) and Diggin' For Gold Volume 9 (LP).

In 1970 Dominic Ierace, started a solo career as 'Donnie Iris'. He later joined Wild Cherry, who had a platinum single in 1976 with Play That Funky Music. In the eighties, Iris still continued to tour and often performed The Rapper in his shows. (GGI/MW/SR/VZ/WM)

Jaim is thought to have been Californian (Los Angeles?) but this has not been confirmed. The prevalent style here is gentle orchestrated non-electric folk-pop, often with piano. It should appeal to those who like Gentle Soul, Bob Lind and The Love Generation... music for beautiful people, definitely NOT 'psych' as has been touted before. Their music was between psychedelic and rural-rock, with good floating guitar work. Their second album contains several good tracks, notably Tripping Down A Country Road and Lost In My Own Back Yard.

Mike Krenski had been in Bob Kuban & The In-Men and The Guise. Sabatino and Marshall were next in A Full Moon Consort who released an album in 1975. Sabatino was a childhood and lifelong friend of Michael McDonald. (SR/VJ/MW)

45:	It's Been Nice/ Where You Gonna Run To	(Patriot BRC-1063) 1966

It's Been Nice is a sultry, Byrdsian folk-rocker with chord changes and harmonies guaranteed to elicit goose bumps; amazingly it has escaped the attention of compilers to-date. Where You Gonna Run To is reverberating teen-pop.

The band was based in Baltimore and included Ken Johnson, who would form Cherry Smash at the end of the decade, and Doug Allen, who would join him in that outfit some years later. This seems to have been a one-off venture produced by Seymour Stein, who later discovered The Ramones. Something's Gone, a fine example of baroque-pop with strong vocals, harmonies and some good upfront Hammond organ, has resurfaced on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP). (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A) THE JAM BAND	(No label) 1969?

NB: (1) Just four copies are thought to exist.

Joe Perry a native of Hopedale, Massachusetts was the fiery guitarist of this group and had played in local groups The Chimes Of Freedom (1964-65), Just Us (1965-66), The Flash (1967) and Pipe Dream in 1967 with Tom Hamilton (bass), David 'Pudge' Scott (drums), Kathy Lowe (vocals) and Perry on lead guitar. They worked the Boston and New Hampshire band circuit, but didn't gain any decent support gigs, which was considered the 'making' of a local act. Hamilton, Scott and particularly Perry were heavily influenced by British act The Yardbirds and the new spin-off of that group, The Jeff Beck Group. They split Pipe Dream to form Plastic Glass in mid-1967 with John McGuire (harmonica, vocals) which followed the heavy psych blues style laid out by the Jeff Beck Group and the Jimi Hendrix Experience, before splitting in late 1968.

In early 1969 Hamilton, McGuire and Scott formed a power trio with Guy Williams on lead guitar, but before long Joe Perry worked his way into the group and they became known as The Jam Band and worked the New Hampshire scene in a heavy blues vein. Their further influences included the MC5 and another British act, Fleetwood Mac; the latter group's Rattlesnake Shake was the Jam Band's showstopper. John McGuire couldn't commit to the group full-time and eventually left. The remaining trio of Hamilton, Perry and Scott recorded one of their rehearsals via two microphones into a two track reel to reel recorder on 30th August, 1969.

The resulting tape was privately pressed as four albums in individual sleeve designs; apparently the three members got a copy, while the fourth was supposedly given to Elyssa Jerrett who recorded the set for the band. The resulting album featured the group's version of Jeff Beck's Shapes Of Things, Let Me Love You Baby, Blues Deluxe and Rice Pudding, as well as takes on Red House, Ramblin' Rose, Milk Cow Blues and Gimme Some Lovin' in a heavy psych-blues style.

In 1970, the group was in the position to back a Boston-based singer Steve Tallarico on a demo as an audition for the Jeff Beck Group. Tallarico like the members of the Jam Band was a veteran of the Boston band scene, but with far greater credentials as he had played drums and sung with a variety of groups starting with The Mancis in 1963 and alternating between The Strangers and The Dantes in 1964.

The Rolling Stones influenced Strangers became a professional group in late 1964 and changed their name to The Stranguers, signing with CBS in 1966 and recording as the Chain Reaction for CBS subsidiary Date Records with little success, although they became regulars on the New York circuit and opened for the Yardbirds. The Chain Reaction folded in June 1967; Tallarico then worked in the studio with the last version of The Left Banke before working the New York club scene with Chain in 1967-1968, then back to Boston where that group split in 1969. He then worked with Fox Chase (1969) and William Proud (1970) before trying out for the reforming Jeff Beck Group.

Tallarico was teamed with The Jam Band by Henry Smith, a roadie and gofer not only for The Stranguers, but also the Yardbirds, The Jeff Beck Group and even Led Zeppelin. The resulting recordings did nothing towards the Beck venture, although Tallarico was convinced that he should continue to work with the group which was on the verge of splitting with 'Pudge' Scott leaving. In September 1970, Joe Perry and Tom Hamilton joined Tallarico in Boston and they rounded out the group with rhythm guitarist Ray Tabano, a childhood friend of Tallarico's who had been in William Proud and had jammed with The Jam Band in 1969. In October 1970, the group was complete with drummer Joey Kramer and they named themselves Aerosmith.

In 1971, Tabano was replaced by Brad Whitford, and in 1972 this version of Aerosmith signed to Columbia Records; at this point Steve Tallarico changed his last name to Tyler. They recorded their debut album in Boston in October 1972 and it was issued in 1973. Despite various line-ups through the years and the subsequent reformation of the 1971-79 version, Aerosmith are still active today and remain a chart band. (JO)

HANKY PANKY

TOMMY JAMES and THE SHONDELLS - 1+2 CD.

NB: α shown as by Tommy James.There are also five French EPs with picture sleeves on Roulette (VREX 65044, 65045, 65048, 65049 and 65051).

Tommy James (real name Thomas Jackson) was born on 29 April 1947 in Dayton, Ohio. He formed his first group in Niles, Michigan when he was just nine and they cut a single, Long Pony Tail, for a local label. Later in 1963, after hearing Hanky Panky performed in a night club in South Bend, Indiana he recorded the song for DJ Jack Douglas' Snap label with an outfit called The Shondells. It sold quite well around Illinois, Michigan and Indiana - and you can now hear it on Born Bad, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). Two years later when he'd just left college and was out of work Tommy received a call from a DJ in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, who had popularised the record. Tommy relocated there and, when the original Shondells refused to leave Indiana, he hired a local band, The Raconteurs, to become the new Shondells. The New York-based Roulette label picked up the disc from Red Fox for national release. It became a million-selling No 1 in the U.S. and also made No 38 in the UK. The debut album made No 46 in the U.S. Album Charts. The Roulette label arranged for songwriter/producers Bo Gentry and Ritchie Cordell to team up with the band in a partnership which produced a string of melodic and exhilarating hits. Their third album I Think We're Alone Now reached No 74 in the U.S. Charts and their fourth - a compilation Something Special! The Best of Tommy James And The Shondells peaked at No 174. Get Out Now, their 10th single for Roulette, which made No 48, marked the end of their lightweight pop period.

Mony, Mony, still written by Gentry and Cordell, but with assistance from Bobby Bloom and James himself, heralded a new hardened dance beat sound. Not only did it make No 3 in the U.S. but more surprisingly, in view of their lack of previous success there, it was an U.K. No 1 for four weeks and the most popular dance record of the summer of 1968. The album of the same name reached No 153 in the US. However, after their two Mony, Mony - style follow-ups, Somebody Cares and Do Something To Me were relatively unsuccessful, the group persuaded Roulette to let them produce their next album themselves.

This marked another change of direction and paid off in the short-term. Their next album Crimson And Clover made No 8 in the U.S. and an abridged version of the title track topped the U.S. Charts, becoming their biggest selling record and winning a gold disc. With its hints of psychedelia and complete web of instrumental and vocal sounds, Crimson And Clover made good use of studio tricks such as phasing, backwards tapes and fuzz effects. Along with their next two singles: - Sweet Cherry Wine and Crystal Blue Persuasion, it was one of their most relevant recordings to this book.

Their next album Cellophane Symphony, which made No 141, opened with an extended and rather self-indulgent spacey track and has about three interesting songs of which Sweet Cherry Wine was the best. The compilation The Best Of Tommy James And The Shondells, which peaked at No 21, is also worth a listen. Their later recordings reverted back to a R&B style and are less relevant. The act ended when James collapsed on stage in Alabama and The Shondells quit and later became Hog Heaven while James recuperated on his farm in upstate New York. When he recovered he embarked on a reasonably successful solo career in the early seventies, producing Neon's sole album with Bob King. He also had a minor resurgence when he signed to Millennium Records in the early eighties.

Crimson And Clover was covered by Joan Jett in 1982 and her version climbed to No 7 in the U.S. Charts prompting other acts to cover some of the band's old hits. Later in 1987 Billy Idol topped the U.S. Charts with a cover of Mony, Mony which also made No 7 in the UK.

The recent Anthology collection is a fine package with the likes of Mony Mony, Hanky Panky, I Think We're Alone Now, Crimson and Clover, the under-rated laid-back Crystal Blue Persuasion and Love's Closin' In On Me.

I Think We're Alone Now and Mirage can also be located on Incense and Oldies (LP) and Cellophane Symphony adorns A Monstrous Psychedelic Bubble (2-CD). (VJ)

JAMMË - Self Titled LP.

Little is known about this artist, but hopefully more will be revealed. Here's what's turned up so far: Born Robert Parker James in Illinois, this wandering folk troubadour adopted the stage name Bobby Jameson and spent some time in Tucson, Arizona before relocating to Los Angeles. His first album was produced by ex-surfer Marshall Lieb and issued in the U.S. on the same budget label as The Leaves debut. The album is shown as by Chris Lucey and the cover features a photo of Brian Jones of The Rolling Stones playing harmonica. The music is laid-back folk-rock with echoes of Byrds, Tim Buckley, Steve Noonan and Lovin' Spoonful. Many of the songs feature charming guitar parts, dreamy arrangements, jazzy even Lee Underwood-ish backing. Some of the highlights are I'll Remember Them and Girl From Vernon Mountain, both of which are excellent introspective pieces. The album also includes an excellent version of Girl From The East similarly featured on the Leaves album. To clarify, the record was recorded by Bobby Jameson. Chris Lucey (of Chris And Craig and The Penny Arkade) does not appear on it.

Surrey was a sort-of subsidiary label of VeeJay operated by their West Coast promo team, led by Randy Wood and Steve Clark (who would introduce Bobby Jameson to Curt Boettcher). Surrey signed Hoyt Axton and various others on the budding folk-rock club scene in L.A. According to Axton, he went over to the office one day, and everything was gone, even the desks and chairs!

Jameson: Color Him In was produced by the creative studio whizz Curt Boettcher (Ballroom, Sagittarius, Millennium...). Indeed, this album is a must for Boettcher acolytes. Jameson's strong, sometimes raw'n'bluesy, vocals are to the fore on his self-penned selection of folk-beat-hippie pop. On several cuts Boettcher wraps it in his trademark dreamy neo-psych aura with multi-layered sounds and effects. The angelic (verging on twee) backing vocals are there too. Both Verve singles are taken from the album.

On the Working album Jameson was joined by ubiquitous sessioners Mike Deasy (guitar), Jerry Scheff (bass), Ben Benay (guitar, harmonica) and Toxey French (drums). The latter trio were known at one time as Goldenrod and, along with Deasy and producer Steve Clark, were in the stable that revolved around Curt Boettcher and his numerous projects. The album only contains a couple of originals; the rest are covers of Bob Dylan, Jimmy Reed, The Band and The Beatles done in styles ranging from grim, world-weary blues to folk- and country-pop.

At least two of his singles were regional hits, garnering airplay on Cleveland, Ohio and Detroit, Michigan stations. The biggest, All I Want Is My Baby was backed by The Rolling Stones. Andrew Loog Oldham recalls: - "Bobby Jameson figures reasonably in '2Stoned' - my book with Kim Fowley. As I recall Jameson turned up in England on the tails of P.J and Mr. Fowley. Keith (Richard) and I recorded him once. He wore one black glove... that and the fact he was game to record some ditty Keith and I had written as a cross between Crewe-Gaudio and Shadow Morton got him recorded."

Jameson's records were promoted by Tony Alamo, who also worked with many other artists and John and Bobby Kennedy. L.A. musician Denny Bruce recalls: "To introduce Bobby Jameson to the 'industry' Tony Alamo took out a seven-page fold-out ad (four colour in Billboard) that showed Bobby standing on top of a limo somewhere on the Pacific Coast Highway. With the ocean in the background, so he was not lit, you just saw this guy with a cowboy hat, with his staff next to the limo: very much like the Village People - wearing the very obvious uniforms of their jobs: chef, nurse, barber, bodyguard, driver, etc. There were at least 10 of them. Tony arranged for Bobby to be the opening act for another new act that had signed to Atlantic and were getting a buzz. The showcase was to be at lunch time, so with food being served, everyone came. The act was Caesar and Cleo, wearing togas with olive wreaths in their hair. They of course, became Sonny and Cher. They went on first. Needless to say, when Tony took the mike and had Bobby backlit, behind some see-through screen and was saying "Ladies and gentlemen, here's an act that can act as well as James Dean, sell as many records as the Beatles, on and on, everybody got up and started walking out while a four-track demo was playing, with Bobby is lip-synching to an almost empty house."

Okey Fanokey Baby has also been aired on Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (LP) and Scum Of The Earth (2-CD) whilst Vietnam, a Bo-Diddley rave-up, with snarling vocal, can be heard on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP) or Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD). This track first appeared on the soundtrack (LP) Mondo Hollywood (Tower T 5083). Finally, you can also check out Jamie on Mystic Males (CD), and Please Mr. Mailman on New Rubble Volume 3 (CD). (MW/RK/JJs/MJ/CP/SBn/JFr/CF/VJ)

Their album is a pleasant effort which spans Californian folk-rock and light psych. All their material was penned by the Adey brothers, with the help of P. Don Adey was previously with Churchill Downs. Terry Rae was previously in Palace Guard and Strawberry Sac.

Terry Rae: "Originally known as Strawberry Jam, the band started to fall apart after John found Michelle, Mia Farrow and myself under a table (high as kites.) Don Adey was the sole survivor bringing in his brother Keith to finish up the album. It was later released on John's own label "Warlock Records" a subsidiary of Dunhill records as Jamme". ALBUM: 1(A) JAMUL (Lizard A-20101) 1970 SC

NB: (1) also released in France in 1971. (1) has been counterfeited on vinyl. (1) released on CD (GRC 006) 1996.

45s: Sunrise Over Jamul/ Tobacco Road (Lizard X-21001) 1970
Movin' To The Country/Ramblin' Man (Lizard X-21004) 1970

NB: Both 45s contain mono, edited versions of LP tracks.

This San Diego group was formerly known as The Jamul City Funk Band. Jamul (pronounced 'Ha-Mool') is a city in eastern San Diego County. Armstrong was formerly with The Misfits, Desnoyers with Joel Scott Hill in The Friendly Grin, and Williams with Puzzle and The Voxmen. The Jamul City Funk Band was a trio until just a few months before recording, when Williams came aboard. This gave the band the distinct advantage of four lead singers trading off on individual tracks.

The band was signed by Steppenwolf producer Gabriel Mekler to his new Lizard Records label and it was at Mekler's insistence that they shortened their name to Jamul. For those interested in true minutae, "Lizard" was the name of Mekler's pet cat!

The Jamul album has much to recommend it, particularly to fans of loud hard-rock (Euclid, label-mates Frantic, Yesterday's Children bear some resemblance). Of the 11 tracks that make up the album, eight are originals. There's also a brutal cover of Tobacco Road, a dirge-like Jumpin' Jack Flash and a bluesy Long Tall Sally with Williams wailing away on harmonica. If this album had not sold in excess of 75,000 copies in 1970, it would be fetching serious money today.

Jamul fell out with their management in 1971, and a split followed. Some months later, a reformed line-up ('B') recorded a second album, Jamul II which remains unreleased.

Since leaving Jamul, Ron Armstrong has made a number of recordings featuring other San Diego musicians like Jerry McCann (Orfuns, Framework, Formerly Anthrax), Jerry Raney (Roosters, Glory, The Beat Farmers), Joel Scott Hill (Canned Heat), Bob Mosley (Misfits, Moby Grape). These recordings (which extend from the seventies to the present) constitute an album-in-progress; a pet project of Armstrong's that he has steadily continued to work on when time and capital is available. ALBUM: 1(A) GYPSY PEOPLE (ABC ABCS-691) 1969 R1

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Fallout FOCD2015) 2006.

On their album, which is folky with a psychedelic taint rather similar to Trees who came a year later, the duo are backed by half a dozen session musicians. The better tracks include The Assignment Song-Sequence and Life's Parade. The album was housed in a gatefold sleeve.

Their album was recorded in London, although it doesn't seem to have secured a U.K. release. The session musicians were Keshav Sathe (Cosmic Eye, Magic Carpet, John Martyn, etc.), Terry Cox (Pentangle, Humblebums, Sallyangie, Tudor Lodge, etc.), Clem Cattini (Brian Auger, Joe Cocker, P. J. Proby, etc.) and Brian Odgers (Sweet Tuesday, John McLaughlin, Al Stewart, etc.). Two of the tracks on the album were written by Richard Keelan (ex-Spike Drivers), and Connie Keelan designed their album cover, so they had either American or Canadian connections. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) JANEY AND DENNIS (Reprise RS-6414) 1970

Produced by Jerry Corbitt (ex-Youngbloods), this is a Californian folk-rock duo mainly interesting because of the presence of members of Mad River (Hammond and Dewey), Grootna/Bodacious D.F. (Smith) and Clover (McFee). It's unfortunately overproduced with strings and horns and therefore really disappointing. (SR)

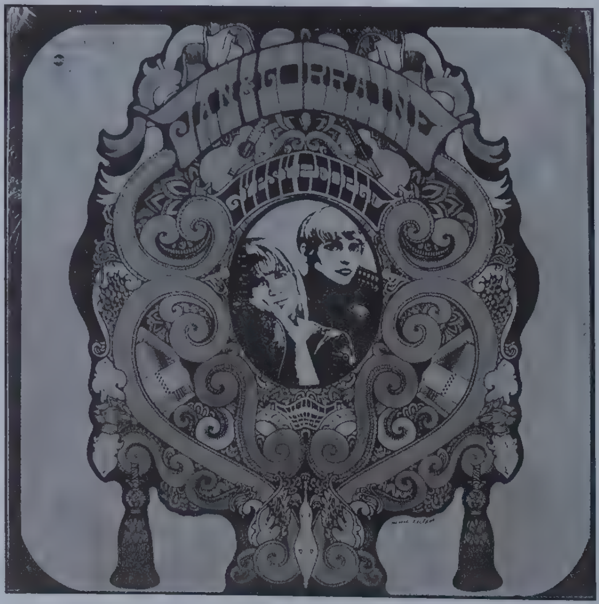
ALBUM: 1(A) FIRST TIME FROM MEMPHIS
(Enterprise ENS-1004) 1970 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl and CD (Akarma AK 030) 1998.



JAN & LORRAINE - Gypsy People LP.

Dominated by the strident, in-yer-face vocals of January Tyme this is late sixties bluesy-folk-rock in the Jefferson Airplane/Big Brother format and somewhere between those two reference points in musical style. Like so many others who chose to emulate this particular sound, they fail to establish their own identity despite their obvious competence and vitality, making them one of the "also-rans" in this category. NB: α shown as by Cook E. Jarr and His Krums.

You'll find this bubblegum soul-pop singer either awful or amusing (or both!). Produced by John Woram, this album contain no less than four compositions by Tim Hardin plus covers of Otis Redding, Eddie Floyd and the Lovin' Spoonful's Do You Believe In Magic?. (SR)

NB: α shown as by The Fault Line.

Jarrard had been in the Greenwood County Singers with Van Dyke Parks, whose High Coin he covered in 1966; his version can also be heard on The Electric Coffee House (CD). Subsequently it was covered by the likes of the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band, Harpers Bizarre and The Charlatans. In 1968, while an RCA producer, he recorded it again and it put it out the following year under the alias of The Fault Line.

Released on Kim Fowley's label, Californian Rick Jarrard would later become better known for his production work for RCA with Loading Zone, Jefferson Airplane, Harry Nilsson and Stone Country. Among his earliest production credits were the Bostweeds, also on the Chattahoochee label. (MW/SR/VJ)

ALBUM: 1 DEMO-DISC (No label) 1972 R3

A New Jersey outfit, whose privately-pressed demo album was issued in a plain white cover wth a slick taped onto the back side. The band is very amateurish, with weak original material. The album running time is very short, just over 20 minutes. (CF/NK)

(Sunflower 107) 1971
α Did You Know That?/It's Up To You (Sunflower 107) 1971
You/General Gunther (Future Music FMI 101) 1976

NB: α shown as by Jaspar Wrath.

This was a short-lived hippie-rock outfit whose album was produced with assistance from Joey Levine and Jim Carroll. The most upbeat number, Did You Know That? also appeared on a single; the flip side of which was not from the album. For the most part the album comprises soft-rock with lots of electric and acoustic six and 12-string guitars, organ, harpsichord, celeste, percussion, theremin and variable frequency oscillators. It mostly works quite well with Odyssey and Portrait: My Lady Angelina probably the finest moments. The closing track, Roland Of Montevere, veers far more towards progressivism.

Their 1976 single, You/General Gunther is a comparatively disappointing typical mid-seventies prog effort. It was produced by Jeff Cannata.

Two further albums were issued on the tax-loss label Dellwood without the band's permission. See the entries for Arden House and Zoldar & Clark for details on these releases.

The band was formerly known as Christopher Hawke, and before that Tri-Power, who'd included Joe Mendyk (later of The Better Days and Nova Local). They were based in Hamden, Connecticut. (VJ/MW/SR)

45:	The Days When I Knew Judy/ Portrait Of My Dream	(Panorama 47) 1966

A one-off single by Unbelievable Uglies member Bob Eveslage, which was recorded at Audio Recording studios, Seattle: "I played all the instruments myself and multi-tracked it. Both sides took about three hours, 'cause it was my "nickel" and times were lean for me in those early Seattle years. Man, those are good memories, though!"

For more information on Bob Eveslage's career - see the Unbelievable Uglies entry.

	Come On/A Certain Girl	(Lucky Eleven 232) 1966

From the Detroit area, a band best known for Dawn Of Instruction, a riposte to Barry McGuire's Eve Of Destruction. Their other outings remain uncompiled but the Deltron 1228 single is cool 'n' catchy Invasion-garage-beat backed by a sultry beat-ballad that has echoes of the Kinks' Tired Of Waiting. Despite previous reports, there was no connection to instrumental-rockers Dwight Douglas and The Jayhawks.

Dawn Of Instruction has been compiled on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 12: Demented (LP & CD) and Sixties Archive Vol. 7 (CD). (MW)

45:	Where Did You Leave Your Heart/ Why Did God Make Girls	(Kayden 410) 1967

Actually this was The Rogues from Palmyra, New Jersey. They were hijacked by their own manager, who decided that he wanted to be the star, prefixed their name with his initials, and demoted them to backing band on the "worst piece of dreck ever". He only allowed them to strut their stuff on the flip side of their own disk!

Why Did God Make Girls is decent punk-beat, aired again on Teenage Shutdown 2 (LP/CD) and Best Of Kayden & Merben Records (CD). (MW/MM)

Jefferson Airplane had the advantage of a compulsive name. Previously groups had tended to name themselves after animals or insects but this name, which actually evolved from blues singer 'Blind Lemon Jefferson' really made you sit up and take note. The same was true of their music, you may love or hate it but you could not ignore it. They had so much to say and their music generated such urgency - a sort of direct channel of communication between the group and your brain.

Jefferson Airplane was the foremost of the new San Francisco underground bands and also one of the earliest. Apparently only The Charlatans and The Mystery Trend predated them. More significantly they were the first of the new San Francisco bands to win a recording contract - a $20,000 advance from RCA to produce their first album Takes Off.

Marty Balin was the group's founder member. Although born in Milwaukee, his family moved to San Francisco because of Marty's childhood asthma. He became a lithographer and painter, with a penchant to sing, cutting two solo singles for Challenge Records in 1962: I Specialize and Nobody But You and singing in a Los Angeles folk group, The Town Criers in 1964. After seeing The Beatles on the 'Ed Sullivan' show earlier that year, he decided to start a rock and roll band and, when he met Paul Kantner at a local folk club in San Francisco, invited him to join his group (which had not been formed yet). Jorma Kaukonen, a friend of Kantner's, joined as a favour to him. Kaukonen had worked with Janis Joplin around the Bay Area, the strength of her vocals motivating him to buy his first electric guitar. Kaukonen recommended his old friend Jack Casady to come across from Washington DC and replace original bassist, Bob Harvey, in the group. With the addition of Signe Anderson, a girl singer, also originally from Washington DC, and Skip Spence on drums, the show was on the road. Spence was not the band's original drummer, but he soon replaced Jerry Peloquin, who only lasted a few weeks. Balin had apparently recruited Spence while he was on his way to audition as guitarist for another important San Francisco band, Quicksilver Messenger Service.

In 1965 Marty Balin took over a folk and jazz club called 'The Honeybucket', which he rechristened as 'The Matrix Club' and Airplane became semi-resident there. They played at almost all the important early San Francisco music events, including the very first dance organised by the Family Dog (a group of hippie concert promoters) at the Longshoreman's Hall near the Fisherman's Wharf on 16th October 1965.

Marty Balin designed three screen-print posters to publicise the event and The Airplane topped the bill, which included The Charlatans, The Great Society and The Marbles (one of the lost bands of San Francisco rock history, who were there at the beginning but then simply vanished). They played again at the first event held at the Fillmore by its new owner, Bill Graham, as a benefit for the Mime Troupe, a radical theatre group which also organised dances (they were rival promoters to the Family Dog). This time The Airplane played alongside The Great Society, The Mystery Trend, The Gentlemen's Band, The VIP'S, The Warlocks, (later to become The Grateful Dead) and many others.

JEFFERSON AIRPLANE - Crown Of Creation CD.

In November 1965 The Airplane signed to RCA and four months later their debut single was issued, It's No Secret/Runnin' Round This World. The 'B' side contained the word 'trips' and RCA insisted that the track be omitted from their debut album, Jefferson Airplane Takes Off, which was issued a month later in the US, but a handful of copies did escape the factory with the song intact, and are now the rarest item in the Jefferson Airplane canon, fetching in excess of $8,000. This incident marked the first souring of relationships between RCA and the band which would become a feature of the following year. A second single Blues From An Airplane/Come Up The Years, was issued.

The album, although instrumentally shaky, went gold. It included the hippie anthem Let's Get Together, later a hit for The Youngbloods, which epitomised the peace and love message of the summers of 1966 and 1967. It also created enough interest to attract a host of record company executives to San Francisco to sign up the new 'acid-rock' bands. However, for the present, Airplane's format was very much folk-rock, with Marty Balin's love songs to the fore. Shortly after the release of the first album, Signe Anderson left the group, having had a baby, and Skip Spence, who was never at ease playing the drums, left to set up another important San Francisco group, Moby Grape.

Spence was replaced by Spencer Dryden, an experienced jazz drummer, who was then playing with a Los Angeles based group, The Ashes (later to become The Peanut Butter Conspiracy). The Airplane had often gigged with The Great Society, another 'Frisco band, and Grace Slick who'd sometimes hung-out at Airplane rehearsals was recruited to replace Signe Anderson.

Grace brought with her a unique voice. It was rougher and more raucous than Signe Anderson's and complimented Marty Balin's smooth, sweeter tones. She combined with Kantner and Balin to produce strange harmonies which were superimposed on Casady's and Kaukonen's unpredictable and disturbing guitar rhythms. She also brought two songs from The Great Society, Somebody To Love and White Rabbit which The Airplane were to transform into their only big U.S. hits, reaching No's 5 and 8 respectively in the Billboard charts. Both songs were contained on the group's second album Surrealistic Pillow, although the British version of the album inexplicably omitted White Rabbit and Plastic Fantastic Lover in favour of three songs from the Takes Off album.

White Rabbit demonstrated Slick's meandering, weaving vocals and her use of unpredictable musical intervals admirably, a style which was to become a poignant feature of many of her songs. A drug song, and, therefore, banned by onshore radio in the U.K. at the time, White Rabbit appears to be based on the concept of Alice tripping in Wonderland.

"One pill makes you larger
One pill makes you small
And the ones that mother gives you
Don't do anything at all
Go ask Alice
When she's ten feet tall
And if you go chasing rabbits
And you know you're going to fall
Tell 'em a hookah-smoking caterpillar
Has given you the call"
(from White Rabbit)

From a gentle beginning the song builds into an impressive crescendo.

Like The Byrds, Airplane progressed through various musical phases and their change from Marty Balin's electrified folk-rock songs like Today (apparently two songs merged into one), My Best Friend and Comin' Back To Me towards the 'acid-rock' of subsequent albums is evident on Surrealistic Pillow in songs such as White Rabbit and 3/5ths Of A Mile in 10 Seconds, representing the more electrified 'acid' rock.

The Airplane's next single The Ballad Of You, Me and Pooneil/Two Heads was superb. Both tracks were from their forthcoming album. Unfortunately, they were too complex for the singles market and it only reached No 42 in the States. Commercially, it was such a flop in the U.K. that their follow-up single Watch Her Ride/Martha was not released here.

Their next two studio albums After Bathing At Baxter's and The Crown Of Creation mark the pinnacle of their achievement and the consolidation of their 'acid' phase. Some of the songs on these albums are very weird indeed, and in their live appearances the band strived hard to superficially recreate the drug experience, using imaginative light shows and often drifting into lengthy, improvised meandering jams which lifted the psychedelic mood of the times. The Baxter's album contained one such nine-minute long jam Spare Chaynge, while Saturday Afternoon was written in memory of the 'Be-In', a spontaneous gathering held in the Polo grounds of Golden Gate Park on 14th January 1967 which included the Airplane. This event attracted an estimated crowd of 20,000 and the concept of free music in parks had become part and parcel of the San Francisco rock scene. The 'Be-In' also inspired the 1967 Monterey Rock Festival, featuring the Airplane and many other leading San Francisco rock groups.

Airplane were playing in an era of considerable social change and this was often reflected in their lyrics, for instance in Wild Thyme, also on their third album, they sing:.

"It's a wild time
I see people all around with changing faces
It's a wild time
I'm doing things that haven't got a name yet......"

One of the most interesting songs of this album is Rejoyce. A particularly complex piece, this again highlights the effectiveness of Grace's meandering vocals and unpredictable musical intervals. Like many of Airplane's songs, it echoes their anti-establishment, anti-Vietnam sentiments:-

"War's their business
So give your son
But I'd rather have my country die for me......"
(from Rejoyce)

The Crown Of Creation album features what is, arguably, their finest song The House At Pooneil Corners. The song has an impressive, spacey and very compulsive beginning and works towards a compelling climax. The title song itself uses the lyrics from John Wyndham's 'The Chrysalids' to re-emphasise Airplane's interpretation of the conflict between the hippie movement and the American establishment:

"The old people are determined still that there is a final form to defend,
Soon they will attain the stability they strive for,
In the only form it is granted - a place among the fossils......"

and again

"In loyalty to their kind they cannot tolerate our minds
In loyalty to our kind we cannot tolerate their obstruction......"
(from Crown Of Creation)

The album contained many other impressive numbers such as Greasy Heart and Ice Cream Phoenix as well as Chushingura, a piece of Pink Floyd style psychedelia. It reached No 6 in the U.S. charts.

Their next album was a live one featuring reworked versions of their early songs and some new material, including Donovan's song Fat Angel (which made the phrase 'Fly Jefferson Airplane, getcha there on time' world famous) and Bear Melt, another trippy, drug influenced song.

But 1969 saw also the end of the hippie dream at Altamont, where The Airplane had played with The Rolling Stones, and also the demise of the Haight Ashbury peace-love scene. So The Airplane deserted 'acid-rock' and the result was Volunteers, a strongly political album which developed the theme of conflict between the revolutionaries, The Airplane and the establishment, which had been introduced in the title track of Crown Of Creation. The title track Volunteers, and We Can Be Together contained the rallying cries: 'Got to Revolution, Got To Revolution' and 'Tear down the wall, motherfuckers'. Beyond this, lyrics were vague on how the revolution was to come about and it all sounds rather dated today. It does, however, contain a gorgeous version of Wooden Ships written by Kantner, David Crosby and Steve Stills, which marks Kantner's first excursion into the realms of science fiction. The song assumes a post-nuclear age, permitting The Airplane to say 'We are leaving; you don't need us'- without having to confront the problems raised by their twin espousal of love and revolution. However, the theme of leaving Earth in a giant starship would return later.

A single, Volunteers/We Can Be Together was taken from the album and issued both in the US, where it was a minor hit, and in UK.

After Volunteers the group began to fragment. Marty Balin left and with Slick expecting Kantner's child, further gigging was impossible. Kaukonen and Casady, therefore, began to spend more time with their own 'spin-off' group Hot Tuna, which had first taken shape in December 1968 as an outlet for Airplane members to gig more frequently, whereas Kantner in particular disliked touring, other members were keen to play in front of a live audience. Marty Balin, too sang at early Hot Tuna gigs, and future Airplane drummer, Joey Covington was also involved with the outfit from the beginning. There was also a need within the band to stretch themselves artistically and Slick and Kantner began work on solo albums.

Blows Against The Empire marked the development of Kantner's interest in science ficton. The plot suggested hijacking an interplanetary starship built on the earth and to make it suitable for practical travel to other solar systems. Hijack deals with this, Have You Seen the Stars Tonite? with an evening stroll on board the deck and Starship rejoices about the whole scheme. Interspersed between the tracks are space-like sounds creditably produced given the minimal instrumentation available at the time. Some U.S. promo copies of this album were pressed on clear vinyl and have become some of the most collectable Airplane - related items. Kantner's science fiction fantasies would emerge again on later Jefferson Starship albums.

In comparison with Blows Against The Empire, remaining Airplane studio albums were uninteresting. Bark was disappointing and Long John Silver not much better, although Pretty As You Feel from Bark was a minor hit. Airplane's lyrics had always made them interesting - while most other groups and artistes sang the typical 'boy meets girl' love songs, Airplane always had a message to put across. But now with Kantner, the group's most prolific songwriter keeping the best material for his solo albums and the hippie dream discredited, The Airplane seemed to be running out of things to say. Nevertheless, Long John Silver has its moments, particularly with Easter? featuring Grace singing about its futility as a religious festival. Two singles were issued from the album, Long John Silver/Milk Train and Trial By Fire/Twilight Double Leader. Neither of them met with chart success.

A number of compilations of The Airplane's material exist. The Worst Of Jefferson Airplane issued in 1970 contained a fair cross-section of their material. Early Flight, issued in 1974, contains unissued songs from the band, including High Flying Bird, which they performed in the 'Monterey Pop' movie. Thirty Seconds Over Winterland, issued in 1973, was recorded 'live' and contained a balance between their old and new material. It also featured ex-Turtle John Barbata for the first time on drums (Joey Covington having departed to form his own outfit, Fat Fandango); and David Freiberg, who had joined from Quicksilver Messenger Service. Later compilations included Flight Log (Grunt 1255/RCA LSP 3766), and Best Of (RCA 42727). Crown Of Creation and Volunteers were reissued in a budget series in 1985 and The Worst Of followed in 1986.

1973 saw The Airplane finally disband, but they had indeed been a remarkable outfit; the most interesting and successful of the San Francisco bands. Just a year would elapse before they returned to the limelight as the enormously successful (in commercial terms) Jefferson Starship.

1987 saw the issue of 2400 Fulton Street - an important double album compilation of their material. It featured 25 tracks put together by Bill Thompson, with an extra 10 tracks on the CD, which included a couple of previously unreleased Levi's tracks. The four sides were subtitled: - Beginnings, Psychedelia, Revolution and Airplane Parts and featured material from 1965 to 1971. White Rabbit and Somebody To Love were also reissued on a single and the 12" version featured She Has Funny Cars and Third Week In Chelsea as extra tracks.

1988 saw the release of The Jefferson Airplane Collection on Castle Records, licensed from BMG/RCA. Also available on CD, it contained no previously unreleased material but included some of their less well known recordings like Meadowlands, Alexander The Medium and a live version of Have You Seen The Saucers.

1989 saw a CD release of Live At The Monterey Pop Festival (Document Records (DR 023 CD)) and featured their full 39-minute set.

In August 1989, Jefferson Airplane got it all together again for an American tour and a new album (also available on CD). The line-up was the seminal quintet of Marty Balin, Grace Slick, Jack Casady, Jorma Kaukonen and Paul Kantner, which had recorded all their best albums with the help of the then sixth (line-up C) member, drummer Spencer Dryden. The album Jefferson Airplane (Epic OE 45271) had some fine moments. Four new Grace Slick contributions of which Freedom is the best but Common Market Madrigal, Now Is The Time and Panda all found her in fine voice. Other tracks like The Wheel confirmed that Kantner, Slick and Balin could still produce those superb three-part harmonies. Although the instrumentation suffered at times from the involvement of far too many "guest" musicians which undermined the traditional instrumental incisiveness of Casady, Kantner and Kaukonen, overall the album was a welcome testament for the short-lived relaunch.

The band's set at the Monterey Pop Festival which had previously only been available on the quasi-legal CD on Document finally got an official release, Live At The Monterey Pop Festival on Thunderbolt (THBL 074) in 1990. The same year saw a vinyl-only release of Avalon Ballroom, 1969 (Kornyfone 006), which is actually a reissue of the Up Against The Wall bootleg from 1970. Also released in 1990 was the very misleadingly titled CD The Woodstock Revival (Pulsar PULS 002) in Holland. It actually features material which entirely predated Woodstock - a mixture of material from the Monterey Pop Festival, their High Flyin' Bird bootleg, Takes Off, Surrealistic Pillow and the four non-Airplane cuts which made up side two of the High Flyin' Bird bootleg.

JEFFERSON AIRPLANE - Through The Looking Glass 2-LP.

Jefferson Airplane Love's You (3-CD box set) 1992 covers the full spectrum of their career and 50% of the material is previously unreleased; indeed seven songs had never been heard before. The set is superbly presented and comes with a booklet that is packed with details of the band's history and is packed with pictures and information.

In 1999, original bass player Bob Harvey released a new CD with songs made from 1965 to 1999 with his current band San Francisco Blue.

Camden's 2001 repackaged CD compilation Jefferson Airplane is a good introduction to the band, featuring all their early singles, including their hits White Rabbit and Somebody To Love. Also of note are a version of Wooden Ships, Jorma Kaukonen's Embryonic Journey and two live 'B' sides. Ignition is a 4-CD box set from 2001 focusing on their first four albums and featuring both mono and stereo mixes of the first two.

The Essential Jefferson Airplane (2-CD) 2005 is a 32-track 40th Anniversary Collection, which comprises many of their finest moments, including Somebody To Love, White Rabbit, It's No Secret and Volunteers.

At Golden Gate Park (CD) 2006 is the first authorised release of one of the most famous concerts in the park from 5 July 1969 when they shared the bill with The Grateful Dead. The 70-minute concert (previously only available as a bootleg) showcases them trying out material that eventually surfaced on Volunteers in November 1969. Recorded three months before 'Woodstock' and seven months before the nightmare of 'Altamont' this recording captures the edgy atmosphere of the time. The gig features tracks from the recently released Volunteers album, live favourites from their earlier days including their two biggest hit singles, White Rabbit and Somebody To Love, three improvised jams, which showcased their brilliant musicianship, plus two non-album and rarely-heard numbers, Mexico and Uncle Sam Blues.

Takes Off and Surrealistic Pillow have each been remastered and reissued on CD with four bonus tracks that were not on the original albums.

Also on CD is High Flying Bird from 2006, which features their full Monterey set. Fans of the band will want Sweeping Up The Spotlight: Live At The Fillmore East 1969 from 2007. This is a recently-discovered 12-track live set which was recorded a week before the notorious Altamont concert. Whilst Grack Slick is a little subdued there's an extended guitar-dominated version of The Good Shepherd, a blasting version of Plastic Fantastic Lover, some superb improvised guitar from Kaukonen (who wrote the sleevenotes) on Ballad Of You & Me & Pooneil, a 10-minute cover of Fred Neil's The Other Side Of This Life and Marty Balin's You Wear Your Dresses Too Short.

Last Flight: Winterland Arena, 22 September 1972 from 2007 captures Grace Slick in fine form and Jorma Kaukonen provides some fine guitar solos on Feel So Good and Twilight Double Leader. There's also a fine version of Somebody To Love. Last Flight (2-CD) 2007 is the first authorised release of their historic last show from September 1972 at the Winterland Arena, San Francisco. This 2-CD set features 21 tracks from their last two albums and a few evergreen hits. The remastered sound is far better than on the inferior bootlegs released.

At The Family Dog Ballroom (CD) 2007 captures the band live in September 1969 near their peak. Recently unearthed from the archives, this release is an inspired performance by the classic group line-up of Kantner, Slick, Balin, Kaukonen, Casady and Dryden. For the closing 26-minute jam they are joined by The Grateful Dead's Jerry Garcia, whose distinctive guitar sound adds a new and unique dimension to the group's sound. Jorma Kaukonen handles vocals on Come Back Baby, which was never recorded by the group in the studio. The set blends old favourites include Crown Of Creation and Somebody To Love, with five numbers from their forthcoming Volunteers album. This is a must-have for serious fans of the band.

Live At The Fillmore East (CD) 2007 features a live concert from Bill Graham's New York club in 1969. Attractively packaged it comes with a detailed booklet. Recorded at the height of the band's success and over 76 minutes long it is a good live overview of one of San Francisco's finest. It features 15 tracks in all, including White Rabbit, The Other Side Of Life, Somebody To Love and twelve other classics.

The Best Of Jefferson Airplane (CD) 2007 is a 21-track collection featuring many of their best songs. It was previously issued in 1996 and 2001.

Flight Box (3-CD) 2009 features the first concert, recorded at Golden Gate Park on 5th July 1969 with the group's classic line-up; as well as four numbers from their then-latest most radically political album, Volunteers, it featured live favourites from the start of their career, including their two biggest hit singles; White Rabbit and Somebody To Love alongside rarities in the form of one of their trademark improvised jams and the non-album rarely-heard number, Uncle Sam Blues. The second concert featured was the group's last-ever performance which took place at the Winterland Arena on 22 September 1972; the songs featured were drawn mainly from the group's last two studio albums, Bark Long John Silver, with a sprinkling of old favourites, including the rarely-performed The Son Of Jesus.

The Very Best Of Jefferson Airplane (CD) 2009 is an enhanced CD, which contains both regular audio tracks and multimedia computer files. It focuses on several of the group's best album tracks recorded between 1966 and 1971. Among the 14 tracks, five of them are from Surrealistic Pillow, including White Rabbit, Today, Embryonic Journey, Comin' Back To Me, and Somebody To Love.

A line-up of the band (David Frieberg, Paul Kantner, Tony Morley, Jeff Pevar, Cathy Richardson, Chris Smith, using the name Jefferson Starship) is still on the road today. They played two nights at London's 100 Club in July 2008 and returned in November 2009 playing a superb set at London's Electric Ballroom and then their Woodstock set at the 100 Club.

Compilation appearances have included: White Rabbit on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); Somebody To Love on First Vibration (LP); The California Christmas Album (LP) features live versions of Kansas City and Fat Angel from 1966 and three of the four Levi's Jeans commercials they did in 1967. California New Year (LP) includes versions of White Rabbit, Please Come Back, She Has Funny Cars and Ride Jefferson Airplane. Matthew Katz's Then And Now, Vol. 2 (CD) compilation also includes a version of Other Side Of This Life recorded live at The Matrix in 1965, together with It's No Secret (from Takes Off)) and Marty Balin's live Summer Of Love. Then And Now, Vol. 2 (CD) also includes Runnin' Round This World and Embryonic Journey recorded live at the Matrix in 1965, and Marty Balin's Always Tomorrow. Finally, It's No Secret, White Rabbit and Mexico are all compiled on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD box). (VJ/BP/SR)

45: I'm Allergic To Flowers/
The Little Matador (Challenge 59371) 1967

Recorded in California, this was a one-off venture by a group of Los Angeles session musicians. I'm Allergic To Flowers, is laden with references to flower-power mythology, relating how the narrator would love to be a hippie but can't because of his allergy to pollen (dig?). The song was written by Dave Burgess, who'd previously played with The Champs, who'd enjoyed instrumental hits in the late fifties and early sixties and Keith Colley, who wrote for The Knickerbockers and The Magic Lanterns among others.

The song travelled well - it was picked up down-under in 1968 by Aussie duo Vicky & Dicky - sniffle along with their version on No.8 Wire (LP).

Compilation appearances have included: I'm Allergic To Flowers on Pebbles, Vol. 3: The Acid Gallery (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), Garagelands, Vol. 2 (CD) and Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP); and The Little Matador on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 12: Demented (LP & CD). (VJ/MW)

The label for this garage single was based in Columbia, Missouri; but it featured bands from Ohio, Arkansas, even the UK, as well as local Missouri acts.

There are at least two singles by near-same-name outfits, that we presume are different bands: - Jekyll and Hyde (possibly from New England): My Baby Loves Monster Movies/Theme From Whodunit (Dcp 1111) 1964; and Jekyll's and The Hydes (from Dorchester, Massachusetts): Diddley Daddy/You Can't Judge A Book (Boss 200,899/900) May 1966. There's also a live show from 1967 which has been captured on CD Mirror Music (2002) as well as a CD of new material, Time And Again (Wilmington Music Works) 2004 that contains five previously unreleased bonus tracks from their sixties period.

45: Country Woman/Generation (Mainstream 674) 1967

Hailing from Newburgh in New York State with one of Mainstream's better albums came the Jelly Bean Bandits. More punk than psychedelic it includes some searing guitar and good effects. The album contains the classic Generation, which was arguably their finest moment with a bizarre intro about flying saucers giving way to a driving assault on the senses with searing guitar, powerful vocals and sound effects.

Originally known as The Mirror, they managed to score a three-album deal with Mainstream on the basis of three demo tracks. Unbeknown to label boss Bob Shad, these were the only songs the band had written and a week-long marathon song-writing session ensued, before they were whisked into the cavernous Columbia Studio "A" to record the album in one marathon 12-hour stretch.

Mainstream pulled the plug before the band could start on their second album, although a demo for one track, Salesman was recorded. They have since reformed and released a CD in spring 2001. In 2002 they released

Fronted by Jeremy Steig, who'd earlier played with Peter Walker, this band's psychedelic rock album has now become a very minor collectors' item. It was produced by John Court who also worked with Electric Flag and the Butterfield Blues Band.

Jeremy was a cartoon artist like his father William Steig (New Yorker Magazine etc.), whilst Adrian Guillery was studying art in New Paltz/Manhattan.

The band backed Tim Hardin live, and some members did some recording sessions with him.

Donald McDonald later played with Joe Beck and is now dead. Jeremy Steig became a renowned jazz musician, whilst Warren Bernhardt moved to Woodstock, New York and has continued recording. (VJ/SD)

45: Don't Make Me Sorry/
I'm Leaving You (Vaughn--Ltd VA-726) 1966

NB: label name is not a typo, it has two '-'s.

Gear Fab's Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD) revisits I'm Leaving You, which can also be heard on Sixties Rebellion 5: The Cave (LP & CD). Composed by M. Ellis, it's jaunty pop-beat with a 'Raiders flavour that's notable for the lengthy denouement where first the guitars then the drummer hit the accelerator pedal(s). Hopefully more details will come to light about this Alabama group.

They are remembered by Paul Morrow of the Illusions - ".. a very good local group from the Birmingham area and one of our chief friendly rivals". (MW)

From Topeka in eastern Kansas, this outfit had a prolific output of variable releases. Among the quartet's best was Since You Went Away. It's rumoured that their manager, who owned the name, had two or three groups playing as 'The Jerms' in different parts of the State. In their later days they included a female singer known as Angel. The Shana single was produced by the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band's Shaun Harris, but the garage had been left far behind by then.

Compilation coverage has included: Since You Went Away on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP); Bald Headed Woman on Magic Carpet Ride (LP) and Gamma Knee Kappa (LP); and Love Light on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP) and Midwest Garage Band Series - Kansas (CD). (VJ/MW)

NB: Both 45s shown as by Bill Hjerpe.

This singer/songwriter's album is rockier than most of this genre with pianos, slide guitars and falsetto vocals. The material on the album is strong and the vocals are high in the mix.

Originally based in Rochester, New York where he started out with local garage band The Brass Buttons. He left them to pursue a solo career and released a pair of singles (under his real name, Bill Hjerpe) before relocating to Saugerties, New York where he recorded the album. (SR/VJ/MW)

This Dayton, Ohio combo was better known as The Others. Their sole gift to posterity under either moniker was the drum-bashin' tambourine-shakin' Diddleyesque pounder Don't Cry To Me, peformed by line-up 'A' and composed by guitarist Robert Budeliney. It's one of the best cuts on the album WONE, The Dayton Scene (Prism PR-1966), which showcased the top 12 groups from the WONE-sponsored three-day Daytonian 'Battle Of The Bands' in 1966.

Ron Skinner of The Pictorian Skiffuls joined later. The final Others line-up ('B' above) changed their name to the Elders in 1970, releasing the Looking For The Answer album and single in 1971 on Audio Fidelity.

You can also check out Don't Cry To Me on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD), Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP). (GGI/MW)

ALBUM: 1 TOP TEEN HITS '65 (Re-Car 2001) 1965 R1

45: Stomp Your Feet/Honey Love (Re-Car 9003) 1964

Now hard to find, Stomp Your Feet is a punker, which is rated highly by some. The work of a Minneapolis-based studio group, the same bunch also put out a single as King Krusher and The Turkeynecks, the A-side of which (King Krusher) was also featured on the Jesse J. and The Bandits album. ALBUM: 1(A) JESSE, WOLFF AND WHINGS (Shelter SW 8907) 1972

NB: (1) also released in Holland (Philips 6369 109) 1972.

Jesse, Wolff and Whings was formed by Jesse Barish, a San Francisco singer/songwriter and Bill Wolff, the former Peanut Butter Conspiracy, Sound Machine and Fusion guitarist. Housed in a superb black and white sleeve with a mystic symbol on its front, their only album offered a very consistent choice of songs mixing West Coast guitars with good vocals and occasional flute playing from Barish. The album was recorded in Hollywood and produced by Denny Cordell.

Their drummer, Kevin Kelley, had previously been with the Rising Sons and the Byrds and had already teamed up with Kenny Kaufman on a Phil Ochs album, Gunfight At Carnegie Hall. Jesse Barish would later work with Jefferson Starship and also issued two bland solo albums which were produced by Marty Balin. (SR)

This Memphis band was an early outing for James Dickinson. The single was recorded at Sun Studios in January 1966.

The Cadillac Man CD has been compiled by ace researcher Alec Palao. The 18-track retrospective features both sides of their single, four tracks that came out on a 1989 various artists box set compilation; seven previously unreleased cuts, including an alternate version of Cadillac Man; a Sun recording on which The Jesters backed Jimmy Day; and four tracks by The Escapades, the band singer Tommy Minga fronted after leaving The Jesters in late 1965. One of these, the Freakout U.S.A.! soundtrack (LP) features one track by The Jesters, Don't Try To Crawl Back. This has subsequently been included on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD) and you can also check out If You Love Her, Tell Her So on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD). Hands Of Time is an above average organ-punker worth picking up. 45: (Bye Bye Bye Bye) So Long/
She Lied (I Know Why) (Fuller CFP-2684) 1966

From Tampa Florida, this band played the Maderia Beach Surfers Club, Big Mooses' saturday night St. Pete dances and also the Spot Night Club in Tampa...

Robin Sibucao recalls: "Three of the four members were under 15. Instrumentation was bass, drums, two guitars and one singer. Radio station WALT used to have a vote by postcard for your favorite tune.... both tracks were selected at the time The Tropics and Roving Flames had records out."

"(Bye Bye Bye Bye) So Long was an up-tempo tune, two verses and chorus with a guitar solo (clean - no fuzz tone) verse and out".

"She Lied was a medium tempo tune with a power chord time guitar line that had no distortion or overload sound".

The band carried on until 1968 and spawned two local outfits, Southern Comfort and Toy Shoppe. In 1970, Robin Sibucao moved to L.A. and formed Shuffle, which included singer Rick Fitts, bassist Terry Cashburn, and former-Nazz drummer Thom Mooney.

She Lied has been compiled on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 12 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD); and you'll also find (Bye Bye Bye Bye) So Long on Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). (MW/RSo)

Jesters of Newport (CA)

45: Stormy/Where Have You Been? (Solo 700) 1965

Four-piece combo Jesters of Newport, from Santa Clara in California, recorded their single in a back room studio of a local record store. The disc is an interesting crossover from surf to garage. Indeed the organist had earlier played in a surf group called The Crygons. Stormy, starting out with a crazy organ intro straight out of Grieg's "In the Hall of the Mountain King", is a fine garage cruncher with powerful vocals, interesting surf-influenced guitar, catchy organ and a very distinctive ending.

You can also hear Stormy on Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ)

This guy who worked out of San Antonio, accidentally ingested too much nutmeg one day and wrote the lyrics to Groovy Little Trip as an ode to the 'Psychedelic Sensation' that he experienced. Musically the result starts off sounding like any other garage punk moan but towards the end is engulfed in a haze of fuzz guitar.

Groovy Little Trip has resurfaced on The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (LP), Psychedelic Experience (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP), Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 12 (LP) and Gravel Volume 4 (CD). (VJ)

An album with lots of orchestrated, and at times, almost baroque arrangements. Almost all the tracks are of a good standard with Past The State Of Mind (later compiled on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD)) and a cover of Paul Simon's Richard Cory among the highlights. The duo hailed from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Their first single was a reasonable folk-pop effort and the album is a folk/folk-rock offering. (VJ)

Time Goes Backwards (Verve Forecast KF-5073) 1967

Friends of Phil Ochs, who wrote the funny and clever liner notes and offered them four songs, Jim and Jean recorded their fine folk-rock album Changes in 1966. They were helped by several of the musicians who played with Bob Dylan on Highway 61 Revisited: Al Kooper, Harvey Brooks and Bobby Gregg. The influence of Dylan can also be heard on their cover of his Lay Down Your Weary Tune and the album also contains three covers of David Blue: Grand Hotel, About My Love and Strangers In A Strange Land. It's nothing exceptional, but a pleasant album nonetheless.

Lance Wakely would later move to California and play with Brewer and Shipley before forming Joyous Noise.

The third album contains a few highlights, including the jerky Success with its strong psychedelic leanings, the vaguely eastern Time Goes Backwards and the extremely eerie Playground. The acapella singing on Sweet Water is also quite convincing, as is the singing in general. Unfortunately there is also much discardable and inconsequential material in between, although the album never falls into the trap of getting too sweet for comfort.

You can also hear Time Goes Backwards on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 3 (CD). (SR/MK/NK)

45: Break Of Dawn/Little Children (White Whale 277) 1968

NB: There's also an extremely rare French 45 with PS: Fly/Christine (London) 1968.

The above album of dreamy soft psychedelia is something of an undiscovered gem for pop-psych enthusiasts. Recorded in Vancouver, Canada, until recently, nothing was known about the identity or true location of the band. Members of the Canadian bands Mother Tuckers Yellow Duck and Spring assisted on this album.

Housed in a delightful pop-art cover, this concept album was meant to "depict musically a man's life from birth to death" - it was written by Jay Kaye who was just 15-years-old at the time. Heavily orchestrated with lush arrangements, silky vocals and backward effects, it is dreamy soft-rock that caresses psychedelia and flirts with the 'baroque'. It occupies a hazy territory somewhere between Sgt. Pepper and The Magical Mystery Tour, the Left Banke's second album and The Zombies' Odessey And Oracle. Highlights include the delightful Eastern-influenced Magical Fingers Of Minerva, some superb, melodic slices of pop-psych like Fly and Little Children, the guitar-driven instrumental Speed and the prog-psych finale Dead which gives way to the opening bars of the album at the end. The yearning vocal style is appealing and evident throughout but particularly evident on Crystal Ball and Nobody.

Until recently nothing was known to collectors about the history behind the record or the artist - now thanks to Sundazed, Efram Turchick and the parties involved it can be told: - Las Vegan Jay Kaye was born into a musical family. His mother was pioneering guitarist Mary Kaye, of the Mary Kaye Trio and who had a Fender Stratocaster named after her. His uncle was famed ukelele player Johnny Ukelele.

Both Jay and his cousin John Kaye were bitten by the Beatle bug. Jay led a band called the Loved Ones and started to write his own material. In 1968, he accompanied his mother to Vancouver where she was making some appearances. On a visit to a studio, who wanted to record some tracks with his mother (she turned them down), a 15-year-old Jay proffered his material and played a couple of his songs to producer Robin Spurgin.

Spurgin had a great track record, from our retrospective perspective(?!) anyway, having produced the likes of the Collectors, Painted Ship, United Empire Loyalists and One Way Streets. He was impressed enough with Jay to start work on an album and agreed also to look after him (his mother was returning to Vegas). First off he brought in Robert Buckley from local band Spring, whom he'd also produced. Buckley was another prodigiously talented teenager who played numerous instruments; he took on the role of arranger. With the help of various session musicians, including members of Mother Tuckers Yellow Duck, the project was realised over the next few months.

J.K. & Co. - French Fly 45 PS.

The completed tape was touted around L.A. labels in the summer of '68. It was jumped on by White Whale, whose president Ted Feigin christened it Suddenly One Summer. With the release imminent, Jay quickly assembled a trio to play live and promote it - his cousin John and drummmer Rick Dean (son of jazz drummer Jack Dean).

A period of heavy local promotion followed and it started to gather playtime on underground radio stations. At this point White Whale decided to release a single. Strangely they didn't choose the stand-out Fly; instead they opted for the album's opener Break Of Dawn, a sound collage of barely half a minute. The single may only have made it to the promo stage... at that point the momentum sank without a trace, as did the single and the label's interest. The band carried on performing on the local teen circuit but was too young to go on tour or do nightclubs. Their brief moment in the limelight was gone.

Some tracks from the album were creatively recycled by White Whale, appearing on an album credited to Zager and Evans - The Early Writings Of Zager & Evans & Others (White Whale WWS-7123) - in 1969.

The young trio went on to various other bands. Latterly Jay Kaye moved to Majorca, Spain in 1987 where he plays blues guitar, sings and writes. John Kaye is back in Las Vegas with a band called The Overlords.

Two of the album's many highlights have turned up elsewhere - the superb dream-like Fly is on A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD) and Magical Fingers Of Minerva graces Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers, Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/VJ/ETk)

Previously known as Jimmy & The Offbeats, this Baton Rouge, Louisiana band adopted a mouthful-of-bubblegum name after they'd been augmented by John Haas, formerly of The Barracudas and Nobody's Children.

Their debut was recorded in early February 1968 and released the following month. Gonna Change My Mind is decent, moody pop although the flip side is more commercial sounding - trite and bouncy pop. 	What You Know About Love/Yes It's You	(Atila 221) 196?

A surprising entry perhaps, this well-known Toledo, Ohio, group was a classy instrumental-rock'n'roll-dance band that hit big in the early sixties on both sides of the Atlantic with Crossfire, Red River Rock, Reveille Rock and Rocking Goose (a No.1 in the UK). Constantly touring and with only Johnny Paris surviving line-up changes into the Beatles era (the early personnel is shown above) their recorded music was pumped out even whilst they were on the road by session musicians - a fairly common practice of the times.

They released a total of five albums and over thirty singles and EPs but the selective discography should be of interest here, with some of the later singles being released as by The Hurricanes. George Gell has drawn attention to this period where "they did make the stylistic transition to a garage-pop sound and all their mid-sixties records are worth having". He points out that the 'Live' album isn't live but "features a solid garage sound of mostly hits of the day".

Wisdom's 5th Take (as by The Hurricanes) can be heard on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP) to confirm this. 1959's Reveille Rock was included on the K-Tels Juke Box Jive, a seventies double album collection of fifties-sixties party/pop classics. (MW/GGI)

Johnny and The Nite Ryders (GA)

45:	I Had A Girl/She's Gone	(Perfection 558) 1966

From Smyrna, Georgia, you'll also find I Had A Girl on Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP) and She's Gone on the excellent 'desperate garage punker' comp I Can Hear Raindrops (LP). (VJ/MW)

10" Acetate:	At The Party/She's True	(Talent Inc. Audiodisc) 1965 R5
45:	At The Party/She's True	(Foundation 703) 1965

This obscure frat-rock/garage group came from Oklahoma. There was also a Johnny Gee (& The Gee-Men) from Dallas, Texas who recorded in the early-to-mid sixties and released at least three singles (on Emit, Panda, and Nu-Child). (SR/MW)

Johnnys Uncalled Four (OH)

45s:	Shortnin' Bread/Day Dream	(Wam 4001) 1964
	Please Say/Every Time I Close My Eyes	(Magic 1000) 1966

This band hailed from Columbiana, Ohio and was sometimes known as Johnny and The Uncalled Four. Their version of Shortnin' Bread is to be found on the frat-garage compilation Ho-Dad Hootenanny (LP) and on Party Party Party (CD), whilst Please Say, a decent garage effort, is also on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 14: The Basement (LP & CD), Teen Blast Volume #1 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 2 (CD). NB: (1) shown as by Mike & Karen. (3) is a repackage of (2) with one additional song, "The Last Battle". (5) reissued on NewPax (NP-330??) 1976.

You may recognise this guy as an ex-Exkursions member. His solo albums are less aggressive, country-ish at times, but still contain some good guitar-based music. The lyrics are primarily of a Christian nature.

Happy And Alive mixed rock with folk, rural and jazz influences. The highlights are the pumping psych number City! and the Jesus-rocker I'm High on which he sounds exactly that!

Highlights of Lord Doctor include Cause And Effect and Pride. The cover is a simple picture of Mike appearing very introspective.

I haven't heard his other albums. (VJ)

Randy Johnson (?)

ALBUM:	1	THE GIFT OF RANDY JOHNSON	(Amaret ST-5003) 1970

ALBUM:	1(A)	CARRY IT ON (w/insert)	(Ovation OVQD-1434) 1973

Dave Callens, Edmund Villareal and Jeff Salisbury were originally from San Antonio, Texas but relocated to Hollywood in February 1967. They were picked up by former boxer, apartment manager Bud "Babyface" Mathis and former bus driver Barry Cantor (Cantor-Mathis Management). More members were auditioned and added to the original trio, including vocalist/dancer Wanda Watkins from Garnerfield Sanitarium (who became The Brain Train and finally Clear Light) and Clyde Kay on bass.

The Joint Effort became the house band at Gazzarri's on The Strip in the summer of '67 and Cantor-Mathis released their debut to promote this. It hit the top 10 in the Santa Barbara area.

I wish I'd been there - The Children is breezy California psych-pop whilst Third Eye is glorious folk-raga-psych with an unusual solo of one long feedback sustain. A rare and highly recommended single, it was recorded at Original Sound Studios in Hollywood and engineered by the legendary Paul Buff. The Children was rated on American Bandstand and got a 75...

In the spring of 1968 The Joint Effort became the touring version of The Box Tops. Bud Mathis booked them as impersonators and they toured with Del Shannon as opening act in Hawaii. The band broke up in late 1968 in Santa Barbara, California days before they were to record their first album.

The band got to support The Doors in Santa Barbara, The Strawberry Alarm Clock, Sweetwater, Peanut Butter Conspiracy and also appeared as extras in the "hippie-burial scene" of the cult classic 'Psych-Out' movie with Jack Nicholson. Follow-up singles moved into Association harmony-pop and flower-pop territory, with occasional use of brass, with producer John Marascalco who wrote Good Golly Miss Molly and others for Little Richard.

Check out The Third Eye on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD).

In 2000, a retrospective of Bud Mathis acts appeared. Take The Brain Train To The Third Eye (LP & CD) re-airs The Third Eye, The Children and Mary On A Go Round. It also features two unreleased tracks - Broken Glass and Tomorrow's Yesterdays - where The Joint Effort provides backing for Wolfgang (Dios). He was a songwriter signed by Mathis and is best remembered for writing Black Roses, recorded by The Brain Train/Clear Light. (MW/DCs/EDV/JSy)

	Sunshine/Because I'm Free	(Peak 4456) 1968
	Tomorrow/Peace Man	(Peak 4459) 1968

One of the better late sixties Minneapolis bands The Jokers Wild's singles are worth seeking. They split in 1970 and Johnson went on to record a solo pop single and Knight two solo albums, Family In The Wind (Flashlight/Symposium) 1974 and Song For A City Mouse (Flashlight/Symposium) 1975. They started out as a six-piece but ended up as a trio for their final recordings. They were clearly an experimental outfit.

The best source for their music is The Best Of Metrobeat! Vol. 1 (LP) compilation which includes the psychedelic All I See Is You, I Just Can't Explain It, Because I'm Free, Sunshine and, perhaps best of all, a previously unreleased cut, All The World's A Copper Penny.

Lonnie Knight went on to play with various groups including the Hoopsnakes, and is currently performing with Lonnie Knight and Big Shoes.

Other compilation appearances have included: All I See Is You on Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (CD), Garagelands, Vol. 1 (LP), Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD) and Garage Beat '66 6 (CD); and All I See Is You and I Just Can't Explain It on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (CD). (VJ)

45:	Lisa My Love/Mr Brennan	(Bell B802) 1969

Jolliver Arkansas was basically a continuation of Bo Grumpus, under the guidance of Mountain member Felix Pappalardi. Leslie West is featured on lead guitar on a few tracks. The two single tracks were culled from the album.

Gray Afternoon has been compiled on Sound Stories - Songs of Faith and Inspriation: Spiritual Psychedelic Rock For The Devoted Listener (CD) in the nineties. (VJ)

45:	Little Bird/Sweet September	(Mainstream 699) 1969

Unexpectedly enough this Mainstream single contains Little Bird with inspired but unkempt piano-jazz, very similar to the Ramsey Lewis Trio! The flip side features prominent orchestration which utterly destroys the impression created by the 'A' side. Sadly, the Oscar Peterson-like solo comes too late to rescue. (MK)

The Jolly Beggars (?)

45:	The Last Step of Doom/ Don't Walk On Me	(Pamela Rose PR-1) 196?

This mystery disc appeared on a Florida label. Last Step Of Doom is a superb driving punker, well worth checking out on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP) or Quagmire Volume 6 (CD). (VJ/LBp)

This Northwest band was clearly influenced by The Kingsmen taking their name from their classic Top 10 hit. Both sides of the single were in a raucous dance style.

STEREO
Jonathan and
THIRD AND MAIN

JONATHAN AND LEIGH - Third And Main LP.

This Dallas pop-rock male-female duo was formed by John Howard Abdnor and Javonne Braga. Their records were issued on the Abnak label, owned by John's father, John Abdnor Sr..

Their first album contains many pop and soul covers (like In The Midnight Hour and Hold On, I'm Coming) but includes one good garagy track, Love Me Baby, with a Gloria-like guitar chord sequence and swirling organ.

Housed in a colourful cover with Jon and Robin wearing psychy clothes (now looking very kitsch!), Elastic Event was directed by Michael Rabon, the leader of the Five Americans who formed the backing group along with Bobby Rambo and Jim Glaves (from The In Crowd). The album contains cover versions of Mouse and The Traps' Like I Know You Do, and The Youngbloods' Grizzly Bear. Two other interesting tracks are Doctor Jon and You Got Style.

All in all, their two albums are rather patchy and probably too pop-oriented for most rock fans, but do contain some surprisingly good tracks.

Javonne Braga went on to marry Jimmy Wright, the Five Americans' drummer in the seventies, while Jon went solo in 1969 as John Howard Abdnor for one album. (VJ/MW/TTi/SR)

ALBUM:	1(A)	ANOTHER WEEK TO GO	(Inter-Varsity LPS-02498) 1967 SC

NB: (1) was also released in the UK on the Herald label. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab Records GF-210) 2004.

From Roanoke, Virginia this was one of the first Catholic folk and folk-rock groups, with guitar, organ, and vocal harmonies similar to Simon and Garfunkel. Some copies contain the track Why?, others feature Colors And Shades. Their record is beginning to attract attention amongst some collectors. It viewed religion from the eyes and ears of the youth of the day. Most of the songs are getting 'a message' across.

Jonathan Guest was originally from London, England. Charles, a Virginian, was studying for a degree in Business Administration when he met Charles. The duo was brought to an abrupt end when Charles was drafted to fight in the Vietnam War.

Jonathan was last reported working as a pastor at Grove Farm, Sewickley, Pennsylvania. Charles is a high school teacher in Tampa, Florida. (SR/VJ)

45:	Constant Tuesday/ Song For Shelley	(Vanguard VRS-35058) 1967

Produced by Elmer Jared Gordon, here's an interesting folk, folk-rock and folk-blues male/female duo with good vocals plus electric and acoustic backing by famous session men from the New York scene: Vinnie Bell, Jay Berliner and Richard Davis (later with Van Morrison). Their rhythm section, Salter and Smith, also played on several albums of Pearls Before Swine. They were heavily influenced by Dylan and Phil Ochs (they cover his Changes) and they combine good self-penned material with Cocaine Blues, Someday Baby (by Muddy Waters) and Going To Brownsville.

Changes and Someday Baby have re-emerged on The Vanguard Folk Rock Album (CD). (SR)

Andy Jones (?)

ALBUM: 1 THE FIRST IS NOT THE LAST (Brougham Records BR 0004) 197? R3

This is a very obscure privately pressed downer folk album. It's reputed to make good use of echo with strumming guitar and a good vocal range. (VJ)

Del Jones' Postive Vibes (PA)

ALBUM: 1 COURT IS CLOSED (Hikeka HR-3331) 1972 R4

NB: (1) original mix issued in group photo cover, this version was reissued on vinyl (Loopden 2P-001 & insert) 1999 (SC). There's also a second mix with horns added in an art cover (Hikeka DM-68474) 197? (R3).

Philadelphia black psych-rock group Del Jones' Postive Vibes was notable for prominent flute and acid guitar on this urban funk album with politically-provocative lyrics about the state of Black America, delivered in a rap style. They were clearly influenced by The Last Poets and Gil Scott-Heron's underground hit, The Revolution Will Not Be Televised. There are some long funk-jams on this album too. Collectors interested in this genre rate the album very highly, although its case for inclusion here is marginal. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM: 1 TELL IT NOW (Crescendo Custom CCR 7002) 197?

This weird album lies somewhere between gospel music, garage and folk, with some psychy touches and Christian lyrics. It came with a booklet with the lyrics and music. Tell It Now, We Have Something To Say, Status Quo and Man, My God Is Real were recorded with electric guitars, organ, drums and choir. It is thought to date from the early seventies. This is one for fans of "incredibly strange" sounds. (SR)

45s: Baby/Washington Square (MGM 14055) 1969

Joneses was a quartet of schoolmates from Worcester, Massachusetts augmented by Joey D'Angelo's younger brother Jimmy from another local band, The End (probably not the Andover bunch with the single on Insegrievious?).

Baby is Turtlesque pop with a little fuzzed guitar. Washington Square is better, with heavier keyboards and slashes of fuzz. It did well locally but this and the follow-up were vehicles for pop composer/producer duo Joey Day and Alan Dischel. The band wanted to do their own thing, write their own material, and get into deeper, prog-rock territory - so they struck out on their own under the new guise of Mad Angel. Joey D'Angelo became a guitar tutor. (MW)

45: I'm Coming Up To Boston/? (Vanguard 35141) 1970

Marc Jonson was an obscure psychedelic folk singer/songwriter. His album was recorded with guitar, organ, harpsichord, autoharp, piano and cello. The lyrics are rather dark, with songs like Autopsy (about his own autopsy!) and the opening cut Rainy Dues is a fine pop song. (SR)

This Time/Changing Woman (Shamley 44014) 1969
Ballad Of Butch Cassidy And The Sundance Kid/? (Dunhill 4426) 1970

One of the four albums released on the short-lived Shamley label (along with HMS Bounty, Moonrakers and Future). Joplin Forte's music was a kind of old-timey folk, like the Cleanliness and Goodliness Skiffle Band and certain cuts of Dan Hicks And His Hot Licks. The liner notes of their album, produced by George Fernandez, explain that "much of today's music is concerned with complex electronic loudness and computerized loudness. Our effort is toward an understandable clean sound". Dennis Coats wrote eight of the 12 tracks, the others being covers of Fats Waller (the title track), the often covered John Hartford's Gentle On My Mind and B. Russell's Little Green Apples plus the traditional Sally Ann. The group would disappear after two non-album singles.

Dennis Coats resurfaced in 1977 with the group Driver (one album for A&M), while Gary Carlson would play with the country singer Mason Williams during the early seventies. (SR)

From Houston, Josefus was put together in September 1969 by Doug Tull after he'd been fired from United Gas (see Christopher entry). A couple of months later they attracted the attention of record producer Jim Musil, who invited them to Phoenix in Arizona to record under the name Come. However, the deal he was negotiating with Straight Records did not materialise and the sessions remained unreleased until the Get Off My Case retrospective.

The band reverted back to the name Josefus and returned to Houston. They went back to Phoenix, however, to record their 'first' album, Dead Man, which was recorded in just eight hours and mixed the next day. Comprised largely of originals it was probably their best work. It sold well in Texas and the highlight was the 17'5" minute title track. Two tracks from the album Crazy Man/Country Boy were also issued as a single.

Indeed the Dead Man release attracted the attention of Mainstream who signed them on a one album contract. The result was recorded at the Criteria Studios in Miami and produced by Bob Shad. This was in the same hard-rock vein as their first effort, but less imaginative and when neither the album nor the single taken from it made any impression, they split in December 1970.

Pete Bailey and Ray Turner went on to play in a 1971 combo Stone Axe, together with guitarist Mike 'Wolf' Long and drummer Jerry Ontiverez. They had one single, Snakebite on Rampart in the same year. Doug Tull was involved with Christopher and may also have backed power popper Tommy Keene in the mid to late eighties. Pete and Dave Mitchell were involved in an EP by Guitar Orchestra issued on Home Cooking Records in 1976.

In July 1978, Pete Bailey and Dave Mitchell reformed the band with a new line-up. This was short-lived but they did make the two 1979 singles listed.

In the nineties, Get Off My Case appeared, which contains their first efforts recorded in December 1969 prior to Dead Man. It's largely made up of different versions of songs that appeared on their first official album, including a lengthier version of Dead Man, Crazy Man and Situation. This vinyl-only release was accompanied by a booklet of the band's story. Sundazed eventually issued this material on CD as part of their Dead Man reissue (Sundazed SC 11066) 1999.

Dead Man (3-CD box set) on Akarma features their Dead Man album, plus the band's second album Josefus and a CD of previously unreleased gems including pre-Josefus demos and live material. It comes with a booklet that features a complete Josefus discography, extensive biographical notes and previously unseen photos of the band. All the albums are housed in mini-card gatefold sleeves.

Dead Man Alive (CD) is a collection of previously unreleased tracks recorded between 1967 and 1979. The first three tracks were recorded under the name United Gas and have lots of psychy wah-wah guitars. The next four are from the original Josefus, recorded live (including a 26-minute version of the classic Dead Man). The final three songs are taken from their 1978/79 reunion with Stone Axe drummer Jerry Ontiberoz.

Dead Man has been compiled on Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); and you'll also find Propositions on Acid Visions Vol. 9: Child Of Evil (CD). (VJ/SW/MW/RM)

NB: (1) also released on Scepter in France. The U.S. release also lists a mono version on the cover (SRM 574), but this is unlikely to exist. (1) reissued on CD in the 1990s and again on CD (Radioactive RRCD134) 2005.

A wild album of heavy guitar blues-rock by this Tennessee guitarist with gruff vocals. Cold Biscuits And Fish Heads, I Ain't Fattenin' No More Frogs For Snakes, etc.; crazy stuff! There's also a freaky version of House Of The Rising Sun. No other musicians are credited on the album.

Joseph Longeria also contributed the song I'm Gonna Build A Mountain to Great Bear's eponymous album. (CF/RBn)

ALBUM: 1(A) AN ALL AMERICAN EMPEROR (Akarma AK-042) 1999

NB: (1) contains studio recordings from the sixties, originally recorded for the All-American label.

Ernie Joseph was a local hero on the Santa Barbara scene - as Ernie Orosco he fronted several outfits in the sixties including Ernie And The Emperors, Ernies Funny's, Giant Crab and Big Brother (Featuring Ernie Joseph). The songs featured in this collection are big-production pop-rock numbers, mainly Scott English (co-)compositions, often with beefy orchestration. Ernie was nothing if not adaptable and possesses a fine voice but don't be suckered by any garage or psych tags attached to this. It's more likely to appeal to fans of the Association - Cleo being one track that immediately brings that comparison to mind.

Cory Colt was also a member of Big Brother (Featuring Ernie Joseph) whilst Greg Munford was with label-mates Indescribably Delicious. (MW/AP)

NB: Also released in the U.K. with a different cover design (Key KL 014) 1973 R2.

From the Southwestern U.S. (possibly Texas), this religious hard-rock band's rare album also got a release in the U.K. on Key. There are two U.S. pressings in existence; the original is black, the second has a red label. Tony Sena penned almost all of the material on their album, although three cuts: New Life, Caterpillar and Free Me were co-written with other band members. We're talking melodic rock with crisp guitar work and quite poignant lyrics here, but the stand-out track is the only non-original, I Wish We'd All Been Ready, a pleasant vocal harmony number. ALBUM: 1(A) OPENS YOUR MIND (w/insert) (Rockadelic RRLP 50) 2004

NB: Limited edition gatefold with paste-ons and insert.

From Davis, California Joshua followed in the footprints of neighbourhood heroes Blue Cheer, literally, by moving into the country house which the seminal power-trio had just vacated (presumably to pick up discarded vibes). Unfortunately, due to the former residents' reputation, what Joshua attracted was unwelcome attention and regular raids by the local law enforcers looking for dodgy substances. The group lasted about three years, splitting in 1971.

Rockadelic culled an album's worth of material from the band's tape archive, revealing some good heavy guitar playing and occasional forays into blues- and acid-rock. They could chill out too and, with twin lead guitars; there are echoes of Quicksilver's fluidity and the free-flowing San Francisco sound. The final cut commences with an anti-war speech and features some frantic guitar moments. This retrospective release is housed in a thick gatefold sleeve with a fine psychedelic cover and insert in a limited edition of 500 copies. Shelby Rogers had previously been with the Texas sixties band Tyme Of Day. (VJ/MW/CF)

Joshua Dyke was formed by students at St. Petersburg Junior College in Florida in 1966. Initially covering their favourite bands like the Rolling Stones, their immediate popularity led to a single on Paris Tower in 1967.

A menacing fuzzed-up cover of the Animals' Cheating, re-aired on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD), is backed by a blues standard also covered by the Stones.

Military call-ups and career choices splintered the group but they reunited 30 years later in Clearwater to record a CD. (MW/JLh/RM)

45: Synthetic People/
Run Away Baby (Nottingham Disc Co. 849) 1968

Before the advent of the Beatles, the Burnell brothers were playing instrumentals with The Live Wires in their hometown of Plymouth, Virginia. Nothing was released but they also kept recordings on reel-to-reel, travelling widely to tape other local acts. One such trip into North Carolina was to capture the Creations just as that band was ending.

In 1967, they formed The Journey Back with Bill Brown and Bobby Sutton from the Creations. The following year they released their sole single (500 copies). Run Away Baby, is a slow-burner with fiendish fuzz and powerful vocals like Eric Burdon. Synthetic People, is mighty fuzz-rock with a Cream-y riff and a nod in the direction of Blue Cheer.

Come the new millennium and the Burnell brothers are still playing together in a band called... The Journey Back.

Compilation appearances have included: Run Away Baby on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 3: The Auditorium (LP & CD); Synthetic People on A Fistful Of Fuzz (CD); and both Run Away Baby and Synthetic People on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD). (BHr/ST/MW)

Recorded in Shreveport, Louisiana by George W. Clinton (maybe the co-leader of Timber), this obscure album veers between hard prog and heavy rock, with decent vocals, lots of "churchy" organ and loud guitars. All their material was written by the group members but, despite sophisticated and often interesting introductions, the tracks are generally not strong enough to really retain attention. The best cuts are possibly Cross Country Woman, Mother Nature and Ride The World. (SR/MMs)

(Christ Is The Answer LPS-834) 1976 R1
3( ) SONGS FOR SOLDIERS (Christ Is The Answer) 1977

The band that created this Christian album has nothing to do with Joyfull Noise. It's so goddamn (sic) serious that it's easy to overlook its musical value. On Nativity titles such as Love Is God's Command, give the game away even before the listener has the chance to decide for themselves. So, every track drips of 'Jesus', but is otherwise a partly fine and mild progressive rock album with a sound at times close to Kristyl or Titus Oates. A respectably driving cut is Make A Choice by Grier with a pretty tempo change included and some fine guitar work. The intended main piece Nativity, which concludes the album, lasts over 10 minutes and tells the story of Christ being born. It includes flashes of greatly inspired playing alternating with rather stale and rigid music. Still worth hearing, I guess.

They made a very rare second album which again comprised gospel-influenced melodic rock with Hammond organ and guitar. It was hampered by weak vocals but many find it slightly better than their debut effort.

Songs For Soldiers is a mellower effort with better vocals. (MK/VJ)

	Don't The Moon Look Fat And Lonesome/ All Around The Sun And The Moon	(Capitol 3396) 1972

This hippie-rock/country-rock quartet formed in Berkeley, California in 1967 as Gourmet's Delight. Fritz Kasten had previously been with an embryonic Sopwith Camel line-up. Ron Wilson had been in The Surfaris. They signed to Bill Graham's Fillmore label in 1968/1969 and recorded some studio cuts that were never issued. They soon became live favourites in the Bay Area and attracted attention from both the press and feminist movements in view of the two leading ladies. Their rock music also contained strong country and jazz influences.

The lyrics on their debut album deal with environmental and counterculture issues and female self-sufficiency and their sound was unique on account of the prominent bongos and piano.

The group splintered in 1973 with first Toni Brown and then Terry Garthwaite leaving to go solo, although they also teamed up for a duet album. The band continued without them for a while, but then disintegrated. In 1977 Toni and Terry formed a quartet who issued an eponymous album for Fantasy under the abbreviated name of Joy. (VJ/HMc)

This Indianapolis sextet played paisley-hued garage-rock with fuzz and their debut single has been sought keenly by collectors ever since Descent was featured on The Chosen Few Vol. 2 (LP) in 1983. With its psychedelic backing, catchy keyboards, and raving vocal, it has proved to be enduringly popular, reappearing on Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP), Sixties Archives Vol. 8 (CD) and The Chosen Few 1 & 2 (CD).

It was a hit in the Midwest and the band performed on local TV. At the time Jim Albrecht was attending Pike High School, whose principal was cracking down on long hair, even offering free haircuts in the school's front office. Luckily for Jim, the band's success gained him an exemption from the shearing programme.

The band relocated to Chicago. Follow-up singles on Tomorrow were less successful, so obscure in fact that their details and connection to this group were confirmed only recently; their sound has been described as 'mod' or 'blue-eyed soul'. (MW/VJ/TL)

I'm Really Sorry (PS) (United 121570) 1966

From Grand Rapids, Michigan this band's vocalist sounded very much like David Surkamp (of Pavlov's Dog) although it was one Ray Hummel III, on the Fenton single. Ray Hummel III also issued a solo single Fine Day/Gentle Rain on Fenton. Hummel left the group after the first single to form The Traffic Jams. They started out as a five-piece, though, and the second single suffered rather for Hummel's departure. Whilst with Fenton they recorded material for an album which remained unreleased, although a limited edition cassette was in circulation a few years back.

The following year Break-A-Way put one a retrospective out on vinyl. This 14-tracks selection includes all their garage singles, as well as a number of unreleased gems recorded during the band's existence from 1965 to 1967. A detailed insert contains a retrospective of The Jujus as recalled by band member Rod Shepard, alongside cool photos and band memorabilia. The same year came Cicadelic's CD retrospective containing are 23 recordings featuring all their singles, as well as a plethora of unreleased gems from 1965 to 1967. It comes with a detailed booklet contains photos, radio surveys, band memorabilia, and Rod Shepard's retrospective.

Rick Stevens had earlier played with The Paeans, who apparently recorded an unreleased single for Fenton.

Compilation appearances have included: I'm Really Sorry on *Let 'Em Have It! This outfit was from upstate New York. Originally known as Free Will, their name change came at the hands of an RCA executive in 1971. Their heavy bluesy rock was typical of the times... one reviewer said that Doyle's guitar "sounded like dinosaurs eating cars". After the commercial failure of these releases the band members went their separate ways. Mark Doyle went on to play for Meatloaf, Andy Pratt, Cindy Bullens, Hall & Oates and many others. Joe Whiting joined Bobby Comstock's band as saxophone player and would tour and perform with the likes of Little Richard, Chuck Berry and Jerry Lee Lewis. In the late seventies he replaced Ronnie James Dio in Elf (those recordings were eventually released in Europe on the Nibelung label), and in 1982 "Joe Whiting and The Bandit Band" toured as the opening act for Van Halen.

Doyle and Whiting would reunite and record together in the eighties as The Doyle-Whiting Band, in the nineties as Backbone Slip and finally in 2001 Jukin' Bone would reform and record under the original moniker Free Will. (HS)

Thought to be from New York, this short-lived heavy-rock outfit was obviously influenced by Iron Butterfly. Their album features prominent organ and all their material was original and penned by Lawrence Engstrom (sometimes with the help of Kimball Lee). It was produced by the famous jazz musician Ahmad Jamal.

From The Nest is now rare and sought-after by some collectors. (SR/NK)

Jungle (?)

ALBUM: 1 JUNGLE (No label CO 3027) 1969 R6

NB: (1) demo album issued in plain black sleeve. (1) reissued on vinyl initially in a blue velveteen cover with all artwork and text embossed in silver foil (Little Indians #8) 1997. This limited repressing (450 numbered copies) sold out quickly and the record was re-released in a smaller edition (250 copies) on multi-coloured vinyl. These copies were issued in the same velveteen cover design, but in three different covers: the blue was augmented by black and red. All four versions of the Little Indians reissue are currently in the R1 category. The same label also produced a CD (Little Indians #8) 1998. The label on the original demo album is yellow with red print; the reissues have a yellow label with black print.

Nothing is currently known about the band responsible for this rare demo album. The known copies were found in plain black sleeves with no personnel or recording information.

Early Morning Rising, Slave Ship, House Of Rooms and Gray Picnic are all loaded with nice guitar and organ work, and could be positively labelled "hard-rock" were it not for the drummer's apparent jazz aspirations. The album as a whole has a relaxed, almost loose quality that somehow seems to underscore its "demo" classification but very little of the music seems unpolished... and the vocals are exemplary across both sides. It's not hard to imagine that these musicians pursued careers well into the seventies.

As originals are rather elusive, grab the reissue and check this one out.

An edited version of Slave Ship has also resurfaced on Love, Peace And Poetry, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). (CF)

45: Victim Of Circumstances/
Looks Like The Sun Ain't Gonna Shine (Hickory 1425) 1966

Junior is actually Roy Acuff Jr. from Nashville, Tennessee and the son of the Grand Ole Opry legend. He had a few pretty decent folk-rock singles on Hickory using his real name. Roy's producer was singer Don Gant, later of the Neon Philharmonic.

Compilation appearances have included: Victim Of Circumstances on Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP), Garage Kings (2-LP) and Garage Beat '66 6 (CD); and Looks Like The Sun Ain't Gonna Shine on Every Groovy Day (LP). (MW/JLh)

The Just VI (line-up A) formed in 1965 in Hayward, California. They released a raucous single in November 1965 and are known to have made numerous other recordings but nothing more appeared until the end of 1967, by which time they'd softened their identity to White Haven Pillow (line-up B). Produced by Larry Goldberg and Leo De Gar Kulka at Golden State studios, it turned out to be their final release despite them lasting till the end of the decade. Some members went on to The Little John Blues Band, aka Little John, who released at least three singles and two albums on Epic in 1970/1.

Just Us happened when session guitarist and budding songwriter Al Gorgoni teamed up with Chip Taylor in New York. They had met when Gorgoni played on the demo of Wild Thing, the song which would be Taylor's most successful by far. The album features lightweight folk-pop; beware of any dealer trying to pass this off as either 'garage' or 'psych'. The pair did write some successful songs: I Can't Let Go was a hit for The Hollies and would be covered by the likes of Kitchen Cinq and Nobody's Children; I'll Hold Out My Hand was covered by Evie Sands (who did the original Wild Thing), The Box Tops, Clique and Smith. Originally from Norman, Oklahoma they recorded some tracks there at the Shore Bird recording studios, before relocating to Portland, Oregon.

The retrospective album is a collection of 'live' and unreleased recordings in a frantic frat-garage vein with some slower bluesy ballads, together with their superb fuzz-rockin' version of Bo Diddley. Raw and vibrant - if this was an original sixties local label or private press it would be in the mega-buck category.

They later became The Express.

10" ALBUM: 1 GREATEST HITS! (Norton TED-1003) 2000

The Norton 10" album presents the complete legacy of a forgotten Memphis garage quintet - four demos recorded at Sonic Studios in December 1965 in an attempt to get them onto 'Talent Party', the local TV talent show hosted by George Klein. The band chose covers - Little Girl (Them), Just Like Me (Paul Revere and The Raiders), And My Baby's Gone (Moody Blues) and I'll Go Crazy (James Brown, via the Moody Blues).

The Jynx splintered soon after and would have remained forgotten but for some members' further ventures. Bill Cunningham joined The Jokers and later toured with The Box Tops. Norton's scoop here is that these recordings capture the first forays of his friend and fellow Jynxer, the late Chris Bell, who would team up with ex-Box Top Alex Chilton to form Big Star.

Little Girl has been compiled on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD). (MW)

NB: α 'B' side is non-album version. β promo only.

This highly talented, underrated band from Davis in California produced what is now one of the most sought-after psychedelic albums. The focal point of the band was singer/guitarist Gary Yoder, who had earlier led The Oxford Circle. Lead guitarist Dehner Patten was also in The Oxford Circle, and bassist Dave Damrell was in Group "B". Drummer Chris Lockheed was in The Majestics. They named themselves Kak and views differ as to how they coined the name. Some state they derived it from the Persian word for dust; others that the name was after a concept devised by Damrell's college professor to represent the wild card in a pack.

Yoder's producer Gary Grelecki had already got Yoder a solo deal with Columbia so when Kak was formed Columbia signed the group too. In the summer of 1968 Kak moved into a Victorian mansion in San Francisco's Pacific Heights. They recorded demos of Everything's Changing and Rain in Los Angeles, which were issued as a debut single. They then set to work on the album. Mellow laid-back tracks like I've Got Time and Flowing By are merged with up-tempo numbers like the bluesy Disbelievin' and Electric Sailor, which featured a scorching double-tracked guitar break. The excellent guitar playing of Patten and Yoder is evident throughout the album. Arguably the magnum opus is the mini-epic Trieulogy, which is split into three segments: Golgotha, Mirage and Rain. Most tracks, particularly the final one Lemonaide Kid had considerable commercial potential and the band was clearly a victim of under-exposure. They didn't have the equipment to promote the album with until Epic agreed they could purchase equipment in lieu of an advance and when the album was released it bombed. Damrell had already left the group by the time the album was released and was briefly replaced by Larry Sherwood, another bassist from Davis. They planned some gigs on the East Coast, but when they fell through they disbanded in 1970.

Gary Yoder issued a solo single Good Time Music/Flight From The East (Epic 10560) in 1970 and then played for a while in Blue Cheer. Lockheed joined forces with Randy Holden for his Population II album. Several years later, Chris Lockheed along with John Cipollina played on Stu Blank's Under The Big Top album from 1988.

The Big Beat reissue of the album, with a healthy dollop of bonus tracks, Kak-Ola is recommended.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Trieulogy on Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD); Lemonade Kid and Electric Sailor on Psychedelic Dream (2-LP); Lemonade Kid on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); Disbelievin' on Reverberation IV (CD) and Rockbusters (LP); Rain on California Halloween (LP); Flight From The East, a Gary Yoder solo effort, on Filling The Gap (4-LP box set); and Golgotha Mirage and Everything's Changing on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). KALEIDOSCOPE - Side Trips LP.

Kaleidoscope's music was so wide-ranging that it is difficult to categorise. Not surprisingly therefore, all of their albums have become obscure collectors items. However, compilations of material from their albums are now available and all the original albums have been reissued on CD.

An explanation for the range of this group's music can be found in the backgrounds of its personnel. Lindley, born in L.A., had previously played with a number of bands, including The New Christy Minstrels and The Greenwood Singers and had also played banjo for several labels. He formed the group in September 1966. They initially called themselves The Baghdad Blues Band. Feldthouse originated from Ismit in Turkey and played a wide range of exotic instruments which included the saz, bouzouki, dobro, vina, doumbeg and dulcimer as well as the more mundane 12-string guitar and fiddle. He was responsible for the Eastern influence on tracks like Egyptian Gardens, Why Try and Keep Your Mind Open on their first album. Darrow was born in South Dakota, but raised in Claremont, California. His musical taste encompassed bluegrass, country, blues, jug band, R&B and old-time jazz. Percussionist Vidican grew up in Hollywood, and Epp was from Oklahoma City. Apart from the Eastern-influenced songs, other tracks on their first album included the traditional Come On In, Oh Death and the offbeat Minnie The Moocher. Another cut Please was chosen as the 'A' side for their first single with a non-album track, Elevator Man, a more straight-ahead rock track with some superb guitar playing from Lindley, on the flip. The single went nowhere. Next off they tried a remixed version of Why Try and a version of Little Orphan Annie, written by Darrow and Epp, which later turned up on the Bernice album in a very different form. However, this single made no commercial impression either.

A Beacon From Mars contained an incredible 12-minute 'live' version of the psychedelic title track and an 11-minute 'live' version of their Eastern-jam Taxim. Indeed, their 'live' performances were quite a show with a belly dancer performing to the latter track and flamenco dancers accompanying their Spanish guitar work. The remainder of the album comprised more traditional country-influenced songs like Greenwood Sidee, Life Will Pass You By, Louisiana Man and the goodtime rag Baldheaded End Of A Broom.

By the time of Incredible Kaleidoscope, Darrow and Vidican had left. Side one of Incredible... opens with the Eastern-influenced Lie To Me and the goodtime rag Let The Good Times Flow. The bluesy Tempe Arizona is followed by the country-influenced Petite Fleur and Banjo. Side two contained the group's arrangement of the traditional ballad Cuckoo and the 11:30 Seven-Ate Sweet.

KALEIDOSCOPE - A Beacon From Mars LP.

However, Bernice was comparatively weak and the group disbanded in 1970. The album was to have included many tracks which were censored by Epic, including three that were removed for taking stands on major political issues of the day, including the Chicago riots.

The group reformed in 1975 for a rather disappointing album When Scopes Collide and again in 1995 for the Greetings From Kartoonistan album.

Kaleidoscope also recorded some pre-Epic demos, which were produced by Curt Boettcher and Victoria Winston. Tantalisingly, these have recently resurfaced and the tape log indicates that the sessions included Down The Line, an early version of Egyptian Gardens, plus a reel apparently containing a number of songs labelled Irish With Sitars.

The first three albums are recommended, but the originals may be difficult to obtain at reasonable prices. More accessible are the CD reissues, and four compilations of their material, including: Sony's Egyptian Candy (CD), Bacon From Mars (Edsel XED 11 5) 1983, which features some of their best short compositions, Rampe Rampe (Edsel ED 138) 1984, which contains most of their longer cuts and 1993's Blues From Baghdad CD (Edsel EDCD 375) 1995, which basically comprised the earlier vinyl compilation Bacon From Mars with four additional tracks:- Beacon From Mars, Seven Ate Sweet, Greenwood Sidee and Rampe Rampe.

Egyptian Candy (CD) compiles tracks from all their albums and contains three previously unreleased cuts Sefan, Love Games and Egyptian Candy and is accompanied by a detailed booklet. Pulsating Dream (3-CD) contains their Epic recordings from 1967 to 1970 including all four of their Epic studio albums. This 45-track set also includes a selection of hard-to-find singles, B-sides and rarities.

Infinite Colours, Infinite Patterns Best Of (CD) is a good 20-track compilation. It features the best tracks from their first three albums and non-album single tracks and comes with informative sleevenotes.

Darrow went on to The Corvettes, who issued two singles and backed Linda Ronstadt for a time. He was with The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, played fiddle on Morning's second album and recorded a number of solo albums. He is still active and has a number of recent releases on the German Taxim label.

Kaleidoscope's other compilation appearances include:- Keep Your Mind Open on Psychedelic Dream (2-LP) and Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); Brother Mary and Mickey's Tune on the Zabriskie Point (LP) soundtrack; Nobody (with Johnny Guitar Watson and Larry Williams) on Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP); You Don't Love Me on Rockbusters (LP); and Pulsating Dream on Where The Action Is! L.A.1965-68 (4-CD box). They also have three live tracks, Oh Death, Taxim and Egyptian Gardens on California Acid Folk (LP). Fans of the band will also want to seek of a free EP which came with 'Ptolemaic Terrascope Magazine No. 12', containing two 1965 acetate tracks by this band - I'm A Hog For You and Little Orphan Annie. (3) reissued as a double album with all three inserts, beautifully reproduced in limited edition, 180gm vinyl (Little Indians No. 2) 1999, later issued as a 2-CD set (Shadoks Music 005) 2000.

Maitreya Kali (real name Craig Smith) left behind two of the rarest and most unusual private pressings from the California rock scene.

Apparently a young man of considerable talent and means with more than a passing interest in rock music, these two albums are collections of recordings he made from the mid-sixties to approximately 1971. Being without much in the way of liner notes or recording dates, much of what is known about the artist and the music on offer has been deduced from the arcane cryptology on the records (which must be seen to be believed). One collector actually managed to get close to finding the mysterious Mr. Smith in the late 1980s, being connected by phone to a gentleman claiming to be the executor of his trust who advised him in no uncertain terms that further pursuit of Mr. Smith would be inadvisable and unproductive. The most recent reports suggest that he is homeless, living on the streets of Los Angeles.

All that aside, these are amazing records that should not be missed by anyone interested in sixties music. Not all of the material is of the same quality, but the earlier-sounding tracks on each album are mind-blowing. These were made with a small, well-rehearsed rock band, and some of them (the ones on the Inca album) were written by Chris Ducey (aka Chris Lucey, aka Bobby Jameson), another Los Angeles-based artist about whom little is known. Knot The Freize is one such track, covering most of Side one of Inca as an intricate, engaging rock-folk suite. It is implied on the cover that this "Rock Opera" was written in 1965 and recorded by Capitol Records with the involvement of Nick Venet! Color Fantasy and Voodoo Spell from Apache are obviously vintage sixties recordings and are the high point of the first release, the former having top-notch production values and being a swirling mass of treated guitars and trippy vocals. Smith apparently decided to switch gears and embrace folk music circa '69 (probably a necessity; the photos on the albums suggest that he travelled the world extensively around the turn of the decade) and roughly half the music on each album is acoustic guitar and vocal. Obviously, this material will be of less interest to readers of this book but these records are highly recommended nevertheless.

Apache was counterfeited circa 1989, and a reissue of Inca followed in the early nineties. The double album version (with all three inserts!) was beautifully reproduced in limited edition by the Little Indians label (No. 2) in 1999. A double CD release was also made available by Shadoks.

In 2004, Sundazed unearthed the mid-sixties studio recordings heard on the Maitreya Kali albums, and issued them on a CD shown as by The Penny Arkade. See their entry for more details.

Craig Smith and Chris Lucey were also responsible for the Chris and Craig Indian-influenced single: Ishall Need You (Capitol 5694) 1966. (CF/VJ)

Stephen John Kalinich (?)

CD: 1 A WORLD OF PEACE MUST COME (Light In The Attic) 2008

This CD gives an airing to an album by a friend of Brian Wilson that was recorded back in 1969 but has remained unreleased until now. Kalinich was a poet with mystical leanings and on this CD he spends most of his time reading his poems over sound effects with the occasional vocal thrown in. There is also the odd recording of Wilson in conversation. The format makes this CD an acquired taste but it will be of some interest to fans of Wilson and Kalinich (VJ)

Greensboro in North Carolina seems to have been home for this band. The album's not essential to fans of garage, psychedelia or hippie-rock, but they do sound competent musicians. They play melodic blues-rock with quite a lot of brass and woodwind and the occasional mellow instrumental like Jimmy's Song and Rainbows. It was presented in a fabulous psychedelic cover. (VJ)

NB: α contains two unreleased tracks from 1966.

From Sandstone, Minnesota The KanDells' Bear single is particularly hard to find, having only been released as a promo single. I Want You To Know was later reissued in the nineties, with a different flip. Cry Girl was originally compiled on Top Teen Bands Vol. 1 (LP).

Pete, Bob and Jay recall: "The name went from Candles to Kandles to KanDells; it may have come from our manager saying we were trying to burn the candle at both ends. We started with the Ventures tunes. Until the Beatles came out, we did mostly instrumentals. Of course, after they hit, everyone had to be a singing band. An English teacher, Noble McVey, from our school kind of looked out after us. Helped us get equipment, gigs, recording time (which we think he paid for), etc. Later, after the usual falling out, Kenny VanDerSchaegen managed us until we broke up".

"We always practiced at Gene's house or the local Youth Center. His family had a large family room and VERY understanding parents. We played mostly at the Youth Center in Sandstone, Minnesota, where we all lived. We even played at the local Federal Prison. In '64 we played at the State Fair, representing B Sharp. That was a blast".

"We recorded at a small basement studio in Minneapolis area, owned by Ron Gjerde, called Agar Records. Cloudburst got air time in Duluth and Cry Girl was played mostly on KDWB in the Cities. Cry Girl got up to No. 10 on the charts. After Cry Girl and Cloudburst were released we branched out a little to St. Cloud, St. Paul, Wilmer - any place that wanted us. We had a fan club in Duluth. That was cool. Heads got a little enlarged from that. We made one more single that never got released. Pete has the only good copy of that".

"Gene wrote Cry Girl. All together we wrote and recorded 11 songs. Bottomless Well, Cloudburst, Cry Girl, Do You Know, I Want You to Know, It Is to Laugh, I've Met Death, Lucky Day, Oh Baby, Shake It Baby, That's All I Want, plus Summertime by Gershwin. Pete has all the songs on tape from the recording studio and there are no live recordings that we know of.

"We played in one 'Battle of the Bands' in Duluth. We came in second to a professional band and lost the recording contract. There were 60 to 80 bands in the event. The band stayed together for most of '66 but then life started to catch up and practices were hard to make."

The band's retrospective compilation appearances include: Cry Girl on Root '66 (LP) and Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP); I Want To Know You on Total Raunch (LP); the previously unreleased I've Met Death on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD); and That's All I Want (also unreleased until now) on Wyld Sydes Volume 5 (CD).

Pete Van Der Schaegen later became an electrician but continued to play in bands. (MW/VJ/PVS)

This mob came out of Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The music is mainly buried beneath the party going on in the studio, a veritable confusion of 'intermissions', noises, quips and general hilarity. They certainly had a lot of recording freedom. One track where they finally come together as an integrated unit is the tough rockin' ode to Jim Morrison suitably titled Morrison. This is followed by the long instrumental freak-out jam Rushes, which builds up to an impressive climax to close the album. Oh yes - the labels on the record are reversed too - so funny! Best avoided. (MW/VJ)

When Barbara Keith and N.D. Smart relocated from Boston to Washington DC, they teamed up with local heroes John Hall and Ted Speleos (ex-British Walkers), who were based in the downtown area. Kangaroo played at the Peppermint Lounge during their short life-span.

Basically their album's a country-rock influenced collection with some rather over-enthusiastic lead guitar. It does have two outstanding tracks which feature the beautiful vocals of Barbara Keith (the only two that do). Certainly it's an album that's worth a listen. John Hall was later with Orleans whilst, prior to Kangaroo N.D. Smart II had played with several bands including The Mark V, The Knights, Thee Rubber Band, The Remains {1966}, The Bait Shop and Bo Grumpus before joining Kangaroo in 1968. Whilst with Kangaroo he met the performance troupe The Hello People at the Cafe Wha and worked with both groups for a while. In 1969 he left to work with Leslie West and was in the initial Mountain line-up, before joining Great Speckled Bird {1969-72}, and its Woodstock based spin-off Hungry Chuck {1971-72}. In 1972, he worked with The Hello People once again.

Barbara Keith wrote Free The People, the Delaney and Bonnie hit and also released two solo albums in 1969 (Verve Forecast) and 1972 (Reprise, with one of the best versions of All Along The Watchtower) and the participation of Lowell George and N.D. Smart II. Ted Speleos later played with Holy Moses. (MWh/VJ/CF/MW/SR/JO)

From Chicago, Illinois this group played an unusual mix of symphonic prog-rock and lounge music, with various covers and some original tracks. Their second album included three substantially re-arranged Beatles covers including a reworking of Eleanor Rigby. The third album Nightbird is sought-after by collectors of the very strange for their humorous cover of King Crimson's Epitaph. Overall, their sound here is essentially cabaret with mellotron and crooning vocals.

Their albums are held in high esteem by collectors of the bizarre. (SR/VJ)

Well you've heard it all now. This New York project is a spoken word album giving 11 steps in how to stage a happening! Kaprow was an influential figure in the emergence of 'happenings' in the early sixties. There's also some poetry in side two! This is now an archive piece.

Although Mass Art originally issued the album in 1966 they promptly went bankrupt meaning that it was not distributed until 1968 when Something Else Press put out a limited reissue.

The 2008 CD reissue is packaged in a hand-silkscreened jewel case that replicates the 1968 cover artwork by Alison Knowles and Something Else Press. (VJ)

Little Rock, Arkansas garage band The Kards performs covers of Yardbirds, Kinks and Animals songs with guitar/bass/drums line-up plus a few instrumentals where saxophone substitutes for lead guitar. It's inept, but charming. Probably only a handful of these were made, as the disc has hand-affixed labels and the jacket is plain white with a business card glued to the front. This 'Bubblegum' rock group was assembled by producers Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz and comprised members from The Ohio Express, Music Explosion and 1910 Fruitgum Company. 'Bubblegum' was a short-lived, but extremely commercially successful fad in America between 1968-69. At its most basic it was characterised by a heavy, repetitive bass beat; simple lyrics and affected nasal vocals. It was particularly successful with teen audiences. Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz are generally credited for inventing the phenomenon and Quick Joey Small with its heavy, repetitive bass beat was one of the better examples of the genre. Like so many other recordings of this ilk it was commercially successful reaching No 25 in the U.S. and No 19 in the UK.

The first album was a fake live album, though oddly the concert was actually recorded and is itself pretty good. The second album also features the Shadows Of Knight. Another album album shown as by Kasenetz-Katz Orchestral Cirkus, called Classical Smoke reputedly sounds uncannily like a Joe Meek record.

Compilation appearances have included: Quick Joey Small on Born Bad (Songs The Cramps Taught Us) (LP) and Pop Explosion (LP); Quick Joey Small, We Can Work It Out and I'm In Love With You all as Kasenetz Katz Super Circus on *Bubble Gum Music Is... Another single thought to be by this band remains unconfirmed - Port Said/So Tough (Peppermint Stick 2034).

Several other Kasuals were around in the mid-to-late sixties, including: a Shamokin, Pennsylvania vocal/doo-wop pop band who had singles on Kingston and Cameo and were known latterly as D'Kool & The Kasuals; a Texan band, whose unheard single on a Dallas label has encouragingly garage-sounding titles - Girl (You Better Stop Your Lying)/You're Gonna Break My Heart (Spotlite SP 2001); and a bunch from Hawaii with no confirmed releases. ALBUM: 1(A) BLACK KANGAROO (Grunt FRT-1006) 1972

45: Prisoner/Dynamo Stranger (Grunt 65 0507) 1972

Brother of Jorma, Peter Kaukonen released his first solo album in 1972 on Jefferson Airplane's label, Grunt. Black Kangaroo is a very convincing attempt at producing a Hendrix style album, a bit like Randy California's Kaptain Kopter or Velvert Turner's output. Up Or Down, Prisoner and Dynamo Snackbar are filled with electric guitar solos while Barking Dog Blues is a country-blues track with funny lyrics. Peter Kaukonen wrote all the songs and produced the album. It's definitely worth a spin.

In the late seventies Kaukonen was still playing concerts in the Bay Area with his band, billed simply as Black Kangaroo.

Joe Covington had previously played and recorded with The Vibratones: the 'Airplane and the original Hot Tuna line-up. Mark Ryan played with Quicksilver and Bodacious D.F. Larry Weisberg would later join Spirit. Nick Buck had previously played with Peter Green and would later play in Hot Tuna and SVT. Peter had previously been in the band Petrus who recorded an unreleased single for A&M. Peter had also been called upon to replace Bob Harvey in the Jefferson Airplane, but his parents wouldn't let him drop out of school! (Jack Casady was the second choice). Peter then played short stints with Johnny Winter as "Albino Kangaroo" (bootleg CDs of that band exist), Hot Tuna, and was the first Jefferson Starship bass player, being asked to leave the band before the first album was recorded. He later played with Grace Slick (Manhole, 1974) and Terry Allen (Juarez, 1975). He also released two cassettes in the eighties. (SR/HS)

THE KEEPERS.

Richard Keelan came from Detroit, Michigan. He will be known to readers for his work with The Spike Drivers (1965-1967). This album pre-dates that era, having been recorded in September 1964, according to the handwritten notes on the jacket. This is an early underground folk/acoustic blues album, with covers of Leadbelly's Easy Rider (the original composition, not the re-interpreted hippie-era version I Know You Rider), Fred Neil's That's The Bag I'm In, Summertime, and Mose Allison's Parchman Farm. There's also a few originals, including a long eastern instrumental called Interpretations Of Raga. To my ears, it's the album Davy Graham would have made at this time if he was an American.

Keelan went on to The Spike Drivers, The Misty Wizards, and then moved to Canada and founded The Perth County Conspiracy. He was also involved with Jan & Lorraine, writing songs for their ABC album. (CF)

A Canarsie, New York band, The Keepers sole single has come to the attention of compilers. She Understands, a frantic beat number, has appeared on Brain Shadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). The forlorn Lost Love has also resurfaced on Leaving It All Behind (LP).

Barry Drimmer: "I joined in 1964 at the age of 14, and the band was together from 1963 to 1966. We were quite well known in Brooklyn throughout these years, playing all over the borough, at the Flatbush Terrace (a great concert hall run by Mike Gaynor), and at the Midwood Friendship Club where we opened for a young Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels. The band also got to perform at the Canarsie movie theater opening up for the 'A Hard Days Night' film. In 1965 we cut an acetate as Five Against The World (a brief alter ego suggested by a hot shot management team in Manhattan)."

Barry Drimmer also played in a Brooklyn band called Southern Socket with Jagged Edge member Art Steinman. (MW/BD)

Detroit high school quartets, The Keggs were strongly influenced by The Kinks. We're talking crude but powerful garage punk here. They recorded the single in a seedy part of Detroit in July 1967, only to discover the studio burnt to the ground in the Detroit race riots a couple of weeks later. Fortunately a tape was salvaged and the band pressed up a few copies for their friends.

Keith (real name James Barry Keefer) was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania on 17 May 1949. He is best remembered for 98.6 which became a million selling single worldwide.

The story goes that he secured a recording contract after camping on the doorstep of A&R executive Jerry Ross. It worked and a single emerged in 1966, Caravan Of Lonely Men that was credited to Keith and The Admirations, but it passed unnoticed at the time. Ross then switched to Mercury Records taking Keefer with him.

Keith's first solo single for Mercury Ain't Gonna Lie was a minor hit that just made the US Top 40. The follow-up 98.6 became a million seller worldwide, climbing to No. 7 in the US and spending 14 weeks in the Billboard charts. It also reached No. 24 in the UK. Produced by Jerry Ross and written by Tony Powers and George Fischoff, this pop-psych gem is possibly a little forgotten now. The Tokens appeared as backing singers on both his first two singles.

He enjoyed two further hits but his second album bombed and he was arrested for draft evasion mid-tour and stationed in New Jersey for a year. He then switched to RCA and recorded a rock concept album about the life of a blind boy Charley Cinders that was released within a month of The Who's Tommy! The album was a blend of sixties garage-rock and British pop with a psych taint. Songs like Alone On the Shore and Trixon's Election are quite sophisticated pop tunes, Waiting To Be is a psychedelic jam and Elea-Elea is another epic track. Sadly, it was released about a year too late.

In 1973 he joined Zappa's touring band and worked as a vocalist in the line-up before dropping out of the rock scene for a while.

He returned in 1986 with an unsuccessful comeback album recorded under his own name. He then established A.I.R. Records in Redondo Beach, California the same year and produced a number of albums for local musicians. In the nineties he moved into TV and he still plays live.

Ain't Gonna Lie has got a further airing on Nuggets Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP). (VJ)

NB: α shown as by Barbara Keith and Kangaroo. β are non album tracks. There's also a French 45 with PS, All Along The Watchtower/Free The People (Reprise 14240) 1973.

The brilliant vocalist of Kangaroo, Barbara Keith, originally from Boston went solo in 1969 and her first album was produced in New York by Peter Asher (ex-Peter and Gordon). Still working with N.D. Smart from her previous group, she was also backed by Jim Colegrove (Bo Grumpus), Jeff Gutcheon (Great Jones), Bill Keith (Jim Kweskin Jug Band) and Richard Curtis. All her material was original, in a folk-rock vein with country-rock influences, nice vocals and strong instrumental parts, the highlights being My Easy Days and The Big Black Deep, with some additional vocals by the mysterious "Little Sabre". The album unfortunately suffers a bit from the similarity of several slow tracks.

Her song Free The People became a hit for Delaney and Bonnie but she had to wait nearly three years to see the release of her second album. Produced by Larry Marks (Phil Ochs, Thirty Days Out), her vocals were still beautiful and her backing group included Lowell George, Spooner Oldham, Danny Kootch and Lee Sklar. The material, penned by Barbara Keith and D. Dibbles, is mainly in the country-rock style but this album is worth hearing for the exceptional electric version of Dylan's All Along The Watchtower, with Tony Peluso (Abstracts) and David Cohen (Country Joe and The Fish) on guitars. Other highlights include Free The People and Detroit Or Buffalo.

Barbara Keith then apparently stopped her career, but re-surfaced a few years ago fronting a rock-n-roll outfit: The Stone Coyotes. Based out of Greenfield, Massachussetts they comprise of Keith (gtr, vcls), her husband Doug Tibbles (drums) and step-son John Tibbles (bs). They describe their music as "Patsy Cline meets AC/DC" and that's not too far off the mark. So far they've released three CDs.

This East Coast singer songwriter went largely unnoticed at the time but his two albums are worth a spin. The first one is folk-psych with almost whispered vocals. Songs range from Dylanesque ballads to the monster cut

The Man Is Dead (6:56) with fuzz guitar. Other cuts include High Flyin' Mama, Childhood's Hour, and a cover of Rhinoceros' Apricot Brandy.

Danny Federici went on to play with Bruce Springsteen and The E Street Band.

Housed in a nice textured cover, Dealer's Blues is, as its title indicates, more blues-oriented and is a superb album combining blues, folk and rock. It was produced by Richard Gottehrer (ex-Strangeloves). (SR)

MILTON KELLEY - Milton Kelley's Home Brew LP.

45s: Love For A Price/Never (Lucky Sounds LS-1006) 1966
Love For A Price/Never (Romunda P-1/2) 1966

This Dallas outfit's finest moment was Love For A Price, which they got to record after winning first place in a Gibsons' Discount Center's 'Battle Of The Bands' contest. Shortly after, they also got to perform it on Ron Chapmen's "Sumpin' Else" TV show. The two versions of the single feature different versions of both tracks, with the Romunda recording of Love For A Price including an additional blistering guitar break.

Line-up 'A' features the band's main personnel circa 1966/67, although during their four year lifetime, some members did change. One such member, E. Pat Davidson, went on to record a solo single, Fools Pride/Stay With Me (Sevens International 11005).

The band originated in Oak Cliff, Texas when Gary Seals and Dean Brown got together with their guitars in junior high school. Dean: - "I was 13 and he was 15. We found a drummer and entered a 'Battle Of The Bands' at our local Montgomery Wards store, but lost to Jimmy Vaughn's band, The Pendulums. They were good and deserved to win. After that we played school parties and dances as The Guardians for about a year. Gary Kemp (Kempy) Rawlings was at one of our parties and sang a song with us. He sang so well we asked him to join and we became Kempy and The Guardians. We eventually graduated from school parties and roller rinks to playing several local teenage clubs in the North Dallas area".

Kempy left the band sometime around 1968, but the band continued as The Guardians with Larry Samford switching from bass and vocals to lead vocals and David Johnson coming in on bass. This form of the Guardians lasted about a year or so, but by the time they had graduated from high school it was all but over.

Dean Brown still performs to this day, whilst Alan Roth became a local police officer.

Compilation coverage has included:- Love For A Price (Romunda version) on Flashback, Vol. 6 (LP), Sixties Archive Vol. 2 (CD) and Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 2 (LP); Love For A Price (Lucky Sounds version) on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 17 (LP); and both versions appear on Texas Punk From The Sixties (LP). This was a raucous L.A.-based punk band. Ken (alias Kenneth Johnson) was a Los Angeles producer and writer for many obscure bands, including Limey and the Yanks and The Avengers who recorded on the Star-burst label owned by his father. This particular single featured Ken Johnson backed by The Trippers.

Like some other punk bands they set out as a surf band The Rockets and then changed names to Ken and The Ho-Dads issuing a surf instrumental single Surf Dance, before getting into punk.

Compilation appearances include: See If I Care on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP), Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); and Rovin' Heart on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW)

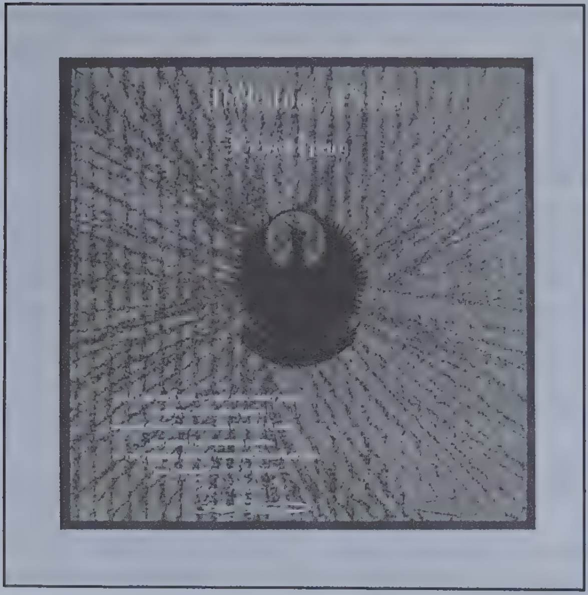
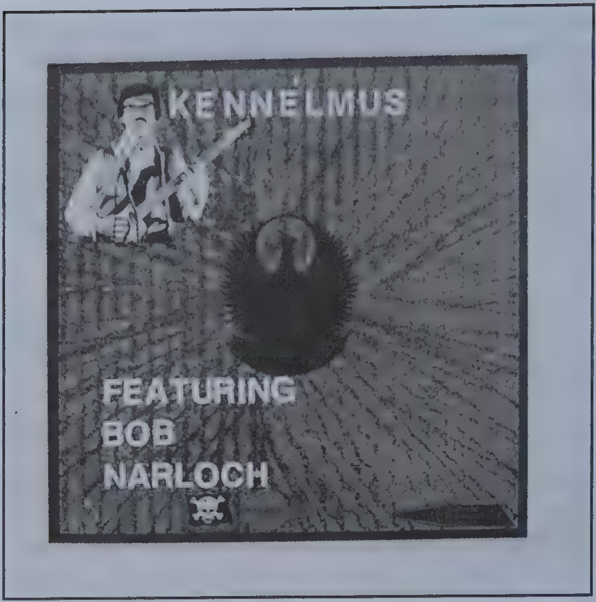
From Phoenix, Arizona Ken Walker and Bob Narloch played as a duo originally in the sixties. Kennélmus was formed in 1970 and their two albums were recorded between 1970-72 in recording engineers' Chuck Hauke's studio using two Ampex 351-2 two track recorders. Even the Rockadelic reissue of the first album is becoming hard to find. This is the better of the two. Side one of the album is instrumental and while some of the tracks are in a primitive hard-rock style not unlike Hootch, others are very dense and beautiful. The vocal tracks are very quirky and strangely recorded - it's clear that Kennélmus spent a great deal of time knob-twiddling in the studio! While the results are obviously mixed, the album is recommended.



KENNÉLMUS - Folkstone Prism LP.



KENNÉLMUS - Beyond Folkstone Prism LP.

A number of additional musicians assist on the second album, which includes a couple of adequate Dylan covers, I'll Be Your Baby Tonight and On The Road Again, four Bob Narloch originals and three penned by Chuck Hauke among others. Of these, Pickers On A Guitar has a strong country feel. The most psychedelic is Chuck Hauke's Black Sunshine with some groovy guitar work and for me this is the stand-out track. Rather disappointing overall. The six single tracks are non-album cuts or different versions. (CF/VJ)

One of Texas' finest sixties bands, they were reputedly playing at the La Fontaine Club in Dallas one night as The Illusion Combo (another of their early names was The Ken Daniel Combo) when Mark Lee walked in and told them that they were now called Kenny And The Kasuals and he was their manager. Their first three singles on Lee's label attracted little attention but during 1966 they started playing at the Studio Club in Dallas and the same year they recorded their first album just to be sold there as a promotion gimmick. It begins with a guy answering the telephone with music in the background telling a caller that Kenny And The Kasuals are playing the Studio Club that evening. In fact it was not a live album at all - it was the result of one afternoon's work in a recording studio, but it captured the band playing cover versions of some of the popular songs of the time like Gloria, Baby Please Don't Go, You Better Move On, Money, and All Day And All The Night. Just 500 copies were pressed in mono and around 400 sold, but it gradually acquired a legendary reputation among record collectors and by the mid-seventies copies were changing hands for megabucks hence its eventual reissue in 1977.

After its release Jerry Smith replaced Tommy Nichols on lead guitar and started writing songs with Kenny. Their next single, Raindrops To Teardrop was a local hit as was the follow-up Journey To Tyme, which marked their progression from punk to psychedelia and told the story of an acid trip. This was leased to United Artists for nationwide distribution. After a further, equally good single, See Saw Ride they headed to New York with a new line-up. Jerry Smith, realising his limitations on lead guitar had switched to rhythm and Richard Bergens (previously with The Briks) filled the resulting vacancy. The organist, Paul Roach, also left because he didn't want to leave Dallas that summer. They failed to make the break in New York, where Kenny and Richard Bergens were constantly arguing. Soon after their return from New York in September 1967 their fate was arguably sealed when Kenny got drafted, although they renamed themselves The Truth and soldiered on for a while releasing one further single. Unfortunately their name was confused with the title of Jeff Beck's album and the single flopped. Kenny did return to make a farewell appearance with the band at the 'Flower Fair', a big show in Dallas in April 1968.

KENNY AND THE KASUALS - Teen Dreams LP.

In 1977 their first album was reissued and the following year Kenny and Jerry Smith reformed the band with a new line-up (D). They recorded a new album, Garage Kings, and The Kasuals Are Back (EP). In 1978 a compilation of their singles and some unreleased cuts was issued, Teen Dreams. Many collectors find this collection of beat, garage and quasi-psych tracks more interesting than their 'live' album. In Europe this was circulated as the 'lost Electric Prunes LP'!

Both of the Eva releases are worth checking out. Nothing Better To Do contains their six singles and the Truth single. Things Get Better included The Gator Shades Blues Band's Down In Mexico and previously unissued material and outtakes. (The Gator Shades Blues Band was a short-lived venture which consisted of The Kasuals minus Kenny. Their Down In Mexico single had a limited pressing of 100). The recent limited edition release 1966-1968 The Singles... Plus contains some well-crafted and melodic released and unreleased pop singles.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Journey To Tyme on Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD), Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box) and Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD); and Everybody's Making It on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD). Bells is a lovely, ethereal electric folk composition with male and female tandem vocals that wouldn't sound out of place on the debut It's A Beautiful Day album, except for the constant Plastic Cloud-style fuzz guitar laid on top of it! Movin' On is more standard sixties garage rock. This was the final incarnation of a band from Millbrae, California on the San Francisco peninsula. They'd started circa 1964 as The Black Knights, released two singles in 1965 as The Banshees, and another in 1966 as The Ariel.

NB: promo-only sampler EP in PS, which was actually a folded 14" X 14" poster of the Acid Test album cover art.

This guy who was based in La Honda, California was one of the gurus of the psychedelic culture. His album was an extract of the original Acid Test and seeks to probe the psychedelic experience with help from The Grateful Dead, whose entry includes much more information about his relationship with them. The original album is now a rare and expensive item. A promo EP was culled from the album and released along with a poster. The reissue on Psycho was a limited pressing of just 300 and is becoming rare too.

The Fan Club release and CD-R present extracts from the San Francisco State Acid Test that was held in October 1966. It mostly features Kesey with some trippy music too. (VJ/MW)

45: Don't Crowd Me/Sunshine Morning (some PS) (MTW 102) 1968

This mid-sixties garage-sounding single was the work of an outfit from Renton, Washington; based in Seattle's University District. Don't Crowd Me is superb, quintessential garage-punk and became a favourite of the eighties-nineties retro-garage generation, covered by the likes of The Outta Place (We're Outta Place LP, 1984), The Choice (Right Now LP, 1992), Falling Spikes (Teen Trash 10 LP, 1994) and The Fiends (Teen Trash 12 LP, 1994).

This is a privately-pressed effort from Claymont, Delaware by a male/female hippie-rock folk duo, Kevin and Clare Sarkissian. Most of the album features soft close-knit harmonies hovering over jangly guitars, with good acoustic leads. The lyrics are contemplative with song titles like Jesus For A Token Dime and Tuesday Or Any Other Feeling Blue Day, which contains some Dylan-ish harmonica from Kevin. The album spans a range of moods: Crucifixion is solemn, Beloved Son exudes enthusiasm and For The Ones I Love is fragile. Piano is added, in addition to guitars, on I've Been A Sinner and the title track. (VJ)

The Keyes evolved in 1965 out of two local Louisville groups, The Moments and Doc Strange and The Lovers. In August 1965 they had a local hit with Barbara, a song about a girl from Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The band took a spring break there between 1964-68. In late 1965 Art Mengel replaced Bill Blincoe on drums and Larry Oeswein came in on lead vocals for Wayne MacDonald.

The catchy follow-up She's The One gave them another local hit. The flip side I Can't Win For Losing featured Larry Oeswein on lead vocals. By 1966 the British Invasion was in full swing and the liner notes to the above Gear Fab CD say that The Keyes, along with The Cosmo and The Counts were the only Louisville bands that didn't follow this trend. Larry Oeswein was a good soul singer and the only UK group they did cover was The Spencer Davis Group whose material really suited Larry's vocals.

In 1968 Bobby Ernspiker replaced Chris Becker on organ and Charles Jones came in on drums for Art Mengel. This line-up recorded the Heart Of A Child single. Then in late 1968 Jones and Ernspiker both left to be replaced by Mike Fess and Paul Hoerni respectively. In May 1969, Jim Owen was drafted and Duke Freeman came in on bass. Around the same time Stuart Paine replaced Paul Hoerni on organ. This line-up recorded a gorgeous version of Janis Ian's Society's Child. It's a lovely arrangement with orchestra strings and became their fourth single.

This retrospective CD compiles all the recordings of this Louisville, Kentucky band that started out as a Beach Boys style frat band whose sound was epitomised by She's The One, the opening track on the collection. They later evolved into quite an interesting harmony-pop and folk-rock band and their later recordings are in a more soulful-rock style - Are You Lonely For My Baby features a good vocal performance. Several members of The Oxfords formed the rhythm section of this number.

You can also check out She's The One on Realities In Life (LP). (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 KEYMEN LIVE (Goldust LPS-153) 1968 SC

NB: There's also a retrospective CD The Keymen-Surf Party A Go-Go! (Collectables COL-0685) 1996 that features part of the above album plus some bonus tracks.

45: Walkin' Talkin'/What Am I To Do (PS) (Goldust 5019) 1967

The Keymen was generally recognised as the premiere band in Las Cruces, New Mexico throughout the sixties. The Collectables CD serves as an overview of the band's total output, and includes some early surf instrumentals, such as A Yank In London and Thunder Bay; some standard cover versions of popular tunes, such as Little Latin Lupe Lu and the Miracle's Shop Around; the band's only single, released in 1967; a couple of unreleased recordings; and four songs from The Keymen's live album, recorded in 1968. Not garage or psych, and probably best avoided.

ALBUM: 1(A) LEVEL 6 ½ (w/inserts) (LPL WFC-892) 1970 R4

NB: (1) originally limited to 180 copies. The album was later pirated in the late eighties (LPL) 198? in a black and white cover. (1) also reissued on vinyl (Void VOID 43) 2007 in a limited edition of 800 copies with one bonus track. (1) also reissued (in part) on CD in the nineties by the band as Encore! (Fellowship Of Ring FRCD-001) 1995 with eight bonus tracks autographed and limited to 600 copies.

From Morton Grove, Illinois this band took its name from the mountain, "Khazad Dûm" in J.R.R. Tolkien's 'Lord Of The Rings' trilogy. A progressive rather than psychedelic or garage album, it's quite an interesting listen if you can get the reissue CD but don't fork out megabucks for an original. The finer moments include Nothing To Fear, quite a commercial song with appealing vocals and lots of atmosphere; In This World, a melodic harmony soft-rock song and Excerpt From The Hunters, The Prelude, a long progressive piece with lots of keyboards.

The group had its roots in an act called The Laymen, who formed back in 1964 and graduated from surf through soul to mild psychedelia. In late '69 they changed name to Khazad Doom, which with its Tolkien reference, reflected their penchant for concept-laden song-writing. Their Level 6 1/2 album, which was recorded in Chicago and Gary, Indiana, was named after the seven internal levels of Tolkien's "Khazad Dûm" mountain, but modified slightly, to show that "there was still room for them to grow...".

Gigging at local teen clubs around Illinois, they also were featured in the Chicago "Walk For Hunger", where 15,000 people gathered in a parking lot in Skokie, Illinois one Saturday morning to walk 20 miles on behalf of the hungry.

The Encore CD retrospective includes two tracks by The Laymen recorded in '68, most of their Level 6 ½ album, and five tracks recorded in 1971, shortly before a band disagreement caused them to split. One of these 1971 cuts, Stanley's Visit To Kerkle Morff, is a 12-minute epic telling in three acts how Stanley invents and builds a flying machine, flys to Kerkle Morff, and eventually becomes King. With a catchy beat and original narrative, the track is a reminiscent of Caravan's In The Land Of Grey And Pink. In fact the band used to help audiences understand the intricacies of the piece by handing out pamphlets explaining the storyline! The Encore CD also features a track by Jack Eadon from 1978, and all the bonus material is in a similar vein to the original release.

In 2001, Jack Eadon's autobiographical "Got To Make It" was published by Vantage Press. A kind of "That Thing You Do" but without the Hollywood glitz, the book is an eloquent account of how the band evolved throughout the sixties, from their earliest instrumental days as The Vibratos through to the early seventies. It is as much a study of the times and the changing relationships between family and friends, as it is about Khazad Doom and it could easily be the story of many of the bands included here in "Fuzz"... Groups that caught the 'Beatles' bug and reached for the sky. Almost inevitably, their big break was always just out of their grasp, but Jack's discovery some 25 years later of the collectors' circuit and amazement that copies of Level 6 1/2 were circulating in Europe is quite heart-warming. Overall a worthwhile read! (VJ/IT)

In 1966 they recorded a cover of the Who's Substitute and Boyce-Hart's She but no record deal or release happened and the band splintered in 1967. 45: Nature's Children/This Girl She's Mine (Laurel 1096) 1968

Came out of Fall River, Massachusetts with a typical garage-punker soaked in plenty of fuzz, snotty vocals and anti-social lyrics, called Nature's Children. If it sounds a little familiar then it's because the track was later recorded by Tangerine Zoo.

Though not an earlier incarnation of the Tangerine Zoo, as was previously thought, The Kidds did indeed have a connection to the better known Mainstream recording artists. In addition to recording Nature's Child, a tune written by the Zoo's Ron Medeiros and Don Smith, The Kidds line-up included Louie and Stevie Benevides, cousins to Bob Benevides, guitarist for Tangerine Zoo. The Kidds were a seven-man band, and included three horn players, guitar, bass, drums and an organ.

Nature's Children has been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP) and Pebbles Vol. 10 (CD). (MW/MM/MDo/BBs)

The Kidds out of Beaumont, Texas played extensively in Texas and Louisiana in the mid to late sixties. They were a good show/cover band popular with the high school and college crowds, primarily booked and promoted by Al Caldwell of KAYC radio. They were due to record a single, Down To Middle Earth, but the line-up 'A' dissolved before they reached the studio.

After another Beaumont act, SJ and The Crossroads split, two members, Johnny Serio and Glen Moyer joined The Kidds. This incarnation was short-lived, however, as Johnny soon joined the coast guard to avoid going to Vietnam. (IT/JSt/GMr)

(stereo/mono) (promo-only) (Cream 7612) 1976

This California band was formed in 1975 by former Steve Miller Band members Dicky Thompson and John King. They signed with Alvin Bennett's Cream Records in late 1975 and began working on their self-titled debut with producer Hal Winn at the helm. It may interest fans of funk and hard-rock. One cut, Uphill Peace Of Mind, was sampled and used by Dr. Dre (Nuttin But A G Thang) and Ultramagnetic MC's (Feelin' It) many years later. It was released in January 1976.

Their second album was privately released. It includes remakes of two songs on their debut. Most collectors favour this release, as it's a bit harder-edged than the Cream label album. (VJ)

According to Pat Kilroy's liner notes he was influenced by writers like Herman Hesse, Aldous Huxley, and George Gurdjieff, making his album literally interesting to this book. All compositions were by Pat Kilroy and the album was recorded over a period of months at Elektra's New York studios, with a break in the middle during which Kilroy and Graubard travelled to the UK and Europe in search of artistic inspiration. Upon their return in July, 1966 they completed the album by adding The Fortune Teller, Vibrations and Star Dance. The album contains a mix of folk, strumming blues and some Eastern moves with lots of tabla. Kilroy had a very improvised, unusual vocal style that pre-dated Tim Buckley's similarly avant-garde approach by two years. The final track, Star Dance, would have been at home on an Incredible String Band album. The best tracks are probably the dreamy/trippy folk songs, but the album is a highly original work and adventurous listeners will appreciate much of its content.

The band proper was augmented by several studio pros. Best known amongst the supporting cast is Stefan Grossman (earlier in Even Dozen Jug Band) and Eric Kaz. Eric Kaz and Marc Silber crossed the divide from folk to folk-rock when they teamed up with the Traum brothers (Artie & Happy) to form the short-lived Children Of Paradise, who evolved into Bear (without Happy). From there Kaz moved on to the Blues Magoos.

Kilroy and Graubard recorded a second album in 1967 as The New Age. Graubard played on Robbie Basho's album The Falconer's Arm.

Kilroy passed away in December 1967. (CP/MW)

From Los Angeles, Kindred played an early seventies Californian sound with strong female/male vocals and good keyboards and guitar parts. Their main attractions were their blonde singer, Gloria Grinel-Gaione, their guitarist Bobby Cochran (ex-Don Preston and The South) and David Bluefield on keyboards.

Their discography began with a good single penned by Sandi Szigeti, who co-produced it with Steve Braverman. After another non-album single produced by Mike Melvoin and Braverman, their first album was released in 1971. Produced by Chuck Negron of Three Dog Night; it offered eight original tracks penned by Bluefield or Cochran, with the help of Mark Elder (for Great Day), Brent and Bobby Seawell (Movin' On and Everything Is For Now) and two covers: Too Many People written by Lydia Pense of Cold Blood and the funny Captain Bobby Stout (I came down to Wichita town, a pocket full of Mexican smoke, I sold it to a man I did not know, Captain Stout done found me, now I stay here in jail) composed by Lane Tietgen of The Serfs. The result is pleasant but not really distinctive.

Their drummer, Ron Grinel then left the group and became a session man (he would work with Joe Walsh and the Souther Hillman Furay Band). Jimmy Erickson replaced him and Gloria Grinel became Gloria Gaione. Produced by James Dennis Bruton, Next Of Kin was much better, being more rock-oriented. Three tracks were penned by Bluefield, two penned by Cochran with Casey Van Beek (another ex-member of The South) and several covers: One More River To Cross composed by Daniel Moore, two L. Goldsmith songs and another song titled Movin' On, this time written by Michael Smotherman of Buckwheat.

Overall this is recommended for fans of Smith or Stoneground.

Bobby Cochran later played with Steppenwolf and The Flying Burrito Bros. (VJ)

Their music fits somewhere between Fischbach & Ewing's A Cid Symphony, Gabriel Gladstar, and the second Mighty Baby album. The album was issued in a lovely paste-on cover. The single cuts are non-album but are in a straight country direction.

KINDRED SOULS - Self Titled LP.

From Houghton on Michigan's Upper Peninsula, this popular club band was a fixture on the local scene for a few years. Originally christened Kinetic Energy, the band was also known as The Kinetics and were so billed on their debut single in the spring of 1965. Later, to avoid confusion with same-name outfits, they were dubbed The Five Kinetics on their 1966 album, before reverting to Kinetic Energy for their final shot at the big-time in 1968. Their energy ran out in 1969.

The album on vanity label RPC showcased their competent and adventurous repertoire of covers. They tackle Question Mark and The Mysterians' 96 Tears, The Hollies' Bus Stop, and a unique interpretation of the 13th Floor Elevators' You're Gonna Miss Me with a lot of distorted guitar. There's some really cheesy organ on this album too.

Both sides of their 1965 debut single have been compiled as have several cuts from the album:- I'm Blue on Off The Wall, Vol. 11 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 7 (CD); both I'm Blue and Feeling From My Heart on When The Time Run Out (LP & CD); Feeling From My Heart on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD); You're Gonna Miss Me on Wyld Sydes Volume 1 (CD); Bus Stop on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD); and Little Girl and Put Your Lovin' On Me on Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD). This rare and excellent psych/heavy blues album was produced by Denny King, Dillard Crume and Alex St.Clair. Recorded at White Tree Studios, Palmdale, California the liner notes written by Dr. Demento (Barry Hansen) are explicit about its content: "From the California high desert to your own sweet magic mind - may we present the blues band that makes you smile, Denny King and his B.O.Boogie Band. Yes sir, it's the true blues this King sings, while the B.O. blows a blue norther of sneaky slide guitar and howling harp. But there ain't no bringdowns in this here blues. May the truth be told - Denny has the greatest laugh on records! The High Desert is where the real funky sounds of southern California come from. It's the primeval home of Beefheart and Zappa. Right now Denny King is the magic man, and he's called out the meanest cats between Lancaster and Mojave and recorded them right there on the desert, just to bring some sunshine soul into your heavy head. Touch your strongest stylus to these growling grooves and you'll soon know why they call that place the High Desert!"

The songs are really nice and often funny: Evil Wind Is Blowing, Sunday Driver, Boogie Man, Bessie Mae... All the tracks were composed by Dennis King except Lucille (Penniman/Collins) and Desert Sand (King/A St. Claire). Alex St Claire and Doug Moon were previously were in Captain Beefheart's Magic Band and Greg Hampton was in Merrell and The Exiles circa 1964/65.

Denny King was a native of Milwaukee, Wisconsin and his real name was Ottenbacher. His first group was The Darnells (aka Denny and The Darnells) who lasted from 1959 until the end of 1963. The final line-up included a young drummer called Gary Myers. King settled in Los Angeles in the mid-sixties. He did session work for The Monkees and joined the Marketts for their final 1966 album. He was also in Carmel Covered Popcorn. He then moved into business; first he started a booking agency, then he built a considerably successful business importing medical supplies. Sadly Denny King died of a massive heart attack in April 2000. (SR/GM)

In addition to releases as The Windsors (on Wig-Wag, 1959) and Robin Young & Ronnie King (Luanda, 1963), he put out a couple of solo rockabilly singles before embracing the sixties British Invasion sounds. For Girl, Break Away he adopted a swingin' beat style with atmospheric keyboards - like a frat-house version of the Animals.

According to Mike Kuzmin's Pennsylvania discography, 'Sounds From The Woods' Ronnie King was still residing in Washington, Pennsylvania in the mid-nineties and running his own recording studio.

	Lost In The Shuffle/Hardly (Part 3)	(RCA Victor 47-8979) 1966

The King Bees were a little ahead of their time, playing the blues in New York City before it became popular there. They recorded three singles for RCA between autumn 1965 and late 1966, which consequently were not successful. Perhaps their best effort was Lost In The Shuffle, a cool blues number structured around the organ and deliberate vocals.

Frustrated by their lack of success, The King Bees split in the autumn of 1966. Kortchmar and O'Brien joined James Taylor and The Flying Machine and in 1970 formed Jo Mama, whilst John McDuffy replaced Al Kooper in The Blues Project. Kortchmar also played with The Fugs and with The City and later became a renowned session man.

	Courtship Of Priscilla Brown/ Now Baby I Love You	(KBE 45-KBE-1) 1968
	Rollin' Free Man/Sunset Blues	(Revue R-11066) 1969

A popular late sixties Portland, Oregon band which evolved out of an outfit called Genesis. Kennedy, Ashley and Huyche had also all previously played in The Wilde Knights and Ron Overman had once been in Don and The Goodtimes. The name change from Genesis to The King Biscuit Entertainers came about when Mark Whitman, a flashy guitarist, was added to the initial quartet. After they had recorded the two singles for Burdette, Ron Overman was drafted. The KBE release was on their own label and Revue was a R&B subsidiary of Uni Records whose Russ Regan had heard a demo tape of the band and signed them up as a token white act. The record stiffed and shortly after Mark Whitman left. His replacement Neil Anderson had previously been in The Bootmen and The Wailers. With a slightly modified line-up they went on to record as American Cheese.

Now, Baby I Love You can also be heard on Rough Diamonds: The History of Garage Band Music, Vol. 7 (LP), which includes detailed sleevenotes by Greg Shaw about The King Biscuit Entertainers and the bands that preceded them. According to these Kennedy was working in a record pressing plant in L.A., Scott Ashley now lives in South Carolina where he was active in the music scene and Roger Huyche drove a bus in Seattle. Mark Whitman was playing in The Mark Whitman Band.

You'll also find Take My Thoughts Away on Acid Dreams, Vol. 3 (LP) and Stormy on Incredible Sound Show Stories 11 (LP). (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl and CD (Akarma AK 031) 1999.

45:	If I Never Was To See Her Again/ Seven Fathoms Deep	(Specialty 722) 1970

Kingdom came from southern California, near Los Angeles. A West Coast heavy psychedelic rock outfit with two lead guitars and pretty incisive they are too at times. All bar one song (Seasons) were written by Jim Potkey. If you're into lots of heavy guitar work side one's for you, but aside from the two single cuts the material's rather samey. Seven Fathoms Deep has a melodramatic intro and If I Was Never To See Her Again was altogether more commercial. Side two is more interesting and includes the magnum opus Prelude with some interesting percussion and the extended tour-de-force finale Morning Swallow. This is worth investigation.

The single features abridged versions of album tracks. The Akarma reissue of their album includes both sides of their single. (CF/VJ/MW)

After Boffalongo's second album, David Robinson, Lance Hoppen and Wells Kelly teamed up with some other New York musicians and moved to Europe. They spent nearly two years in England and France where they recorded some singles on French labels. Originally known as Chin, they finally became King Harvest.

They also recorded an album as E. Rodney Jones And The Prairie Dogs for Concert Hall, a small French budget label. It includes a new version of Dancing In The Moonlight (a song also on Boffalongo's second album), covers of Tony Joe White's Roosevelt And Ira Lee, Creedence's Lodi and the Beatles' Get Back plus several originals. Their good guitarist, Eddie Tuleja, also played with US bluesmen like Willie Mabon for their recordings on French labels.

In 1971, the band recorded music for the soundtrack of the French film 'Le Feu Sacre', which was given an airing at the 1971 Cannes Film Festival.

Partly recorded in France, their Dancing In The Moonlight album was released in the USA by Jimmy Curtiss' Perception label. It's a decent rock effort, containing a new recording of the title track, some prog-rock and hard-blues songs (She Keeps Me High, I Can Tell), an adaptation of Ennio Morricone but also some lame fillers. After more singles and a second album, the group disbanded and the musicians returned to the USA.

Ronnie Altbach and Eddie Tuleja would later work with Mike Love and Dennis Wilson (Beach Boys). In 1975 the Hoppen Brothers would form Orleans with John Hall (ex-Kangaroo). (SR)

A West Virginian high school quintet from Point Pleasant, whose sole single was released on the short-lived, Milton-based Plato label. Atmospheric keyboards add a funfair flavour to the restrained I Get A Feeling, compiled on Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP/CD). Girl is a forlorn last-dance ballad with cinema-organ vibes as a backdrop. 	Moonbeam (vocal version)/ ??	(Jyck 102) 199?

Starting as an instrumental outfit in Albuquerque, New Mexico they hit big locally with Precision, a catchy Ventures-style instrumental with piano, which the majors failed to pick up. Led by Dick 'King Richard' Stewart, who wrote their material, they graduated to a vocal rockin'-frat-rock-garage style in 1964 and so it's the three Delta singles that are of the most interest to us. Their new style was an updated U.S. sound rather than British-Invasion influenced. It was a crisp clean sound and the odd use of sax points to their rock and instrumental roots. The vocals too are clean sounding and more like the Everlys than the Beatles. No dirty 'longhair' sounds in the Stones or Animals vein, though Why treads close in its mean'n'moodiness. Other highlights are I Want To Love You with its Louie Louie beat, and a catchy That's The Way It Goes which has a country-pickin' air.

The Knights
I don't need you

KING RICHARD AND THE KNIGHTS - I Don't Need You LP.

Drummer Corky would join local rivals The Plague and still plays today in Dark Horse. Replacement drummer Jack Paden moved to another local band the Sidewinders when the Knights split in 1966. Dick Stewart also produced the Kreeg's now legendary Impressin'.

The King Richard And The Knights - Precision! CD is really an Albuquerque retrospective, starring King Richard and The Knights. It features all their sixties singles above plus a nineties re-recording of Moonbeam. The CD then adds Delta/Look label singles by The Plague, Era Of Sound, Kreeg, Sidewinders, Saliens and a new recording by Jason Stewart, one of Dick's two musician sons. With its wide range of sounds running from instrumental through beat, frat-rock, garage, folk-rock and psychedelia this package neatly encapsulates the musical evolution of a local scene in the early-to-mid-sixties. Liner notes and reminiscences are by Dick Stewart himself - which have helped to flesh out this entry and do it justice. I hope he doesn't mind because this package is to be commended and heartily recommended.

Other compilation appearances have included: I Don't Need You and How About Now on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 2 (CD) and Work Out Sally (from a car wash promo) on The Cicadelic 60s Vol. 8 (CD). (MW)

The origins of this Portland, Oregon band go back to 1957 when Lynn Easton and some of his pals from David Douglas High School formed a band which played at local dances and fairs and was a little unusual for featuring a small church type organ in its act. This phase in their career lasted until about 1962 when they got one of their early breaks. Ken Chase, Musical Director for KISN spotted them playing at a Portland teen club called The Headless Horseman and offered them a residency at his own bigger club, The Chase. They remained the house band there for a whole year. Then in 1963 Ken Chase helped them cut some audition tapes at the Old Northwest Recording Studio. Among the cuts recorded was Louie, Louie. Recorded under extremely primitive conditions it gave them a No 2 in the U.S. and reached No 26 in the UK, although Paul Revere And The Raiders' version (recorded the same week in the same studio) actually fared better in the Northwest. Chase had originally persuaded Jerry Dennon to release the song on his own Jerden label but later the group were signed by Wand becoming the first white act on what had been an all black label.

Louie, Louie sold over seven million copies legally and a few more were pirated. The Kingsmen were extremely successful enjoying eight singles in the Top 100 and five Top 100 albums in the Billboard charts, selling over 20 million records in all. Of their albums (1), (2), (3), (4) and (5) peaked at Nos 20,15, 22, 68 and 87 respectively. All five are now becoming mini-collectables.

Lynn Easton left the group in July 1967, and the remaining members soldiered on until September 1968. There was a reformation in 1972 (line-up 'D') - Freddie Dennis had previously played with The Liverpool Five - and later in 1982 (line-up 'E'), although they played mostly for fun. Norm Sunholm set up the Sunn Amplifier Company with his brother using The Kingsmen as a testing ground for their products. Jack Ely is still in the music business in Portland and, since leaving the band, Lynn Easton has hosted a teen dance show, worked in advertising and most recently as a printing salesman. The band's stature as America's premiere garage band shows no sign of diminishing. Don Gallucci went on to fame by forming Don & The Goodtimes and later Touch.

There have been a number of compilations of their material. There's a Best Of CD with 18 tracks (included four previously unreleased ones and a Best Of LP on Rhino and a CD compilation Live And Unreleased. on Jerden. Louie Louie - The Best Of The Kingsmen is a 20-track compilation of their material which comes with a booklet with highly detailed and extensive liner notes by respected author and archivist John Tracy. Live And Unreleased is a vinyl issue of a collection of their live and unreleased recordings. Their throne was Allentown in Pennsylvania. Shadows Of Dawn is a fairly routine punk single apart from some competent ringing guitar work. They are more old school rock'n'roll than garage so a marginal case for inclusion.

Martin Torbert, formerly of Scranton's Druids, composed Shadows Of Dawn (though it is not known if he was a band member) prior to releasing his solo single on the same label in 1967 - Magic Girl/All Of Tomorrow (Integra 106). ALBUM:	1(A)	KINGS VERSES	(Beatrocket BR 105) 1998

Formed in 1966 in Fresno, California this band soon peaked locally, winning the 1966 KYNO 'Battle Of The Bands', where the guest band was the 13th Floor Elevators. Despite Bob Melchor's previous outfit being a local covers-band, the Trandells, this confident quartet performed originals only. It was inevitable therefore that after graduation they were drawn to the music mecca Los Angeles. Line-up 'B' made the trip to the Strip in the 'Summer Of Love', playing openers and rubbing shoulders with established acts and gaining the interest of some labels. Before any contract had been signed however, the band was finished after they were blacklisted by L.A. clubs for daring to speak out against illegal club practices.

Luckily 10 demos from 1966 and two live performances from the KYNO 1966 band battle both survive and are at last aired on Sundazed's subsidiary Beatrocket. The demos show that their repertoire ranged from upfront and up-tempo garage-rockers (Lights), fuzz-rockers (Ballad Of Lad Polo, A Million Faces), and groovy keyboard-led instrumental workouts (Mind Rewind), to sultry folk-punkers and beat ballads from the Beau Brummels-Byrds canon (It's Not Right, She Belonged To Me, It's Love). She Belonged To Me and Light comprise the live couplet.

With pictures and memories from Bob Melchor and sleeve notes from Jud Cost, from which the above is extracted, this is a worthwhile and recommended release. (MW/Sundazed)

This punk outfit hailed from the Dallas/Fort Worth area of Texas and were originally known as The Outlaws with their debut single and early copies of the second issued under this name. The second single attracted quite a lot of attention and got national distribution but did not make the national charts. Their version of Midnight Hour was ok, but the flip, Don't Tread On Me was their finest moment, and in the eighties the track was covered by numerous bands including Gravedigger V and The Nomads.

Compilation appearances have included: Don't Tread On Me on Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), All Cops In Delerium - Good Roots (LP), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 11 (LP); and Midnight Hour on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). Creamer and Stark were previously with the Amarillo, Texas outfit The Y'Alls (with one single on Ruff). In late 1966 or early 1967 they relocated to Los Angeles and were re-christened The Kitchen Cinq by their new producer, Lee Hazlewood. Their album, which is pleasant pop and features some nice harmonies and jangly guitar, was recorded at Gold Star Studios in Hollywood. For their recording sessions, the band was augmented by studio pros including Hal Blaine, Glen Campbell and Carol Kaye.

Their records did not make much impression with the public and in 1968 they issued a final single for LHI using the name A Handful.

John Stark, Jim Parker and Mark Creamer were all later with the Los Angeles band Armageddon and Stark and Parker played on Them's U.S.-only album In Reality.

The 2-CD retrospective Everything Including... has both mono and stereo versions of the album plus all seven non-album sides from their LHI/Decca singles, the Y'Alls single, the A Handful single, a Cheetah Club promo, and an In-Sound Forces Radio Show interview with Harry Harrison... yep, the proverbial kitchen sink!

Hey, Saturday Noon/That's The Way	(Jamie 1362) 1968
Taking My Time/That You Love	(Paramount 0110) 1971

From Philadelphia, a garage group with fuzz guitars, interpreting the usual covers of the era: Money, Sweet Little Rock'n'Roller, Good Lovin etc.

On It's Just A Matter Of Time, six of the 12 songs, are credited to Hausman and Stewart, and seem to be originals. These are quite good, sometimes reminiscent of The Critters. Most of the remainder, however, are disposable covers, including Sea Of Love, Cotton Fields and Nut Rocker. (SR/MMs)

Klansmann (KS)

ALBUM:	1	THE KLANSMANN	(Audio House AHP 269) 196? R4

NB: (1) seen as both acetate and vinyl album.

A rare garage album from the Kansas label, so presumably the band was local to the state. Consisting mostly of covers (My Back Pages, Hey Joe, Monkey Time, Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying etc.), the band sounds very young and amateurish. Justice label collectors will adore it, but it's best avoided unless you're a fan of that genre.

A counterfeit acetate was made by an enterprising thief in the late nineties but this is easily identified by the misspelled band name (The Clansmen). Beware!

They have a cut called Gospel Zone (from their album) on Quagmire Volume 5 (CD). (CF)

Carol Kleyn (CA)

ALBUM:	1	LOVE HAS MADE ME STRONGER	(Lyra LRK-25) 1976

This was Bobby Brown's girlfriend and she deployed a high-pitched vocal style on this album. On side one she is just accompanied by harp and side two by piano (or electric piano). The end result is quite a unique album and she recorded a second one, Takin' The Time (Turtledove no #) 1980 (R1) which benefited from more supporting instrumentation. (VJ)

A musician and songwriter active on the New York scene between 1967 and 1973, "Moogy" Klingman recorded this solo album in 1972, produced by Todd Rundgren and featuring several guests: ND Smart (Remains), Rick Derringer (McCoys), Amos Garrett, Ben Keith, Joel Bishop O'Brien (King Bees)...

Klingman was with New York bands The Dave Heenan Set, and The Glitterhouse and he appears on their 1968 album. His songs have been covered by Brethren (The Sun And The Moon), Buzzy Linhart (Friends) and he played keyboards on albums by Rundgren, Music and Al Kooper. (SR)

		Flower In My Garden/ I Don't Believe In Magic	(RCA 74-0485) 1971

Produced by Jeff Barry, The Klowns were a pop sextet with male and female vocals, probably a product from the New York studios. The group wore white suits and painted faces, like Hello People but their record is rather lame and best avoided. All their material was penned by Barry, Slavin, Bobby Bloom, Renzetti, Goldberg and Soles. The Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Circus was associated with this short-lived venture. (SR)

	Freedom Now/Lady In The Window	(Capitol 2075) 1968

Four high school buddies formed the Inmates in Hollywood, California in 1965. Within two years they found themselves renamed The Knack, releasing their debut on a major label, being touted as "the greatest thing since the Beatles", and getting rave write-ups in the music press and in teen magazines like KRLA Beat. It helped that Pug Baker had been born in London, to add to their Anglophile street-cred.

Whatever the hype, they produced a quartet of accomplished pop/beat singles, all of which were written by Chain (in partnership with Dink Kaplan on the first three, one with Gould and one solo on the fourth). Probably considered too slick and poppy to have been featured on garage/beat compilations until recently, no self-respecting fan of quality sixties pop (Monkees, Merry-Go-Round, and their ilk) should be without at least one of these overlooked platters. Just one cut has been showcased to-date - Time Waits For No One is on Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-1968 (4-CD plus book).

Michael Chain went solo in 1969 and released the concept soft-rock album Pinkiny Canandy; Gary Kato, formerly of the Merry-Go-Round, is believed to have been involved in the project but is not credited on the album.

Chain's replacement was Larry Tamblyn, fresh from the break-up of The Standells. Rebranded as The Chakras they released a pair of singles on Reprise in 1969. After Tamblyn moved on again, Baker, Gould and Kaplan decided to remain as a trio and released an album as Chariot.

Finally, in case anyone was wondering, there is no connection between this Knack and the late-seventies punky power-pop band of My Sharona fame, who were also on Capitol and based in L.A.; their lead singer Doug Fieger, originally from Detroit, had been around for some years in other bands, initially with Sky. 45s:		Leave Me Alone/The Girl I Threw Away	(Glen 8303) 1967
		Leave Me Alone/The Girl I Threw Away	(Dunwich 147) 1967
	α	Inside Outside/Your Stuff	(Dunwich 164) 1967

NB: α withdrawn; only a few copies are known to exist.

This mid-sixties Chicago outfit attracted the interest of a major label but failed to break through commercially. Their first single, Leave Me Alone is an up-tempo rocker with lots of mouth organ and great lyrics - now regarded as among the finest U.S. sixties garage singles. The flip, The Girl I Threw Away, is a brooding pop-punk ballad.

The band evolved out of The Jesters in the fall of 1964 and lasted through to 1967. Based in the northern suburbs of Chicago, they were neighbours (and friendly competitors) with The Flock, although rumours that they escaped a freezing northern winter by touring California with them are false.

Gene Lubin: - "Both groups played the teen clubs around the suburbs and the so-called 'Old Town' district, a re-gentrified sort of Soho area near downtown Chicago... teen clubs, head shops, etc. Except The Knaves had started out in '64-65 playing go-go places on Rush Street and other tough joints on the city's mean streets, i.e. neighbourhood bars. Clientele at the time were mostly still into Beach Boys and we were doing British Invasion stuff. In '64-65 there were not too many groups playing in an early punk style as we were... They were mostly Beach Boy clones like The Flock or Holiday Inn types, pseudo-Beatles, and maybe some Troggs like stuff. We emulated a Pretty Things demeanour and got our pictures in the newspapers a lot for looking outrageous. We wore undertaker frock coats and bell bottoms we bought at the army navy store before the love-ins began."

They also recorded a second single for Dunwich, which apparently owed more to the sexual suggestiveness of The Troggs than any other influences. Perhaps this is why Dunwich withdrew it.

In 1966, Neal Pollack was drafted and the band called it quits the following year.

Howard Berkman and Neal Pollack were later in Euphoria Blimp Works, an early seventies Chicago act which did not record, as well as in a related project Yama And The Karma Dusters, who cut an album in 1970. Gene Lubin has also released a CD End Of The Spectrum (Cardboard Records) 2001, of vintage post-Knaves stuff recorded in 1974. He is now a personnel manager for local government in Chicago, and is still writing songs. Howard Berkman is still a full-time musician.

THE KNAVES - Leave Me Alone! 10" EP.

Gene: - "This past year with the release of Leave Me Alone (35 years late) we've gotten a nice bit of coverage on the Web and some radio. Most of our studio/original stuff is now being labelled as vintage "folk-punk" by some; however, Leave Me Alone has already won us some "early punk-rock" acclaim from other quarters. So go figure."

Compilation appearances include: The Girl I Threw Away on Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD); The Girl I Threw Away, Tease Me, Leave Me Alone, Inside Outside and Your Stuff on *Oh Yeah! The Knickerbockers took their name from Knickerbocker Avenue in Bergenfield, New Jersey where they came from, but they moved to Los Angeles in 1965, where they recorded for Challenge Records. They followed the initial success of their Beatlesque rock number Lies with a succession of excellent pop-rock singles. One Track Mind, which was also covered by The Gants was a bit more punkish... whilst another of their finer moments, High On Love, was an energetic pop-rock single.

Jimmy Walker later joined The Righteous Brothers.

Lullaby/I'll Keep Waiting Patiently	(Capitol 2737) 1970	-

This garage-rock quintet from Flint, Michigan is probably most significant for containing DJ Terry Knapp, who formed, managed and produced Grand Funk Railroad, which also included Pack members, Don Brewer and Mark Farner. In the early sixties, Terry was a DJ in Detroit who played Pretty Things, Them, Zombies, Kinks, etc long before any other radio station in the area had picked up on the U.K. bands, introducing The Rolling Stones on stage at their first New York gig and interviewing them during their first U.S. tour.

With the Pack, Terry had a few minor hits and their first two albums are now minor collectables. Prior to becoming Grand Funk Railroad and without Terry, the group also recorded two singles as The Pack and The Fabulous Pack. There is a picture sleeve for one of these singles, Wide Trackin', that clearly shows a five-piece with him on keyboards. Whether it was a contemporary photo is another matter, of course. Another of their tracks (I Got News For You) was penned by Dick Wagner (of Frost), whilst Love, Love, Love, Love, Love was covered by The Music Explosion and later in 1973 by Brownsville Station.

Compilation appearances have included: How Much More? on Michigan Mayhem, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP) and Chosen Few, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); What's On Your Mind? on Michigan Brand Nuggets (LP) and Michigan Nuggets (CD); Harlem Shuffle and Wide Trackin' on Mindrocker, Vol. 11 (LP); Numbers on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP); and The Color Of Love on Relics Vol. 1 (LP), Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 and Sixties Archive, Vol. 7 (CD). From Belmont, California this band became better known due to the issue of their one unreleased June 1965 track I on San Francisco Roots (LP) in 1968 (the compilation was also reissued in 1975 on JAS). Clearly a popular number - it's appeared more recently on The Autumn Records Story (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP), We Have Come For Your Children (LP & cassette) and Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP). Basically, it's an infectiously catchy punker with a bit of extended guitar work in the middle.

More recently, I and the previously unreleased I Don't Know have also resurfaced on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 3 (CD), whilst Big

Beats' Dance With Me (CD) (part of the Nuggets From The Golden State series) features I plus three unreleased tracks from 1965 - Where Did I Fail, Torture And Pain and Won't You Be My Baby. (MW/VJ)

NB: (7) counterfeited on CD (Flash 66) 1998.

This was a prep-rock outfit from Mount Hermon School, a boarding school in Northfield, Massachusetts. Because the band was made up of students, each "annual" album has a different personnel line-up. The earliest known album to emerge from the school is from 1958, and there may be even earlier issues.

Musically these range from early instrumental sounds to big-band jazz and by the mid-sixties, garage band covers. The Knights 1967, for example, reveals a collection of soul, R&B, beat and ballad covers ranging from sappy (Unchained Melody, Under The Boardwalk) to rockin' (Bring It On Home, I'm Crying, Gimme Some Lovin'), all done competently but rather uninspired.

Two of the members, Dan and John Cole of the 1964-5 line-up, later turned up in Quill (thereby applying what they learned in college on a professional level! No doubt their parents were thrilled.)

Brad Waterman recalls: "Students at the school were known as 'Hermonites' and the name Hermon Knights was a play on this. We dropped 'Hermon' in the 1966-1967 school years, and thus were known as The Knights. The first version of The Knights played long before 1961; I recall that the group started in the 1930s. The group was similar to other student groups like sports teams, yearbook, etc. in that new kids were added each fall to replace seniors who graduated the previous spring. The personnel listed above were the 1966 - 1967 members of the group."

"Mount Hermon had a sister school, the Northfield School, in Northfield, Massachusetts. (Both were combined into a single school, Northfield Mount Hermon, in the early seventies.) There were social events on the two campuses on most Saturday nights. The Knights were the school's dance band and we played dances, mixers, etc. On off weekends, we sometimes played at other schools. We always had a great time playing, boarding school was more than a little weird in those days and through our music, we were a link to the 'real' world."

"During my four years, and for at least a couple prior and subsequent years, the group made an album each spring at Ace Recording Studios, Boston. We sold subscriptions during the winter, used the subscription proceeds to make a down payment to Ace, practiced at a band member's home for the first several days of spring vacation, cut the album in a day (that's one day), distributed the records when they arrived in May, and paid off Ace with the balance of the sales proceeds...."

"The group underwent a significant transition during my four-year tenure. That transition mirrored the development of rock in those years. In my freshman year, we had only one electric instrument (a guitar) and we played a mix of rock, jazz, big band, etc. By my senior year, we were fully electric, and we were a pure garage band. The jazz sound is in evidence on the 1964, 1965 and 1966 albums."

"Mount Hermon and Northfield produced some well-known musicians, including Will Ackerman (founder of Windham Hill) and Natalie Cole. As I recall, Ackerman was into folk, not rock. Natalie sang with us once or twice - if only I knew then what I know now! I do not believe that any of the Knights with whom I played became professional musicians."

"Marc Solomon, the drummer, and I played together in college, where we were into the Memphis/Stax - Volt sound of Booker T. and MGs, Otis Redding, Sam and Dave, etc."

Brad Waterman later became a tax lawyer working with Don Arden, Black Sabbath, Wayne Newton and briefly Jim Stewart (the co-founder of Stax/Volt!).

Compilation appearances have included their cover of Goffin/King's Don't Bring Me Down on Oil Stains (LP); and You're Not Mine from the Off Campus album can be heard on Hipsville, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/CF/BWn)

This band came from Odessa in West Texas, although their single was recorded at Robin Hood Brians Studio in Tyler, Texas. C.J. Smith, recorded in February 1968, is pretty psychedelic, as is the flip which is much more keyboard orientated.

Compilation appearances have included: C.J. Smith and Make Me Some Love on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP), Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP), Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD) and Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 4 (CD); Make Me Some Love, *C.J. Another obscure album on the rare Justice label, with mostly soul-style covers of Knock On Wood, Mustang Sally, In The Midnight Hour, Barefootin', When A Man Loves A Woman, Land Of A 1,000 Dances, On The Move, Try Me, Don't Lose Your Cool and Ninety Nine And A Half (Won't Do). Tucked away among the covers are a couple of Bing McCoy originals: West Sun (with some gorgeous sax from Wilfred Wilson) and Tomatoes (a jazzy organ-led number with more nice sax). The singer and sax player in this sextet were black but the rest of the band was white. This was very unusual at the time. This was one of the better Justice releases. (SR/VJ)

Originally known as The Demensions, this Kokomo, Indiana band released only one single comprising two cover versions: James and Bobby Purify's Let Love Come Between Us and Brenton Wood's Gimme A Little Sign. Winners of the 'Pendleton Pike Drive-In Battle Of The Bands', The Knightsmen became very popular locally, and appeared on 'Bandstand 13', a local television program. Their popularity led to their opening for Kenny Rogers and the First Edition and Tommy Roe, among others.

45: I Can't Look Down/Andromeda (Key Recordings no #) 1968

Members of this Dublin, Georgia band had come via numerous other high school bands, including The Beachcombers, Confederates, Four Digits, Mineral Spirits and Sultans. Drummer Griffin Lovett's brother Billy ran the Lovett label with several artists on his books, including The Solid Soul. Although arrangements were made for the recordings via the label, it ended up being issued on a private imprint in 1968.

I Can't Look Down is one of those 'serious' and soulful 1968 pop extravaganzas with big beefy arrangements, brass and piano passages... a sound that would come to be personified by Blood, Sweat and Tears - not what most would ever call garage or psych. 45: Let Us Pray/Someone Something (Hip HIA 8020) 1969

This group formed in Black Oak, Arkansas in 1965. They moved to Memphis, Tennessee in 1969 and signed a record deal with Stax Records. During this time they developed an interest in psychedelia and Eastern spiritualism which, combined with their southern Baptist upbringing, contributed to their sound. Their album came out on Hip Records, which was a short-lived subsidiary label of Stax (two of their few other releases were Southwest FOB and Paris Pilot). Their eponymous album is a mix of heavy psych and hippie-rock, with fluid guitar and some good tracks: After I Smoke I Like To Go To Sleep, Flying Horse Of Louisiana and No One And The Sun.

In 1971, Knowbody Else became Black Oak Arkansas. (SR/VJ)

45: Don't You Know What I Mean?/
Scattered Children's Toys (Capitol 2365) 1968

The liner notes to this album suggest that this band was from Australia, a curious marketing ploy by Capitol that neither helped sell the record or impress the band (they didn't know a thing about being from 'Down under' until they saw the record in the stores!). Actually, they were a New York garage punk band, and sound like one.

The band has a sound similar to Druids Of Stonehenge and Autosalvage. The record was produced by Bob Wyld and Art Polhemus (better known for discovering The Blues Magoos). Both sides of the single are taken from the album, which is made up of 13 raw, punky cuts. Not all the tracks are great, but more than half of the album will appeal to sixties enthusiasts. Titles include She's A Lady, Colours Of Our Rainbow, the rocker You Say, the frantic Strange Feelings, Scattered Children's Toys, and Poor Discarded Baby. Their bubblegum-ish single Don't You Know What I Mean? captures the band at its best. The album contains some guitar wizardry from Louis Caine, (aka Louis Dambra) who later contributed his furious guitar to Sir Lord Baltimore.

A track from the album, Poor Discarded Baby, has resurfaced on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP); and you'll also find Strange Feelings on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 8 (CD). (CF/MW/VJ)

A Baltimore, Maryland band formed in 1967 by most of the final line-up of The Henchmen plus Jim Mays of The Ebb Tides (Come On And Cry/Straightaway on Monumental M-520). In 1970 they released only two very obscure singles, which sound more like 1967-8. The first is the stronger - good garagy pop-rock. On the second, Orange Colored Penguin has a country-rock twang whereas Ad Man is crisp, mid-sixties harmony-pop. (MW/JV)

45: Gooseberry Pie/The Next Boy (Elko 3001) 1968

Dean Kohler started out playing instrumentals in his hometown of Portsmouth, Virginia with The Satellites. The group's orbit was halted by his call-up from Uncle Sam in 1966. Undeterred, Dean formed The Electrical Banana whilst on tour in Vietnam to entertain his comrades. In 1967 they recorded two folk-rockers live in an army tent and pressed up ten custom acetates.

Shortly after his safe return to Portsmouth, in time for Christmas 1967, he was back in the studio recording Gooseberry Pie - a catchy slice of fuzz-pop about "a trip to the drive-in with a girl". Success was elusive despite a lip-synched appearance on local TV show 'Disco Ten' although it gave him the opportunity to form the show's house band (Soft Light) for the following season.

Gooseberry Pie has been served up again on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD), You're So Square (LP) and on the excellent Virginia compilation Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD). The latter includes his earlier waxings with The Satellites and Electrical Banana. (BHr/ST/MW)

This classic slice of early 'heavy psych' can also now be heard by a wider audience via the excellent compilation An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD) and Psychedelic Experience (CD). Savage Lost is a great title too and Jeff Lemlich used it for his fascinating and worthy Florida Discography. The flip is not up to the same standard but a Vanilla Fudge type rework.

From Miami, Gregg Shaw had previously played with The Shaggs and when he joined Kollektion the prior drummer swapped drum roles (sic) and took his place in The Shaggs. Bob Jabo had been with Dr. T and The Undertakers. He would later play in Katmandu, whilst vocalist Angela Risoff split in '68 to tour with Blues Image. Richard Borkan also played with Sounds Unlimited. (MW/JBn/MA)

A Leesburg, Florida band which at some point included Berry Ferguson, whose brother Lee was in We The People. The We The People connection goes further - Wayne Proctor wrote and produced both sides of this single as well as contributing guitar. Love That Drives Me Crazy is an energetic garage-rocker with a frat/party vibe; the flip is a very slow, baleful ballad. 45: She Won't See Me/It's Over (Sams 101) 196?

This outfit came from Garland in Texas. There's a version of Little Black Egg on the Ear-Piercing Punk (LP & CD) compilation credited to The Kommotions, but this may be a mix up between Kenny Wayne and The Kamotions, who did not record this track, and Wayne Lacadisi who did.

The Kommotions, whose 1965 cover of the Nightcrawlers' Little Black Egg is on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP and CD), was a different, R'n'B band from Atlanta, Georgia (aka Wayne Logiudice & The Kommotions) although their single is listed on Bell label discographies as by "Wayne Lacadisi" (#630, flip title Broken Hearts). (VJ/MW)

ALBUMS:	1	SUPER SESSION	(Columbia CS 9701) 1968	12

NB: (1) by Bloomfield/Kooper/Stills. Al Kooper & Mike Bloomfield - Live At The Fillmore East 1968 (CD) (Legacy 5060342) 2003 features a young Johnny Winter on top form jamming with Bloomfield on BB King's It's My Own Fault. There's also a superb version of the 59th Street Bridge Song on this CD.

Singer, guitarist, organist, arranger, producer, Al Kooper was an essential figure of the rock scene between 1965 and 1970. He formed the Blues Project in 1965 and Blood, Sweat and Tears in 1968. As an organist, he played on Bob Dylan's Highway 61 Revisited and Blonde On Blonde, helping to create a sound which was influential on groups like The Band or Procol Harum.

Kooper was also an active session man playing with Tom Rush, Jim and Jean, Jimi Hendrix, the Paupers and Moby Grape. He was also one of the first musicians to record a session of rock jams with the commercially successful Super Session with Mike Bloomfield and Steve Stills in 1968. Although this was common with jazz or blues, the 'jam' album hadn't yet set root in the rock genre. This was followed in 1969 by The Live Adventures with Bloomfield, John Kahn, Skip Prokop, Carlos Santana and Elvin Bishop. In 1972, he formed his own label, Sounds Of The South, and produced the first three Lynyrd Skynyrd albums, one of the best southern rock acts. He also produced several other rock and soul groups.

Between 1968 and 1978, Al Kooper recorded several solo albums which are mainly pop-oriented, generally weak and beyond the scope of this book. After a long legal procedure with Columbia, he came back in 1995 with a new album which failed to chart.

You'll also find I Stand Alone on Pop Revolution From The Underground (LP). (SR)

KOPPERFIELD - Tales Untold LP.

NB: (1) counterfeited on vinyl (Kopperdisc) 198? and reissued on CD during the nineties. (1) reissued on CD with nine unreleased cuts, recorded between 1972 and 1975 (Gear Fab GF-164) 2001. (1) also reissued as a 2-LP set including the same bonus cuts (Gear Fab Comet GFC 412/2) 2001.

From Edwardsberg and Ann Arbor, Michigan Kopperfield formed in 1971 from the ashes of Touch Of Blue, a local trio that released two singles in 1969/70. The line-up above that recorded the album was established by 1972, and they were a popular live attraction for several years before recording, opening for The James Gang, Foghat and Kansas, among others. By 1974 they had become a full-blown progressive rock band.

Most of the tracks are fronted by Robinson's distorted organ, which calls to mind early seventies European progressive rock bands like Brainticket or Virus. Typical of the progressive keyboard/guitar driven genre, it is held in high regard by some collectors, but unless skilled musicianship is your bag, it is best avoided.

The Gear Fab reissues contain an unreleased second album to be called Back To Bitchin', utilising synthesisers and funkier rhythms. Some find the unreleased album is better than their original one. The group broke up in late 1975 with this album still unfinished. (VJ/SR/MW/CF)

Rock'n'Roll Babies (Dunhill D-4259) 1970

From the New York scene, this was a short-lived project led by Artie Kornfeld, also a member of the Changin' Times and a renowned songwriter and producer. The album is mainly composed of original material penned by Kornfeld and played by a group of outstanding musicians: McDonald was in Jeremy and The Satyrs and played with both Joe Beck and Tim Hardin. Hugh McCracken (who was an in-demand session man on the New York scene then) filled the guitar parts with ease and bassist Tony Levin went on to King Crimson in the early eighties.

Artie Kornfeld production credits include singles by the Bassetts, Carnival Connection, Guild Light Gauge, Tuneful Trolley and the Unclaimed (with Milan), Bert Sommer's eponymous album on Kama Sutra in 1971, the Wind In The Willows and Swampgas. He also went on to be one of the quartet that created and organised Woodstock - with Joel Rosenman, John Roberts and Michael Lang. (SR/MW)

From Alabama, The K-Otics were formed at Troy State University in Troy, Alabama in 1962. After all but one of the original members left college, the remaining member recruited players from around his hometown. Tommy Mann, Ray Goss and Marvin Taylor were from around Tallassee, Alabama and Tuskegee, Alabama.

I'm Leaving Here is a cool punker that wears its influences on its sleeve. Built around the Kinks' All Day And All Of The Night riff, the break also features the Louie Louie signature prominently on keyboards. Their cover of Dick Holler & The Holidays' Double Shot came out around the same time as, but lost out to, the Swingin' Medallions' version, which went on to achieve national success.

Kim Venable went on to play with Dennis Yost and the Classics 1V. Keyboard player Ed Sanford was later in The Rockin' Gibralters.

I'm Leaving Here has been compiled on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD); whilst Double Shot features on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) KREED! (Vision Of Sound 71-56) 1971 R4

NB: (1) was counterfeited on vinyl.

This album was recorded by six 12-14 year olds whilst they were at St. James School, a military training school in Fairbault, 50 miles south of Minneapolis in Minnesota. Although it was recorded in the early seventies with the band being so young it sounds more like a mid-sixties effort. They chose the name because they were all going to an Episcopalian School - they took the word creed and replaced the 'C' with a 'K'. David Cannon wrote all the songs on the album (except for a cover of In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida) and he was clearly a talent. Between 1976-1982, he fronted No Cheese Please, Balderdash and The Fabulous Toasters. Kreed were together for just eight months from September 1970 until the summer of 1971. Not many bands have produced an album of songs from such a brief association! (VJ)

45: How Can I/Impressin' (Lance 2229/7094) 1966

The flip to their sole single has some good guitar leads. Both sides were written by Bob Sturtcman and produced by Dick Stewart of King Richard and The Knights.

The retrospective CD is most impressive. With an informative CD booklet with pictures, notes by Bob Sturtcman, a full track listing and personnel details, this is essential for anyone enchanted by this Albuquerque outfit's previously compiled single. Superb folk-rock, garage and psychedelic sounds are to be enjoyed herein - 15 quality tracks in all with just four covers (Soul Kitchen, For Your Love, Better Man Than I, Hey Joe). They went through several identities - Goldenaires, Kreeg, Mother Sturtcman's Jam And Jellies, and finally Albatross. To find out more, get this CD - you will not be disappointed.

Other compilation appearances have included: Impressin' on King Richard And The Knights - Precision! (CD), I Wanna Come Back From The World Of LSD (CD) and Garage Beat '66 1 (CD); How Can I and Impressin' on New Mexico Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 4 (CD); How Can I, Impressin' and Jams And Jellies on Bands On Lance (LP); and For Your Love and I'm Over You on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD). This album is home-made guitar psychedelia from Louisville, Kentucky. It's a nice mixture of gentle dreamy passages, heavier acid guitar and wah-wah fuzz along with charmingly teenage vocals. The material is strong and its delivery melodic. All seven cuts were penned by De Vore and Terrell. The highlights include Together, Valley Of Life, Deceptions Of The Mind and the finale, the beautiful Morning Glory. Sometimes described as a Christian band, they were really a rock band that happened to have a Christian (Sonny De Vore) in them and this is evident from a few lyrics. The album had a limited repress in 1986 and then came out on CD in the nineties and again in 2009. So if you can buy a copy cheaply do so. It's a really enjoyable spin. (VJ)

Bob Kuban was born in St Louis, Missouri on 19 August 1942 and had previously played in Ike Turner's Kings Of Rhythm. Sir Walter Scott's real name was Walter S. Notheis and he'd been born on 7 February 1943 and was previously with The Pacemakers. John Krenski was born in St Louis on 18 March 1944 and also known as Mike Evans. He'd previously been with a group called The Mellowtones. Gregory Hoeltzel was also known as Greg Roland and Ken Smith was replaced on lead guitar by Emil Ray Schulte on 29 May 1966.

They recorded several singles and at least two albums containing mostly covers of garage, pop and white soul covers, like You Better Run, Little Girl, Drive My Car, Turn On Your Lovelight, Batman Theme, In The Midnight Hour, These Boots Are Made For Walking... The singles are quite rare but not essential. The first album sold quite well, climbing to No. 129 during a five week chart stint. They also enjoyed three hit singles. The biggest The Cheater spent 11 weeks in the charts. Their third and final hit single was a cover of Lennon-McCartney's Drive My Car.

Three of the In-Men (Greg Hoeltzel, Mike Krenski, and Ray Schulte) broke away to create The Guise; and Schulte moved on again in 1968 and formed Touch. (SR/VJ/MW)

CD: 1(A) MYSTICAL CRYSTAL REVOLUTION
(Collectables COL-0654) 1996

45: Bad Side Of The Moon/Out In The Country (Spearway 2) 1970

This short-lived Corpus Christi rock and roll outfit is included here because it was a late outing for Gerniottis who had earlier led The Liberty Bell and prior to that Zakary Thaks. You can hear their single on The J-Beck Story, Vol. 3: The Liberty Bell (Eva 12036) 1984, or check out the Collectables retrospective CD, which includes previously unreleased material.

Formed in February 1970 the band only lasted until September that year. They hardly played live at all but mainly spent their time rehearsing and recording at Studio B in Corpus Christi. Their single, Bad Side Of The Moon was an early Elton John number while the other tracks on the retrospective CD range in style from the Latin-rock of Bossa Nova through the broodingly atmospheric instrumental Help Yourself to gruff-voiced hard-rock and gospel. Unfortunately, it's a bit lacklustre compared to Gerniottis's earlier outings with Zakary Thaks and The Liberty Bell.

Revolution II and Help Yourself have been compiled on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/LP)

Robb Kunkel (CO)

ALBUM: 1 ABYSS (Tumbleweed TWS 111) 1973 R1

Kunkel worked for the Tumbleweed label that was based in Denver, Colorado. Some collectors rate this album which kicks off with two dreamy West Coast psych numbers but is mostly comprised of eclectic melodic rock. You Were The Morning is introduced by the sound of breaking waves and seagulls. It oozes lush female harmonies and melodic guitar. Then the breaking waves and seagulls return with some wind chimes added for the hypnotic Whispermuse. Not all the album is this good, there are some country numbers, a moody piano-led song O Light, a rock'n'roller Airhammer Eddie and the album ends with the interesting Playa de Bagdad and the complex Turn of The Century. A lot of noted session players assisted on this project. It is thought that only a handful were pressed as the label was on the brink of folding so the album was virtually un-promoted. (VJ)

45s: Minglewood/Sheik Of Araby (Reprise 0624) 1967
I'll Be Your Baby Tonight/Circus Song (Reprise 0675) 1968

A seminal group from the Boston scene, Jim Kweskin and his Jug Band appeared in 1963 and played a happy mix of folk, blues, jug band music, rock and old-timey songs. The personnel was quite unstable, having between four and 11 members, but they had a very good live reputation. Muldaur and Richmond also played with Eric Von Schmidt and are both present on the Elektra Blues Project album from 1964. Their records may interest fans of the early Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Dr. West's Medicine Show and Junk Band or the Lovin' Spoonful.

When the group finally broke up in 1967, its various members kept on playing: Geoff and Maria Muldaur recorded, first as a duo, then with Paul Butterfield's Better Days and finally had solo careers. Fritz Richmond moved to California and become a renowned studio engineer. He also played with Norman Greenbaum, Ry Cooder and is still touring with John Sebastian. Jim Kweskin for many years became a devotee of "guru" Mel Lyman, although recently he has pursued a low-key career in the folk clubs and is now recording once again.

In 1969, Bill Keith and Richard Greene founded the Blue Velvet Band who released a good country-folk album produced by Erik Jacobsen, the producer of Lovin' Spoonful and Norman Greenbaum. Greene also joined Seatrain and took part in several groups and sessions (Brewer and Shipley, William Truckaway, Pearls Before Swine). Prior to joining the 'Jug Band, Bill Keith had played with Bill Monroe and The Bluegrass Boys. In the early sixties he revolutionised bluegrass banjo with his melodic style, adapted from arranging fiddle tunes for the banjo.

Acoustic Swing & Jug (CD) was a compilation taken from a number of their albums. The strength of this compilation lies in the diversity of material on offer: My Gal, Wild About My Loving and Blues In A Bottle are Lovin' Spoonful territory and Maria Muldaur is featured in a vocal role on Leiber and Stoller's I'm A Woman and the exquisite Richland Woman.

Memphis has been compiled on Pop Music Super Hebdo (LP). (SR/JNa/CMn)

45: Where Are You?/When Love Comes Searching
For Me (PS) (RAF Productions 1001) 1966

From Marshall, Missouri and pronouncing their name 'Kicks', this quintet recorded an album in 1967 in Memphis. Titled Bittersweet, it was scrapped before release, although Collectables are promising a "reissue" in the near future. Their sole single, which was recorded at Columbia studios in Nashville, came in a picture sleeve which featured a photo of the band in a field surrounded by their Vox Super Beatles, with their name superimposed in blue psychedelic lettering. The contents of the sleeve, a routine garage dirge, did not live up to sleeve's promise.

The group changed its name to Bittersweet some time around '68 or '69 and recorded the unreleased album at a recording studio outside Columbia, Missouri. The group remained the same with the exception of Bob Williams who replaced Mike Williams (no relation).

Compilation appearances have included: Where Are You? on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 11 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 1 (CD); and Where Are You? and When Love Comes Searching For Me on The Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups - Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box set). Their album is a West Coast-influenced affair which ranges from folk tracks like Time To Go to more atmospheric numbers such as Rebirth and on to heavier rock cuts like Epicycle and Play For You. The single is from the album and is by far the best track.

Paradox can also be heard on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (VJ)

This guy came from Waco in Texas and his real name was Gaylan Latimer. He was also based in Houston for a time and had earlier played in other Texas sixties punk outfits like The Dawgs (with Bob Sharp) and The Silvertones. He recorded the first of these singles with Bob Sharp.

His producer, the infamous, Huey P. Meaux used a fake Gaylan Ladd for extra touring cash.

He later formed Eastside Transfer and then went on to Heather Black, a hippie-art folk band. His finest moment to readers of this tome will be Repulsive Situation, a brooding dynamic punker - his other material tended to be melodramatic ballads and moody folk-rock-cum-beat music.

Today Gaylan works in Austin selling audio and video gear and still plays music. Curiously he doesn't remember Replusive Situation but has said it was probably done when he was in high school.

Heather Black later became Christopher Cross.

Led by the talented Campbell, who had earlier recorded with The Fax, The Ladds came from LaCrosse and were considered to be one of southwest Wisconsin's best sixties groups.

Bring Back The Days did well in their hometown so when they recorded a cover of Everything Is Everything's Witchi Tai Toi, it was decided to push it out to a bigger label. It was released as by Today's Tomorrow and topped the WOKY charts in Milwaukee for four weeks. When it failed to pick up airplay outside of the region, the momentum was lost. Meantime they released an instrumental single as The Silver Bullets. They would stick with Today's Tomorrow for two further singles before breaking up.

Campbell went to college, returning to music in the seventies with the Changing Times, before moving into the TV industry. Eric Melby was later with Ice and Flying Free. Later member Clare Troyanek had previously been in The Unchained Mynds.

45: Isn't It Just A Beautiful Day/ Winter In The Valley (Warner Bros. WB 7562) 1973

NB: mono/stereo promo copies exist.

From San Francisco, Lamb was primarily a hippie duo formed by Barbara Mauritz and Bob Swanson. The band appeared at several concerts in the Bay Area. By the time of their third album, they were a quintet with a strong rhythm section that backed Barbara Mauritz' powerful voice. Their music is a mix of West Coast and soul with some oriental and jazzy influences.

From Beaumont, Texas originally, Barbara Mauritz was born into a very musical family that claims Gypsy blood. At the age of four she began playing piano and at 15 she started playing in the local clubs. There she met artists like Edgar and Johnny Winter and Janis Joplin, the latter being a close friend of Barbara's sister.

A year later, Barbara moved first to Houston, where she opened for Lightning Hopkins and The American Blues, and then New Orleans. Around this time she started playing guitar and composing songs, but it wasn't long before the attractive "new sounds" coming out from California led her to settle in San Francisco.

There she formed Lamb with Bob Swanson and after being spotted by producer David Rubinson, got to open for Crosby Stills Nash & Young at Winterland for four nights. Suitably impressed, Bill Graham took Lamb under his wing. In 1969 their first album for the Fillmore label, A Sign Of Change was released. Still today it has a unique and very distinctive sound, enhanced by the unusual instrumentation: classical guitars, upright bass, cello, flute, oboe and Barbara's beautiful voice. Traveler's Observation, In My Dreams and The Odyssey of Ehram Spickor are real gems of acoustic psych-rock.

After recording Hello Friends for the famous Last Days Of The Fillmore set, Lamb switched to Warner Bros., and produced two further albums. Both A Cross Between and Bring Out The Sun offered more haunting songs composed by both Barbara and Swanson, but with a fuller and sometimes elaborated sound due to the participation of many more talented musicians. These included Jerry Garcia, Ed Bogas, Bill Attwood, Mark Springer, John McFee and Tom Salisbury, to name a few. The best tracks probably remain the more acoustic numbers like Sleepwalkers, While Waiting, The Vine; or the lively Ku, Milo And The Travelers and Live To Your Heart.

In 1973, Barbara Mauritz became a solo artist and completed Music Box, a good - even if a little more mainstream - offering. Particularly noteworthy are two beautiful ballads, Winter In The Valley and the title track. The same year The Pointer Sisters went platinum with a cover of Barbara's River Boulevard (originally on Bring Out The Sun). In 1974 she wrote a music score for the movie "Where The Lilies Bloom", sharing the musical space with Earl Scruggs. The soundtrack was issued by Columbia (KC-32806).

In 1976, a bad road accident interrupted her live performances, major label recording deals and an eight-year management contract with Bill Graham's Fillmore Management. Still in 1977 and 1978 Barbara collaborated with artists like Tom Salisbury and Chris Michie, but only in 1983 resumed writing again. More recently she has composed more than 150 commercials, including a Levi-Strauss one and you can hear her sing on albums by Link Wray (1973), Steve Douglas (1983) and Vince Welnick (1998). Today she has plenty of new songs, runs an independent label called Citylife Records and a publishing company.

A new CD Give Me Half A Chance and a compilation of Lamb material are expected to be out soon.

David Hayes went on to work with Jesse Colin Young and Terry and The Pirates. (SR/GBi)

Dennis Lambert and Craig Nuttycombe had spells with The East Side Kids and The West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band prior to forming this duo. They recorded this album live at the home they shared in Sausalito, California. It's a mellow collection of self-penned ballads with fine vocal harmonies and subtle guitar interplay. They gigged widely in California, but Lambert's heroin addiction made it hard for them to break nationally and they split after recording one further album in 1973. (VJ)

	Two O'Clock In The Morning/ No More Running Around	(Dunhill D-4089) 1967

From L.A., this folk-rock group formed in the autumn of 1966 and lasted through to June 1967. Their first single was a cover of the famous Donovan song. James Hendricks was married to Mama Cass from the The Mamas & The Papas and had been with her in the Big Three and the Mugwumps. Billy Mundi (ex-Mastin and Brewer) helped record the singles, but left in October 1966 to join the Mothers Of Invention. He later played with Rhinoceros and on numerous sessions (Stone Poneys, Fred Neil etc.). A good guitarist, Fred Olsen would later play with Mike Bloomfield and Brewer and Shipley.

No More Running Around (co-written by Hendricks and Gabriel Mekler, the future Steppenwolf producer) has been compiled on Penny Arcade, Dunhill Folk Rock, Vol. 2. (LP) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). It's not certain if Gabriel Mekler was actually a band member, but he certainly helped out with the recordings and used the group's equipment to help start up Steppenwolf.

First Time, Last Time has been compiled on Fading Yellow, Vol 3 (CD).

An unreleased Lamp Of Childhood track, You're Gonna Get It In The End was later covered by The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. (SR/NW/MW)

A New York City band, they don't appear to have released any singles for Capitol, but their album is an undiscovered gem. Kicking off with Doin' What I Want which featured slick rhythms and fine guitar, a high standard is set and equalled by Creepy Feelin' and the Johnny Winter-influenced LANDSLIDE - Two Sided Fantasy LP.

Everybody Knowns (Slippin'), with its gruff vocals and fine guitar interplay. Dream Traveler rounds off side one with some simply exquisite guitar work. Perhaps the album's finest moment is Happy, the closing track, which builds into an amazing climax. Recommended.

Like many Justice releases this is hampered by a lack of original material, but so far as covers go it's one of the better records on this label with decent vocals and a classic mid-sixties sound based around organ, sax and tambourine. The versions of Long Tall Sally and See See Rider are very highly rated by some.

This was the first and one of the best garage bands to come out of Fort Worth, Texas in the sixties. Slater and Roquemore put the band together to play at a Halloween gig. Line-up 'A' dates from 1963, but line-up 'B' was the one that played on their singles. Hammond had earlier played for Jack And The Rippers, a sixties Texan outfit that did not make it onto vinyl. Their first song was Night Of The Sadist, a spine-chilling recital of an attack by the Lake Worth Goat Monster whose legend the band fuelled. They took it to local entrepreneur Major Bill Smith, who feeling he had a hit on his hands, removed the word 'sadist' from the title and renamed the record Night Of The Phantom. It was soon leased to 20th Century Fox and gave the band a local hit. The group developed a penchant for recording under pseudonyms and later that year cut an inferior rehash of the song for a single released as by The Mark Five. For a latter single they used the pseudonym The Bad, and also toured as a bogus Sir Douglas Quintet.

In 1968 the band split when Slater and Roquemore went on to form a new outfit, Soul Purpose and Randy Cates joined Gypsy. Roquemore also had a solo single, Mrs Brown You've Got A Lovely Daughter/Just Stay (Guyden 2124). Mrs Brown You've Got A Lovely Daughter was a U.S. No. 1 back in 1965 for Herman's Hermits.

Understandably, the band have been heavily compiled including: Night Of The Sadist on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (LP) and *Fort Worth Teen Scene! Larry and The Paper Prophets (?NY)

45: Can't Sit Around/Only One Thing (Epic 10186) 1967

This crackin' folk-rock-punk double-sider is most likely from, or at least recorded in, New York. The band has proved totally elusive but the ubiquitous Hugh McCracken (of Hugh McCracken & Funatics, Powers Of Blue, and countless production and arranging credits) is arranger here. Both sides were produced by Al Lawrence, of Teddy & The Pandas, who also co-wrote Can't Sit Around with J. Keller and The Only Thing with M. Simon.

Now, McCracken was working at the time with Teddy & The Pandas on their singles - makes one wonder whether this was a bit of moonlighting on his part with Lawrence, maybe with other Pandas involved, and that this single was put out under a pseudonym due to contractual issues and/or an overbearing manager. After all, Larry is short for Lawrence.

Can't Sit Around has resurfaced on Glimpses, Vol. 5 (LP). (MW/WJ)

Takin' Life Easy/Randee Ram Jet (A&M 889) 1967

A male singer, despite the name. Randee Ram Jet is a decent garage-punker with pounding drums and an interesting acid guitar; the flip is in The Turtles vein. Interesting but the single suffers from overproduction.

La Salle was from Duluth, Minnesota and would go on to form Daybreak who released at least one single - She's An Illusion/Evil Eyed Woman (Westchester LA-424-4274). (SR/HW/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) GRANFALLOON (Tacome P-8027) 1973 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (OP) 2008.

An experimental, avant-garde, progressive album also characterised by Maureen O'Connor's distinctive vocal style. Some of you could find this album 'psychedelic', but it's certainly not for garage fans. If progressive rock is your niche you could find this interesting and it's becoming rare. Lots of complex keys, mellotron and guitar and Maureen O'Connor's vocals are haunting.

The album cover is somewhat misleading, listing the band name and the album title in such a way that it's impossible to tell which is which. Consequently many dealers list the band as Granfalloon and title as Laser Pace. Chris Christensen (who is listed as W. G. Christensen on the cover), has however confirmed that Laser Pace was the band's name.

Christensen, who was married to Maureen O'Connor, had earlier played in Opus 1 with Doug Decker. (VJ/AM)

ALBUM: 1(A) LAST CALL OF SHILOH (Last Call Records SRC-5136) 197? R2

A super rare local Sandpoint, Idaho religious guitar-rock album with male and female vocals and several long tracks (Marriage Supper Of The Lamb, Great Day Of The Lord). A number of copies turned up with no covers, the few others being housed in a black & white jacket featuring a pencil drawing of the face of Jesus.

The Murrays and Rosenberry went on to form Living Sacrifice, another Christian rock group. (CF/SR)

ALBUM: 1 THE LAST DAYS (No label #LP 487) 197? R3

Christian folk-rock group The Last Days from Texas, display some ultra-frail male/female vocals and decent songs some with guitars, flute and piano on this album. This classic record has now been revealed as the work of a studio group, comprising of players from Las Vegas, Nevada. Abernathy and Rue had previously recorded for Downey as Sir Frog and The Toads. Sleepy Hollow is a spine-chilling punker, with snarling vocals telling of the singer's encounter with the headless horseman and a slow pulverising organ riff. 	I Wish I Had Time/One More Time	(Atco 6542) 1967	105
	Mo'reen/Runnin' And Hidin'	(Atco 6579) 1968	-

This frustrating band embraced many styles. Their debut single is moody beat-punk. Subsequently they'd vary from strident garage beat with some wicked guitar outbursts, to straight pop and brassy soul-tinged bombast. Their slightly fuzzy cover of Paul Revere and The Raiders' Mo'reen is O.K. but lacks conviction, whereas the flip is a much livelier affair with some excellent scorching guitar runs - the pick of the crop. Produced by Brad Shapiro and Steve Alaimo, the album is similarly patchy despite occasional fuzz outbursts. It features four originals and six covers: - Phil Spectors' Be My Baby (Ronettes) and You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin' (Righteous Bros) - the latter in overblown Vanilla Fudge style; the Beatles' No Reply is also ala Fudge; The Kids Are Alright (The Who); Mo'reen (Raiders); and an awkwardly beefed-up version of A Basket Of Flowers (by Florida folk-rockers The Nightcrawlers). They come across as a club/cabaret covers band with an interesting choice of material but some clumsy re-arrangements. Two members were from Jersey City and other two from New York, where the band was based before relocating to Florida.

Compilation appearances include: Bidin' My Time on Acid and Flowers (CD) and Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP); and I Wish I Had Time on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (MW/SR)

Produced by Allan Nichols (who also worked with Morganmasondowns), this album is housed in a gimmick gatefold cover with a fish hook (!), as its songs are mainly centred around the New York Fulton Fish Market. James

Late (real name Lategano) introduces his songs with some talking before every track and, if that was probably an original idea then, it makes the album quite difficult to listen to now. It's unfortunate as it contains some good folk-rock songs with acoustic guitars and harmonica plus some brilliant electric guitar parts played by Bill Schwartz (Chelsea Beige, Tom Fogerty). John Siomos was previously with Chicago Loop and Buzzy Linhart. (SR)

	All I Really Want To Do/Saturday's Child	(Decca 31813) 1965

Produced by Gary Usher, an L.A. outfit with a mixture of pop, beat and jangly folk-rock sounds hot on the trail of The Byrds' success.

Compilation appearances have included: All I Really Want To Do on Leaving It All Behind (LP); I'm Gonna Get You and You'll Come Running Back on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 2 (LP); I'm Gonna Get You on Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD) and Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD); and You'll Come Running Back on Quagmire Volume 6 (CD). Latter Rain (?)

ALBUM:	1	LATTER RAIN	(New Life Music 610203) 1976 R1

Issued on a Kentucky label, this rural progressive hard-rock group used a lot of wah-wah guitar and organ. Their album is comprised of eight original compositions with long guitar solos. The album came housed in a nice red cover that has the album name printed in white along with white drops of rain. (SR/KSt)

Schwertner also played with The Reasons Why whilst both Bob Geissler and Kent Liming played with The Speidels and The Swiss Movement.

A mysterious outfit in the sense that they may have existed in the studio as a side-project only but, at some point, are said to have included Michael Lloyd and the Harris brothers around the same time they came together as West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band. Certainly they were produced by Lloyd for man-behind-the-scenes Kim Fowley.

A loungey singer from Cleveland, Ohio, Andy Lauren released several singles. The one above was recorded with the Persuaders and has been described by dealers as 'garage' but is included here more as a warning - musically it's very borderline to our territory, being MOR-pop with a combo backing. NB: (1) reissued on CD (Gay Comm 0660355611629) 1999.

Released by a gay community centre in Seattle, this album contains mostly country and country-rock sung by a guy with a really nasal voice, with very radical and militant lyrics. The exception is a folk-psych lesbian love song. Musically quite good and it's fairly easy to find. For curious collectors! (SR/JPn)

	Outside My Window/Silly Rhymes	(Sonobeat 110) 1968
	Mr. Peabody/Goin Back To Mexico	(MVL 101) c1969

One of Austin's most durable sixties outfits, Lavender Hill Express was formed in 1966 by Leonard Arnold and Layton DePenning from Baby Cakes, who had approached Rusty Wier and Jess Yaryan of The Wig and Johnny Schwertner from The Reasons Why to form a new band. Baby Cakes manager, booking agent and local D.J. Mike Lucas was chosen to be their manager.

The Sonobeat singles were actually recorded in a 'studio' set up at the famous Vulcan Gas Company club. Musically after an initial pop single, they experimented in a country direction. Indeed when they split, Rusty Wier became an important figure in the local country and western scene and enjoyed a solo career. Schwertner was involved with Plymouth Rock who issued a single on Sonobeat and with the Laughing Kind. The remaining members went on to play in Genesee, a later Austin band. Most of them later achieved commercial success in other bands.

John Schwertner also played in The Laughing Kind. (VJ/MLs/JYn)

NB: α the final pairing may also have been put out as a solo Mike Teague single (Steffek 860).

This outfit, which dates from December 1966, features among Houston's finest punk bands. Their first single was picked up by Huey P. Meaux's Tribe label and made No 65 on Billboard, but their finest moment was So Sophisticated. The flip to this single was later covered by The Chesterfield Kings. Their third and final effort was the work of line-up 'B'. Swonke had previously played with Pena in The Coachmen, an earlier Houston act that did not record.

They disintegrated in 1969 and all except Swonke were invited to join The Clique although Teaque and Headley remained with them only briefly. They went on to record material for International Artists which remains unreleased and Teaque also played with an outfit called Just Us who made a single on Mod International. In 1982 Tom, Mike and Steve built their own recording studio. They record progressive rock under the name Tiger's Claws and run Adonis Records.

Compilation appearances have included: I've Gotta Way With Girls on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 15 (LP & CD); So Sophisticated on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD), Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 5 (LP) and Flashback, Vol. 5 (LP); and Hang Loose on Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). Here's an extremely strange album by a four-piece group plus a couple of small children, improvising on two side-long tracks for a mix of rock, jazz and pure weirdness. Arnie Lawrence would later become a session man, playing with Ian Hunter and Blood, Sweat and Tears.

45s:	If You Want Me You Can Find Me/ Back For More (PS)	(Ardent 105) 1966
	Half Way Down The Stairs/Relax Your Mind	(Ardent 107) 1967

Here's a cool quintet from Memphis, Tennessee. Their first single, If You Want Me..., is a fine Stones - cum - Pretty Things style shuffle-punker, whilst their second, Half Way Down The Stairs is a superb droning pop-punker.

After their first single they recorded a Batman cash-in single with Jim Dickinson as The Avengers.

Terry Manning had previously been briefly in the Bobby Fuller Four and stayed in Memphis where he became a respected sound engineer and producer for the Staples Singers, Cargoe, Isaac Hayes and ZZ Top. He also released a solo album.

Both tracks on the first single were written and produced by Jim Dickinson (it's the first record he ever produced), who was then working with several Memphis groups including: The Jesters and Flash and The Casuals.

After Lawson left the group the others carried on as the Goat Dancers and were involved in studio/session work (Lee, Gaston and Donati with Honey Jug) and several other groups.

Ardent was a short-lived local label managed by John Fry, the owner of the Ardent Studios, one of the more active Memphis studios. Fry later re-launched the label in the early seventies and signed a distribution deal with Stax. The best group of this second Ardent era would be Big Star.

Compilation appearances have included: If You Want Me You Can Find Me on Lost Generation, Vol. 1 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD), Storm In The Garage (3-CD box) and Thank You Friends: The Ardent Story (2-CD); Halfway Down The Stairs (only partly featured - track cuts abruptly) on Punk Classics, Vol. 3 (7" EP) and Punk Classics (CD); and Halfway Down The Stairs (in it's full glory) on Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD), Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers, Vol. 7 (CD) and Thank You Friends: The Ardent Story (2-CD); and Back For More on History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). 45s:	I'm Gonna Love You/ As Long As I Have You	(Enterprise 5060) 1966
	I'm A Clown/Poor Boys Always Weep	(Enterprise 5085) 1967

This Detroit area act started life as TC and The Good Guys in 1960 and were managed by Bob Swartz, who also managed Bob Seger's Last Heard. Indeed both bands knew each other well, although they never actually gigged together and Swartz failed to break either act... Still, The Lazy Eggs' superb blend of Beatlesque garage-beat helped them pack clubs in the Detroit/Michigan area and both singles were local Top 10 hits. In particular I'm A Clown is an instantly likeable affair that bounces effortlessly along and oozes pure class - by rights it should have been a massive hit. The flip, Poor Boys... is more of a ballad with some simple effective guitar-work.

Sadly, their singles were given little promotional support and in 1968, although still popular on the University circuit, The Lazy Eggs split. A contributory reason, no doubt, was the unusual job Sam Moceri held, being a Police Officer by day and rock & roll musician by night could not have been an easy task - given the political turmoil of the time. Moceri and Carson later started a music business in 1970, the "Fiddlers Music Company" that lasted until 1980 and was well known in the Detroit area.

You can also check out I'm A Clown on Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD) and Poor Boys Always Weep has been compiled on Fuzz, Flakes & Shakes Vol. 7 (LP & CD). (MW/BMi)

AA-065) 1997 with 12 bonus tracks and a detailed booklet.

This outfit came out of northern Massachusetts with what some would argue is the ultimate psychedelic album, full of superb Beatles-like vocals and songs with great guitar work.

All the band's members had previously been in an outfit called The Road Runners, who released an acetate single, You Don't Understand/One Light and Charron, Mazzotta, Door and Pollano were helped out on the album by Joe Villanucci, who played electric piano on Sarah Saturday. Original copies of Corridor Of Faces now change hands for huge sums and are virtually impossible to find in the U.S. let alone elsewhere.

The album was recorded between 22nd June and 13th July 1968 on a budget of $1000 and emphasised the softer, more reflective side of the band, which was apparently a lot heavier live. Although lacking the range of the Beatles, the album perfectly establishes a mood - musing and introspective feel with guileless vocals expressing a rapt, unhurried contentment. While not overtly psychedelic, the atmosphere strongly suggests the drug experience in its basking-in-the moment serenity. At times the band sound almost dead-ringers for Kaleidoscope (UK version) on tracks like Salty People, How Was Your Day Last Night and Come With The Day. Under Skys has all the evanescence and permanence of a hazy summer's day, while Sarah Saturday and How Did You Die sound like parodies of Paul McCartney and John Lennon respectively. This beautiful album keeps on improving with further acquaintance.

Readings from the book "The Psychedelic Experience:
A Manual based on the Tibetan Book of the Dead"

TIMOTHY LEARY - The Psychedelic Experience LP.

By the time the album was released, the band had split up (Door had left so soon after the album's recording that he wasn't included on the album cover), but Pollano cut one post-album single in a trio called The Owl, which is in similar style to the album. The 12 bonus tracks on the excellent Arf! Arf! CD, (which contains a full history of the band including many photos) are mainly acoustic demos recorded in the autumn of 1967, seven of which are early versions of songs from the album.

Pollano also recorded 12 further songs in Boston in the winter of 1969 for an intended second album, but only two of them surfaced on a single, You Always Seem To Know/It Happened Again that was included with the vinyl reissue on the Onyx label. Mazzotta later played with Euclid and was playing in a country band in Massachusetts in the early nineties.

There Was A Time has been compiled on Love, Peace And Poetry, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); and All These Years is also on the Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD). (VJ/LP)

Leary was the 'high priest' of the psychedelic cult. Whilst Professor of Psychology at the University of Harvard he had promoted the potential of psychedelic drugs as a vehicle for expanding the individual consciousness and for favourably modifying social attitudes. He was an extremely energetic writer and in his book, 'The Politics Of Ecstacy' as well as thorough a series of articles, reported speeches and interviews, he explained why he believed people should turn to psychedelic drugs to achieve a more humane and satisfying relationship with the universe and everyone and everything in it. Leary used every channel of communication open to him to expound the aims of the psychedelic movement and like his many books, the above four albums, which are all now minor collectables, did just that.

His first album features him and co-author Ralph Metzner reciting sections of his 'Psychedelic Experience' book from 1964. It was issued with a booklet.

There are two versions of Turn On, Tune In, Drop Out - the one on ESP was issued first and is the rarer of the two. On the Mercury album Leary guides Ralph Metzner through an eventful acid trip with sound effects and improvised music. It was intended to be a soundtrack for a movie that was never released.

His L.S.D. album has the feel of a bitter press conference. It was reissued on CD with two bonus tracks added. The first is a revealing recording of Leary arguing with Nixon's aide G. Gordon Liddy while the second is Leary being interviewed during the height of the US LSD movement in 1967. Needless to say all his efforts to expound the psychedelic movement not only cost him his job but he was also imprisoned for 10 years on the charge of possessing a very small quantity of 'pot'. The un-credited line-up on You Can Be Anyone This Time Around is believed to include Jimi Hendrix, Stephen Stills, Buddy Miles and John Sebastian.

The Joyful Wisdom is a 7-LP set of interviews along with commercials, news and dramas written and performed by Leary. Approximately 100 copies were distributed to radio stations but it was never commercially released.

Leary appeared on other acts albums, including Ash Ra Tempel and Dial-A-Poem Poets. He later escaped from prison, fled to North Africa and then to Switzerland, where his later publications continued to give him considerable influence as a 'high priest' of the psychedelic culture. He was a very important cult figure, indeed martyr, for very many young people. I don't usually cover DVDs in this encyclopaedia but readers may be interested in Timothy Leary's Last Trip made shortly before his death. It features appearances from Ken Kesey (who meets up again with Leary as he did in the sixties) and Wavy Gravy. The DVD also features music from The Grateful Dead recorded live at the Merry Prankster's 'Electric Kool-Aid Acid Tests.

Freakout/Turn On, Tune In, Drop Out has resurfaced on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 2 (CD).

This was a Los Angeles-based studio project involving J.J. Cale and the Tillisons, a folky couple who had migrated to L.A. and released one single as Gypsy Trips in 1965 which was subsequently covered by The Electric Prunes on their debut single. The album, which was released on Amos "Snuff" Garrett's Viva label is notable for being Cale's first album appearance. He wrote the bands' original material and co-produced the album. It consists mainly of covers of the 'in' sounds of the time including Eight Miles High, Psychotic Reaction, Over Under Sideways Down, Sunshine Superman, Kicks (by Paul Revere And The Raiders), Mr. Tambourine Man and Along Comes Mary.

We previously had the Viva label down as being owned by Leon Russell, however this is incorrect as all the Viva singles we've checked bear a logo and 'Snuff Garrett Productions'. Leon Russell did produce at least one single on the label - The Shindogs one on Viva 601- so perhaps he was an in-house producer for the label?

J.J. Cale was originally from Tulsa, Oklahoma and had moved to L.A. in the early sixties with a bunch of fellow Okies, including Leon Russell. It was later when he got to play on the Strip at the likes of Pandora's that he was given the "J.J." tag by a promoter to avoid confusion with the other John Cale.

Roger Tillison later released a good solo album in 1970 Roger Tillison's Album with Jesse Ed Davis.

Psychotic Reaction, Eight Miles High and Non-Stop all got another airing on Ain't It Hard (CD). (VJ/RAd/MW/SR)

Beatlemania influenced Jim Pons to put together a band called The Rockwells, in 1964, whilst at San Fernando State College (California), using the $1,000 he was awarded following an automobile lawsuit. The original line-up soon set about performing classics like Louie, Louie and Twist And Shout at frat parties. The band's quest for self-improvement soon led them to add John Beck and replace Jimmy Kern with Tom Ray.

The band's break came when they got a residency at Ciro's in L.A. They then chose a new name The Leaves and had posters designed with pictures of themselves and a marijuana leaf saying 'The Leaves Are Happening'. Pat Boone heard them playing at the club one night and signed them for his Penthouse Production Company. Through this The Leaves were first signed to Mira and released their debut single Too Many People/Love Minus Zero. The 'A' side was a hit in Los Angeles.

The Leaves were the first band to release Hey Joe as a single. They made two previous recordings of Hey Joe before the third fuzztone version, which reached No. 31 in the U.S. charts. By now, Bobby Arlin had replaced Bill Rhinehart on guitar. The Leaves had now won a residency at the Whisky A Go Go in L.A., where they topped the bill, which on occasions included The Grateful Dead, Big Brother and the Holding Company and Quicksilver Messenger Service. In 1965 when they appeared at the Golden Bear in Huntington Beach, The Rolling Stones opened for them!

However, their follow-up single Get Out Of My Life Woman was less successful. 1966 saw Robert Lee Reiner become an acid casualty and he left the band. They continued as a quartet, but they lacked the fullness of sound necessary to make them click.

Their Hey Joe album was originally issued as a demo on the Surrey label but was then picked up and issued by Mira. The highlights on this are Too Many People, Dr. Stone and of course the title track. Much of the remaining material is less impressive beat and folk-rock.

THE LEAVES - 1966 CD.

Then they signed for Capitol who issued a second album, augmented by studio musicians and strings. It contained some of their best material including Lemon Princess and Twilight Sanctuary, (issued on their last single), but it did not sell and Pons left during its recording to join The Turtles. Pons later did work with Frank Zappa. Beck and Arlin went on to produce a song called Dead Time Bummer Blues which was never released. Arlin later formed the power-trio, The Hook.

45:	Summertime/Crabs	(MAAD 2668) 1968

The origins of this band lie in the Montgomery, Minnesota-based Uni-Qs who'd formed back in September 1965. The name change to Leaves Of Grass came in late 1966 and, given its association with marijuana, was well suited to the times. By this time they were based in Mankato. Their sole vinyl offering consisted of a very fast rendition of Gershwin's Summertime with a scorching guitar break in the middle backed by Crabs, which was penned by the band.

Don Freid got drafted in May 1968 with Jerry Kotek and Dave Edel departing soon after. Shag Smith and Paul Durenberger were recruited from Cambridge Heresy but by then the band was inescapably in the twilight of its career.

Compilation appearances include Crabs on Hipsville, Vol. 3 (LP)..

There was also another Leaves Of Grass based in L.A. and featuring Dennis Wilson's friend and collaborator Stephen Kalinich. Their name was a reference to Walt Whitman. (VJ/JFr)

Hailing from the Cleveland suburb of Euclid, Ohio Barry Lee was head honcho of this teen ensemble. Born Barry Culli, he rounded up a bunch of his mates from St. Joe's High School and started playing around town in 1963. When the British Invasion hit, they hopped on the band-wagon, adding their own blend of psychosis and mayhem to their music. Things Gotta Change is a splendid garage tune with cool rapid-fire lyrics. The flip is an entirely forgettable pop tune.

Their catchy Invasion-pop effort Try Me features on Let's Dig 'Em Up!!! Vol. 1 (LP). (MW)

NB: α reissued by Sundazed (S-117) in 1996 on blue wax with a PS.

The first and very rare single by a quintet from the Detroit suburbs who'd hit bigtime as Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels. Available again thanks to Sundazed, You Know is a hand-clappin' frat raver whilst the flip's a mid-pace Merseybeat-flavoured mover. (MW)

As there's a band called Judas Priest, Bob Dylan will be glad to learn there's a singer Frankie Lee too! Another Love is a fairly successful pop effort with a slight folk touch. I Love The Go Go Girls is stolen from Watermelon Man, though not as overtly as Future Shock. (MK)

45s: Book Of Love/Sorcerella (Original Sound OS-88) 1969
Bubblegum Music/Pancake Trees (Original Sound OS-93) 1970

An L.A. act that may have just been a solo artist. Sorcerella is heavy melodramatic pop with fuzz and psychy guitar-work, whilst Book Of Love is a heavy 'psychedelic-soul' take on a Monotones song. The second single features catchy pop backed by an airy pop-psych ditty with flute and various effects that doesn't quite come off.

Jeff Lee's next project was Chakra.

You'll also find Sorcerella on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP), Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box) and Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

The brainchild behind this band was Michael Brown, who'd been born in New York as Michael Lookofsky. He'd undergone a classical musical training and his father, Harry, was a respected musician who owned a recording studio and gave his son much encouragement in his career as a producer and pianist. Brown's first disc was a single in 1965, It's Alright Ma (I'm Only Bleeding)/They Just Don't Care, which was credited to an outfit called Christopher and The Chaps. The 'A' side was a Bob Dylan cover, the flip was written by M. Lookofsky and B. Jerome (whoever he was) and produced by Harry Lookofsky's World United Productions. However, it soon vanished without trace.

Brown resurfaced soon after with line-up 'A' of The Left Banke, although on their debut single Walk Away Renee, which appeared on Smash in July 1966 and eventually made it into the Top 10 in November that year, Harry Lookofsky made use of session musicians. It seems that the musical abilities of some group members were rather dubious. The song was later covered by The Four Tops giving them a massive U.K. hit. After the follow-up, Pretty Ballerina, had also made the Top 20, the band began work on their debut album. Around this time Jeff Winfield was replaced by Rick Brand, a talented guitarist and songwriter. The album was a successful vehicle for Michael Brown's song writing talents, his father's production skills (making use as it did of studio techniques and session musicians) and Steve Martin's haunting vocals. It's a very consistent album and, aside from the first two singles, it featured several other gems notably Shadows

Breaking Over My Head, She May Call You Up Tonight and I've Got Something On My Mind, it's rather sad, therefore that the group subsequently collapsed when Michael Brown announced he wanted to experiment and compose in the studio and wouldn't tour with the band anymore. Hereafter, the band's history becomes rather complex with both the remaining four members and Brown (who'd put together a new line-up (D)) claiming the name. Brown and Tom Feher (from (C)) penned another lovely song, Ivy Ivy, which was released as a follow-up single and later withdrawn when the other four band members demanded that radio stations boycott the disc. She May Call You Up Tonight was released instead, but neither single made any commercial impression. An attempted reconciliation took place in September 1967 and another Brown/Feher composition Desiree was issued in the hope of relaunching the group. However, radio stations tended to steer clear of it and the anticipated commerical comeback just did not happen. At this point Brown quit the group but the remaining members soldiered on producing a brace of good singles:- Dark Is The Bark, Goodbye Holly and Bryant Hotel - which came nearer to the 'group' sound as opposed to orchestrated backing that Brand and the other remaining members wanted. They also released a further album, Too, which suffered overall from Brown's absence but matched their earlier effort in its finest moments (particularly with There's A Storm Coming). It was generally ignored and after just one further single, Myrah (which has become the band's rarest single), the band (by now a trio (line-up 'E')) gave up the ghost, shelving plans for a projected third album with just one cut left in the can.

Brown went on to form Montage in 1969, which was really another vehicle for his songwriting and production skills and later he formed Stories (in 1972) and The Beckies (in 1976). With Brown gone Steve Martin, Tom Finn and George Cameron reunited in 1978 under the auspices of Camerica Productions, and with some session support cut an album, two tracks of which (Queen Of Paradise and And One Day) were released as a single, but Camerica shelved the album, which did not resurface for eight years, when it was released by the British Bam-Caruso label, which had been reissuing the earlier Left Banke tracks. (The UK issue was titled Voices Calling, a title which was changed for the US issue on Relic.)

More recently, Brown circa 1998 was responsible for producing/engineering/songwriting and providing keyboards on Yvonne Vitale's On This Moment CD. Sadly, the album, on the aptly named "Endangered" record label, was quickly withdrawn and less than 200 copies are thought to have survived. Bert Sommer became an actor in the Broadway production of "Hair", had a minor hit single with We're All Playing In The Same Band in 1970, and died of liver failure on July 23 1990.

The Bam-Caruso compilation, issued in 1982, rekindled some interest in the band. It was reissued in 1988 with two additional cuts, Walk Away Renee and a mono version of Foggy Waterfall (the one track in the can for the third and never completed album). Voices Calling was taken from the master tapes of a 1978 reunion of line-up 'E'. It's an OK album. This and all the other retrospective compilations except for There's Gonna Be A Storm - The Complete Recordings 1966-69 (which contains both their original albums, as well as several rare bonus tracks) are now deleted.

THE LEFT BANKE - There's Gonna Be A Storm CD.

With their lavish orchestration and complex arrangements, this baroque-rock outfit is still lovingly remembered by many psychedelic rock fans.

Compilation appearances have included: Walk Away Renee on Highs Of The Sixties (LP) and the Bam-Caruso Psych-Out Flexi; Desiree on More Nuggets (CD); and Pretty Ballerina on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP). The band's Coca Cola ad from 1967 can also be heard on From The New World, Vol. 1 - one of three adverts they which has also featured on a recent bootleg EP. From The New World Vol.1 (LP) also includes Christopher and The Chaps' They Don't Care.

Tom Finn had earlier been in The Magic Plants. (VJ/MW/LP)

Originally from Colorado, this five-piece band relocated to Los Angeles and later became Dragonfly, who also recorded for the same label.

The material on this album largely predates the psychedelic era and is full of cover versions (eg. Reg Presley's With A Girl Like You, Dylan's Baby Blue and Pete Townsend's The Kids Are Alright). Some of the band's material like Zepplin's Good Friday, Yesterday's Child and The Sky That Is Blue has good melodies and Beatlesque harmonies. A few cuts, like Where Oh Where Is Mother contain some good guitar playing with psychedelic undertones and the album ends with a little sitar solo.

All but the first single feature non-album tracks. Enjoy Yourself is on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD), whilst Portrait Of Youth is also on Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD). It was later re-recorded for their album as Dragonfly. (VJ/MW)

NB: α is a limited edition 45 of two Hartman-penned tracks from 1969.

Hailing from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, The Legends set out as a soul band but soon got into rock. However, this soon led to the departure of their original drummer, Ralph Swartz, who hated rock, and his replacement by Sadler.

Soon after their debut single was released in early 1968 with the above-mentioned line-up. Why, was a mellow, bluesy ballad - an attempt at commercialism and it was a local hit. The flip, Baby Get Your Head Screwed On, was an early Cat Stevens' composition, which the band rearranged into a driving rock song.

Their follow-up single did not stray much from the original versions. It featured Larry Swartzwelder on guitar as Dave Hartman was drafted for the Vietnam War. This also was a local hit.

Their third single, High Towers, was cut in 1969. Dan Hartman played guitar on this as Swartzwelder had gone into service. Joe Caleoiero had joined the band on bass. This was the band's most stable line-up and they sounded much like The Jimi Hendrix Experience, performing many of his songs in their live shows. High Towers included wah-wah effects, electric piano, double tracked vocals and dreamy Nazz-like harmonies and was the band's most popular single. The flip side, is equally inspired by Hendrix/Cream.

The band was arguably on the verge of a breakthrough when its leader, Dan Hartman, departed to join The Edgar Winter Group and later embarked on a solo career. However, they soldiered on and were rejoined by Swartzwelder upon his return from service and added Dean Lescalette (rhthm gtr). The 'A' side of their final single, Rock And Roll Woman was nonetheless produced and written by Hartman. Initially issued on Heart Records (CS 7672), it was at Hartman's instigation later issued by Epic (5-10937). The band planned a single for Epic, but this did not materialise, although they carried on playing until 1975 before calling it quits: Caleoiero went on to play in a pop R&B band, The Class Act. Sadler became a session musician for Olivia Newton-John and John Miles among others and managed funk band, Positive Force, and co-managed Skyline Records.

The High Towers 2-CD retrospective comes with a lavish 24-page booklet. The first CD includes nine tracks (seven previously unissued) cut in 1969 and two early 1968 singles (including a freakbeat cover of Double Feature's Baby Get Your Head Screwed On), a rare promo flexi, a 1972 radio spot and a CD-Rom bonus of a 1973 film short. The second CD mostly comprises 1965-66 demos of British invasion covers.

Compilation appearances have included: High Towers on Psychedelic Patchwork (LP & CD) and 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD); Cheating on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 15: Apple-Glass Cyndrome (LP & CD); Fever Games on Brain Shadows, Vol. 11(LP & CD); and the 45 version of Rock And Roll Women is on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) (2-CD) sampler. (VJ)

Sometimes referred to as Sam McCue's Legends, this Milwaukee group were also known as the Canadian Legends whilst they were in Miami - why 'Canadian' I don't know unless, like the Five Canadians from Texas, it was a trick to get more interest as exotic foreigners in the wake of Invasion-mania. They spent considerable time in the mid-sixties down in Florida and continued to release singles whilst there, causing them to be regarded as a Florida band too.

I've yet to hear any of their pre-64 material, but all their singles from 1964 onwards are recommended to fans of pure sixties Invasion-flavoured beat-pop. Their use of melody, three-part harmonies and clear ringing guitars is more reminiscent of the Searchers than the Beatles - particularly How Can I Find Her, If I Only Had Her Back, Here Comes The Pain and their rendition of Buddy's Raining In My Heart. Yeah, for the most part they're sultry beat ballads but they can belt it out too - especially on their version of Ross-Vanadore's Alright, featured on Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP). This song was previously done by Houston's Coastliners and later by Palmyra, Wisconsin's Madadors. Sam McCue would later feature in Crowfoot in the early seventies.

Jerry Schills also played with Florida's Birdwatchers.

45: She's Gone/Happy Together (Impact no #) c1967

A Philadelphia quintet whose locally recorded and pressed single is rarely seen these days. She's Gone has been revisited on Today's Just Tomorrow's Yesterday Vol .2 (CD). It was a band original featuring drummer Schecter, later in Jellow Buzzard, on vocals; the flip is a cover of the Turtles' hit. (MW)

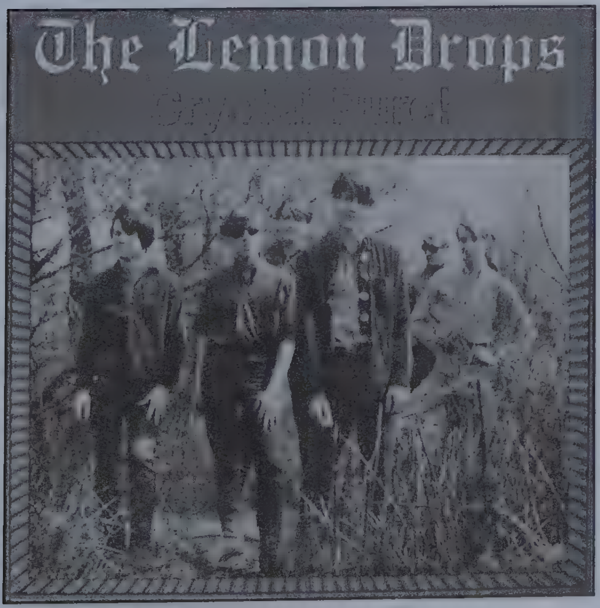
NB: (3) is a 24-track CD compilation. Sunshower Flower Power (Cicadelic CIC 9842CD) 2009 includes many previously unreleased recordings (including the two different versions of I Live In The Springtime) and a 12-page booklet with extensive liner notes and band memorabilia.

45: I Live In The Springtime/Listen Girl (Rembrandt 5009) 1967

NB: I Live In The Springtime was issued on Rembrandt 5009 in two different ways: The more common issue (if a rare single like this could be considered common) is missing the drums and bass. The lesser seen pressing has the exact same label, but it has the drums and bass and the guitar is further down in the mix. We can only surmise that they took the stereo mix and issued the left channel (in mono) on one pressing and the right channel (in mono) on the other pressing. It's not known if the two variations share the same dead wax markings.



THE LEMON DROPS - Crystal Pure! LP.

This band formed in the Chicago, Illinois suburb of McHenry in 1966. Despite its repetitive lyrics the band's only single I Live In The Springtime, (which was inspired by a LSD trip) has a strong enough melody to suggest that better things could have laid ahead.... but as it turned out, none of their other 1967-68 recording sessions were released on record until the mid-eighties.

Ricky Erickson (ex-The Nuchez) was brought in to do guitar on the single after the band's original guitarist (George Sorenson) had quit prior to the recording and I Live In The Springtime did get some airplay in New York. Consequently the Lemon Drops recorded a second single, the hard-rockin' It Happens Everyday backed by a Ricky Erickson composition Alone, at the RCA Studios in Chicago, but it was never released. They then recruited a new 17-year-old singer Dick Sidman and began working on an ambitious new project with tablas, flowery harmonies and numerous special effects and ran up a studio bill of $1,200 that Reggie Weiss, the owner of Rembrandt Records couldn't pay. Only in 1985 were the master tapes from this session released as Crystal Pure.

In their quest for major label interest the band proceeded to record a live album over two evenings at Weiss' home. They took the tapes to several Hollywood labels but none were interested and losing heart the band actually split in 1968. However, the following month the Weiss family moved to Phoenix, Arizona and by chance played their tape for Buena Vista Productions who offered to put up $250,000 to promote the group. Obviously they were thrilled and the Lemon Drops reformed with just Ricky Erickson missing from the new line-up. They recorded lots of new songs in Chicago's Sound Studios during November and December 1968, but ironically these efforts too proved to be in vain, for the owner of Buena Vista died in his sleep and the deal was cancelled! Devastated the band split up for good.

Gary and Eddie Weiss later formed Watermelon and then Buzzsaw. In 1972 Reggie Weiss, frustrated by their lack of success issued a stereo mix of I Live In The Springtime as Buzzsaw.

Compilation appearances include: I Live In The Springtime on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Psychedelic Patchwork (LP & CD), Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP) and there's a previously unreleased stereo version on I Wanna Come Back From The World Of LSD (CD) and an unreleased version on Chicago Garage Band Greats; Talk To The Animals, another previously unreleased cut with loads of fuzz guitar is on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD); Listen Girl on Time Won't Change My Mind (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 2 (CD); Flowers On The Hillside, I Live In The Springtime, Listen Girl, Nobody For Me on Chicago Garage Band Greats (CD); Sometime Ago, My Friend (Theatre Of Your Eyes), Jennifer Ann, Crystal Pure, Maria and (Flower) Dream (demos) on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 5 (CD); I Live In The Springtime (unreleased version culminating in a guitar solo), Alone and Jennifer Ann on Chicago Garage Band Greats (LP); It Happens Everyday and I Live In The Springtime on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD); and It Happens Everyday is also on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). Buzzsaw's version of I Live In The Springtime can also be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 4 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 6 (CD). In the spring of 1963, The Bar Eights were formed, with Fillmore High School classmates Danny Ogg and Terry Horde on lead guitar and drums, respectively, Timmy Thorpe on bass, and Dale VanDeloo on saxophone and vocals. Essentially, The Bar Eights were a Rip Chords cover band, with a few Lou Christie covers mixed in for variety. Aside from a few coffee bar gigs and a sock hop, The Bar Eights failed to establish themselves even semi-professionally over the next two years. When VanDeloo reportedly attacked Ogg with a mic stand during an argument over who would get the taller riser, The Bar Eights were no more.

Then, one sweltering afternoon in the summer of 1965 at Clem's Music in downtown Houston, it happened. Chris Lyons was hanging around the store recruiting talent for a new band he was forming. He had already earmarked drummer Eddie Sura and keyboardist Jimmy Spicher and was looking for a guitarist and bassist. Danny Ogg entered the store with hopes of trying out the new Danelectro that Clem had in. When Chris asked him to join, he agreed, but only under the condition that his friend Timmy Thorpe, who had just gotten laid off from his job at the glass factory and was bored out of his mind, play bass for them. Lyons agreed, taking on Thorpe sight-unseen. After a few rehearsals, it became painfully obvious that Sura was not working out. According to Ogg, "Eddie kept yelling at everybody, particularly Timmy, 'cause he couldn't keep good time." When Ogg ran into former Bar Eight bandmate Terry Horde at Clem's the following week, Ogg offered him the drummer spot in the band. Horde agreed. By that weekend, The Pla-Boys were playing their first gig, at St. Regis College for the Arts. In the audience that night was a man who would change their lives...

Ted Eubanks, an avant-garde composer and fixture of Houston's mod scene, caught The Pla-Boys' act. Their set consisted mostly of covers of such garage greats as Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs and ? and the Mysterians. As Eubanks puts it, "They were playing this garage crap! It was horrible. But something about them struck me... I think it was their chemistry". Eubanks immediately approached the band after the show and offered to take them over. They agreed. But Eubanks decided that before anything was to become of them, a few changes would need to be made. First, he addressed the music. Eubanks immediately began injecting original numbers into the group's repertoire and dissuaded them from the typical garage fare they had been playing. Secondly, he sorted their image. The Pla-Boys basically looked like something right out of a Frankie and Annette movie, with matching grey sport suits. But Eubanks got them good and "psychedelicised", dressing them in beads, mod suits, and the like. Finally, there was the name. From this moment forth, The Pla-Boys would be known as The Lemon Fog.

14 PSYCHEDELIC SOUNDS FROM THE LEMON FOG & THE NOMADS
Three O'Clock Merrian Webster Time

LEMON FOG/NOMADS - Three O'Clock Merrian Webster Time LP.

In short order, The Lemon Fog established themselves as one of the area's two premier bands, along with the well-established Nomads. The "all thumbs" Jimmy Spicher was substituted for fellow Fillmore High classmate Bill Simmons. At this point, Eubanks decided to also drop Timmy Thorpe, whom Ted felt was "an incompetent", and switch Danny Ogg to bass, while Chris Lyons assumed guitar duties. This line-up gained local celebrity status, and soon, The Lemon Fog were invited into the studio to cut a single.

Under Eubanks' guidance, The Lemon Fog entered the studio to create some of the most experimental recordings of the 1960's. Eubanks' ongoing experimentation with new electronic sounds became a hallmark of The Lemon Fog recorded legacy. From July of 1966 to February 1968, they recorded several albums worth of material. Little of this material was ever released, however, most of it having been stolen when Liquid Stereo Studios' vaults were raided in 1968. But three singles were released. The Living Eye Theme, also known as The Lemon Fog, was their biggest success, reaching the Top 8 regionally. The song's composer, Ted Eubanks explains, "The Living Eye was a huge club in Houston where we were the house band. I vaguely remember one night staring at the huge pulsating eye which sits in front of the door. As I sat there, suddenly the words and images of the song just started dancing around in my head. It's not the kind of thing one forgets". Aside from their studio work, The Lemon Fog enjoyed being one of the top club draws in the area. Besides the music, the Fog benefited from a spectacular stage presence. This was attributed largely to Chris Lyons' charisma and good looks. Also adding to the spectacle was Ted Eubanks, dancing on stage wearing a long, flowing, sequined cape, and occasionally chiming in a harmony or two, described by Ogg as "Chinese sounding." Off-kilter harmonies aside, Ted assumed the role of group leader, despite the fact that he himself played no instruments. Ted felt his presence was enough. In addition to live performances, The Lemon Fog also made television appearances on 'Sump 'n' Else' and 'The Larry Kane Show', where they performed Echoes Of Time and The Living Eye Theme.

At the height of the Fog's heyday, problems began to arise. Eubanks was becoming increasingly demanding of the others, insisting that they practice every day they are not performing. In particular, the slothful Horde took exception to this. Furthermore, Eubanks' compositions began to become more and more self-indulgent and less accessible. The others tried to turn down his latest inclusions and attempted to inject some covers back into their repertoire to give their show more appeal. But Ted would have none of it. He insisted that his new material be considered. A power clash began to develop. At one point, Eubanks threatened to walk out on the group and leave them holding the bag for four gigs they had lined up that month. When the group proceeded with those engagements without him, Eubanks reluctantly grovelled back. Adding to this, acid casualty Bill Simmons began making himself scarce, sometimes for as long as a month, causing further tension in the group. Eubanks refused to substitute for Simmons, insisting that his on-stage role was too important to compromise. As a result, Chris Lyons was left to take up a "lyon's" share (pun intended) of the keyboard duties, in addition to guitar and vocals.

By 1970, the group was in disarray. A break-up seemed inevitable at this point. When Eubanks met with the others for rehearsal, planning to propose his latest composition, Internal Combustion (later titled Bedroom War and released by Eubanks as a solo single), he found the equipment packed away, and grim faces on his band mates. They told him it was over. The four left the practice space that day, and each went their separate ways.

Cicadelic's first collectors' album in 1982 Three O'Clock Merrian Webster Time has one side devoted to them, which compiles all seven of their surviving tracks (Summer, Echoes Of Time, Day By Day, The Prisoner, Yes I Cry, Girl From The Wrong Side Of Town and Lemon Fog) - the same material has also been reissued on CD by Collectables as Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD), and The History Of Texas Garage Bands, Vol. 2 (CD) - the latter featuring two additional takes of Summer.

Other compilation coverage has included: Lemon Fog and Summer on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (CD) and Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD); Summer and Yes I Cry on Gathering Of The Tribe (CD); Summer on Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD) and Acid Dreams - The Complete Collection (3-LP); The Living Eye Theme and The Prisoner on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (CD); and Yes I Cry on Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD). Ivan Browne had been in Ivan & The Sabers, a Centerville, Ohio band. The rest were in Cincinnati/Oxford band Tony & The Bandits and teamed up with Browne after their leader, Tony Brazis, had left to form The Chosen Lot. (Two of the Bandits were not local lads: Bartlett was a Brit, originally from South Harrow in Middlesex; and Walmsley was from even further afield, New Zealand).

In 1967, they were picked up by bubblegum maestros Kasenetz-Katz, relocated to Cincinnati, and transformed into psychedelic bubblegum act The Lemon Pipers. They are best remembered for their single Green Tambourine, which topped the U.S. charts and reached No. 7 in the U.K. in early 1968. Ironically, this was one of the earliest drug songs to achieve chart success. Although the follow-up Rice Is Nice also made the U.S. Top 50 and No. 41 in the UK, like most other bubblegum bands they were not equipped to live up to their original promise and split after further single failures. Their singles were released by Pye International in the UK.

THE LEMON PIPERS.

Thru' With You on their first album Green Tambourine contrasts starkly with their bubblegum repertoire - being an awesome psychedelic guitar, extended freak-out. There's also some sublime summer pop on this album in the form of tracks like Ask Me If I Care and Rainbow Tree. This album was later reissued by Buddah. It made No. 90 in the charts.

Their second album Jungle Marmalade wasn't quite as good as their debut. They appear to have led a double life, with singles by Ivan and The Sabers continuing to appear during and after their time as The Lemon Pipers. Bill Bartlett went on to form Ram Jam, whose 1977 smash hit Black Betty was produced by Kasenetz-Katz.

Compilation appearances have included: We Can Be Together on Pop Explosion (Buddah 643 312) (LP) 1968; Green Tambourine on Psychedelic Visions (CD) and Best Of '60s Psychedelic Rock (CD); Quiet Please on Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP) and Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); Green Tamourine, Jelly Jungle and Rice Is Nice on *Bubble Gum Music Is... Lenny & The Thundertones was a rocket-fuelled instrumental combo from Detroit formed in 1959. Although outside the stated time zone of this project, their sonic assaults should appeal to garage fans.

They added vocals for their final single in 1963, credited to Dwight Douglas & The Jayhawkers (no known connection to the similarly-named Jay Hawkers from the Detroit area, who released a quartet of singles in 1965-6). Interest in Interstate 45 was revived when it appeared on Scum Of The Earth Vol.1 (LP, reissued on CD) and Norton reissued it on 45 format in 2002.

In 1963 the band backed Preston Carnes on Someone/Romancing Barbara (Astro 3006) - see Chris Carpenter or Preston entries. Drake went on to work with Doug Brown (& The Omens). (MW)

A great Ronnie Weiss-inspired punk outfit Leo and The Prophets hailed from Austin, Texas. Their single is well covered on compilations. Check out Tilt-A-Whirl, whose wacky lyrics deal with banana peelings and living in technicolour cinematic style, and the flip, which is equally bizarre and nonsensical.

Perry Leopold (PA)

ALBUM: 1 EXPERIMENT IN METAPHYSICS (No label) 1970 R5

NB: (1) issued in plain gold textured sleeve with small sticker on the front. (1) reissued in the U.K. on vinyl (w/insert) (Psychedelic Archives AR 305) 1996 (R1), 275 were pressed. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-122) 1998 with three bonus tracks, Jets They Roar, The Prophesy and The Dawning Of Creation recorded in the same era. A second (unreleased) album, Christian Lucifer (recorded in 1973) has also been released on CD (Gear Fab GF-141) 1999 and vinyl (Gear Fab/Comet GFC 401) 2001 with poster insert.

From Philadelphia, Experiment In Metaphysics is probably the most sought-after solo acoustic folk record in the world, with only 300 copies pressed in the summer of 1970. Leopold handles the vocals and guitar and a dark atmosphere is obtained by this mysterious troubadour. The album sides are labelled 'Smoke' and 'Drop' with side two being bannered "ACID FOLK". This one delivers!

Perry Leopold later recorded material for two further albums. The Gear Fab CD reissue of Experiment In Metaphysics contains three tracks from one of these unreleased albums included as bonus material (fantastic stuff - especially The Dawning Of Creation), and have already issued another in its entirety: Christian Lucifer, recorded in 1973.

An eponymous 7" EP was from 1978 also exists (No label), but it isn't of the same standard and won't be of interest to readers of this book.

Anyone interested in checking out Leopold's work (without obtaining a second mortgage first) should check out the Gear Fab CDs, which are made from Leopold's tape archives.

The Prophesy has resurfaced on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (CF/MW)

PERRY LEOPOLD - Experiment In Metaphysics LP.

Leslie's Motel formed in Louisville, Kentucky during 1971. Richard Bush had been the keyboardist in the blue-eyed soul band Tom Dooley and The Lovelights. Bill Tullis had been in The Oxfords and he and Mike Selbold then played together with Conception. They disbanded Conception when they heard The Allman Joys and were so inspired by them that they decided to form their own southern rock band. On the sleevenotes to the Gear Fab CD Bill explains that the newly formed band rehearsed in a garage off of Dixie Highway in Louisville and they named the band after a brothel they passed on route to rehearsal.

Ray Barrickman and Paul Hoerni were also in The Oxfords and later became Hank Williams Jr. bassist for almost 30 years. Roy Blumenfeld asked to join the band after they had opened for a reunion tour featuring The Blues Project.

So the Leslie's Motel Band played an original set that blended rock, blues, jazz and boogie. They opened for the likes of Ted Nugent, Charlie Daniels, John Lee Hooker, Freddie King, Harvey Mandel, Mike Bloomfield, Mitch Ryder and the MC5. They recorded sessions at King Sound Productions in Louisville, Kentucky with Jay Petach handling production. In 2009 Gear Fab have reissued them and they verify what talented musicians they were. ALBUM: 1(A) PILGRIM'S PROGRESS (HogFat HLP-1) 1968 SC

This album is an interesting example of West Coast rock with nice guitars, although the vocals could have been better. It is also a pretty rare private pressing, with Hogfat being "a Division of the Society for the Naturalization of Animals". Scheff, French and Benay were previously in Goldenrod, Cooder in the Rising Sons, The Ceyleib People and Captain Beefheart's Magic Band.

The album is one of the first examples of artists "going (back) to the country". The liner notes are explicit: "So I'm off to the mountains, the sea, the earth of nature. I leave you my songs and my wealth of insights of THE SCENE. They are of some use to the narrow minded youth of tomorrow and some use to the narrow minded aged of yesterday. To me they are of no use any longer... The meaning to my life is to be found other than drugs/words/sex/money. Where? the glimpse I've had tells me to move: physically. So my move: where words are few, where money is not important, where drugs are surpassed by environment, where sex is children and love".

On offer is folk-rock with a bluesy edge. The lyrics are explicitly about sex and drugs. The lyrics definitely make you sit up and listen and that's what makes this appealing particularly to singer/songwriter fans.

LeVine would inspire the lyrics of the Floating House Band's Shep's Goin To The Country. (SR/VJ)

NB: (1) in mono!

A local New York private pressing recorded between July 1969 and October 1971. At their best, Levinson and his crew produce dark, druggy pop music remindful of neighbours The Patron Saints or bayou obscuros Feather Da Gamba. Forever Friday, Looking For Sunsets and You Are Everywhere fit this profile. The Lama Will Be Late This Year is probably the most intriguing cut on the album, having as it does an oddly Syd Barrett-like delivery of the lyrics and some pretty unorthodox music with fuzz guitar leads. If the other two-thirds of the album were on par with the aforementioned tracks, several labels would be arm wrestling for reissue rights.

The album contains over 50 minutes of music, so beware of high prices on less-than mint copies, these will likely be noisy! (CF)

45: Hear What I Say/That's Not The Way (Fleetwood 4563) 1966

From Lynn, Massachussetts The Levis' single is on the sought-after Fleetwood label, although it is a pretty average effort.

Compilation appearances have included: That's Not The Way on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 8 (LP & CD); and Hear What You Say on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ/MW/GGI)

ALBUM: 1(A) LIVING IN THE COUNTRY (Warner Bros. WS-1807) 1969

Definitely not for garage fans, but it should interest Beau Brummels fans due to the involvement of Ron Elliott, who produced the album and provided three songs:- Empty Boxes, Farewell To Sally Brown and Paradise (co-written by Butch Engle, from Butch Engle and the Styx). Recorded at Sunwest Studios in Hollywood in August 1969, the album is a good mix of folk, country and West Coast sound with duet vocals, the liner notes indicating Flatts and Scruggs and Buffalo Springfield as their main influences.

Marc McClure co-wrote Mercedes Blues with Janis Joplin and went on to form Joyous Noise. Both worked again with Ron Elliott for his Candlestickmaker solo album, Levitt also working on the Beau Brummels 1975 album. (SR)

It Must Be Love/I Think I'm Glad (RPR R-109) 1969

NB: α recorded Dec. 1966.

Originally called the Cokats, from Mt. Lemon, Arizona their story is told on Hitch-Hike! a 14-track CD retrospective. Comfortable and competent in adopting the Invasion sounds, with some fine Beatlesque poppy numbers and Zombie-inspired minor-moodies, the CD features generally cool pop-beat fodder with excellent harmonies. The stand-out track is It Must Be Love, a reedy upbeat number with an unexpected edge due to an outburst of mean 'n' moody guitar. This is used similarly on an alternate version of If I Was You to end the collection with a buzz.

The band toured incessantly in the southwest, opening shows for The Beau Brummels, Paul Revere and the Raiders, The Turtles, and backing performers such as the Rip Chords, Donna Lauren, Bobby Sherman, and Chris Montez. Their biggest commercial triumph came with their final single of the sixties, Only A Dream/Something On My Mind, which they mimed on the Dick Clark showcase, 'Happening '68'. They continued to perform well into the nineties, despite the death of Bobby Lewallen in 1981, and retain a strong following in the Southwest with their brand of late-fifties and mid-sixties style rock & roll.

Other compilation coverage has included: It Must Be Love on The Tucson Sound 1960-68 (LP); 'Cause You Want Me To, Don't Say Why, Dream, I'm Normal, Wine, Wine, Wine and You're Gonna Leave Me (four unreleased and two live tracks) on The Cicadelic '60s - Vol. 7 (CD); Only A Dream and Tough He Was on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 3 (CD); Wine, Wine, Wine on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 7 (LP); a previously unreleased version of Don't Say Why on Quagmire Vol. 5 (CD); and If I Were You on Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD). Having enjoyed mammoth profits with their pre-packaged Beatles-clones The Monkees, it only made sense that Colgems (co-owned by RCA and Columbia) would attempt to manufacture a second corporate super group. That said, how many of you remember The Lewis and Clarke Expedition? Well, probably very few of you. That's unfortunate since the band's sole album is nothing short of wonderful.

1966 found Travis Lewis (aka Michael Martin Murphey) and Boomer Clarke (aka Owen Castleman) paying their bills as songwriters for Screen Gems. Originally from Dallas, Texas Lewis/Murphey was a passing acquaintance of Mike Nesmith. The connection helped the pair place one of their compositions Hangin' Round with The Monkees, in the process bringing them to the attention of Colgems which quickly recognised their potential and signed them to a recording contract. Produced by Jack Keller and built around the talent of Lewis and Clarke (the line-up rounded out by multi-instrumentalist Ken Bloom, guitarist John London and drummer Johnny Raines) actually debuted with an instantly obscure 1966 single for the small Chartmaker label. While parallels to The Monkees were apparent, there were also some major differences; notably the fact the band were all capable musicians and namesakes Lewis and Clarke were responsible for the majority of material. That said, their debut was easily as good as anything in The Monkees catalogue. Musically varied, the set included stabs at shimmering Top 40 pop (I Feel Good (I Feel Bad)), folk-rock (This Town Ain't The Same Anymore), vaudeville (Everybody Loves A Fire), psych (House Of My Sorrow), an ecological message (Chain Of Flowers) and Byrds-styled jangle-rock (Blue Revelation). Rounded out by strong melodies and tight harmonies, mid-sixties pop simply didn't get much better. Highlights included the goofy Spirit Of Argyle High and the extended suite Memorial To The American Indian which included one of the first covers of J.D. Loudermilk's (The Lament Of) The Cherokee Reservation Indian we've ever heard (coming a full three years before Paul Revere and The Raiders' hit). Unfortunately, with Colgems devoting most of its energy to marketing The Monkees, neither the band nor the album got much in the way of promotional support. Needless to say, it failed to chart.

ALBUM: 1 JUST MOLLY AND ME (Tiger Lily 14011) 1976 SC

This album blends power-pop, fast-paced acoustic folk and some hard-rock passages quite effectively. Lewis bizarrely deploys different vocal styles to suit the material. So there's a high-pitched pop voice and a lower, more serious voice. There are also a few acoustic solo songs. (VJ)

Roger "Lewis" and his Moondawgs were from Lewiston, Maine (geddit?) and recorded a couple of singles in 1965, one of which was picked up by Karate. The following year Michaud enrolled at St. Michael's College in Vermont and joined encumbent student band The Chosen Few. In 1967 they released a single in a picture sleeve as The Chosen Few From St. Michaels - JTB/Get In On Life (Take Over L-151-1/2). This was much sought-after even before Get In On Life was re-aired on several compilations: - Gravel Volume 3 (CD), Diggin' For Gold Volume 10 (LP), Cry Of Atlantis: North Country Scene 2 (LP) and Today's Just Tomorrow's Yesterday Vol. 4 (CD). Liberman is Flossmoor, Illinois' favourite son. All four albums are brimmed full of guitar-based heavy psychedelia. Solitude Within is generally thought to be the best. He's equally comfortable playing blues, jazz-rock, hard-rock and more experimental material. Synergy does not have the reputation of the first two. His seventies albums are now important minor collectors' items and all have seen limited reissues.

This Corpus Christi outfit was originally called The Zulus but when Carl Becker, who ran the J-Beck/Cee-Bee record labels, became their manager circa 1966/67 he persuaded vocalist Ronnie Tanner to join the band and changed their name to Liberty Bell. They quickly recorded a Yardbirds cover as their first single and with this line-up released two other singles. They also recorded two versions of an Al Hunt composition entitied I Can See which was never released but was to have been Cee-Bee 1004. Chris Gerniottis came in from Zakary Thaks to replace Ronnie Tanner on vocals on their last two singles. The band disintegrated whilst recording these, but the owner of the Back Beat label which concentrated on black artistes considered Chris one of the best vocalists he'd heard.

Eva's retrospective albums and the equivalent Collectables CD includes all the band's singles (including the unissued one), Eveline Kaye an Al Hunt number and Reality Is The Only Answer, a superb psychedelic-punk song written by Chris. It also includes both sides of Gerniottis' next band's single. They were later called Kubla Khan.

The Lime Spiders later covered That's How It Will Be on Slave Girl.

Compilation appearances have included: That's How It Will Be on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD) and Garage Beat ' 66 7 (CD); For What You Lack, I Can See, Reality Is The Only Answer and Eveline Kaye on Texas Reverberations (LP); Something For Me and Reality Is The Only Answer on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 1 (CD); I Can See and Reality Is The Only Answer on The History Of Texas Garage Bands, Vol. 5 (CD); there's a previously unreleased version of I Can See on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD); and Recognition appears on Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD). THE LIBERTY BELL - Reality Is The Only Answer CD.

Leckenby, Mike Robbins, Jerry Hawkes, Bill Rieben, and Al Malosky all playing in the final version of The Enchanters. When Ed Leckenby left to play drums for Merrilee Rush and the Turnabouts, and Vern Kjellberg left to play with The Kingsmen, the remaining members became The Liberty Party.

Their two singles were recorded at Audio Recording studio in Seattle and Mike Robbins recalls that the band recorded Get Yourself Home and Send For Me under pressure from the label owner Jerry Dennon, as he liked those particular tunes although the band felt that they had much "rockier" material available...

Gordon was drafted to the National Guard and when he returned from the Army, although the group were sounding great with Mike Robbins standing in on vocals in his absence, something had been lost and the magic was never quite there again. Mike left to attend college, as did Bill Rieben and Jerry Hawkes whilst Al Malosky moved to L.A. and was in and out of the music scene for awhile. Gordon Kjellberg later played with The Feelies and Vern Kjellberg went on to Don & The Goodtimes and Touch. Sadly Jerry Hawkes had a very serious car accident many years ago and has never been able to play the guitar or sing again. Bill Rieben meanwhile has had a very successful career in finance and accounting, Al Malosky played with several successful bands after the Liberty Party including the Emergency Exit and Easy Chair, and today spends his time working in construction and helping troubled kids. Mike Robbins went on to become a Dr. of Clinical Psychology and a B&B owner in the Kitsap/Hood Canal area.

Mike Robbins also played in Jimmy Hanna and the Dynamics, The Kingsmen, Merrilee Rush and the Turnabouts and had one brief West Coast tour with Sonny and Cher.

45: Latin Shake/Me Amor Es Verdadero (Kama Sutra 246) 1968

Unlike many bands on the Kasenetz-Katz production line, this was a real band from Brooklyn, New York with several years' experience behind them. Boyle and Morrissey had been in doo-wop group The Echoes when they had a hit in 1961 with Baby Blue. In the mid-sixties they broke away and formed The Scoundrels, who released three cool garagy-beat singles in 1966. Changing their name to a toy town epithet was presumably deemed necessary to keep "in" with the latest trend, bubblegum pop. With the exception of Latin Shake (by Art Resnick and Joey Levine), all songs on the album were composed by band members. (SR/ET/HB/MW)

CD: 1 TURN ON? THE LIGHT
(UGLY THINGS UTCD-2205) 2007

45: Back Up/Music Box (A&M 873) 1967

Light came from the San Bernardino/Riverside area of California. Back Up is a hard up-tempo pop-rocker with occasional outbreaks of screeching guitar - planets away from the usual fare associated with A&M. The fact that the single was produced and arranged by Brian Ross, the man behind many Original Sound productions (Mad Andy's Twist Combo, Music Machine) has probably a lot to do with its unusual sound. Music Box is so different you wonder if it's the same outfit - an awful Seekers-type folk-ballad with female vocals, flute and soppy aura.

Greg Eckler had earlier played in The Bush, and later was found keeping the beat for eighties surf-instrumental outfit Jon & The Nightriders.

Turn On The Light is a compilation of some of their previously unreleased material and their single.

Back Up can also be found on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD) and on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD plus book). (MW/SR)

Enoch Light (?)

ALBUM: (selected) 1 ENOCH LIGHT PRESENTS SPACED OUT EXPLORATORY TRIPS THROUGH THE MUSIC OF BACH, BACHARACH AND THE BEATLES (Project 3 PR 5042SD) 1969

NB: (1) counterfeited on vinyl 2001.

Though largely forgotten today, Enoch Light was quite a talented guy. He started out in the mid-thirties as a band leader, recording and touring the States and Europe as Enoch Light and the Light Brigade. By the mid-fifties Light's interests had migrated to the production and business sides of the house. He formed Command Records and leaping at the opportunities provided by the advent of stereo technology, recorded a string of big selling instrumental 'cash-in' albums. He also formed the Project 3 label, using it as a base for less commercial experiments such as The Free Design.

Obviously most of his material isn't going to appeal to psych fans, but there's at least one exception. Released by Light's Project 3 label, the cover notes were pretty accurate. "Enoch Light Presents Spaced Out Innovations in Stereo Sound" offered up a fascinating set of Bacharach and David, Beatles and Bach covers. Largely instrumental, the 12 selections were accompanied by occasional snippets of Up with People-styled smiley face vocals (check out A Little Fugue For You And Me). For his part, producer Light didn't really tamper with the original melodies. What actually makes this such a timepiece classic are the bizarre arrangements. Almost impossible to accurately describe, material such as Norwegian Wood, Ob-La-Di, Ob-La-Da and What The World Needs Now Is Love found Light mixing in equal parts of MOR/muzak moves and cutting edge (remember this was 1969), sounds (moogs, heavy fuzz guitar and some weird channel hopping effects - great headphone album). Anyone into The Free Design (one of Light's side projects), or the recent Lounge revival is bound to find this a blast !!! (SB)

While in Los Angeles, J.J. Light (better known as Jim Stallings, once a bassist with the Sir Douglas Quintet) met Bob Markley of the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band (WCPAEB), who produced his album, which was recorded with other WCPAEB members. It's a superb record of tribal rock, mixing psych, rock and Navajo roots, with splendid guitar parts on several tracks. Yet despite Stallings being an American and living in Los Angeles neither the album nor his hypnotic Heya single were ever released in the US.

The Heya single sold well in Europe, especially in France, Germany and Italy, precipitating a further single there, Na-Ru-Ka. Heya was covered in 1970 by the German group Jeronimo and in New Zealand by Zonk (this version was also released in the US by United Artists). In the eighties, Marc Tobaly (ex-Variations) released another version in France.

Circa 1970, Stallings and Markley recorded another album but it was shelved when Liberty went bankrupt. The Sunbeam reissues in both CD and vinyl format include this unreleased album and the CD also includes other bonus tracks, including some foreign flip sides. These both come with detailed liner notes and rare photos all packaged to the label's usual high quality.

Their third single, produced by Jim Stallings and P. Boyde is weak pop and best avoided. (MW/SR/VJ)

45: Down to the Sea/Now Is the Time (Poppy) 1970

Aaron Lightman from Philadelphia made these heavily orchestrated recordings that were influenced by sixties psychedelia in the melodic pop style of The Beatles and The Moody Blues. The album and his single passed largely unnoticed at the time. Its reissue and the emergence of his niece Toby Lightman as a pop star (she dedicated her second album Bird On A Wire to him) has raised his profile a little of late. He's supported on the album by string players Gene Bianco, George Ricci, and Gene Orloff; Al Rogers (drms); Romeo Penque (flute); and Phil Bodner, an acclaimed jazz woodwind player.

He also co-wrote songs with Dean Christopher and with producer Ron Frangipane. (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Anthology ANT 38.11) 1996. Lightning (CD) (Arf Arf AA-100) 2007 reissues (1) with the original mix intact (the liners reveal that the PIP label had made a right mess of it) plus bonus tracks.

There's also The Lost Studio Album (American Sound Records AS-1003) 1996, an album of previously unreleased recordings. Severe Stoner Hard Rock Thunder (CD) (Arf Arf) 2008 includes their entire album, their single and six additional bonus tracks (including edited single mixes of two album tracks) all wrapped in an archival 12-page booklet with lots of photos and liner notes by Doug Sheppard.

45: Freedom/Hideaway (P. I. P. 8923) 1970

NB: contains edited versions of tracks taken from the P.I.P. album.

Originally known as White Lightning the group was formed by Tom Caplan in Minneapolis, Minnesota upon leaving The Litter. Musically their recorded output was decent hard-rock, not dissimilar from the Caplan-less Litter's third album.

The Lost Studio Album contains two tracks by White Lightning, Only Love and William Tell, taken from an acetate and digitally cleaned, along with recordings made by Lightning in 1969, prior to the release of the P.I.P. album. Three of the songs featured are also on the P.I.P. album, but they are in a very different form on this limited edition release, which features some good guitar work and is well worth investigation.

Severe Stoner Hard Rock Thunder (CD) includes their entire album, their single and six additional bonus tracks (including edited single mixes of two album tracks) all wrapped in an archival 12-page booklet with lots of photos and liner notes by Doug Sheppard.

Bernie Pershey had previously played in Trilogy.

In 2001, Zip Caplan released a new CD Monsters And Heroes as Zip Caplan and Cast of Thousands. Mostly instrumental it comprises 21 tracks of classic Horror movies, old Serials and fifties T.V. Series Soundtracks but recorded with 'rock' instruments. 48 different musicians are featured, with a different set of players backing Zip on each track. Some of the guests include Jim McCarty (The Yardbirds), Joey Molland (Badfinger), Nokie Edwards (The Ventures), Bobby Torres (Joe Cocker and Tom Jones), Doug Nelson (Jonny Lang Band), Bruce "Creeper" Kurnow (Mason Proffitt), Denny Libby (The Castaways) plus guys from Edgar Winter, Gypsy, The Litter, Stillroven, Underbeats, White Lightning and Crow.

The Arf Arf Lightning CD reissues the album with the original mix intact (the liners reveal that the Pip label had made a right mess of it). It's accompanied by the 45 edits, both sides of the White Lightning single, and four unreleased cuts. With contributions from Zippy Caplan and Warren Kendrick, plus liners by Doug Sheppard, this is a worthy re-examination of a great hard-rockin' band, and a fine tribute to Woody Woodrich. (VJ/ZC/MW)

45: One, Two Boogaloo/Same Old Thing (Dunwich 149) 1967

This outfit formed in 1965 and were originally known as Gary And The Night Lights, and also worked as The Knight Lites. Like The Del-Vetts, they had previously worked with Bill Traut cutting two low-budget jukebox singles for Seeburg. After a brief move to U.S.A. where they released an underrated soulful ballad, I Don't Need Your Help in late 1965, they appeared under dubious arrangement on Dunwich. After recording one single as The Light Nites they signed to Acta and changed their name to The American Breed.

The entire band came from Chicago except for Al Ciner who was from Brookfield, Illinois.

Compilation appearances have included: Take Me Back (originally released as Gary & The Knight Lites on Kedlen (2002) 1965) on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (CD); Same Old Thing on The Dunwich Records Story (LP); and If You're Ready - The Best Of Dunwich... Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ)

This outfit operated out of Sunnyvale, California in the mid-sixties. The pounding I'm Not There appears on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP) and Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP). The song was a hit in Monterey and was also very popular in San Jose. Dave and Larry had originally come together in the early sixties as The Ritones, an instrumental and hits covers band. They changed name to The Conquests in 1964 and became Lil' Boys Blue in 1965. (VJ)

Fiszman and Neumann met in New York in 1965 and developed their distinctive and highly original vocal style over the next couple of years. Their album was almost totally unnoticed at the time, but more recently it has developed a cult status and attracted the attention of some collectors. The album includes stark folk, pop and acid-rock and contains several long cuts like There'll Be No Clowns Tonight, Subway Thoughts or Melt Me, all done in a very spooky and mellow way.

Thanks to Sunbeam many more of you can hear it again. Their CD reissue features a 12-page booklet with both artists telling their story and lots of rare photos. The vinyl reissue is presented in a gatefold sleeve with liner notes by the duo and lots of rare photos. (SR/VJ)

Satisfied/Beautiful Day (Dot 17298) 1969

This outfit included three brothers from Akron, Ohio. Their singles are upbeat pop, some of which border on garage. Both Hey Girl and Beautiful Day were written by local teen idol and lead singer Larry Sanders (not to be confused with the spoof TV talk show host). He had a charismatic stage presence and was just 15-years-old when they recorded the first single.

Soul Kitchen was a fabulous cool dark, garagy version of The Doors classic with some great organ and guitar work. On it, they changed the lyrics, saying "Let me sleep all night in your soul kitchen, we can work on GETTING STONED!"

Love A Go-Go also turns up on Every Groovy Day (LP), Gravel Volume 2 (CD) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box), which also features Soul Kitchen. Hey Girl can also be found on Quagmire Volume 8 (CD). (MW/RL/KSI/JKy)

The Key/I Lost What I Need

Inspired by the mop-top Invasion, The Limits came together in late 1964 in Allentown, Pennsylvania. Drummer Ned Earley had previously played in the original line-up of local rivals The Shillings.

Despite several years' success on the local club circuit the band never released any records. Surprisingly, a significant recorded legacy had survived and 40 years on, Rick Levy put together the 22-track CD retrospective from "Garage, Basement, Mobile, and Live recordings". These reveal several fine originals amongst a wide selection of covers - surf and soul/club fodder, English Invasion beat (Beatles, Stones, and Hollies) and a brace of interesting US covers - He'll Make You Cry (Critters) and Free As The Wind (Myddle Class).

Free As The Wind has been compiled on Sigh Cry Die (CD); He'll Make You Cry, The Key, I Lost What I Need on Allentown Anglophile (CD); and Come Tomorrow It's A New Day on Today's Just Tomorrow's Yesterday Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

This quintet hailed from Bonneville, Washington. Come Along And Dream which is very punkish with lots of fuzz, sounds straight out of 1966 but was actually one of their last recordings released in early 1969. Girl is a strong fuzz-popper with a screeching solo. Listen is dreamy Association-style harmony-pop with cooing female backing.

Compilation appearances have included: Pop Kat on Riot City! (LP); We Got Some and Pop Kat on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 1 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD); We Got Some on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 1 (LP); and Come Along And Dream on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 7 (LP). (VJ/MW/DR)

A Sioux Indian band Lincoln St. Exit was based in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The Bummer is a fine upbeat rocker, whilst Sunny Sunday Dream is much trippier with lots of keyboards. Changing their name to Xit the band made several albums in support of the cause of the American Indian during the 1970's. The Lincoln St. Exit album is essentially blues-based hard-rock and does not include their non-Mainstream singles. It is now a very sought-after collectors' item and has been counterfeited. Much of their earlier material was officially reissued on the Xit album Entrance (Canyon 7114) 1974, which has also become rare.

Compilation coverage has so far included: The Bummer and Sunny Sunday Dream on New Mexico Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 4 (CD); The Bummer, Sunny Sunday Dream and Whatever Happened To Baby Jesus, Part 1 & 2 on Filling The Gap (4-LP); Sunny Sunday Dream and Whatever Happened To Baby Jesus on Gathering Of The Tribe (CD); Sunny Sunday Dream on Garage Zone, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP); The Bummer on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP), *The Midwest Vs. This introspective folk-singer/songwriter was born in Baltimore on 25 November 1942. He began performing in Denver, Colorado after moving there with his family, but moved to Los Angeles in the sixties in an attempt to break into the music business. The success of his song Elusive Butterfly in March 1966 opened up a space in the charts for a new kind of song, breathy and wispy, previously thought to be too slow to be commercial. Other folk singers, like Tim Buckley or Tim Hardin, benefited from this breakthrough, but Lind only charted again with his follow-up single Remember The Rain.

After two albums for World Pacific (both produced by Jack Nitzsche and the second engineered by Dave Hassinger), he retired temporarily from the music business, suffering from alcohol and drug abuse and moved to Santa Fe, New Mexico.

The Verve Forecast album was released to cash-in on Lind's success. They bought an acoustic tape of Lind from his Denver days, overdubbed instruments and released it as an authentic album.

When Lind returned to L.A. in early 1971, Capitol Records signed him and he recorded a sombre, warts-and-all album, Since There Were Circles, backed by Doug Dillard, Gene Clark, Bernie Leadon and David Jackson plus John Buck Wilkin, Michael Lang, Ralph Grierson, Carol Kaye and Paul Humphrey. After that, he soon retired permanently, giving up music for a literary career.

Lind was managed by Charles Green and Brian Stone, who later worked with Buffalo Springfield, Iron Butterfly and Dr. John.

His song Cheryl's Going Home was covered by the Blues Project on their Projections album and by Switzerland's Les Sauterelles on their debut album. The Turtles also recorded his Down In Suburbia on their You Baby album, whilst The Yardbirds' Keith Relf recorded Mr Zero.

Elusive Butterfly: The Complete Jack Nietzsche Sessions (CD) compiles two of his albums produced and arranged by Nietzsche and supplemented by a selection of previously unissued vocal and guitar demos. Elinor has been compiled on Mystic Males (CD). (SR/LP/VJ)

In 1972, Dennis Linde would form Jubal, a boring country-rock group and later released several solo albums, mostly out of scope and time-frame of this book. He is mostly remembered for having penned Burning Love, the last rock hit for Elvis Presley. (SR)

His first album Buzzy was recorded in England in October 1968. On the first side he is backed by the Welsh group Eyes of Blue and performs his own songs (Willie Jean, Step Into My Wildest Dreams) and a fast cover of Tim Hardin's Yellow Cab. The second side features Sing Joy, a long (18'45") raga with only Big Jim Sullivan on sitar and Keshav Sathe on tabla. A really interesting album, it deserves to be heard.

In 1971, after Music, The Time To Live Is Now was recorded in New York. Reduced to a trio, the group provide a solid album with a cover of Get Together plus several original songs. Rix was previously in Group Image and briefly with Ten Wheel Drive with Bill Takas.

The later albums are unfortunately not as interesting.

In addition to his solo career, Linhart was very active in the late sixties/early seventies, playing guitar or vibes with Jimi Hendrix (Cry Of Love), Cat Mother, Jake and The Family Jewels, Montreal and Zephyr. (SR)

Originally from Cedar Rapids, Iowa they moved to Chicago and then, like many others, they migrated to San Francisco during the flower-power era. Musically they played a mixture of blues, rock and jazz, a bit like A.B. Skhy or The Serfs with psych influences. All three albums are now very minor collectables. The most interesting is maybe the first, which is housed in a very strange gatefold cover showing the group on the moon (!) with Rick Griffin lettering.

They disbanded when Stephen Miller left to do a solo album, although most of them backed him on it. He later joined Elvin Bishop's band and from there went on to Grinderswitch. Clark Pierson joined Janis Joplin's Full Tilt Boogie Band and Ray McAndrew was involved with Gainsborough Gallery.

They have a cut called Moon Food on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (cassette) and Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 1 (CD). (VJ/GH/SR)

45:	There's A Way/ Find Your Own Way Home	(PS) (Hutch 1101) 197?

This is an album of guitar-driven hard-rock/AOR from a Texas band. The single came in an art sleeve and contains non-album tracks. (VJ)

Liquid Blue (TX)

45:	Henry Can't Drive/A Pretty Good Day	(Texas Revolution 3) 1969

This rare single was recorded by an obscure Texas group, possibly from Houston. It was released on the same label as Glory and it's rumoured that both groups shared some members.

Henry Can't Drive has resurfaced on '69 Love-In (CD) along with A Pretty Good Day, which can also be heard on Acid Visions Vol. 9: Child Of Evil (CD). (SR)

The New York band's album of doom-laden heavy guitar/organ underground psychedelic rock is now a minor collectable. Consisting of original material written by Vince Fersak and some covers (Hard To Handle, It's A Man's Man's World), the album was produced by Vinnie Testa, who was then also working with Frijid Pink, to whom they can be compared.

The quintet also made No. 82 in the U.S. with I Who Have Nothing. Their Lookin' For Tomorrow was also covered by Peruvian band Gerardo Manuel and Humo on their debut 1970 album, Apocallypsis.

Warm Touch has resurfaced on Up All Night (CD). (VJ/SR/CF)

From Cambridge, Massachusetts and rated highly by some, this hard-rock/psych album that also draws on jazz and blues in places includes some fine guitar and organ work on cuts like Baby: Where Are You? Most of the vocals were performed by drummer Ernie Kamanis, and Peter Malick who was 16 at the time the album was recorded. Walter Powers had previously been in the famed punk band The Lost.

A reworked version of the album's opener, Michael Tschudin's You're Not There, appears on the highly-touted album ...Setting Forth... Improvising Against The Future! by Odyssey.

THE LITTER - Distortions LP.

Ernie Kamanis was previously in a band called Just Old Friends. Leader Michael Tschudin was a classically-trained musician and Harvard Graduate. Michael Tschudin later played with Cynara and produced the Fort Mudge Memorial Dump album. Cynara recorded another version of Stoned Is on their eponymous album. Tschudin became a session man and producer during the seventies, notably working with Tim Curry. Peter Malick played with the James Montgomery Band and is still active, fronting his own Peter Malick Band playing blues/R&B influenced music in/around Boston. Walter Powers teamed up with his old Lost companion Willie "Loco" Alexander in the final incarnation of The Velvet Underground.

The uplifting baroque-pop of Hello You can also be found on Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP), whilst one track from the album, Stoned Is has also resurfaced on Marijuana Unknowns (LP & CD). (VJ/MW/SR/PMk)

The five-piece (three lads and two lasses) L.A. band was led by Johnima, who takes all the credits on the first album - the others don't get a jot. An early seventies 'beautiful people' act, Warning is soft hippie-rock. Hanana, is probably the only 'psychedelic' track on the album. Kali Bahlu (Johnima's wife? Sister?) in her persona of 'Gypsy Star Child', released an album entitled Cosmic Remembrance in 1967. Johnimah Bahlu had released a solo hippie-pop single back in November 1967.

God Is Love and God Is Truth are more mystical albums. They have male and female vocals and Indian instruments.

Hanana has been compiled on Lycergic Soap (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP). (MW)

The Litter came from Minneapolis, Minnesota and recorded two of America's finest psychedelic punk albums. Distortions and $100 Fine are both strongly recommended. Distortions contained high energy psychedelic rock versions of many classic songs, including Action Woman and their amazing (if over the top) psychedelic rework of I'm A Man. Play it Loud! Feedback appears to have been one of the main weapons in their repertoire and it is seldom used more effectively than on the aforementioned track. Also on the album are fine versions of Cream's I'm So Glad, The Small Faces' classic Whatcha Gonna Do 'Bout It, The Who's Substitute and A Legal Matter, Spencer Davis' Somebody Help Me, The Yardbirds' Wrack My Mind, Warren Kendrick's Soul Searchin' and Buffy St. Marie's much recorded Codine. Strandlof played lead on Action Woman, A Legal Matter, and Soul Searchin' but his attempts to steer the band in a folk-rock direction caused friction with Kane who wanted the band to become heavier. In the spring of 1967, he was replaced by Zippy Caplan, freshly back from a sojourn in California.

By their next effort $100 Fine the group was writing much of their own material. For this reason $100 Fine is probably the better album. Opening track Mindbreaker features fine fuzztone guitar work and culminates in a psychedelic haze. Their driving electric guitar work is well represented in tracks like Tallyman and Here I Go Again which has a catchy guitar riff intro. More vintage psychedelic guitar work is evident on Morning Sun and (Under The Screaming Double) Eagle. The side culminates with a piece of psychedelic nonsense Apologies To 2069, which ends with the intro to Action Woman - a track on their first album. However, the stand-out track is their cover of Procol Harum's Kaleidoscope on side two, featuring an early use of 'phasing'. The remainder of this side is comprised of an impressive extended version of The Zombies' She's Not There and the self-explanatory Blues One. If you ever get the chance to hear either of these two albums, take it!

Bad management decisions hampered the band's progress during 1968. Both Elektra and Columbia made offers to the band but were knocked back because of heavy touring commitments. In August 1968 they recorded numbers for the film 'Medium Cool' but only made about 20 seconds of the final cut with the Mothers Of Invention dubbed over them. Soon after, Waite (who was burnt-out) and Caplan (who formed White Lightning and then Lightning) dropped out of the band.

1969 saw the group sign to a major record company (ABC) for a third album - a good hard-rock effort that suffers only by comparison to the first two. Denny Waite had also departed and his place was taken by Mark Gallagher who'd previously been with The Troys.

Despite the band's legendary status there has often been confusion and mis-speculation surrounding them and the other artistes under Warren Kendrick's guidance. The Electras/Twas Brillig outfit must be fed up by the constant claims that they were a Litter offshoot since they'd been around for some years beforehand - see their entry for details. This confusion was due to them also being under Warren Kendrick's wing apart from the fact they also recorded Kendrick's Action Woman and Soul Searchin'. No wonder the two outfits sounded similar. The confusion was aggravated by Eva's compilation, Litter - Rare Tracks (LP), which would have better been entitled 'The Best Of The Rest Of Warren Kendrick'. It features Litter's She's Not There (short version), On Our Minds, Little Red Book, Ungrateful Pig and Substitute; Electras/Twas Brillig's Dirty Old Man,

You Love, This Week's Children and Soul Searchin'; White Lightning's William and Of Paupers And Poets; Zoser's Together and Dark Of The Morning and Second Edition's To Keep You.

Denny Waite and Jim Kane had been in another Kendrick-produced group, The Victors, prior to The Litter. Five unreleased The Victors tracks have been aired on the Get Hip album Electras vs. Scotsmen/Victors, which was released in 1993, and repeated on The Scotty Story CD.

Before they called it a day Litter came together with other Minneapolis acts on the Gathering At The Depot (LP) compilation (Beta 580 47-14145) 1970, which features a live Ungrateful Pig (misspelled Ungrateful Peg on the LP!). After that Tom Murray went on to Straight Up who issued one single Fire/So Blind (Straight Up 1001).

Fans of the band should look out for no less than four new CD's on Arf! Arf! - the definitive versions of Distortions and $100 Fine, plus the storming The Litter - Live At The Mirage 1990, which captures the band on top form and a previously unreleased studio album from 1992, entitled, Re-Emerge. The Arf! Arf! Distortions CD adds much to the original album cuts: the previously reissued Confessions and Blues One; two unreleased cuts - Hey Joe and Harpsichord Sonata #1; and five cuts recorded live at the Electric Theatre on 18th June 1968. The bonus cuts on the Arf! Arf! $100 Fine CD comprise 19 unreleased tracks - Angelica (with J. Frank Wilson) plus 18 Larry Loofbourrow demos from 1965 through 1968.

The Live At The Mirage CD is highly recommended to all Litter fans. From a 20-year reunion concert in Minneapolis on September 19th 1990, it features the classic 'B' line-up, though Kane guests on just three tracks, plus bassist Woody Woodrich. They run through much of the material from the first two albums plus an excellent cover of the Music Machine's Talk Talk. The years just roll back - if it weren't for the modern sound quality this could've been circa 1970. Zippy Caplan's lost none of his dexterous zip; Denny Waite's vocals may have lost their adolescent timbre but are still in fine form, and Tom Murray's drumming is just awesome. Sounding like a classic car that's been lovingly preserved in a garage just waiting for the right time to be taken out again for a drive - all parts are still tight but well-oiled and as they warm up the throttle pedal goes down... and so the concert builds to a glorious climax - a stunningly powerful Train Kept A-Rollin' that can only be topped by the frenzied finale of I'm A Man.

The Re-Emerge CD is all new recordings including a reworking of Action Woman plus 16 new numbers by the latest line-up and features guest appearances by Joey Molland (gtr, b.vcls, ex-Badfinger), James "Owl" Walsh (keyb'ds, ex-Gypsy), Larry Wiegand (bass gtr, ex-Crow) and Andy Bailey (keyb'ds).

In 2001, Zip Caplan released a new CD Monsters And Heroes as Zip Caplan and Cast of Thousands. Mostly instrumental it comprises 21 tracks of classic Horror movie, old Serials and fifties T.V. Series soundtracks but recorded with 'rock' instruments. 48 different musicians are featured, with a different set of players backing Zip on each track. Some of the guests include Jim McCarty (The Yardbirds), Joey Molland (Badfinger), Nokie Edwards (The Ventures), Bobby Torres (Joe Cocker and Tom Jones), Doug Nelson (Jonny Lang Band), Bruce "Creeper" Kurnow (Mason Proffit), Denny Libby (The Castaways) plus guys from Edgar Winter, Gypsy, The Litter, Stillroven, Underbeats, White Lightning and Crow.

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Breeder RPR 006-2C-566) 1986.

Ken Little was a Chicago singer and a friend of Harvey Mandel. In 1972, he appeared on Mandel's bluesy project Get Off In Chicago with two songs co-written with Norm Wagner, High Test Fish Line and Springfield Station Theme. The same year, Mandel co-produced Little's Solo album. This is basically mainstream heavyish progressive rock with strong blues influences (Hubert Sumlin of Howlin' Wolf's band plays on one track and Sugarcane Harris on five). If that's your bag, it's not bad but don't be misled by dealers with limited descriptive abilities who describe it as 'psychedelic'.

Ken Little returned in 1976 with Leanin' On The Bar. In a totally different style, the music is a consistent mix of country and bar rock. (VJ/SR)

This cover of the Strawberry Alarm Clock's classic was recorded here by an unknown Los Angeles area act on GNP Crescendo's sister label in October 1967.

Incense And Peppermints has been compiled on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP), Acid Dreams Volume Three (LP) and Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 4 (CD). (VJ/MW/GT)

45:	Girl Give Me Love/Spoofin'	(Tiger-Eye TE-101) 1967

This record was made by eight or nine-year-old kids from Jennings, Louisiana. The lyrics mostly consist of them screaming or singing Girl Give Me Love. This makes it a unique novelty.

Girl Give Me Love has been compiled on Louisiana Punk From The Sixties (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 3 (CD) and Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD); and Spoofin on Acid Dreams, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ)

45:	What's Life About/Girls Who Paint Designs	(Roulette 4744) 1967

Often confused with (A) Little Bit Of Sound, Girls Who Paint Designs can also be heard on Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD). Interestingly, the cut was mastered to the single faster than the original recording and can be heard changing keys after the first four bars.

The band came from Franklin Square, Long Island, New York. Their single came about via Koppelman & Rubin Associates Chardon Music, Inc. where their manager (Stu Antzis)'s wife worked. It was never promoted though and the band played only small local venues and school functions.

Larry Jack left the band after James Foley, from Koppelman & Rubin approached him with a song by Richard Fishbaugh called A Little Rain Must Fall asking him if he could get a band together to record it. Jack joined forces with a local group The Entire Thing, who in turn were renamed by the record company as Epic Splendor and A Little Rain Must Fall became a Top 30 hit in the region. 		It's Only You/Is Love	(Fontana 1623) 1968

NB: α Issued in a limited edition with picture sleeve.

The singles this Chicago punk outfit produced will be of more interest than their album. Of particular note were their interpretation of Donovan's Season Of The Witch and two fine fuzz punkers Great Train Robbery and I Can Only Give You Everything, which was recorded by several other bands in this era. The best source of these singles is the compilation Chicago 60's Punk Vs. New Mexico 60's Pop (LP), which contains both sides of their first four singles.

The album is a real hodgepodge of styles that doesn't hang together well. Most cuts feature orchestration and range from light Sgt Pepper chamber-pop through brassy R&B workouts to heavier fuzzed moments and pedestrian Fudge-like pomp... seriously arty and very '68. Two of the stronger album cuts were put out on the Fontana single, which states that they are "from Fontana's album Can You Dig It (SRF-67578)" - presumably the original title for Woodland Of Weir. Is Love? is a punchy Left Banke-ish ditty except for a mid-point crescendo of noise, with gut-wrenching guitar. It's Only You is fuzzy acid-rock.

Original guitarist Lowell Shyette was drafted in September '66 shortly after the band appeared on Dick Clark's 'Where The Action Is'. He later worked as a sales rep for Fender and is still active musically. Frank Biner later played for a California outfit called Kingsnake.

Line-up 'C' also have a rock/soul effort Ain't Too Proud To Beg, from April 1967, on which they are assisted by a horn section of studio musicians, on the compilation Early Chicago (Happy Tiger HT-10107) in 1972.

The Greek CD reissue of the album collects their entire recorded output by adding the three IRC singles, the Ronko single, and Ain't Too Proud To Beg (from the Early Chicago compilation).

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Great Train Robbery on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 4 (LP); The Great Train Robbery and I'm Ready on Off The Wall, Vol. 11 (LP); It's Only You on Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD); You Don't Love Me on Pebbles, Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD), Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box); Cathedral on Songs Of Faith And Inspiration (CD); I Can Only Give You Everything on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Great Pebbles (CD) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box); The Great Train Robbery and You Dove Deep In My Soul, a previously unreleased track on Oh Yeah! The Best Of Dunwich Records (CD); Love For A Day, Look At The Sun, I'm Ready, Little Boy Blue's Blues, I Can Only Give You Everything, You Don't Love Me, The Great Train Robbery and The Season Of The Witch on Chicago 60's Punk Vs. New Mexico 60's Pop (LP); there's an unreleased version of Ain't Too Proud To Beg on Early Chicago (cassette) and Mr. Tripp Wouldn't Listen on Realistic Patterns (CD). (VJ/MW)

45:	New Orleans/It Must Be Love	(Studio City 1023) 1965

This Owatonna, Minnesota-based group formed out of the ashes of another Owatonna band The Henchmen, who included Marv Huntington and Gary Sorenson and the Fairmont-based Reconstituted Lemons, whose leader had been Jim Barnholdt. Local dee-jay Bill Diehl took them under his wing and got them appearing on stage in Roman Style dress for what was reputed to have been a wild act. They financed a single on the Minneapolis-based Studio City label and their finest moment, It Must Be Love, got lots of airplay around southern Minnesota at the time. In May 1965, a rift developed between Barnholdt and the rest of the band, so he left to join a Minneapolis-based folk-rock group called Id. The three remaining members went on to play for the Rochester-based Furys.

You can also check out New Orleans on Grab This And Dance!!! (LP) and It Must Be Love on Hipsville, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ)

This Blue River, Oregon group was originally known as The Nomads. Their cover of The Searchers' classic Needles And Pins can also be found on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 5 (cassette). More recently Black Winds, a gentle folk-rock ballad has resurfaced on Relics, Vol. 2 (LP), Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP) and Tymes Gone By (LP); and Too Many People got another airing on Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 3 (CD). Little John And The Sherwoods (MA)

45:	Rag Bag/Long Hair	(Fleetwood FL 001) 1965

This band of merry men from Lowell, Massachusetts was known to dress up in Robin Hood attire. Their catchy if somewhat screwball ditty from November 1965 is nearer to novelty than garage-punk.

Long Hair is also on Teenage Shutdown 2 (LP/CD). (MW)

Little John and Tony (MI)

45:	The Beginning Of The End/All I Ask	(Volkano V-5001) 1965

Detroit-area duo Little John and Tony was produced by Dennis Coffey. The Beginning Of The End is a fine tribute to Barry McGuire's Eve Of Destruction - apocalyptic theme, even the gravelley vocals, over the classic Dunhill folk-rock sound (dramatic Spectoresque production wrapped around Beau Brummels' jangle).

It's been revitalised on the Misty Lane folk-flower-pop compilation Every Groovy Day. (MD)

		Looking For Love/Push Song	(Tener 1013) 1967

NB: α 'B' side shown as by The Starfires.

Starting out in a basement in Buffalo, New York in 1963 as The Starfires, the following year they put out an album Play on the O.R.S. (Ohio Recording Service) label, whose cover features several photos of the band, including one with the Isley Brothers.

The band then relocated to Orlando where they changed their name to Little Willie and The Adolescents with the above line-up. None of them was called Willie but they used to set up a small fluorescent-green metal man in front of the drums that they told people was Little Willie when they asked. Berry Vaught is remembered as a stand-up drummer and a renowned part of the band's repertoire was to stand on their heads whilst playing the instrumental David's Mood - don't ask why.

Get Out Of My Life, a really nasty punky song with snotty vocals and catchy keyboards, was good enough to make it onto Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP). Looking For Love, a frantic keyboard-led romp, first reappeared on the hellishly rare 1967 Bee Jay Demo, Vol. 2 (LP) compilation. Thankfully it is available again on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). Stop It has resurfaced on Total Raunch (CD).

It was the enterprising Eric Schabacker himself who founded the Bee Jay booking agency and recording studios, and the associated record labels - Tener, Hype and Immunity. (MW/JLh/MM/RM)

The Live Five formed in Salem, Oregon in 1965. Steiner, O'Brien and Smith had all previously played in an outfit called The Che-vels. Managed by dance promoter and radio station operator Ed Dougherty they got plenty of good live bookings appearing on bills with all the top acts that came to Salem. They also appeared with The Knickerbockers at the Seattle Teen Fair and with The Rolling Stones in Portland, Oregon in July 1966. They appeared in candy-striped trousers and played a blend of Northwest rock and Merseybeat. Yes You're Mine and Hunose were both big regional hits. Move Over And Let Me Fly is an irresistible jerker with 'call and response' style vocals which ought to have been a big hit.

They broke up in late 1967, although Joe Smith carried on with four new members for a further six months.

Compilation appearances have included: Let's Go, Let's Go, Let's Go on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (CD) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 4 (LP); Move Over And Let Me Fly on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP & CD), The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (CD) Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP), The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); Yes You're Mine and Let's Go, Let's Go, Let's Go on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD); Hunose on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 16 (LP & CD) and History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD); Shake A Tail Feather and Yes You're Mine on The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP); an unreleased version of Anyway, Anyhow, Anywhere on Northwest Battle Of The Bands 4 (CD); and Who Knows on Sixties Rebellion 16 (LP). Originally from the U.K. their German manager arranged for them to tour Europe and Asia, including a gig at the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo. On their return to Germany they recorded a single and an album as the 5 Liverpools then relocated to the States (Spokane, Washington) where they signed with RCA in 1965. Paul Handler became their new manager. When Dave Burgess left to get married in 1967 he was replaced by Freddie Dennis who had played in several Spokane groups. They played a mixture of folk-rock, beat, R'n'B and ballads as well as punk. They could imitate the best U.S. bands (Remains, Standells) but also retained their Englishness. Broken Dreams, Vol. 4 (Line OLLP 5395 AS) 198? includes She's Mine and Piccadilly Line. New Directions, which contains some infectious guitar work, is included on Mindrocker, Vol. 9 (LP). Everything's Allright, meanwhile, has resurfaced on Hide & Seek, Vol. 1 (LP). They even had a very minor hit with Any Way That You Want Me.

Later in 1969 they changed keyboard players twice before finally quitting in 1970. Freddie Dennis later joined the reformed Kingsmen. Only Jim May returned to the UK, all the other four original members remained in northern California.

The Best Of rounds up their covers of mostly lesser-known hits and three originals of which She's Mine is definitely the best.

Other compilation appearances include: I'm Not Your Stepping Stone on Breaking Point (CD); Gotta Get A Move On on Incredible Sound Show Stories Vol. 1 (LP), Only For Real Losers (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD); Piccadilly Line on Beat Us If You Can Vol. 1 (LP); and I Can Only Give You Everything on Basement Beat Vol 1: Nothing Comes Easy (CD). One track from their privately pressed Out Of Sight (EP) entitled Gotta Get A Move On has also resurfaced on The Technicolour Milkshake (LP) compilation. (VJ/HI/MW)

2 THE HIT SOUNDS FROM ENGLAND (Wyncote W/SW-9061) 1964

A Philadelphia studio-only outfit, according to Mike Kuzmin in his Pennsylvania book 'Sounds From The Woods', they also recorded as The Emblems and The Haircuts. No guesses as to influences and style - both albums unashamedly cashed in on the first wave of Beatlemania. The first album includes four Beatles covers - She Loves You, I Want To Hold Your Hand, I Saw Her Standing There and Please, Please Me. The remaining tracks are good beat fodder mainly composed or co-composed by Straigis, including Whenever I'm Feeling Low previously aired on the Emblems' 1963 single. 45:	Crystalize Your Mind/Now It's Over	(MTA 140) 1967

Evolving out of KW & the Evils, a surf band from Fort Bragg, California The Living Children went through several line-up changes before settling on the personnel above. They took their name from the song Living Child, recorded by their close friends, Yuba City's The Boy Blues. In March 1967 their lone single was released; the Stones-influenced Crystalize Your Mind eulogised life in drugged out Haight Ashbury, in contrast to a wistful, melancholic lament on the flip that is very reminiscent of Love. After being busted for possession of marijuana Walker left, his replacement was former Transatlantic Winkham Chiken No. 5 bassist Reed Stubbs. Ponts left soon after and Armondo "Moon" Quevedo was drafted in as drummer, at which point they became Truman Coyote. Unfortunately the early promise shown on the single was never allowed to develop, due to David Green's drug problems and the band eventually fizzled out. Green died tragically in the early eighties, shot dead by a drug dealer.

On a more positive note, their legacy lives on with a new generation - in 2008 UK folk-psych band The Left Outsides, from Camberwell, performed Now It's Over live (to Gray Newell's and Max Waller's delight) and it is on their CD, And Colours In Between.

Crystalize Your Mind first resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 3 (LP/CD); since then both sides have been featured on Crystalize Your Mind (CD) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD). (GN/ES/MW/VJ)

The Livin' End
Unreleased Texas Garage Sounds

THE LIVIN' END - Unreleased Texas Garage Sounds CD.

CD:	1	UNRELEASED TEXAS GARAGE SOUNDS	(Collectables COL-0715) 1998

Previously assumed to be the other Texas Livin' End, thanks and kudos goes to Collectables for straightening out the facts and history behind this particular bunch. They were formed by Wayland Huey in Abilene, Texas after his previous outfit The Coachmen split in 1964 after issuing just one single, also included on the CD. Though Livin' End never got to release a single during their life-span, they would last until 1968 and recorded many unreleased nuggets between 1965 (Get Off Of My Cloud, Friends, All Alone) and 1967 (covers of Baby Please Don't Go and The Doors' Love Me Two Times).

The CD contains a further 12 Livin' End tracks including some live performances from a seventies reunion and the full low-down on this band's story. Kicking off with an original garage-fuzz-punker Pine Street Boys, one of the highlights of this collection, there's a smattering of the usual covers (Roadrunner, Talkin' About You, Empty Heart, Makin' Time - this last probably their best cover) - all are competent if uninspiring. It's the originals that are more interesting even though very derivative - All Alone borrows the I'm A Man riff; Friends is Dylan via The Byrds ala Chimes Of Freedom; My Destination borrows a Beatles riff but transforms it into a tough garage-punker with a Psychotic Reaction-style rave-up break - most excellent indeed.

The band have also appeared on a number of other compilations, including: Makin' Time, Captain Soul, Talkin' About You, Empty Heart and Unknown Destination on Texas Flashbacks Vol.1: Dallas (LP); the previously unreleased All Alone, and Get Off Of My Cloud on Texas Punk: 1966, Vol. 1 (LP); the previously unreleased Roadrunner and Your Enemies on Texas Punk, Vol. 3 (LP); All Alone, Get Off Of My Cloud, Roadrunner and Your Enemies on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 2 (3-CD); Makin' Time, Empty Heart and Captain Soul on Psychedelic Microdots Vol. 2 (CD); and Making Times on Garage Beat '66 7 (CD).

45s: Come To Me/Stop And Go (M-6 Mark-VI-69-1) 1969
White Horses/Remember When (Sunday 1005) 1974

Sam & The Twisters had been popular on the Syracuse, New York scene since the late fifties but, after nearly a decade, the name and format had become decidedly dated. When leader Sam Amato stepped down, the remaining Twisters (Fetterly, Palumbo, and Wolf) decided to carry on.

The hip moniker they chose for their 1968 relaunch (line-up 'A') was Livin Ennd. Their 1969 debut is hard, psychy rock with strident vocals from Sandy Bigtree; the flip is lighter, bouncey pop. The band went through several changes over the next few years and released one more single in 1974 (with line-up' 'B) shortly before their dissolution. (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) POW (GGM 001) 1999

This album contains 14 demos recorded in L.A. in November 1966. It opens with a fine raw garage instrumental The Street, and a further highlight is the promising folk-punker Baby I Love You. However, only a handful of tracks feature the rhythm section. The majority are intimate folk ballads - just vocal(s) and acoustic guitar(s), more likely to appeal to followers of Bryan MacLean or Bob Lind. These are originals bar Hey Joe and Wild Mountain Thyme.

Whether this group is the same Living End who released the single on Mira is not known. (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) LIVING SACRIFICE (LS 770816) 1977 R2

Formed by at least three members of Last Call Of Shiloh, the Spokane-based Living Sacrifice released only 200 copies of their debut album. It's comprised of gentle acoustic ballads alongside some fine samplings of West Coast guitar psych in the style of Azitis or Wilson McKinley, with male/female harmonies. The lyrics are mainly about religious themes, notably the apocalypse and the prophecies.

In 1979/80, a renewed line-up called The Living Sacrifice Band, now established in New Jersey, released two other albums, Beauty For Ashes (Praise Jesus EARS-36) 1979 R2 and A Call To Brokeness (Shekinah SHM-3019) 1982 R2. (SR/KSt)

ALBUM: 1(A) PRAISE THE LOAD (Owl Intermedia ST-2557) 1977 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Lasers Edge LE-1009) 1991. Also of interest is a second album recorded in 1977 that was unissued at the time but is now on CD, Load Have Mercy (Laser's Edge LE-1023) 1998.

The Load started in March 1973 in Columbus, Ohio. Sterling had previously played in The Grayps, J.D. Blackfoot, and Osiris; Dave Hessler in The Esquires and Osiris; and Tom Smith had been playing with The Bob Paas Blues Band who were schoolmates of Raven. Originally a trio with keyboards as the lead instruments, Dave built a double neck guitar in 1974 and Sterling added a mini-moog synthesizer, enabling the band to play with different combinations of sound, switching at will between synthesized bass and bass guitar.

The Load played concerts around Ohio, and opened for Bob Seger, Brian Auger, The Michael Stanley Band, and Rick Derringer. The Load also shared a bill with Strongbow and Joy Token at the Ohio Theater in 1976. They moved to Los Angeles in 1977 and worked briefly with singer Meatloaf that summer.

Returning to Los Angeles, the Load played gigs at The Troubador and the Fox Venice Theater and recorded with Dennis Wilson, The Beach Boys and Terry Reid. They also backed singer Baron Keith Stewart on an MCA album.

Unable to find a market for their "progressive rock," the band eventually split-up, though they continue to collaborate and are planning a new CD sometime in the 21st century. Sterling is still a musician in Los Angeles, and Tom and Dave have a very successful band in Columbus, Ohio called, The Danger Brothers.

As part of the partnership that built and ran Owl Recording Studios, The Load recorded two albums. Only one was released on vinyl, but both are now out on CD. Other Owl releases included albums by Raven and Tom Wachunas. (SR/SGgS)

Really an R&B outfit, based in Oakland, California their two mediocre jazz-blues albums are now of minor interest to 'psych' collectors. The band was formed by Paul Fauerso, after his jazz group The Tom Paul Trio had broken up and he soon recruited Pete Shapiro and Steve Dowler from The Marbles. Line-up 'B' remained stable for a long time, with the band playing around the Bay Area and as far away as Vancouver but gigging mostly in gyms and clubs in Berkeley, Oakland and San Francisco. They also played the Fillmore a number of times, thanks to their manager Ron Barnett's good connections with Bill Graham.

Gigs in San Francisco were slim except for the Fillmore because the other halls such as the Avalon and the California Ballroom were under control of the Family Dog and others that were more interested in the psychedelic sound than R&B stuff. Still, they did get to share the bill with Cream and Big Brother amongst others.

Linda Tillery joined after they ran an ad in the Chronicle looking for a lead singer. Steve Dowler:- "Bob and I drove to San Francisco one day to meet her and bring her back to our practice room which was the living room of the house we rented in Oakland on 14th street. After the first album came out we toured back East on Columbia's ticket, starting in Cleveland, going to Chicago and ending in New York City at the Fillmore East with Vanilla Fudge".

After the band went their different ways in late 1968, Paul Fauerso and Linda Tillery put together a new line-up ('D'). They had a much more 'hip' tighter and sometimes more jazzy sound than the original 'Zone but they kept the R&B roots solidly in place too.

Steve: - "Pat O'Hara played with the 'Zone for a number of gigs along with the rest of the horns, Todd Anderson and Steve Kupka when we could get them to join us and when there was room on the stage. Steve was in the band at Berkeley High playing baritone. The sound guy, Mike Ritter's sister Nancy and her friend Mary Hawkes knew him from Berkeley High and we eventually asked him to sit in on some gigs."

"Kup later played with the Motowns which evolved into the Tower of Power as you probably know. He was really good with tight horn section charts and along with Todd and Paul put together many of the fine horn sounds. We didn't use Steve as much as Todd and Pat, if I remember correctly but the combination of them with Paul on the B3 was dynamite."

Linda Tillery later played for Cesar 830 (a short-lived San Francisco-based jazz fusion outfit from 1975) and had a solo career, whilst Patrick O'Hara later played with Boz Scaggs.

Loading Zone are still remembered fondly by fans of soulful R&B and one of their songs The Bells can now be heard on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD & book). (VJ/SDr)

ALBUM: 1(A) LOADSTONE (Barnaby Records 21235004) 1969 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Barnaby Records 35004) 2004.

This album is of interest for Flower Pot, a long 15-minute psychedelic suite which takes up the whole of side two. Complete with sound effects, phasing, screams, echo loops and bird noises, the track was recorded in one take, with the voices overdubbed later.

The group formed in Las Vegas, Nevada. Devers, Abernathy and Phillips were backing Bobby Darin at the time when he went on his hiatus to find himself, leaving them looking for a gig. Ryan, Douglas, Sterling and Cernuto were freelance musicians in Vegas looking for work. Thanks to a guitar player by the name of Mike Richards, who originally was in the group, they got together and formed a cover band to make some cash. The band worked a club in Vegas called 'The Pussycat A Go Go' where Andy Williams used to hang out. He signed the band to his label, Barnaby Records, because of the big following the band attracted to its live performances. Andy also got Dave Grusin to produce the album as well as play piano on one track, Dayshine. The album was recorded in a two week period in the summer of 1969 and other than record promotion concerts and a few club gigs in L.A., the band never toured.

The album's lack of sales caused the group to slowly dissolve to working lounge gigs in Vegas. When that was over the band members went on to other groups. All the members continued working as musicians in one capacity or another for several years, except for Douglas, who passed on in 1991.

The group's energy in live performance could never really be captured on record. The horn sound created by the trumpet, trombone and sax with the funky rhythm section was truly incredible.

Barnaby Records still owns the masters, with a few tracks never released. Dave Grusin is mostly known as a jazzman and soundtrack composer. (VJ/SR/SCo)

Locksley Hall (?WA)

ALBUM: 1 LOCKSLEY HALL (Or Records OR13) 1996

NB: (1) Limited edition of 500 copies.

Locksley Hall was one of the better known psychedelic bands in the Pacific Northwest during their existence from 1967 until 1970. The album was recorded in 1969 at the legendary Audio Recorders in Seattle with long-time Northwest guitarist Ned Neltner (Mark Five, Gas Company, Junior Cadillac) producing and Sonics engineer Kearny Barton at the console. It remained unreleased until the limited vinyl edition appeared in 1996. The album reminds us of every band who ever played the Fillmore West in the late sixties and blends together elements of It's A Beautiful Day, Jefferson Airplane and Big Brother and The Holding Co. Recommended. (VJ)

When Suemi got a contract with Hi Records at the start of the seventies, owner-producers Kenny Smith and Bill Taylor relocated to Memphis and took several acts from their stable with them, including Lode Star and Iota (who would later cover Glympses). By the time Lode Star released their Coming Down album in 1971, they'd been joined by Paul West from label-mates The Intruders and had changed their name to Swift Rain.

Lode Star had four tracks: Glympses, Raga, Bottom Of The Hill and It's Gonna Be There on the I Love You Gorgo (LP) 1969 compilation, which had a limited vinyl reissue in 1997. Frank Sotelo also plays the acoustic snippet that closes the album.

45s: You Must Be A Witch/
Don't Close The Door On Me (PS) (UNI 55050) 1967
Someone I Know/Through My Window (Shamley 44005) 1969

Originally from Las Vegas, where they were known as The Weeds they migrated to Portland, Oregon and changed their name when The Seeds' manager Lord Tim took them on. Cole's vocals are very distinctive and your reaction to the album will largely be determined by how you respond to them. The opening cut You Must Be A Witch is reminiscent of Love at their most frantic. Other strong tracks on the album are the slower sensitive punk ballad Underground Railroad, Don't Close The Door On Me and the more commercial It's Only A Reflection. The album has been extensively reissued. See The Weeds entry also for details of some of these releases.

They also had two tracks featured on the Angels From Hell soundtrack album (Tower 5128) - Mr. Madison Avenue and Who's It Gonna Be. The non-album Shamley single is a disappointing 'downer'.

Band leader Fred Cole later fronted the seventies heavy rock band Zipper. He then continued in the music scene with the highly regarded cult act Dead Moon.

Compilation appearances have included: You Must Be A Witch on Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Psychedelic Visions (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP), Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD), Garage Monsters (LP) and We Have Come For Your Children (cassette and LP); Mr. Madison Avenue on Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP); Who's It Gonna Be on Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 4 (CD); and both Mr. Maison Avenue and Who's It Gonna Be on Filling The Gap (4-LP box set). London recorded for quite a few San Antonio labels from 1965 onwards, with and without The Rogues, so the above discography is not complete. His best effort is usually considered to be his cover of Van Morrison's Gloria (recorded with Soul Unlimited) which can be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 (LP). In fact his moody, bluesy voice sounds out of place on this punk single which is unrecognisable from the original. Who'll Be The One (on which he's backed by The Rogues) can also be found on Gravel Volume 5 (CD) and Yesterday's Dawn (LP). London also wrote and produced records for other Texas bands in this era. From Great Neck, New York on the northern end of Long Island. All of the guys went to school together and subsequently formed a group. Noted New York City producer Al Harvey got them a deal with Columbia records in early 1966, which resulted in the three singles on the subsidiary Date label. Many of their gigs were teen parties, and several were performances for rich and famous folks, taking the group from Boston to Washington D.C.

All three singles were produced by Al Harvey and Steven Scott. Five of the six sides were written by Richard Weintraub and Jon Scholle. The overriding style is slick accomplished upbeat or frantic pop-punk with an attitude and edge that retains some garage cred but is also very commercial - similar to Paul Revere & The Raiders perhaps. The one slower effort is a mid-tempo baroque-popper with shades of Dylanesque folk-rock. All good stuff!

When Richard Weintraub got married, the group split, with Jon Sholle and Johnny Miller merging with The Savages to form Today's Special. They then cut a few songs written by Johnny Miller and Richard Weintraub (who also sang background on some of the recordings but never really joined the band).

Jon Sholle went on to become a bluegrass performer of some note with records such as Catfish For Supper and Out Of The Frying Pan. He later played with acts like Melissa Manchester and Meatloaf, performed with Bette Midler in the movie "The Rose" and is still doing his own thing, a combo of bluegrass and jazz, regularly in New York City.

Richard Weintraub moved to Hong Kong where he played with a band called AWOL that did lots of acid-rock and hard-rock (Hendrix, Cream, The Who, Deep Purple, etc).

45: Go To Him/Dum Diddlee Dee (Mike MK 4200) 1965

Go To Him is a dramatic and melodic beat ballad reminiscent of The Cascades. It appears that Go To Him was an unreleased demo by an English band. The "producer", Bess Coleman, was PA to Brian Epstein and a Beatles press secretary. Her brother Bill was in Leicester's Foursights and she was apparently hawking their demos around through her connections. Maybe this was a re-recording of it by persons unknown under the direction of Art Wayne, who grabbed a 50% cut of the composer credits. Whatever the case, members of the Foursights remained blissfully unaware of the existence of the Mike single for the next 40 years.

Soon after its spring 1965 release, it was covered by Aussies Ray Brown & The Whispers and a year later by Oregon's Tymes Children.

45: The Times To Come/Takin' It Easy (A&M 1010) 1968

Las Vegas, Nevada was home turf for this folk-rock group. Their sole California-pressed single was produced by artist-turned-writer-producer Keith Colley (who came from the Pacific Northwest but who also operated in L.A.) and arranged by Al Capps.

Takin' It Easy, possibly a group original (composed by J. Spitale, J. Painter, N. Corro and B. Luther), is laid-back sunshine harmony-pop. Described by Ben Chaput as "The Mamas & The Papas on acid", the Keith Colley-Knox Henderson-composed flip is a paean to world peace - galloping harmony folk-pop with sustained fuzz guitar and female vocals.

Takin' It Easy can also be heard on Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP) and The Times To Come has resurfaced on Fading Yellow Vol. 3 (CD), Soft Sounds For Gentle People: The Sounds Of She (CD) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (MW)

45s: Lucky Guy/Tiger (Wonder 165) 1965
Don't Cry Linda/
(The Ballad Of) Marvin Crump (Wonder 166) 1965

Paul Bezanker's excellent 'Connecticut Rocks' confirmed that this outfit is not connected to the one above, as had been reported here due to the Nuggets 4 liners. This rockin' New Haven surf band switched to folk-rock and released two singles before splitting in 1966. O'Brien joined The Creations, who evolved into Bone.

Lucky Guy has reappeared on Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD). (MW/VJ)

Cathy's Clown/
One Time Loser (MBS Recording Studios Acetate) 1966
α Somebody/Remember (MBS Recording Studios Acetate) 1965

NB: α shown as by Randy Eckart.

This Chicago trio's highly-rated garage single, Heart Filled With Love, is a song about searching for love. It was recorded at MBS Recording Studios and released on the band's own label.

Heart Filled With Love has been compiled on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) LONG TIME COMIN' (No label) 1974 SC

This is a no label private pressing by an Indiana band. It included covers of Turn On Your Lovelight, Midnight Rider and You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling. It's an obscure and not very memorable country-rock item. (VJ)

45:	I Cried/Baby Without You	(Impression 109) 1966

From Sylmar, California Lonnie and The Legends specialised in snappy garage-beat British invasion sounds, from the label also graced by the Grodes, Dirty Shames, Tangents and Mark Five (pre-Peppermint Trolley Co.).

Both sides have been compiled - I Cried is on Fuzz, Flaykes and Shakes, Vol. 3 (LP & CD) and Baby, Without You is on Basementsville! U.S.A..(LP). According to the latter their lead guitarist (Steve Rabe perhaps?) went on to form Thee Sixpence. (MW)

NB: α promo-only release, 'B' side unconfirmed. χ shown as by The Looking Glasses. β shown as by The Clouds.

From the environs of Los Angeles, this band's superb spacey acid-punker Visions comes in three forms; the original version was entitled Kathy's Dream, before Visions appeared on the same label, then was picked up by Independence whereupon the band was re-billed as The Clouds. Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) revealed that members from this band and the Just Too Much teamed up to become the Odyssey who put out the excellent Little Girl, Little Boy single on White Whale in December 1967.

Bliss out to Visions on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (as by The Clouds), Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP) and 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD). Migada Bus, a swingin' baroque-flavoured instrumental (with an occasional fuzzy flourish) can be sampled on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 2 (CD). 	He's A Nobody/A Free Soul	(Mala 538) 1966
	Dead End Kid/Verses	(Bell 671) 1967

This Fort Worth-based band was most significant for including T-Bone Burnett who wrote both of these Kinks imitation songs on their first single. The second single is mellow Beatlesque pop with Verses being the better side.

Compilation appearances have included: He's A Nobody and A Free Soul on Texas Punk, Vol. 9 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD); He's A Nobody on Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD); and Free Soul on Fort Worth Teen Scene! Volume Three (CD). (VJ/MW)

The Loose Ends (CT)

45:	Hey Sweet Baby/I Love You, Baby	(Meadowbrook 25069) 1969

From Nichols, Connecticut Hey Sweet Baby is a frantic rocker with plenty of fuzz. It also resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 3: The Auditorium (LP & CD). (VJ)

	Mister You're A Better Man Than I	(DB 47667) 1967
	The Black Door/Easy Rider	(Virtue 2502) 1968

Hailing from York County in Pennsylvania this punk quartet recorded during the mid-sixties. Some of their songs were obviously influenced by British bands like the Yardbirds and the Pretty Things. You're A Better Man Than I is a decent cover version with a pretty good guitar solo.

Compilation appearances have included: The Black Door on The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP) and 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD); A World Outside, The Black Door and Easy Rider on Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP); Mister You're A Better Man Than I on Return Of The Young Pennsylvanians (LP); Mister You're A Better Man Than I and A World Outside on Stompin' Time Again! (CD); Easy Rider on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD); and A World Outside on Crude PA Vol. 2 (LP) and Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). ALBUM:	1(A)	THE LOTUS PALACE	(Verve V6-8711) 1969

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Big Beat CDWIKD 172) 1997.

During the late sixties on the East Coast, Alan Lorber was a very active producer and the man behind the "Boss-Town Sound" hype (Ultimate Spinach, Puff, Orpheus, Chamaleon Church) as well as records by Bobby Callender and The Groupies. He also released this instrumental album to "play a subtle fusion of raga and pop". For it he recruited some excellent musicians (Hugh McCracken, Colin Walcott (later with Oregon), Vincent "Vinnie" Bell) and asked them to play two Beatles songs Within You Without You and Lucy In The Sky With Diamonds, the Blues Project's The Flute Thing, Tim Hardin's Hang On To A Dream, Jimmy Webb's Up-Up And Away, Burt Bacharach and Hal David's The Look Of Love and various other "groovy" tunes with lots of sitar, tamboura and percussion.

The album's best feature is probably the liner notes, which warn you that "what you are going to hear on this record, the sounds that will be produced, are akin only to the sounds you may have heard inside the expanded consciousness of your own mind", but it's quite an interesting listen all the same. 45:	The Kids Are Alright/ Please Please What's The Matter	(Target 107/8) 1967

Whilst the band hailed from Appleton, Wisconsin Lord Beverley was British-born and apparently recruited by placing ads in the U.K. music press - such was the power of Limey connections in that era! Their cover of The Kids Are Alright is disappointing, but Please Please What's The Matter is a good blues-punker and culminates in quite a memorable solo guitar freak-out. You can also hear it on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD).

Moss departed soon after but the remaining members continued to play in local outfits. Tom Gebheim sat in on the Target/Tee Pee project and would also find employment there as an engineer and producer. (VJ/MW/RNo/GM)

Lord Led (CA)

ALBUM:	1	LORD LED	(Dean Brown Productions) c1971 ?

From Artesia, California Lord Led was a Christian trio with 12-string acoustic guitar, electric bass and drums, and occasional piano. They played a mix of folk-rock and lounge music. (SR)

Lord Sitar (?)

ALBUM:	1	LORD SITAR	(Capitol ST-3916) 1968 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (EMI Gold 4936162) 1999.

This session project featured Big Jim Sullivan who originated from the UK and comprised instrumental covers of popular songs of the era with lead sitar, organ and some fuzz. If you have an appreciation for exploitation records, it's worth a spin.

Their version of Have You Seen Your Mother Baby is also on Mindexpanders (LP) and their treatment of I Am The Walrus has been featured on both Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 1 (LP & CD) and A Monstrous Psychedelic Bubble (2-CD). (VJ)

Los Perdidos (PA)

Personnel incl: CRAIG LaFORCE

ALBUM:	1	LOS PERDIDOS	(No label #LP 101) 1963 R2

This Philadelphia band played surf, frat-rock and instrumentals on this album. It contained one original, Race Riot amongst a collection of cover versions. (VJ)

45:	Light Rain/Death Bells At Dawn	(Aldrich ALD 1001) 1966

A fabulous single from New Jersey, Light Rain is a sublime garage ballad with reedy keyboards and clean guitar - sort of slow folk-rock-beat. The flip, Death Bells At Dawn, is a doomy lament with atmospheric Eastern-influenced keyboard doodlings. No frantic fuzz thrash this - one to float away on.

You'll also find Death Bells At Dawn on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 11: Hydrogen Atom (LP & CD), Acid and Flowers (CD), 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD) and Brain Shadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). (MW)

The Lorey's were out of Sparta, Ohio which is 30 miles northeast of Columbus. They took part in the 'Third Annual Battle of the Bands' at the Northland Shopping Center in Columbus in 1967, which was won by the Four O'Clock Balloon. The Lorey's didn't come in the Top 5 but their own contribution Don't You Care was captured on the resultant album (see the Four O'Clock Balloon entry for more details). More recently Goin' Downtown has been compiled on Come Fly With Us (LP). (GGI/MW)

Formed in 1964 at Goddard College in Vermont, this band became part of a burgeoning Boston scene (well before the "Bosstown sound" hype). Contemporaries of, and often compared to, The Remains who were said to be Boston's answer to the Beatles, the Lost assumed the Stones' mantle. Musically however they were much more diverse. Whilst embracing the new Invasion sounds they did not discard their own heritage and influences - elements of rock & roll, folk and jazz were mixed into a dynamic stew by songwriters Ted Myers and Willie Alexander. Their unique strength however was having four vocalists in the band, each capable of taking the lead part. This added a new dimension to set them apart from others with an infusion of Byrds or Beach Boys influences into the melodies and finely structured vocal arrangements (coincidentally they supported the Beach Boys 1966 tour of the region).

THE LOST
EARLY RECORDINGS: DEMOS, ACOUSTIC AND LIVE · 1965-1966
BOSTON'S LEGENDARY SIXTIES GARAGE BAND

THE LOST - Early Recordings CD.

The resultant Capitol singles are great examples of New England's response to Olde England's "Invasion" - classy and timeless sixties beat-pop-rock nuggets. Maybe More Than You with Alexander's cutting put-down vocals to the fore, backed by the Back Door Blues' snappy rockin' beat. Mean Motorcycle continues in up-tempo rockin' vein and backs the track that signposted Myers' future direction - the sublime Violet Gown with a haunting melody, ringing guitars and romantic lyrical imagery. This single was quickly followed by an alternate version of Violet Gown backed by the frenetic raver No Reason Why with screamin' guitars and screechin' harmonica.

No Reason Why was covered by California outfit Mondo Crescendo on the flip of their 1998 single, A Boy And His Itch (Train Bridge Records).

The Lost CDs are highly recommended to those who want to investigate this band's legacy. The Early Recordings CD contains 26 previously unreleased recordings from 1965-6, and fans should also check out the Stanton Park single. The Lost Lost Tapes CD unearths 17 gems from the original Capitol tapes, remixed by Ted Myers and Erik Lindgren. Family Circle - Family Tree (CD) is a fascinating collection of The Lost and their offshoots:- nine tracks by The Lost - Violet Gown, Maybe More Than You, and seven unreleased/alternate tracks including Mystic, Kaleidoscope and Everybody Knows; 11 cuts by Chamaeleon Church (most of their 1968 MGM album plus some alternate and unreleased tracks); Back Door Blues and Happiness Child by the Myers/Scheuren Ultimate Spinach; two more versions of Everybody Knows by the post-Lost Alexander/Mason outfit the Bagatelle and a further 1978 version by Willie Alexander & The Boom-Boom Band. A follow-up The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD), includes four Lost tracks: Maybe More Than You, Everybody Knows, Mystic (Seven Starry Skies) and Violet Gown, duplicating two from the earlier Family Circle - Family Tree (CD).

In 1967, The Lost was commissioned to provide the soundtrack to a children's sci-fi opera. The resultant albums worth of material can be heard on the Arf! Arf! CD coupled with the Flat Earth Society album reissue - three lengthy tracks Space Kids Part 1, Space Kids Part 2 and Incidental Music To Space Kids.

By 1967, the band was being pulled in different musical directions - with Alexander, Powers and Mason pushing a move to jammin' jazz/funk climes. The split saw Alexander and Powers initially in the unrecorded Grass Menagerie, before Alexander joined Mason in the nine-piece funk-fusion Bagatelle. Powers joined prog-psychers Listening. Myers continued to write prodigiously and became a staff songwriter for Alan "Mr. Bosstown" Lorber. He formed the psychy soft-rock Chamaeleon Church with

THE LOST - The Lost Lost Tapes CD.

Garrahan plus Tony Scheuren and drummer Chevy Chase - the latter of course has achieved fame as a comedian and film star personality.

After one under-rated album and the haunting Camillia Is Changing single, Myers and Scheuren were drafted into the post-Bruce-Douglas Ultimate Spinach for the third album, which also featured pre-Steely Dan and Doobie Brothers Jeff "Skunk" Baxter.

Kyle Garrahan went solo and released one single on Janus (note that he is not the Kyle who had releases on Paramount and Family around the same time) and moved to Europe where he spent much of the seventies living in France.

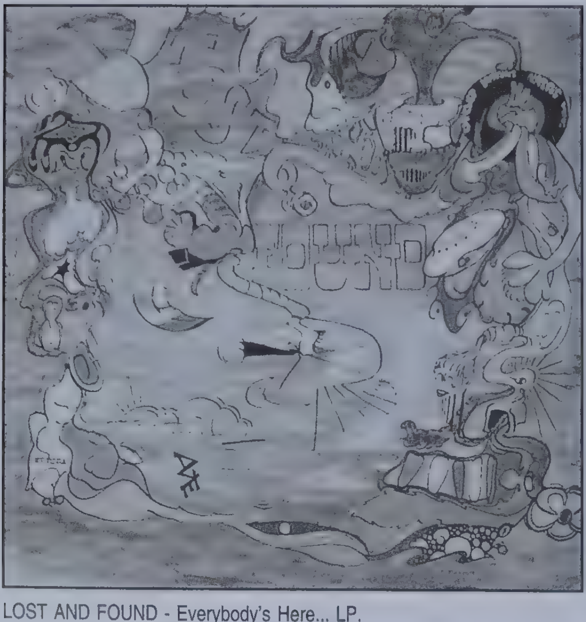
After Listening, Powers teamed up again with Alexander in Doug Yules' post-Lou Reed Velvet Underground from 1970-1971. This line-up toured and appeared in the U.K. but did not release any new studio recordings. Willie Alexander commented that they've never been allowed to forget this episode in certain cliques.

Alexander continues to record to this day and is regarded as a living legend in New England. After Velvet Underground he went solo with the Kerouac single in the mid-seventies - an updated version of this by his next outfit Willie and The Boom Boom Band is featured on the 1979 Who Put The Bomp? (LP) compilation. The Boom Boom Band issued two albums on MCA during 1978-'79. In the early eighties Willie Loco Alexander And The Confessions saw him reunited again with bassist Walter Powers. In 1999 he was using the moniker Willie Loco Alexander And The Persistence Of Memory Orchestra.

Ted Myers was A&R Manager for Rhino Records in L.A. until 2000 when he left to "pursue my true passions: record production and artist development. I am currently working with three bands, all based here in the L.A. area, producing one and representing the other two."; Kyle Garrahan is a jazz guitarist living in Astoria, New York; Walter Powers a librarian at M.I.T. and residing in Wellesley, Massachusetts; Lee Mason runs an airline business in Florida and was involved in mercy flights to hurricane-torn Central America in early 1999.

For a few days in March 1999, The Lost reunited for the ultimate Boston Tea-Party at the Paradise Club, to complete a dream line-up with The Rising Storm and Barry Tashian's Remains. Original drummer Lee Mason was unable to attend due to ill health but his stool was superbly filled by Alexander's current Persistence Of Memory Orchestra drummer Jim Doherty. Convening at Erik Lindgren's new Sounds Interesting studios in Middleborough, it was soon obvious to privileged observers that the chemistry still worked and something special was brewing. After their final run-through all were treated to a preview of the The Lost Lost Tapes, which Ted Myers and Erik Lindgren had just remixed. Erik's reward would be to augment them on keyboards at the upcoming gig.

On Saturday 20th March, The Lost hit the stage after The Rising Storm had set the scene and spirit of the occasion, and MC Peter Wolf (J. Geils Band) had paid eloquent homage to The Lost's influence on him. Their stage presence and rapport with the audience was immediate and generated much warmth and humorous repartee.



LOST AND FOUND - Everybody's Here... LP.

Kicking off their 11-song set with When I Call, they strode through their repertoire with a vitality, tightness and confidence which belied the 30+ year gap since they'd played together and the mere day-and-a-half they'd had to rebuild their act. All the Capitol single tracks bar Mean Motorcycle were revisited with Myers' beautiful Violet Gown saved for last, earning them a rapturous response and an encore of Who Do You Love featuring stunning vocals from a vibrant Willie Alexander. The only other cover was A Certain Chick (aka A Certain Girl), featuring "younger than springtime" Kyle Garrahan on lead vocals. A beaming Walter Powers took his turn on lead vocals for the catchy swingin' (You Send Me Through) Changes. Original agent "Uncle Fred" Taylor, called onto the stage after The Lost's tribute to him - (No) Money In My Pocket - to accept the band's and fans' plaudits, described it as "a great trip".

Other compilation appearances have included: Back Door Blues on Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP) and 60s Choice Collection Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and More Incidental Music and Everybody Knows on The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD). (MW/ELn/JFr/GBs/TMs)

45s:	Forever Lasting Plastic Words/ Everybody's Here	(International Artists 120) 1967
	When Will You Come Through/ Professor Black	(International Artists 125) 1968

Originally known as The Misfits, this band came together in Houston in 1965. They changed their name to Lost And Found just prior to commencing a six-month residency at Houston's Living Eye club. They became friendly with Roky Erickson, who introduced them to Lelan Rogers of International Artists, who signed them for an album. The result was further evidence of Roky's influence. They covered Don't Fall Down from The Elevators' first album in an adventurous style and imitated their jug sound on Let Me Be. The album also included a couple of instrumentals of note; Zig Zag Blues dedicated to the founder of Zig Zag Magazine and Living Eye dedicated to Houston's Living Eye Teen Club. Their first single was taken from the album but the second, a non-album release, was much better. Both sides featured good fuzz guitar and the flip was very strange. This second single was intended to form part of a second album which never emerged because the band disintegrated after a 30-day Texas tour with The Music Machine. Two tracks also cut for the intended album: Girl With A One Track Mind and 25 M. P. H. were subsequently included on a Texas Archive Flashback (LP) compilation. The latter, a bedroom demo, was also included on Epitaph For A Legend (2-LP), along with count-ins where the solo was supposed to go. There's also a version of 25 M. P. H. on Acid Visions Vol. 11 (CD) (Spalax).

You'll find both sides of their second single on International Artists Singles Collection (LP) and the Austin Landing (LP) compilation. Their album, which was also included as part of a boxed set of the first 12 International Artists albums, is worth getting now that it's been reissued. There Would Be No Doubt, one of its best tracks, also appeared on Radarscope's 1978 promotional EP. 45: I Won't Have To Worry/
I Want To Be Her Man (Vaughn-Ltd. VA-725) 1966

This sultry garage outfit hailed from the South - Birmingham, Alabama to be precise. I Won't Have To Worry is a clumsy steal of The Byrds' You Won't Have To Cry, re-credited to a J. Whitworth. I Want To Be Her Man sounds more like a J.W. original and is a fine, yearning garage-ballad.

Compilation appearances include: I Want To Be Her Man on Leaving It All Behind (LP) and Class Of '66! (LP); and both sides of the single figure on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/MM)

45: Let Me Out/They Tell Me (Bofuz BF-1114) 1966

Here's a different Lost Generation; this time from Baton Rouge, Louisiana. This single features two excellent punk ballads.

Compilation appearances include: They Tell Me on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 17 (LP); and Let Me Out on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 23 (LP). (MW)

45: Love Flight/Yes I'm Ready (Onyx ES 6901) 1969

An obscure New England band, The Lost Legend was based in Lowell, Massachusetts. Their Love Flight, which got further exposure on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP), is a little gem. Check out the fine upfront drumming and discordant guitar work. Unfortunately the flip is a dire horn-ballad. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) PARADISE LOST (Rare Earth RS-518) 1970

Don't let the cover of this obscure Detroit album put you off - it depicts the band behind a balustrade on whose lower wall is graffiti on a predominantly ecological theme, but this is no hippie-rock, or back-to-nature concept album. This is serious progressive rock, sound-wise somewhere between Uriah Heep and Rare Bird - busy keyboards, strong vocals, neo-classical movements and some excellent heavy guitar. This quintet included Ron Stults, formerly of revered heavy garage kings The Unrelated Segments. Craig Webb also had a spell in Frijid Pink. (MW)

Lost Ones (PA)

45: I Don't Believe You/I Wanna Know (Mersey 002) 1965

An awful effort from a Butler, Pennsylvania band who were previously known as The Kruisers and would later be known as Lite Rain. If you want to hear how bad I Don't Believe You actually is, listen for yourself on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ)

45: My Girl/Lost Love (Leopard LS 100) 1966

Just one single yet, 40 years on, this band had a CD named after them. Harold Ott's Arkansas garage/psych compilation Lost Souls Volume 1 (CD), featuring both sides of this Jacksonville band's booming garage-beat single, had been inspired when he came across their Lost Love on the No No No (CD). My Girl had reappeared earlier, on Garage PunkUnknowns Vol. 3 (LP). Another Lost Souls who were active in Euclid, Ohio in the sixties. Although no singles were released at the time, Denny Carleton had enough acetates to compile a retrospective on cassette in the mid-eighties. If his name sounds familiar it's because Denny also served time with sixties mod-supremos The Choir. (GGI/MW/MDo)

45: Simple To Say/The Girl I Love (Bang 509) 1965

This was a different outfit from New York City or New Jersey who had one single in 1965. They may be the group who marked the start of Billy Joel's career.

You can also hear Simple to Say on The Lost Generation, Vol. 2 (LP) and Mindrocker, Vol. 6 (LP). (MW)

10" EP: 1 NORTH DAKOTA 60s GARAGE:
THE TRENCHMEN MEET THE LOST SOULS
(Break-A-Way BREAK 009) 2003

Here's more Lost Souls, this time from Dickinson, North Dakota. The second single was recorded at Kay Bank Studios in Minneapolis and produced by Dave Hoffman and Bob Eveslage (of The Unbelievable Uglies). Their moody version of Ernie Maresca's Artificial Rose has a throbbing bass intro reminiscent of the Electric Prunes' Too Much To Dream... although it quickly veers off into harmony-pop territory. A subdued rendition of the Beau Brummels' Sad Little Girl features fine harmonies.

Their quartet of releases and full history appear on the Break-A-Way EP. Additionally, It's Not Fair is on The Essential Pebbles Collection Vol. 2 (2-CD); and Artificial Rose is on Every Groovy Day (LP). (MW)

45: Step Inside/Leaving (Musicor 1436) 1967

Here's another bunch of Lost Souls, this time from the village of Darlington in the city of Pawtucket, Rhode Island. They were one of the best and most popular local bands of the era and their garage single is quite highly-rated and commands a price of $100+.

Randy Roy later entered the Navy, being replaced by Gary Graveline. Dennis Ptak and Mike MacTavish also left and Mike was replaced by Steve Lemos.

Frank Dilorenzo and Joe Gamba, who were the driving force behind the band, still live in the same area. Frank is now a CPA, still playing occasionally for his own enjoyment. Joe runs a moving company and was playing in Ladies Choice. Mike died of a drug overdose in 1975 in Indiana and Randy was last reported living in New Hampshire. (MW/AMk)

45: Walk One Way/Fools Live Alone (United Artists UA 50465) 1969

Here's a double whammy of dynamic garage-rock from Baltimore with fine, fluid leads and the odd dose of fuzz. Better yet if you manage to snag the stereo version (SUA 50465). According to Joe Vaccarino's 'Baltimore Sounds', they included Reed Martin of The Gigs. The only other clue to this lost tribe is that both sides were written by S. Roudebush.

Walk One Way is on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD); Fools Live Alone was on the eighties cassette-only compilation Garage Music For Psych Heads Vol.1 but reappeared more recently on Trip In Tyme Volume 5 (CD). (VJ/MW)

	Machines/Milkweed Love	(Capitol 2376) 1968
	Midnight Ranger/Yes, I Love You	(Capitol 2556) 1969

This was one of the most interesting groups to emerge from America in this era. Originally from Denver, Colorado they moved to New York City to record their two albums. Lothar was actually the name they gave to the theremin, which, together with two moog synthesisers, Ampex tape decks, keyboards and a linear controller characterised the group's sound.

Their debut album was reissued in the U.K. and is consequently not difficult to obtain. On most tracks like This May Be Goodbye and That's Another Story, the theremin's influence is confined to short intros to fairly conventional two or three-minute compositions. However, three exceptions to this are the weird Machines, the unusual Sex And Violence and final track It Comes On Anyhow - which is a foretaste of some of the psychedelic craziness which appeared on their follow-up album.

On Space Hymn, the theremin and other electronic gadgetry is generally used to better effect. The album is composed of a mixture of weird material and more commercial numbers, such as Yes, I Love You, Heatwave, and Say I Do. The lyrics are often full of the usual hippie cliches. For example, What Grows On Your Head? is, as one might expect, romanticising about the freedom and virtues of long hair, while Midnight Ranger sounds like the story of a ranger who has had one trip too many! Some of the other material is particularly weird, notably the keyboard instrumental Wedding Night For Those Who Love, Sdrawkcab and Today Is Only Yesterday's Tomorrow. The title track, however, reaches new heights of craziness when the vocalist sets about hypnotising his audience! Certainly an interesting album, this is recommended. Apart from Heatwave, all the material was written by the band and you won't hear many things more unusual from this era than that title track.

Kim King went on to become a producer and sound engineer, notably working with Steeplechase, Holy Moses and Colin Winski. He also toured with Zephyr, being the first replacement for Tommy Bolin, but did not record with the band. It's not clear if Tom Flye is the same Tommy Flye who was recording engineer for, among others, Zappa's Shut Up And Play Yer Guitar albums.

There are some compilations that may interest you. This Is It, Machines compiles tracks from their two albums. Space Hymn - The Complete Capitol Recordings (2-CD) is a 29-track collection of all their recordings, both albums and their singles and it comes with a booklet with previously unseen photos and band history.

You can also check out Standing On The Moon (Space Hymn) on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); and TV Weatherman on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). (VJ/SR/RDk)

	My Belief In You/Caribbean	(Atlantic 2972) 1973

Produced by Doug Sahm (Sir Douglas Quintet), Louie Ortega and his group came from the Mexican-American community of Salinas, California. With a good singer and brilliant guitar parts, the best tracks are probably Sittin By Your River, Royal Oakie, Driver Go Slow, Rock Me Baby and the only cover, Kaleidoscope's If The Night (Ortega wrote the 10 other tracks). The rock critic Greil Marcus described them as "clear and sharp, relaxed without being fashionably lethargic, the vocals have feeling without pain".

Ortega would keep on working with Doug Sahm and Merrell Fankhauser.

A single by Little Louie & The Lovers - Nothin' But The Two Step/Someday You'll Pay (Viscount 102) - is reported to be from the early sixties and so, presumably, unconnected (?). (VJ/MW)

The 'A' side credits the vocals to Arthur Lee and John Echols and this acid folk adventure extols the virtues of 'The Marlin', an obscure sixties dance. This seems to have been a very early The American Four release or possibly even earlier, released on a Texas label, sometime later when Love were famous. It can also be heard on Texas Psychedelia From The Sixties. The flip side was credited to an outfit called The Hurricanes who also released it on another label. Arthur Lee solo:
EP: 1 I Do Wonder/Just Us/Do You Want To Know A Secret?/
Happy You (PS) (Da Capo CAP 1001) 1977 UK

Born in Memphis, Arthur Lee later moved to Los Angeles where he first saw The Byrds. The folk-rock act represented a break with the usual rhythm and blues format previously played at the clubs and had an enormous influence upon him. Lee had formed and disbanded a number of groups since moving to L.A., including The VIP's and Arthur Lee and the Lags. After hearing The Byrds he formed The Grassroots which included former Byrds roadie, Maclean; Forssi (earlier with The Sufaris) and Memphis-born Echols. They began to play around the L.A. clubs, but Lee discovered that another band had got first rights to their name and it was changed to Love.

Love made their debut at the Brave New World in spring 1965 and by the early summer of that year, Jac Holzman (head of Elektra records) discovered them playing at the Hollywood club, Bido Lito's. Elektra were looking for one of the new folk-rock acts, and eventually signed them up. They quickly became a cult attraction and by 1966 had a residency at Bido Lito's.

Their debut album Love was impressive, containing the drug-oriented Signed D.C., Hey Joe and My Little Red Book. Signed D.C. was dedicated to Don Conka, who would have been in the band but for his drug problem (ironically with most people presuming him dead he did turn up in a late eighties reformation line-up). The list of bands who subsequently recorded Signed D.C. included December's Children, Rising Storm, Axis Brotherhood, Jeff Dahl Group, Fallen Angels, Sidewinders and Dead Moon. Another of its finer moments was Softly To Me, a fine track with haunting vocals and clashing guitars, released briefly as a single.

LOVE - Forever Changes CD.

Before the release of their follow-up album Da Capo, Lee bought in Michael Stuart (formally with L.A. band The Sons Of Adam) on drums and Tjay Cantrelli on horns. 'Snoopy' Pfisterer was transferred from drums to keyboards. This album contained their second hit single 7 And 7 Is, The Castle and Stephanie Knows Who. Whilst Orange Skies would set the style for their following album, the whole of side two was taken up by the highly ambitious but only partially successful 20 minutes long Revelation. 7 And 7 Is was perhaps their most influential track. It was later covered by Alice Cooper, Billy Bragg, Marshmallow Overcoat, Sidewinders, Fuzztones, Spiral Jetty, Barracudas and The Blues Inc. among others.

Pfisterer and Cantrelli had both departed before the band released the masterful Forever Changes as a five-piece. Both Bob Harris and Penny Valentine chose this as their favourite album of all time in Paul Gambaccini's book "Critics Choice: Top 200 Albums". Almost every track was a classic and Alone Again Or and Andmoreagain were further U.S. hit singles. Alone Again Or was later covered by The Damned and UFO. Many of the other songs flowed gently with muted guitar leads, soothing brass, sweeping strings and often nihilistic lyrics. Lee chose haunting surrealistic lyrics, often making play on words. The drug influence which helped inspire this album was also to be the group's undoing. They scarcely left their former horror movie set/house near Hollywood and when they did record another album it was too awful to release.

Lee broke the band up and formed a new one comprising Frank Fayad (bs), George Suranovitch (drms), and Jay Donnellan (gtr) (all from Nooney Rickett), although additional musicians were used on recordings. Four Sail was their last album for Elektra and subsequent albums were comparatively disappointing. They managed a tour of England in 1970, but after the failure of False Start, Lee split the group again and worked on his solo album. Later, he would try unsuccessfully to form another version of Love. Somehow Arthur Lee got mixed up with Robert Stigwood and the result was Reel To Reel, a disco-influenced album with a female backing group, The Blackberries and a horn section on many tracks. Best avoided!

Lee's first solo album Vindicator (which was named after his pet dog) is a competent album which marked a return to a blues-rock base. Hamburger Breath Stinkfinger captures him exploring Captain Beefheart territory and You Can Save Up To 50% But You're Still A Long Way From Home shows that he still possessed some inventiveness.

It is unlikely, however, that the mellow blend of their first three albums will ever be repeated and Love are best left alone to be remembered as one of the very best of the L.A. rock bands. Material from their early years is thoughtfully compiled on Rhino's Best of Love (RNLP 800), which was repackaged in 1987. Love Live (Rhino RNDF 251) 1982 and (Line LLP 5152 AP) 1983 is a recording of a reunion concert at the Whisky A Go Go in 1978. It includes gorgeous versions of Orange Skies and Old Man but the rest is pretty inept.

Several former Love members went on to play with other groups: Tjay Cantrelli joined Geronimo Black, Jay Donnellan (aka Jay Lewis) formed Morning with Jim Hobson, Gary Rowles formed Cottonwood and joined Richard Torrance's Eureka.

LOVE - Out Here CD.

Live/Studio (MCA 27025) 1982 consisted of previously unreleased material live from the Fillmore East in 1970 and eight remastered tracks from the Out Here album. The live side is an energetic performance by line-up 'G' and notable for its inclusion of the otherwise unavailable Product Of The Times. Out There (Big Beat WIKA 69) 1988 includes the best of Love's Out Here and False Start albums.

In 1987 Lee reformed the band as a four-piece, backed by Berton Averre (ex-The Knack) (ld gtr), Sherwood Akuna (bs) and Joe Blocker (drms), as part of the 'Psychedelic Summer of Love' package. Their short half-hour sets featured mostly material from their Elektra period: - 7 And 7 Is, My Little Red Book and Andmoreagain.

George Suranovich died of a heart attack in 1990.

In 1992 and 1994 Lee again played to packed audiences, in one-off London gigs, which were captured for posterity on the Oncemoreagain CD. In particular the 1992 set is memorable for the admirable backing by The High Llamas, who provided lush orchestral backing on tracks taken from the first three Love albums. Arthur Lee subsequently stole the show at Creation Records 10th anniversary bash at the Royal Albert Hall.

Bryan MacLean's profile has been revived of late with Sundazed's 1997 album and CD collection Ifyoubelievein. This is highly recommended to those captivated by the wistful romantic side of Love - e.g. Orange Skies, Old Man and Alone Again Or. The follow-up collection Candy's Waltz (Sundazed SC 10076) 2000 is also of interest. In 1992, New Rose issued a CD of new material Arthur Lee And Love, which is not listed in the discography at the start of this entry.

1994 saw the release of a tribute CD to Arthur Lee and Love We're All Normal And We Want Our Freedom (Alias A-058) from modern alternative, underground and indie outfits including Hypnolovewheel, H.P.Zinker, Teenage Fanclub and TV Personalities. One interesting Love cover of recent years is a dynamic nineties guitar-thrash version of Alone Again Or by the Boo Radleys, from a Peel session and featured on their Learning To Walk retrospective.

In autumn 1996, Lee was sentenced to 12 years in prison for illegal possession of a firearm. The sentence was harsh because it took account of two previous assault and drug charges in the eighties. Whilst in jail, Lee refused interviews and visitors. Sadly, Bryan MacLean passed away on Christmas Day 1998 at the age of 52 and Ken Forssi also died whilst Lee was incarcerated effectively ending any chance of a band reunion involving many original members. In 2001, drummer Michael Stuart published a book about his time in the band. When Lee eventually got out on appeal in December 2001 (having served five and a half years of his original sentence) he formed a new Love line-up and planned a Forever Changes 35th anniversary tour to commence at The Royal Festival Hall in London.

In 2001, Rhino co-ordinated the remastered reissue of Forever Changes which boasts seven bonus cuts: the unreleased Hummingbird and Wonder People, the Your Mind.../Laughing Stock single, alternate versions of Alone Again Or and You Set The Scene, and a series of Your Mind... studio takes. There is absolutely no excuse for not having this classic album now.

LOVE
False Start

LOVE - False Start CD.

Out There (CD) is a compilation of their Blue Thumb material. Compared to their original Out Here album it has extended versions of Doggone and Love Is More Than Words (Or Better Late Than Never), which only appeared in edited format in their original album.

Third Coming Of Love is a limited edition vinyl collection of alternate mixes and studio rarities from the 1966-68 line-up. It contained the double tracked alternate vocal arrangement of Just For You which became Your Mind and We Belong Together, a two-track demo version of Signed DC, the mono mix of No.14 and 10 more tracks. It's presented in a full colour sleeve of the (in)famous cigarette shot from the castle.

In 2002, Arthur Lee began touring again using the name "Love with Arthur Lee". The tours were extremely successful and he performed to enthusiastic audiences and critical acclaim throughout Europe, North America and Australia. They regularly performed the Forever Changes album in its entirety, often with a string and horn section. A live CD and DVD of this material was released in 2003.

Arthur Lee died at Methodist Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee of leukaemia on 3 August 2006. Steve Weitzman, a New York concert promoter, had heard that Arthur Lee had acute myeloid leukaemia and organised a benefit concert on 23 June 2006 New York's Beacon Theater to help cover his medical expenses. The highly successful concert featured Robert Plant, Ian Hunter, Nils Lofgren, Ryan Adams, Johnny Echols (the band's original lead guitarist), Yo La Tengo and Flashy Python and The Body Snatchers. Robert Plant (backed by Ian Hunter's band) played 12 songs, including five Led Zeppelin songs and five Love songs from the sixties (7 And 7 Is, A House Is Not A Motel, Bummer In The Summer, Old Man and Hey Joe).

The 14-track Love Lost Sundazed release draws from solo and full band recordings for an unreleased Columbia album tentatively titled Dear You. Some of the tracks that appear on this as solo acoustic demos later appear on Arthur Lee's Vindicator album.

And finally, TV and Love trivia buffs: the instrumental section of The Castle was the theme tune of the BBC TV 'Holiday' programme in the early seventies, when it was presented by Cliff Michelmore.

As one would expect Love have also featured on several compilations including:- Alone Again Or, Andmoreagain, Hey Joe, My Little Red Book, 7 And 7 Is, She Comes In Colors, Signed D.C. and Singing Cowboy on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP); My Little Red Book and 7 And 7 Is on The Golden Archive Series Sampler (LP); My Little Red Book on Wild Thing (2-LP) and Nuggets, Vol. 2 - Punk (LP); 7 And 7 Is on Highs Of The Sixties (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP), Psychedelic Perceptions (CD) and Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 1 (LP); It's The Marlin Baby on Sixties Archive, Vol. 6 (CD) and Texas Psychedelia From The 60s (LP); Bummer In The Summer and Hey Joe on Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 2 (LP); The Daily Planet on Hallucinations,

45s: Surprise, Surprise (For You)/
Another Time Or Place (Ambassador 212) 1966
Do You Wanna Know What I Think/
I Love How (Roulette 7003) 1968

Surprise, Surprise is a breakneck punker with put-down lyrics and snotty vocals.

Newark, New Jersey had been assumed to be this Loved Ones' hometown due to their appearance on Attack Of The New Jersey Teens (LP), presumably due to the Ambassador single's label address.... however it turns out that they were from Tennessee. The band had started as Terry & The Casuals in Rogersville, Tennessee but they were known as The Loved Ones by the time they were based in Knoxville. They were still going circa 1968 and are believed, but not confirmed, to be responsible for the Roulette single.

Guitarist Barry "Byrd" Burton moved on to the Amazing Rhythm Aces in the early seventies and then on to engineering and session work in Nashville, playing for the likes of Dolly Parton, Dan Fogelberg, and Emmylou Harris; he passed away in 2008.

Surprise, Surprise (For You) can also be heard on Pebbles Vol. 10 (CD), Sixties Choice, Vol. 1 (LP) and 60's Choice Collection Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (MW/VJ)

The Loved Ones (?TN)

45: Country Club Life/Together, Together (Brookmont 556) 1968

The excellent Country Club Life takes a powerful swipe at "rich swingers" using rasping Eric Burdon-esque vocals and a twee baroquish chorus. It was composed by Bobby Russell and Buzz Cason, who were very active on the Nashville scene, creating and producing countless studio and exploito acts on labels like Spar, Hit and Modern Sound.

The Rabideau/Chalmers-composed flip is a psych-rocker like the lighter side of Iron Butterfly.

Not confirmed to be the same as the Knoxville band above, New York had been suggested (but that probably only due to the label distributor - Amy/Bell). There WAS another Loved Ones, from West Tennessee, who appear in Ron Hall's 'Memphis Garage Rock Yearbook' but no releases or names to connect them with this.

Together, Together has been compiled on Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP) and 60's Choice Collection Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (MW)

45: Mellow Memory/Swallow The Sun (Uptown 755) 1967

A flower-power group from the Los Angeles area who were produced by Larry Goldberg (who'd also worked with Fire Escape, Mesmerizing Eye, Neigh'rhood Childr'n, Maze and The Other Half). Swallow The Sun is actually a cover version of The Peanut Butter Conspiracy's Dark On You Now with slightly modified lyrics. Typifying the freshness of L.A. rock in this period it's very listenable. Their album is a very minor collectable.

Most of the band had earlier played in The Crusaders. Walter Flannery was later in Charity.

Swallow The Sun is also on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP), Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP) and Crystalize Your Mind (CD). (VJ/MW)

Love Flowers (?TX)

Probably from Texas hence the inclusion of Peace And Love, Near Vanna and Who Are You on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD). Peace... is a slow organ, Procol Harum-influenced melodic tune with flower-power lyrics and some fiery guitar towards the end; Near Vanna ('nirvana' geddit?) is similarly a slow-paced ballad, whilst Who Are You is a heavier early- Led Zeppelin style rocker...

Other compilation appearances include Peace And Love and Nirvana (sic) on Green Crystal Ties Vol. 6 (CD).

This harmony-pop act from the Los Angeles area will appeal to lovers of The Association, The Mamas & The Papas or Orange Colored Sky. Prior to their collaboration all six members had kicked around the music scene, working as back-up singers and touring with various acts (White had actually been a member of The New Christy Minstrels).

1969's Tommy Oliver-produced Montage saw the crew expanded their heart warming (or mind-numbing) hip platitudes beyond Top 40 pop. Apparently intended to give the group a slightly more controversial edge, tracks such as The Pill, Consciousness Expansion and A Touch Of Love (complete with excerpts from John F. Kennedy speeches) saw them wrapping their ever cheerful tight knit harmonies around socially and politically-relevant themes. Not only that, but the Bahlers and company brought with them a certain cloying enthusiasm; almost evangelical fervour, in the knowledge that their insights could change the world. Highlights include the lead-off song Montage From How Sweet It Is (I Knew That You Knew) and the should've-been-a-hit slice of Top 40 pop Candy.

Not to be confused with Montage.

The Sundazed compilation is a fine 25-track collection, which comes with excellent sleevenotes. Highlights include The Love In Me, the original version of Jimmy Webb's Montage and two quasi-psychedelic offerings; Meet Me At The Love-In and Consciousness Expansion. Let The Good Times In (Very Best Of The Love Generation) (CD) is a 20-track compilation.

Brothers, John and Tom Bahler later wrote and arranged material for The Partridge Family, for whom they also acted as background vocalists. Tom Bahler also penned She's Out Of My Life for Michael Jackson. He and his brother also sang back-up for Elvis Presley and Frank Sinatra! (SR/MMs/SB/VJ)

This Westbrook, Maine rock band from 1968-1971 opened for the likes of The Orphans and Ultimate Spinach. After their debut on Musicor's New Talent Series, they landed a deal for an album on Pink Dolphin but although a single appeared, it seems that delays led to inevitable departures and the album was canned.

45: Everything's There/That's All She Wrote (Curtis Bros 101) 1966

There had to be a band which took its name from this late sixties institution. That's All She Wrote is a pretty good pop-punk effort. If the titles sound familiar it's because this is The Hysterics from San Bernardino, California under a pseudonym; the same coupling was issued on Tottenham (500) shown as by The Hysterics.

A studio project from the Elephant V team in New York City, Love Is A Heart-On was sold only by mail-order with ads placed in the classified pages of men's magazines, as it's an X-rated album with pornographic lyrics (quite dated now). Although some tracks are decent hard-rock slammers, the album is rather boring and best avoided. (SR)

Love Machine (?)

ALBUM: 1 ELECTRONIC MUSIC TO BLOW YOUR MIND BY!!!
(Design SDLP-282) 1968 SC

NB: (1) counterfeited on vinyl (Design) 2001.

Here's a budget label's attempt to cash in on psychedelia. Almost certainly this was just a bunch of studio musicians assembled to recycle some instrumentals. The cover is colourful and so are the titles - Inner Ear Freakout, Asbury Tripper, Zenquake, Bells For Eternal Zoom, The Shadows Of Vibrate, Mindblower and so on.

The trouble is... this is tacky intermission muzak with cheesy cinema keyboards, topped off with chimes, oscillators, 'way out' electronic effects, even Klanger-like noises (?!). An artefact of its time, this is more likely to split your sides than blow your mind; whoever thought this was psychedelic had clearly lost theirs. (MW)

45: Paint It Black/Paint It Black (Soul Galore SG-2603) 1968?

For the most part this Plymouth, Wisconsin band played cover versions in competent harmony-pop style. Two exceptions to this were You Know How I Feel (And Why), a Dylan imitation, which got a further airing on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP) and their cover of Tobacco Road, which was a heavier fuzzy effort most likely to be of interest to readers, has been compiled on Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD).

Keith Abler left for a while to join Phase III, returning in time for their final single on Mercury. He later issued a solo album, Pilgrim (Homegrown Records) 1975.

Members from both Love Society and Phase III would go on to form Sunblind Lion, who released three fine albums of melodic progressive rock in the seventies. (VJ/MW/GM)

Christian rock outfit Love Song came out of Chuck Smith's Calvary Chapel, which started in 1965 in Santa Mesa, California with 25 members and now has over 15,000 throughout the world. The band was founded in 1970 and their eponymous debut is considered by many to be one of the greatest Christian albums of all time.

Its four members were converted to Christianity through attending some of the meetings and studies held in southern California, where the "hippie" culture was prominent. After playing at some of the meetings associated with Calvary Chapel, they became known to many as a group that played Christian songs in a pop music style. This was unique at the time. During 1971, the group went to Freddie Piro, an executive in the record division of National General Pictures who owned the Good News label, to see if he was still interested in them recording an album. He was (as a recently "born again" Christian himself) and when Field and Mehler quit the group in 1971 to move to northern California and form a group called Noah, Piro introduced the remaining members to lead guitarist Bob Wall, who joined them. Piro them took them to Gold Star Studios in Hollywood to record an album using drummer John Raines (a few months later John Mehler rejoined the group). The first album was distributed by United Artists Records and was well received. Indeed, CCM Magazine named Love Song's debut album as the No. 7 all-time best contemporary Christian recording.

Love Song went on to make two further albums and band member Chuck Girard made several further albums for the Good News label. (SR/VJ)

Daydream
The Lovin' Spoonful

THE LOVIN' SPOONFUL - Daydream LP.

The core of this band were John Sebastian, who was born on 17th March 1944 in New York, and Zalman Yanovsky, who was born on 19th December 1944 in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. They'd first met as a number of guests invited to Cass Elliot's house to watch the Beatles' U.S. TV debut on the 'Ed Sullivan Show' in February 1964. They played guitar together through the night and discussed the possibility of forming a rock group. At the time Sebastian was a Greenwich Village folkie and sometime member of the Even Dozen Jug Band and Yanovsky was guitarist with the Nova Scotia folk group, The Halifax Three. When this outfit disbanded in June 1964 Yanovsky was briefly involved in the Mugwumps (with Denny Doherty, Cass Elliot and James Hendricks). This was a short-lived and unsuccessful venture, which soon disbanded, and, of course Doherty and Elliot went on to form one half of The Mamas & The Papas. With Yanovsky at a loose end again the seeds for a rock group with John Sebastian (along the lines they'd discussed earlier) were sewn in January 1965. The name Lovin' Spoonful was taken from a phrase in Mississippi John Hurt's Coffee Blues and Joe Butler (from Glen Cove, Long Island) and Steve Boone, who was born on 23rd September 1943 in North Carolina, were drafted in to be the other members.

They won a residency at the Night Owl in Greenwich Village and their producer Erik Jacobsen got them a deal with the newly formed Kama Sutra label. Playing their own brand of folk-rock/good-time music they enjoyed immediate commercial success. Their first single made No. 9 in the U.S. and their debut album of the same name peaked at No. 32. This contained several tracks that were on a par with their singles in terms of imagination and effort. Follow-up You Didn't Have To Be So Nice peaked at No. 10 and Daydream, their lazy, laid-back celebration of love on a summer's day, was even bigger, reaching No. 2 in the U.S. and UK, becoming a million seller. Their second album of the same name made No. 10 in the U.S. and No. 8 in the UK. They also had four cuts included on the Elektra compilation What's Shakin, including one called Good Time Music, for them this is what music was all about.

Their next single, Did You Ever Have To Make Up Your Mind? peaked at No. 2, but this was soon surpassed by what was arguably their finest moment, Summer In The City. Notable for its atmospheric street noise sound effects this topped the U.S. charts for three weeks and made No. 8 in the UK. It became their second and biggest million seller.

They went on to appear on the soundtrack of the cult movie What's Up Tiger Lily? (No. 126 in the US) and their third album of the year Hums Of The Lovin' Spoonful peaked at No. 14. Nashville Cats would be their last U.S. Top 10 hit (peaking at No. 8) - the flip side also made it to No. 87. In the U.K., it climbed to No. 26. They followed this with the heavily orchestrated Darlin' Be Home Soon, which peaked at No. 15 in the U.S. and No. 44 in the UK. (It would be their last U.K. hit.) In March 1967, The Best Of The Lovin' Spoonful climbed to No. 3 in the U.S. Album Charts in which it spent a year in all. Their follow-up, You're A Big Boy Now, their second soundtrack album, was a minor U.S. Album hit, peaking at No. 160.

After just one further U.S. hit, Six O'Clock, Zal Yanovsky left the band, following media coverage of a marijuana bust in San Francisco when he was accused of incriminating others to avoid prosecution under threat of deportation (as he was still technically a Canadian citizen) and the group was ostracised by their rock peers. He was replaced by Jerry Yester, who'd played in the Modern Folk Quartet. Although they enjoyed further minor single hits in the States with She's Still A Mystery, Money and Never Going Back, they rather lost their way and their next two albums Everything Playing and The Best Of The Lovin' Spoonful, Vol. 2 could only manage No. 118 and 156 respectively. When John Sebastian left the group in October 1968 it soon crumbled. He went on to enjoy a reasonably successful solo career and made a memorable appearance at The Woodstock Festival the following year, performing Younger Generation, which became a highlight of the movie, and I Had A Dream, which opened the Woodstock album. The following year he appeared with Zal Yanovsky at the Isle of Wight Rock Festival in the U.K. (Yanovsky was there as part of Kris Kristofferson's band).

Yester too, made solo albums but none rose above cult success. In the eighties he reformed the Modern Folk Quartet but became best known as a producer and string arranger. The Lovin' Spoonful's original line-up did reform in October 1980 to appear in Paul Simon's movie 'One Trick Pony'.

The band had two good years and is lovingly remembered by many for their zany image, wild sense of humour and their unique brand of good-time music, which combined traditional folk and blues influences with the rock and roll of their era.

Singles A's and B's (2-CD) includes both sides of all their singles. The 32 tracks on offer include all their hits like Daydream, Do You Believe In Magic? Summer In The City and You Didn't Have To Be So Nice and it comes with a booklet that features authoritative and extensive liner notes by respected author and journalist Chris Welch as well as an interview with John Sebastian.

Zal Yanovsky's solo album, Alive And Well In Argentina (Buddah BDS-5019) 1968 and (Kama Sutra KSBS-2030) 1971 is worth checking out as a good example of weird, deranged and wonderful sixties extravaganza.

45: The Girl I Once Knew/Mystery Of The Mystical Invasion (Musicor New Talent Series 429) 1968/9

Cool name but surely one guaranteed to get minimal promotion by the business end of the music machine. On the same label as Love, Inc., an unknown New England outfit left one superb psych single, judging by Mystery... a totally wigged-out trip of echoey discordance meandering over a slow, hypnotic beat while a disembodied voice repeats "that I once knew". So far out that it has evaded compilers to-date. (MW)

Ted Lucas handles the vocals and guitar on this solo album. A local Michigan artist he was previously in the Spike Drivers and The Misty Wizards. Musically, we're talking underground folk. The album, which came with an insert, sported some stunning cover art by Stanley Mouse. Lucas also contributed two tracks to a local sampler, Detroit Folk (LP) which pre-dates his album.

ALBUM: 1 LUCIFER (Gallo Records 2869) 1970 R3/R4

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Void VOID 25) 2001. (1) reissued on LP and CD (Akarma AK 044) 2001.

This very rare album was the work of a Rochester, New York band. The album sleeve notes declare that their music is "hard rock in the style of Grand Funk Railroad and Uriah Heep". Overall, the album is nowhere near that heaviness - there's a notable lack of thunderous riffing or screaming solos. Uriah Heep influences are more obvious in the soaring Byron-esque vocals on the dramatic ballads but an underlying soulful vibe and keyboard dominance puts them in the class of those New York City and Long Island Italian-American bands influenced by Vanilla Fudge or the Young Rascals, rather than the proto heavy-metal set. On their lighter side, they deliver a fine flowing rendition of the Youngbloods' version of Dino Valente's hippie anthem (Let's) Get Together.

The original is supposedly very rare and has been hyped by specialist dealers with asking prices reaching a dizzyingly silly level - one copy seen going for $900 in 2001 - surely guaranteed to disappoint. So, if this sounds like your bag and you're not stupidly rich, pick up the reissue.

Mattioli, Skelton and Gallo had previously played together in a band called Infirmary and Biocca joined them from Poor Heart. Lou Gramm, later with Foreigner, may have been in the band for a while. (VJ/SR/MW/CF)

Streets Of Gold/Get Ready (Radnor 104) 1970
Henry Bear/Think About It (Minaret 7601) 197?

Originally known as Plant and See (line-up 'A'), Lumbee was a four-piece from Fayetteville, North Carolina. They were enjoying some success with a single and album under their belt when their label White Whale went under and they were marooned. Determined to continue they got another contract which meant a change of name - so they chose to adopt the name of Lowery's Native American tribe.

A strange album which came with a big cardboard insert for the 'Overdose' game, a kind of 'Monopoly' for stoned people! The lyrics are obviously drug-related (You Gotta Be Stoned, Veronica High) and the music is rather bluesy with some sound effects. Now rare and sought-after but probably more for the game than for the music itself, this is of minor interest.

Forris Fulford now resides in Long Island, New York but the rest of the band still live in various parts of North Carolina. (SR/MW/VJ)

45s: The Exorcism/Msicroxe Eht (Pot Records) 197?

Lunar Madness came from Texas hence the inclusion of The Exorcism on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1. (3-CD). According to the sleeve notes, "Lunar Madness consisted of Johnny Winter's long-time bass player I.P. Sweat and songwriter Tom Lunar. After the movie 'The Exorcist' came out, they teamed up with guitarist David Kealy and made one record, The Exorcism, which was heavily influenced by psychedelic sounds and effects, and is thought to date from the mid-seventies. They released the record on their own Pot label, and the flip side, Msicroxe Eht, was merely The Exorcism played backwards. Eventually Sweat turned to the Texas brand of country music known as 'honky tonk' and scored several big hits, while Lunar still writes songs today." (CV)

(1) reissued on CD (World In Sound WIS-1006) 2003 with five bonus tracks.

45: Country Livin' (mono/stereo) (Tralfamadore T-1005) 1973

NB: LP track, but a very different mix.

A local southern California guitar-rock album, extremely well-played and produced. Only a handful of each of the two versions have ever surfaced and it's considered one of the lost masterworks of the seventies West Coast scene. The single track also appears on the album with many added overdubs, suggesting that the album sessions took place over several years. Much mystery surrounds this private pressing... it's an unusually extravagant artefact, with a full colour gatefold jacket and labels, top-quality recording, mastering and pressing. It has the look and sound of a withdrawn major-label release. Why is this record so hard to find? It seems unlikely that less than a thousand copies were pressed; what happened to them?

If in fact the mysterious Mr. Lund decided not to market the finished album and the entire pressing languishes in the cellar of some Hollywood mansion, that would be the only mistake he made... and a tragic one! This is a pretty cool album; despite being somewhat "too polished" to appeal to most readers of this book, it has much to recommend it. Most of side one is powerful, ethereal guitar-based rock with Lund's satisfying vocal soaring over the original songs. The album closes with the most resplendent version of Dylan's classic (It's All Over Now) Baby Blue ever heard - delicately orchestrated; if it was any prettier it couldn't be classified as rock.

The painting gracing the outside of the gatefold sleeve must be seen to be believed. As originals are very pricey, the World In Sound reissue is recommended. (CF)

	Up Down Sue/Yeah I'm Feeling Fine	(White Oak 759101) 1966

An all-girl band from Niles, Michigan Luv'd Ones was previously known as The Tremolons who recorded two singles for a tiny local label. The White Oak single (Up Down Sue) was recorded while they were down in Dania, Florida for the holiday season. The 'A' side has good vocals and great fuzzy guitar and is worth a listen. The flip is average girlie-garage with more neat licks. Both sides of this single were composed by Charlotte Vinnedge.

In 1971, Char Vinnedge joined up with former Band Of Gypsys bass player Billy Cox in Nitro Function.

Compilation appearances have included: Up Down Sue on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); I'm Leaving You and Yeah, I'm Feelin' Fine on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 3 (LP); and I'm Leaving You, Walkin' The Dog, Dance Kid Dance and Stand Tall on If You're Ready - The Best Of Dunwich... Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/MW)

ACETATE: 1 LYD (Sunwest Recording Studios, Inc. no#) 1970 R5

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Fanny 1 00592) 1992 in a limited pressing 400. (1) reissued on 10" vinyl (Akarma AK 2013) 2000. (1) reissued on CD (Thorns S 532) 1997. (1) reissued on CD (Akarma AK 913) 2000.

Here's an interesting find, an unissued acetate with lots of superb psychedelic guitar work. There are a couple of strong tracks; The Time Of Hate And Struggle is probably the pick, sounding like a cross between Music Emporium and Peacepipe! No information about the band has been uncovered, but they recorded at Pat Boone's Sunwest Studio in Hollywood. Mike Lyman and The Little People (CA)

45: A Message To Pretty/I Need You (Emanon 101) 196?

Mike Lyman and The Little People were an obscure group of teenagers possibly from California who played in a garage rock style. The single is thought to date from around 1967.

Message To Pretty has been compiled on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8: Love Covers (LP & CD). (SR/MW)

	If You Gotta Go, Go Now/I'll Go On	(White Whale 232) 1966	-
	Song No. Seven/ Write If You Get Work	(White Whale 245) 1967	-

Formed by a young Warren Zevon and his schoolmate Violet Santangelo, this short-lived California male-female duo got a contract with White Whale after a producer with the label took notice of their songwriting skills (The Turtles would later record their own version of Like The Seasons for the flip side of Happy Together). They are best remembered for Follow Me, a nice harmony folk-pop song which was a minor hit. Their second single was produced by Bones Howe (If You Gotta Go is a Dylan cover). The third, produced by Curt Boettcher, featured two Zevon originals, credited to "J. Glenn" for contractual reasons. The duo split in 1967.

Zevon was later involved with White Whale act The Brothers, played with Smokestack Lightnin' and went on to achieve some success as an L.A.-based singer/songwriter, often working with Jackson Browne.

Follow Me was later covered by U.K. outfit The Californians (!) and their version can be heard on Rubble, 11 (LP). You can also find the original on Nuggets, Vol. 4: Pop Part Two (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Mindrocker, Vol. 6 (LP). The White Whale retrospective, Happy Together - The Very Best Of White Whale Records (CD) also includes Follow Me and If You Gotta Go, Go Now. The Varese Sarabande CD contains all three of their singles and some unreleased demos. (VJ/SR/CF)

TEXAS FLASHBACKS Vol. 1 (Comp CD) including The Lyrics (TX).

From Grand Rapids, Michigan this outfit was fronted by Linda "Lyn" Nowicki. Scream Loud!! The Fenton Story (3-LP)/(2-CD) provides the line-up details and reports that they released another single (circa) as The Incredible Invaders before evolving into The Common People.

Boy Is Gone first reappeared on the cassette-only Best Of Michigan Rock Groups 1 but is more accessible via Scream Loud!! The Fenton Story (3-LP)/(2-CD), Girls In The Garage, Vol. 2 (LP), and Girls In The Garage, Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/VJ)

NB: α acetate only.

Hailing from Tyler in Texas, this band's vinyl zenith was You Lie, a catchy punk number.

Something For You composed by probable group members Bob Kindel and David Wade is a lighter pop effort backed by a good cover of Joe Tex's classic Show Me.

You'll also find You Lie on Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (CD), The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (CD), The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (LP), Acid Visions Vol. 6 (CD) (Spalax) and Garage Beat '66 7 (CD). (VJ/MW)

PEBBLES Vol. 2 (Comp CD) including The Lyrics (CA).

HIGHS IN THE MID-SIXTIES Vol. 3 (Comp LP) including The Lyrics (CA).

This garage-punk band originated from Carlsbad, California. So What!! is an excellent punker with prominent harmonica and raw vocals. By the time of their final release, however, they had discarded their rawness for a more harmonious sound.

In 1966 Allen and Gaylord left the band to join Magic Mushroom.

Compilation appearances have included: So What!! on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) and Great Pebbles (CD); Wait on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD); Wait and Mr. Man on Psychotic Reaction Plus Ten (CD); Mr. Man on Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 1: The Garage (LP), Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP), Brain Shadows, Vol. 11 (LP & CD) and Destination Frantic! (CD); They Can't Hurt Me on Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP); and Wake Up To My Voice on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP). 45:	It's Gonna Work Out Fine/I Don't Believe You	(Bolo 761) 1968

A five-piece folk-rock outfit from Everett, Washington Lyte evolved out of The Dimensions (Five). Their sole single is topped by a heavy version of a tune covered earlier by The Starfires. The flip by comparison is kind of Monkees-pop-punk punctuated by some fine Eastern fuzzy guitar warbles that are slightly at odds - somehow it works.

In 1968, Lee Dark had been in a bad auto accident and was flat on his back during this time (1968/69). He later became a hairdresser.

The band also recorded a demo in Bill Hoak's basement. Their single was recorded in Vancouver, Washington at Ripcord Studios. (MW/DR/RCn)

45:	If I Could/I Want To Stay	(Associated Artists 102) 1967

This Savannah, Georgia group started circa 1963 as The Fugitives. By 1967 they'd evolved into The Mach V with their most stable line-up (above) who recorded their sole single at Decca in Nashville late that year. If I Could is a straight-ahead fuzz-punker with pumping bass and keyboards; it would be classic Class Of '66 fare but for the occasional use of wah-wah.

You'll also find If I Could on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD), Scum Of The Earth (2-CD), Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/RM)

45:	Feet Of Clay / This Song About A Railroad Shack	(Oro 45-69) 196?

A self-penned singer/songwriter album from MacKay who is assisted by his wife Tanya and various ESP label artists, Cyril Castor (lead gtr, piano), Lee Crabtree (organ, piano) (of Pearls Before Swine), Chuck Raney (bs), Bob Sanderson (flute, bs, clarinet), Peter Schubert (bs), Warren Smith (drms), and Richard Tyler (electric harpsichord, organ). Tracks like In the Misty-Eyed Shores Of Morning and Geneva Brown are a bit Tom Rapp-ish, but the strongest composition is Feet Of Clay. The album is pleasant but unexceptional (like most of these types of albums usually are). (VJ/MW)

NB: There was also a UK 45: Candy/Hard Time Woman (MCA MU 1041) 1968.

Rabbit Mackay and The Somis Rhythm Band from Somis, California issued two albums of soft breathy folk with a psychedelic tinge. They achieve rather a primitive amateurish sound very much in the spirit of dope smoking and the glorification of the southern Californian hippie lifestyle. The end result is a blend of quite effective laid-back tunes alternating with light-hearted acoustic sing-along type celebrations. The best of the former style are reminiscent of the second West album.

Compilation appearances include: West Grogan Dormitory Blues on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 6 (CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP); and Tendency To Be Free on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP). (VJ)

45: Girl Don't Leave Me/Allright (Feature RPS-105) 1966

A quartet from East Troy and Palmyra, Wisconsin The Madadors started in the early sixties as The Mad Madadors. Girl Don't Leave Me is a melodic garagey ballad that sounds uncannily like the Everly Brothers' When Will I Be Loved on occasions. The flip is a brisk version of the Ross-Vanadore song, also covered by The Coastliners and The Legends.

In 1967, they changed their name to Easy Street.

Confusingly there was another single on Feature by Matadors, a totally different group from Sheboygan Falls. (MW/MM/GM)

45: X-Tra, X-Tra, Read All About It/
Painted Smile (Original Sound OS-85) 1969

A rather strange, some might say psychedelic, single by a Los Angeles studio group that previously replied to the name of Pasternak Progress with the venerable Brian Ross (of Music Machine and Friendly Torpedos fame) at the controls. It contains plenty of sound effects and an odd feedback intrusion but leans more towards Zappa/Bonzos. (MW)

Three of the songs on this previously unreleased album were used in a low-budget biker flick called 'Black Angels'. Just a handful of test pressings were made of this guitar-driven psych-rock album that was recorded at a Hollywood Studio in 1969. Subsequent research has unearthed that the demo was recorded by the L.A. band The Zoo, who are featured on Presents Chocolate Moose album. Confusingly the band was also known as Joyful Noise for a while. (VJ)

Mad Dog (MI)

ALBUM: 1 617 (Fish Head FH-7701) 1977 R1

This is a borderline case for inclusion as there's a real punk-rock feel to this minimalist hard-rock album although the songs were apparently recorded during 1974-76. The album was presented in an interesting cover which sports a black and white drawing of a collection of headless female bodies in an outer space scene. It's a stark and bleak album with throaty vocals. The band was from Bay City, Michigan. (VJ)

This Is How It's Gonna Be/Go Find A Love (Ascot 2220) 1966
I'll Come Running/Hello Girl (Fontana 1582) 1967

Hailing from Annapolis, Maryland this quartet played their interpretation of Bob Dylan - P.F. Sloan-influenced folk-rock. They benefited from a strong management-production team of Tom Traynor and Barry Seidel. Their first single is very much in that mould. By 1966 and their second they'd developed a fuller, more mature sound.

Drummer Richard 'Spider' Kumer later teamed up with Jack Bryant (who wrote Hello Girl for The Mad Hatters) in The Fallen Angels.

One side of Washington D.C. Garage Band Greats! (LP) is given over to the band. It includes their two singles on Ascot (a previously unreleased alternate take of Hello Girl and three previously unreleased tracks: - Go Fight Alone, A Pebble In My Sand and Goodbye Babe). Their finest moment? I guess that was I'll Come Running, a fine up-tempo folk-punk number, full of energy, enthusiasm and pulsating organ.

There Goes The Neighborhood, Vol. 3 (CD) also contains four live tracks from 1965 - Time Is On My Side, Satisfaction, Mickey's Monkey and What's Your Hurry - plus two radio spots.

Other compilation appearances have included: I'll Come Running on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 7 (CD); I Need Love on Signed, D.C. (LP); and Go Fight Alone and A Pebble In My Sand on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 10 (CD). (MW/BE)

You May See Me Cry/Chicks Are For Kids (Cardinal 0077) 1966

This is another band from Mankato in Minnesota which involved Dale Menton. He formed them after the break-up of The Gestures and they were also known as The Best Thing.

The first single is credited to Tommy Mason and The Madhatters. Mason, an all-American halfback with the Minnesota Vikings, had sung lead vocals on both sides of the disc.

The second single was picked up and released on United Artists 500027 as by The Best Things. The 'A' side, You May See Me Cry is a slow melancholy ballad with subdued organ.

Compilation appearances have included: You May See Me Cry on No No No (CD) and Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 9: The Nightclub (LP & CD); and Chicks Are For Kids on Root '66 (LP). (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) MADRIGAL (No label ARA/B 136) 197? R4

This is an early seventies private press from New Jersey and features experimental rock music with electronic drums (an early drum machine - the Maestro). A very primitive affair; it sounds like it was recorded live in a basement. The record is dominated by an "anything goes" attitude, epitomised by the 14'00" Stoned Freakout featuring druggy chatter and distorted screams. An acquired taste, this one. Fans of the long tracks on the first two Velvet Underground albums should investigate further.

I'm told that Bill Horn released several later albums of either electronic music or keyboard-based rock, but I don't have details. (CF)

45s: Amphetamine Gazelle/High All The Time (Capitol 2310) 1968
Copper Plates/Harfy Magnum (Capitol 2559) 1969

This unique band was fronted by Lawrence Hammond, who was born in Berkeley, but spent much of his childhood in Nebraska. Bluegrass music was his main musical influence. The band was formed by Hammond (harp, vcls) and a series of fellow medical students (Robinson (gtr), Manning (bs), and Dewey (drms)), who all attended Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio. They were originally known as The Mad River Blues Band - Mad River being a small tributary of the Ohio. The band, minus Manning, then moved to Washington D.C. for a while. In this period they began to write their own material and secured gigs at very disreputable dives. They then returned to Yellow Springs where Manning rejoined the band and Rick Bochner was added on guitars. In the spring of 1967 the band quit college, headed for San Francisco, and soon became based in Berkeley. Soon afterwards Sam Silver, a friend of Ed Denson, manager of Country Joe and the Fish, became their manager. Consequently, they secured a number of gigs with The Fish. The band was befriended by Lonnie Hewitt and in 1967 recorded their legendary EP on his Wee label (10021). It's an interesting record, not easy to obtain, which contains an early version of Amphetamine Gazelle (simply called Gazelle on the EP), Wind Chimes and Orange Fire. The first two were re-recorded for their album. Orange Fire is a non-album track.

By the end of 1967 they had played a number of Fillmore and Avalon gigs and were signed to Capitol along with The Quicksilver Messenger Service and The Steve Miller Band. Their debut album was issued in 1968. Extremely un-commercial it was particularly noteworthy for Lawrence Hammond's distinctive quavering vocals and some superb interweaving acid guitar work (particularly on War Goes On and Eastern Light). It has later transpired that during its making the recording and playback speeds were not the same - so everything came out higher and faster than they had played it!

Prior to the recording of their second album, Manning left the band and they got a new manager, Harry Sobol. They also asked Jerry Corbitt (of The Youngbloods), an acquaintance from their Yellow Springs days, to produce it. The album was an amalgam of different styles - short country-rock tracks like Paradise Bar and Grill, Love's Not The Way To Treat A Friend and Cherokee Queen appear alongside a couple of long acid-influenced tracks, Leave Me Stay and Academy Cemetery. This album was greeted with more enthusiasm than their debut by the critics, but Capitol did nothing to promote it and did not release it in Britain.

Inevitably, then, Mad River split up in 1969. Bochner went to run a homestead in Canada. Dewey worked on Jerry Corbitt's first album and later had a spell with Country Joe and the Fish, Grootna, Eggs Over Easy and Bodacious D.F.. Robinson became a building contractor and Manning did occasional work for him and some session work.

Lawrence Hammond later formed The Whiplash Band, a bluegrass/country music group. Supported by this outfit (Alan Lane (bs), Janet Bryson (vcls), Al McShane (drms), and James Louis Parber (ld gtr)), Hammond recorded a country-rock album Coyote's Dream (Takoma C 1047) in 1976. Fellow Mad River members Dewey and Robinson also made guest appearances on the album.

As for Mad River - their output is essential for any collector of psychedelia.

Compilation appearances have included: High All The Time on Rock A Delics (LP); Amphetamine Gazelle, Orange Fire and Windchimes on Nuggets From The Golden State: The Berkeley EPs (CD); and Orange Fire on Glimpses, Vol. 3 (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). California Easter (2-LP) contains a live recording of Wind Chimes and War Goes On from Dr. Sunday's Medicine Show at Fairground Family Park, San Jose on 10th August 1967. You can also check out Amphetamine Gazelle on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book) and Wind Chimes on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

Madson (IN)

The compiler of the Gone, Vol. 1 (LP) included I Saw What You Did by a band of this name. Max Waller writing in 'Freakbeat' was first to discover that this was actually The Olivers track of the same name. See The Olivers' entry for details of this superb farfisa'n'fuzz punker which has resurfaced on a number of compilations. So what of Madson? Either The Olivers' also released the single under this name or, more likely, as Max suggests the compiler of Gone, Vol. 1 really was totally gone. The band came from Fort Wayne, Indiana. (VJ)

Here's some meanderin' hippie-rock jamming with jazz and fusion moves by a trio who evolved out of Bangor Flying Circus. The band was featured in the concert scene in the cult film 'Electra Glide In Blue', they have two cuts on the soundtrack album (United Artists UA062) 1973. The film also starred Chicago (Transit Authority) members Peter Cetera and Terry Kath, who blew away the good cop at the film's denouement. (MW)

From Fairfield, Ohio Maelstrom was actually Us Too under a pseudonym and this particular single was released without the band's knowledge! Organ Player is nice slow pop-psych with a somewhat murky production. We Can't Go is more up-tempo, a pretty good sound - not punk, more pop-rock.

A little-known folk-rock duo, their Nik Venet-produced album contains a mix of originals and covers of Dylan and Hoyt Axton, some with only acoustic guitars, others with tablas, bass and piano. It starts with what many regard as one of the best versions of Dylan's Just Like A Woman. They also cover Dylan's Just Like Tom Thumb Blues on the same album. The album spawned a failed single Forest Lawn that recalled The Kinks circa Face To Face. Other highlights are Landscape Grown Cold with dark lyrics, strings, and phasing towards the end, and Kingswood Manor is a good folk-rock track featuring tabla and drug references in the lyrics. City Sidewalks is a trancey country-rocker that may appeal to Byrds fans. Keep On Movin' On/One Minus Two (Armadillo 0022) 1969
Sound Of Tears Is Silent/California (Armadillo 0023) 1970

This band spent time in both Michigan and Florida. They were originally called The Next Exit but changed their name to Magic shortly before recording their first single, which they released on their own Monster label. In early 1969, Clyde quit the band and Mike Motz was replaced by Joey Murcia on lead guitar.

Their first album, which was recorded in Florida in the summer of 1969, has become a collectors' item and is full of excellent dual guitar work. The highlight is the extended track I'll Just Play, which showcases their superb guitar work at its best. The album is certainly worth acquiring, some rate it very highly and at its best some draw comparison with Kak.

They relocated to East Lansing, Michigan in 1970. There they met Scott Regan, a producer from Detroit who got them a deal with the Motown-owned Rare Earth label to record their second album and whilst in Michigan they gigged with several local bands like The Rationals, The Woolies and Ormandy. Unfortunately, their second album is not as good as their first. It did feature a young Stevie Wonder on keyboards on several tracks and got favourable reviews in Billboard and Cashbox. Within a few months of the album's release Motown left Detroit and the Rare Earth label was shut down, which scuppered any chance of them making a commercial breakthrough. They did record a few more demos, but eventually split up in frustration at the fate of their Motown deal.

Joey Murcia was previously with the Florida band The Birdwatchers and he went on to play in Life. He later became a renowned studio musician, working with Jay Ferguson, Joe Cocker, the Bee Gees and Joe Walsh. He now lives in California. Gary became a successful businessman and now resides in Michigan. Duane King moved to L.A. in 1972 and is still singing and writing songs. His brother Nick sadly died in an automobile accident in 1998.

And I'll Tell The World (About You)/
I'd Like To Know (Columbia 4-43725) 1966
Double Good Feeling/Lady Fingers (Columbia 4-44061) 1967

This New York City band is best known for its pop-rock rendition Invitation To Cry on Lenny Kaye's Nuggets (LP) compilation. They made three other reasonably good singles and an unreleased album, but although they seemed on the verge of success they never actually achieved much. Upon their demise, Allan "Jake" Jacobs went solo then joined someone called Bunky and became... Bunky and Jake, who released two albums and some singles. Townley founded the Apostolic Studios in New York and was behind projects such as Family of Apostolic and Gospel. Bonner and Gordon were the force behind the group Barracuda, penning most of that group's output and later became a successful songwriting team, penning The Turtles' She's My Girl, Me About You, You Know What I Mean, She'd Rather Be With Me and Happy Together, among others. They also wrote Celebrate for Three Dog Night, Fancy Dancin' Man for The Righteous Bros. and Cat In The Window for Petula Clark! One of their Magicians compositions, And I'll Tell The World About You was also covered by Joe Walsh on his Barnstorm album, whilst Me About You was covered by The Mojo Men, Gandalf and Orpheus amongst others. They also composed a classic pop-punker Put The Clock Back On The Wall which was done by the E-Types and later the Parrots.

Obviously a talented band who deserved bigger success (there was even a TV documentary on the band entitled Four To Go), they were also a good live act and are remembered as one of the best bands to play at the Night Owl Cafe in Greenwich Village.

More recently Invitation has been re-aired on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP) and Nuggets Box (4-CD), whilst Lady Fingers is on Psychotic Reactions (LP). Lady Fingers, one of their best psychedelic folk-rock songs, was originally intended for an album of their material which was sadly never released. More recently a CD retrospective An Invitation To Cry: The Best Of The Magicians contains their four singles plus five unreleased offerings and comes with a detailed history.

Gary Bonner is currently working with The Plantones, a traditional doo-wop group with Kenny Vance. (VJ/MW)

A Philadelphia outfit who have been much confused over the years with California's Magic Mushroom. Sonny Cassella was not only their producer and manager but played and sang on some of their tracks. Sonny "Casella" also co-produced the debut single by The Snaps. In view of previous errors, the long-running rumour that they have an unreleased album in some dusty vault should be regarded as pure speculation, until someone can prove otherwise.

Stu Freeman later appeared in the short-lived Broadway show 'Hard Job Being God'. Later still he resurfaced, singing with 'Stars on 45'.

They've been well-compiled: the trippy-hippie-pop of It's A Happening is a fitting finale on Lenny Kaye's classic Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) set, later on Rhino's Nuggets Box (4-CD); Never More on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD) and Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP); Never Let Go on Boulders, Vol. 2 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD); Let The Rain Be Me, an enchanting folk-rocker, is on Filling The Gap (4-LP box) and Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 1 (LP & CD). An obscure outfit from New York City whose single got a major label outing. The flip, I'm A Nothing, is a rather stark folk-punk offering.

The World United label was run by Harry Lookofsky, and his son Michael Brown also worked as engineer's assistant for the WU studio. Tom Finn met Michael Brown whilst recording the single and both would of course later play together in The Left Banke.

Schekeryk became a producer and in the late sixties got hold of flower-child folkie Melanie, whom he married and managed.

ALBUM:	1(A)	MAGIC SAND	(UNI 73094) 1970

This is quite a varied album which hasn't as yet attracted much interest from collectors. The stand-out track is the psychedelic Get Ready To Fly. The title cut is a country-influenced instrumental jig and there's quite a lot of country banjo on Down On My Knees and The Good Lord Willing. The blues is an evident influence on Thinking Out Loud and You'd Better Be Ready. It's worth a spin. You may be interested to know that Get Ready To Fly is the same song that was released by The Hooterville Trolley as No Silver Bird.

The Hooterville Trolley single lists an address in Mississippi on the label, which may be the home state of 'both' groups - especially as another single produced by Tom Bee was by the Mississippi The Trademarks. Tom Bee could also be the same guy that led/produced Xit and Lincoln St. Exit and had earlier played in Fe Fi Four Plus 2, but that would imply that they were from Arizona or New Mexico.

As a further twist in this band's convoluted history, the same A. Klein and V. Gabrielle listed as Magic Sand personnel are also the main songwriters (along with a "Tom G") for Mud on Mudd on their self-titled album. Mud on Mudd were a septet (no personnel listed explicitly) and although the music isn't really psychedelic, it is very good rock-soul. The album is split between Traffic, Sam and Dave, and Beatles covers; and a handful of well-written originals. They also completely transform Porter Waggoner's country classic Satisfied Mind into a funky rocker (!).

The most interesting thing is that both albums came out on Uni, and the catalogue numbers indicate that they were released very close to each other. Was this in fact the same band? A Uni-manufactured studio group? Perhaps A. Klein and V. Gabrielle were staff writers? (VJ/CF/RBn)

Friends/Jonathan (Tower 464) 1969

A pop-rock quartet with a female singer, they had a contract to promote Wurlitzer instruments. Their album was produced by Lewis Merenstein and arranged by Jimmy Wisner and Herb Bernstein. Two of their tracks, Everyday and If I'm Wrong can be found on a rare promo 7" (Tower SPRO 4557) along with Eternity's Children, The Sunrays and Davie Allan and The Arrows. (SR)

ALBUM: 1 SEEKERS OF THE TRUTH (w/insert)
(Janco 7256) 1972 SC

This oddball item appeared on a California label but the artist was from New York. It has mediocre guitar and organ folk-rock on side one and spoken word testimonies on side two about why people should turn from drugs to religion. It's one for "incredibly strange music" collectors, best avoided by everyone else. (VJ)

45: On My Own/Love Will Find A Way (Kat Records 501) 1967

These Majestics were from Macon, Georgia and had been together since 1964. Their single billed them as "Majestic", presumably to differentiate them from other Majestics. It appeared in the fall of 1967, coupling a moody garage-ballad with decent garage-beat. (MW)

Majestics (?NC)

45: Smile Through My Tears/
Love Has Forgotten Me (MGM K13488) 1966

This dramatic Searchers-style folk-beat ballad with ringing guitars would appeal to fans of early Beau Brummels. The flip is more pedestrian and far less impressive. The single was produced by Tommy Smalls, and North Carolina has been suggested but not confirmed as their base. (MW)

	Green Plant/Nite Time Music	(B.T. Puppy 548) 1969
	Wednesday Morning Dew/We Gotta Live On	(PIP 8936) 1970

Majic Ship came from Long Island, New York. Their 10-track album is rare and contains a stunning version of Neil Young's Down By The River, which merges into For What It's Worth (these are the only covers on the album that otherwise comprises originals). Many other tracks, such as Free and Life's Lonely Road contain some pulsating guitar work, but there are some mellow ones too like the gorgeous Wednesday Morning Dew and Where Are We Going. A highly recommended album, which is now available officially on CD by Gear Fab, together with many bonus tracks or on a double album set from Akarma.

Majic Ship evolved out of The Primitives, an outfit formed by Ray Rifice and Tommy Nikosey whilst at Saint Anselm's school in New York at the tender age of 13! By June 1965, they had learned to play their instruments somewhat, recruiting Mike Garrigan on vocals and the following year recording an acetate of On The Edge/Mustang Sally at a local studio. When original bass-player John Kharouf quit, Gus Riozzi was introduced, and they became The New Primitives, performing locally and adding keyboardist Jeff Bilotta in the process.

As the summer of 1968 approached, the band's high school years were coming to an end, and Ray Rifice moved to Florida. Days before he moved, ex-fifties singer turned manager, Johnny Mann saw the band perform at a local gig and offered them a deal. Fortuitously, the day after the gig Philip Polimeni was found as a replacement for the departing Ray and with a new name given to them by their management company, Majic Ship, they recorded the Night Time Music single.

MAJIC SHIP - The Complete Authorized Recordings CD.

Shortly after its release, Night Time Music was selected as WMCA's "Pick Of The Week" in December 1968 and the soulful Hummin' was picked as its follow-up, charting regionally, and allowing the band to tour around the East Coast. After a further two singles, including the excellent Green Plant, Jeff Bilotta quit... and the band, wishing to return to their rock roots, went back into the studio to record their debut album.

Like many bands of the era, their album was largely overlooked at the time, although it is in retrospect a definite 'classic', with the years spent gigging and recording singles resulting in a well-produced and 'rounded' album that flows with a graceful beauty absent in many chart acts. However also like many of their counterparts, their progress was brought to an untimely end when in 1971 their rented apartment in Staten Island burned down together with all their equipment. With no insurance, the band called it quits.

The Gear Fab retrospective includes The Primitives acetate, all of Majic Ship's single cuts, the entire album and one new cut Blow Me Away, recorded by the band in 1997. It also comes with detailed liner notes, from which this article has been compiled, and many rare photos of the band. The package can only really be faulted in that the running order is a little dis-jointed, with the bonus tracks coming before the album cuts, and the band interview sections being too quiet. Still an essential reissue though!

Compilation appearances have included: Sioux City Blues and Life's Lonely Road on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD); Green Plant on Psychedelic Unknowns Vol. 5 (LP); Life's Lonely Road on Reverberation 1V (CD); On The Edge on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD); and Wednesday's Morning Dew on Realistic Patterns: Wednesday's Morning Dew (CD). On the same label as Anonymous, this album recorded by a Milwaukee, Wisconsin band has some lovely melodic West Coast psych-folk (best represented on the superb opening cut Western Wind) as well as blues, folk, and light progressive rock. The front cover is a real stunner, drawn by underground cartoonist Denis Kitchen.

The core band is listed above, but on this album there were a number of guest musicians, including Sigmund Snopek of The Bloomsbury People. Jim Spencer, now sadly deceased, had other Milwaukee releases. (SR/GM)

Subtitled "Evening Vibrations", this album was recorded Wednesday, 17th August, 1966 in San Francisco and its five tracks are named Wednesday (Second, Sixth, Fourth, Fifth and Eighth). This is one of the earliest psychedelic albums recorded with long meditative and instrumental ragas, with minimal instrumentation. The liner notes were written by Allen Ginsberg ("Malachi approach music in spirit of consciousness-meditation: altar, flowers, herb, incense, silence, communion with selves, hush and darkness and improvisation. Poe would have enjoyed his presence") and Michael Harner ("Malachi's music transcends the traditions of East and West and represents the new synthesis which is still being worked out by those participating in the psychedelic revolution").

Steve Cunningham later joined Red Crayola. (SR/VJ)

The Male (NC)

45: Over My Head/You're Playing With Fire (Quinvy Q-7006) 1970

The Male's single was released in December 1970 on a label better known for its Southern Soul productions. The flip of this extremely rare single features highly energetic drumming, lots of fuzz guitar and good vocals. Over My Head is comparatively less interesting as it's a soul-rock song.

The Male was a local singer from Raleigh, North Carolina. (SR/MW)

Malibus (IL)

45s: I'm Crying/Runaway (Quill 104) 1965
Baby, Let Me Take You Home/La Da Da (Orlyn 66312) 1966

Named after the Chevrolet muscle car this band came from Chicago. I'm Crying is a short but sweet R&B raver with harmony vocals, and can also be found on Pebbles Vol. 7 - Chicago 2 (CD). Another track, La Da Da, is a rather weak rocker and has also been compiled on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 4 (LP) and on Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD). According to the Pebbles CD liner notes, the band also recorded a number of acetates. (VJ)

The Malibus (CT)

45s: Cry (Over Her)/I Miss You (Malibu 1) 1966
Leave Me Alone/Cry (Over Her) (Planet 58) 1966

This was a different outfit from Litchfield, Connecticut. Leave Me Alone, was based around the Zombies' Leave Me Be and had a muffled, surfy feel. Cry is a grinding punker, though they re-recorded a more psychedelic version for their Planet single.

Compilation appearances include: Leave Me Alone on New England Teen Scene (CD) and New England Teen Scene, Vol. 1 (LP); Cry (Over Her) (later version) on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); and Cry (Over Her) (earlier version) on Back From The Grave, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP). 45: I've Gotta Go/I Want You To Know (PJ 1004) 1966

Formed in Fort Valley, Georgia in 1965 by David Luckie, the band name was actually The Malibu's but the apostrophe had a habit of going awol, as on their April 1966 release. The 17-year-old Luckie wrote both songs and betrayed his liking for the Byrds on I Want You To Know, reaired on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). The Essential Pebbles Collection Vol. 1 (2-CD) features both sides.

They also recorded a version of Little Black Egg which got some airplay but was only on tape and never released.

After more personnel shuffles and the introduction of brass, they changed their name to The Sixpence (line-up 'D') and went on tour, often employed as back-up band for the likes of Billy Joe Royal.

Luckie reported that he, Byrd, and Herbert were still playing together, more than 42 years on, joined occasionally by Wheeler. (MW)

MAJOR ARCANA

MAJOR ARCANA - Self Titled LP.

Lee Mallory started off in the early sixites as a folkie in San Francisco and L.A.. In 1965 he checked out the Greenwich Village scene and spent some months in Chicago's Old Town before returning to Los Angeles. It wasn't long before he was sucked into Our Productions, the creative whirlpool that revolved around Curt Boettcher.
